(d) Conduct a section in the Party press on educational work in order to popularise this Party activity and keep it constantly before the attention of the Party members.

(e) Give full and united support to the New York Workers School and endeavor to develop similar institutions in other large Party centers.

(f) Organize a national Party school in Chicago for the purpose of giving intensive instruction to a selected group of Party leaders from the various districts.

(g) Make arrangements for the holding of special lectures by the most qualified Party leaders on questions of Communist theory and arrange special debates with other political bodies on these subjects.

(h) Insofar as practical and possible, the Agitprop Department of the Central Executive Committee should endeavor to develop educational work in the various language sections according to the same general plan outlined above.

PABLO MANLAPIT, IMPRISONED FOR LEADING SUGAR WORKERS' STRIKE, MADE BOSSES QUAKE, SAYS CROUCH

By PAUL CROUCH.

(Special to The Daily Worker)

FORT SHAFTER GUARD-HOUSE, Honolulu, Hawaii.—Pablo Manlapit is the Sun Yat Sen of Hawaii. To the enslaved colonials he is a symbol of justice and freedom—and of the struggle against imperialism. His unselfish devotion and efforts for his race and class have resulted in a class-consciousness in Hawaii among the plantation workers that can not be killed, even by the brutal imprisonment of its leader.

"Manlapit could have received one hundred thousand dollars from the sugar kings if he would have called off the strike," said a man familiar with the situation. Instead of betraying his class and becoming a labor faker, Pablo Manlapit remained true to the workers. For that devotion and courage, he is paying the penalty in the territorial prison.

Sugar Czars Use White Terror

When the plantation czars discovered that Manlapit would not follow the example of American traitors to labor they employed the white terror to retain their power over their colonial slaves. The imperialists hated Manlapit and his brave associates. But even greater than hatred was fear.

The stabilization of capitalism is only surface deep. The masses are waking from their long sleep and the coming of a new social order is as inevitable as the down of a new day. The struggle of the plantation slaves led by Manlapit is proof that capitalist imperialism is not secure, even when backed by a rubber stamp territorial government and the armed forces of the American autocracy.

Workers Must Protest

During the "stabilization" period, we must fight for partial demands. Every victory of the working class hastens the day of complete emancipation. The Hawaiian worker must fight for a living wage for himself and family and for the largest possible returns for his labor until the day comes when he is master of his own land and tools and when imperialists can no longer drown his hopes of proper living conditions in a sea of blood.

Pablo Manlapit, the leader of colonial slaves against imperialism, must not be forgotten by the working class. The American proletariat should make a protest that will halt the slow murder of a martyr for oppressed races.

Comrades Urged to Donate Books for Bronx Lenin Corner

Either a good book or the price of a good book; that is the slogan of the Bronx library committee. Come across, comrades. A thousand comrades in the Bronx means a fair seized library.

A Book a Comrade

Don't forget comrades, that this is not a private affair; every book donated will be read by dozens of comrades anxious for knowledge which only good books can give; and every good book which you place in the hands of another thinking individual means a new convert gained. That is the most effective means of spreading Communist propaganda—literature, and libraries.

Do your bit now. A book or the price of a good book. Bring it to the Bronx headquarters, 1347 Boston Road, and leave it with the library committee in charge.

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., July 29.—On next Monday evening August 3, at 8 p. m., the left wing group of the trade unions will hold their meeting at the A. O. U. W. hall, second floor, 17 South 7th street.

BUILDERS AT WORK IN NEW YORK

COMRADE Louis Steinberg of the Brotherhood of Painters, Paperhangers and Decorators has just brought in three subs from the organizer, the chairman, and one member of the Executive Committee of his Local, who will all read the Report of the British Trade Union Delegation on Russia. None of them are Party members.

Fred Macy, an old war horse of many years practice, sends in five subs, all members of the Bricklayers' Union.

The secretary of Women's Circle No. 150, Comrade M. Lurie, remits for eight of his members who want to hear what British trade unionists have to say about Russia.

Fred Cramer, the old dependable, who is always on the job for the West Side English Branch, brings in five bucks for a bundle of five for the two months of the British trade union report. He is the first to comply with the resolution adopted unanimously by the representatives of thirty New York branches at the last two DAILY WORKER meetings that EVERY DAILY WORKER agent must bring at least one order for a bundle of five for these two months.

Comrade M. S. Schneider paid for a bundle of fifty containing the opening chapter of the report on Russia for her own personal work. From previous experience with Comrade Schneider we know that from these samples a goodly list of subs will result in due time.

There's something doing in the Young Workers League No. 28. Comrade A. Cohen dropped into the office Saturday with an ultimatum that we must give him fifty of the summer campaign pledge cards, as his entire branch intends to qualify for charter membership in the New York Daily Worker Builders' Club, which is to be organized on the DAILY WORKER excursion to Stony Island on the Hudson, September 7.

HAD Clarence [illegible] agnostic and not Wil[illegible] Jennings Bryan, the fundamentally superstitious democrat, been the victim of the grim reaper so shortly after the Dayton trial, every pulpit pounder in the country would have attributed Darrow's demise to godly vengeance. As it is, the passing of Bryan will be conveniently attributed to the will of God. Darrow is still alive, snapping his suspenders, and storing up another supply of tears for his next murder trial.

IN the paper prepared by Bryan for delivery at the so-called ape trial, Bryan blamed atheism for the Leob-Leopold murder. The downright hishonestly of this claim is a fitting reply to the ocean of liquid dung that has inundated the press since the great mountebank passed away. Even one so ignorant as Bryan, knew very well that for one atheist convicted of a foul crime, at least one thousand evangelists are on the other side of the scales.

ONE could spend his time to less advantage than listening occasionally to the religious ballyhoo artists who work the side streets off Madison. A sandy haired fellow was getting something like this off his chest a few evenings ago: "I have confidence in God. He is alright. He is on the level. He has been square with me. There are few people I would take their words but I would take God's word. I'll say I would. He cleaned me up. He'll cleanse you. Oh, oh, oh, h-o-w he can do a job."

AT this point one of his listeners, who apparently needed salvation, interrupted with "How the hell do you know?" The preacher did not pay any attention, but continued to make comparisons between god and sundry gentlemen such as politicians, real estate men and saloonkeepers. The wordly men suffered by comparison. Another man sitting on the curbstone, came to the defense of the preacher, saying, "He's alright. He's got the right dope."

MANY SIGNS OF CHANGE IN I.W.W. SHOW PROGRESS

M. T. W. Co-operates in Fight on Bosses

By HARRISON GEORGE

It is encouraging, and the first sign of making things better in the I. W. W., to recognise that something is wrong. Because if sincere endeavor is made to rectify the situation, the old mistakes may be labelled for what they are, the past wrong policies resolutely put out and a real new course followed which gets results. Therefore, the writer gladly points to signs of change and of healthy internal criticism in the I. W. W., which, while it doesn't go far enough and is timorous of being in violation of the many religious taboos, is the sort of stock taking that precedes change for the better.

In the General Office Bulletin for June one sees an article entitled, "What is the Matter With Us?" by a pseudonym "Jean Marat." The interrogation as given is certainly felt by all members of the I. W. W. and it is another sign of the times that the general headquarters officials have

WANT GENERAL STRIKE OF ALL WOOLEN MILLS

Disorganized Workers Ask for Leadership

MAYNARD, Mass., July 30.—The American Woolen Co., has decided on a ten per cent wage cut to take place in their mills here on July 27. This wage slash will decrease standard of living of the mill workers which is already low owing to unemployment and part time work.

Want Haywood Back

At the last meeting of the textile council of the locals of the United Textile Workers the wage cut was discussed. It was decided that a mass meeting should be held to get in touch with the mass of the mill workers who are not organized.

During the discussion as to who should be invited to speak at the mass meeting, a delegate of the loomfixers' local said that "Bill Haywood should be sent over from Moscow to be the speaker" as he was more reliable in this situation than any of the U. T. W. leaders. But it was finally decided that the meeting should be addressed by one of the union organizers.

Call for Special U. T. W. Convention

The dissatisfaction of the workers with the wage cut was shown in a resolution which called on President McMahon of the U. T. W. to convene a special convention of the union for the purpose of discussing the question of a general strike to combat the wage cut. This resolution was carried unanimously.

The textile workers know from bitter experience in the past that isolated strikes against wage cuts do not get the workers anywhere. The workers know that it is useless for a couple of thousand of workers in a mill town to strike against a wage cut while thousands of workers employed by the same corporation are at work.

The defeat of the cotton workers last fall and winter in their efforts to stop the wage cuts was caused by the isolated strikes. The organized textile workers of Maynard want a real effective general strike all over New England.

Workers Want Unity and Struggle

The resolution of the textile council here shows the attitude of the textile workers toward the wage cut. They want action on the part of their union officials. But McMahon leadership does not believe in fighting the bosses effectively with a wide spread strike, and will attempt to turn the desire of the workers to fight the bosses into futile local strikes which will be broken because the bosses can get the work done in other towns.

"Great Klan Show" at Washington, D. C., Begins to Dwindle

WASHINGTON, July 30.—The national capital's "Great Klan Show," on Aug. 8, in which it had been planned to have 50,000 hooded knights march down Pennsylvania avenue, dwindled today to the dimensions of a lodge parade.

Instead of 50,000 klansmen in the line of march, from all parts of the country, there will be only a few thousand from the capital and nearby chapters in Virginia and Maryland They will march unmasked.

Factional quarrels in the organization are said to have led to abandonment of the plan for a show on a national scale.

Second Union Square Meeting Unmolested

NEW YORK CITY, July 30.—The police of New York faced a solid phalanx of 1,000 Communists and sympathizers the other night, who were determined that the right to use the streets of New York for a demonstration should not be denied the Workers (Communist) Party. The week before, the police, who feel that they are entitled to censor the speeches of Communists, and not being satisfied with the speeches that were delivered at the meeting organized by the Workers Party to protest against the machinations of American imperialism in China, disrupted the meeting.

British General Strike Involving 5,000,000 May Begin at Midnight

(Special to The Daily Worker)

LONDON, July 30.—The most bitter industrial civil war ever known to England threatens to begin tomorrow night thru the united fighting front of all British unions in support of 1,200,000 coal miners who are due to down tools midnight Friday. Already clashes of labor and reaction are commencing in battles between Communists and Fascists and mass picketing in the Welsh anthracite region already on strike.

The reactionary government of Premier Baldwin is swearing in civilians as deputized strikebreakers and mobilizing the navy and army units to crush the strike.

British fascisti are volunteering for service and being accepted by the government as police fully authorized to use force against the workers.

Baldwin presented a statement to the miners which they were considering with a committee of the Trades Union Congress this afternoon.

A. J. Cook, Communist secretary of the Miners' Union said, "Our position is still the same. W. A. Lee, secretary of the operators' organization declared that "so far as the owners are concerned, we are finished."

Mine Owners Started Fight.

The fight comes from the owners trying to cancel an existing agreement and demanding wage cuts of 20 per cent and longer hours of labor. They still refuse to withdraw from this assault on the agreement, this attack on the already poor living standard of the miners.

If this continues until tomorrow night, nothing can stop the walkout of 1,200,000 British miners, with other unions of rail and transport pledging not to move coal, which in turn may bring them on strike and involving 5,000,000 men.

No One Can Forsee End.

Such a general strike is a strong probability and would amount to a state of civil war between labor and capital, a war whose end no one can foresee.

"Complete industrial paralysis" of Great Britain thru sympathetic action of affiliated trade unionists with the 1,200,000 coal miners scheduled to go on strike at midnight Friday was a possibility predicted today by J. H. Thomas, spokesman for the workers.

Thomas' assertion was made on the eve of the meeting of the general council of the Trades Union Congress to draw up plans for a complete embargo on coal as well as joint action

LAST HOPE OF STAVING OFF STRIKE FADES; ALL FORCES READY TO ACT

LONDON, July 30.—At the close of a day of futile conferences to prevent the coal strike, scheduled to go into effect tomorrow night, Prime Minister Baldwin summoned the cabinet into a special meeting in the House of Commons tonight to discuss the situation.

Virtually all hope of staving off the strike has been abandoned. Various agencies of the government already are working to organize the various civil and military forces necessary to fight against what may develop into a general strike and possible civil warfare.

PAPAL COFFERS REPLENISHED BY UNITED STATES

American Catholics Are Doubly Plundered

ROME, July 30.—The coffers of the vatican have been enriched by several millions thru the gifts brought by American cardinals here during the past year. A fund which is now said to have reached ten millions is being raised for the consolidation of the catholic educational institutions in Rome. Most of this money comes from America, where the working class members of the catholic church are solicited for all kinds of religous schemes.

The Methodist church is planning to build a large educational institution in Rome. It is reported that the American masons are behind the plan and the fabalous sums raised by the Knights of Columbus are in the nature of counter-offensive. Naturally, the vatican has no objection to this kind of competition.

PAM'S DECISION ON ANTI-STRIKE WRIT POSTPONED

Police Again Use Violent Tactics

Another postponement of the decision on the bill of the International Tailoring company to secure an injunction against their striking employes was made yesterday when Judge Hugo Pam, declared he would not render a decision until today or Saturday.

Judge Pam had told William A. Cunnea, attorney for the Amalgamated Clothing Workers' Union, conducting the strike, to telephone him at twelve o'clock, yesterday but Pam postponed his decision. Arguments were completed Wednesday and Pam announced at that time that a decision would be given yesterday.

Police Furnish the Violence

Judge Pam's decision covers only the constitutionality of the Illinois anti-injunction law, which the garment bosses declare is unconstitutional. The International Tailoring company is demanding an injunction to restrain the strikers from any form of picketing.

If the law is declared constitutional and peaceful picketing is upheld, Cunnea will then answer the charges of the tailoring company that violence had been used by the strikers. The only violence that has been in evidence on the picket line, the Amalgamated points out, is the violence of the police and hired company sluggers who have beaten several pickets.

The police violence broke out again yesterday when Rose Cicala, a striker, was arrested after being shoved around by the police.

Will Picket Despite Odds

Speaking of Miss Cicala's arrest, Isadore Rothbart, business agent of the pantsmakers, said, "The police have given us a rest for several days. Now, however, they seem to have started their arrests again, and perhaps they have more rough stuff in store for us."

"No matter what the odds, however, no matter what faces us, we will stay on the picket line until the International Tailoring company meets our terms and agrees to sign an agreement."

MINERS' INTERNATIONAL STATES JOHN L. LEWIS HAS PLEDGED SUPPORT

(Special to The Daily Worker)

PARIS, July 30—M. Vignez, secretary of the Miners' International, announced today that in reply to an appeal cabled to the United Mine Workers of America by Frank Hodges, an official of the International and of the British Miners' Federation, the officials of the U. M. W. of A. had cabled a promise to carry out any action desired by the International Federation and to stand by the British miners in case they strike.

"All the International Federation asks of the American miners is that they reduce their production to such a point that there will be no surplus for export," stated Vignez.

Resist the Expulsion Policy of William H. Johnston! Fight for Unity in the International Machinists' Union!

AS Sigman in the International Ladies' Garment Workers' Union, so Johnston in the International Associaiton of Machinists!

Such labor traitors, when confronted by a militant left wing movement in their unions, demanding a policy of class struggle and backed by mass support, always recur to the desperate measure of expulsion, of splitting the union, hoping thus to get rid of the growing opposition to their reactionary policies.

It is no surprise, therefore, when William H. Johnston of the I. A. of M., faced by a mass upheaval in his union, as a result of his own constant betrayals and business adventures, announces that he proposes to expel wholesale the progressives and members of the Workers Party and the Trade Union Educational League, and begins with the arbitrary suspension of his election opponent, Anderson. Johnston and Sigman are worthy followers of the treacherous Amsterdam International, and proper lickspittles of Green, the reactionary now at the head of the A. F. of L., who is giving them his active support in their attacks upon the constructive forces in their unions.

LIKE the needle trades labor traitors, Johnston was once a socialist. He was boosted into power 15 years ago by the left wing in his union. His whole policy ever since has been one of betrayal. He has ignored and violated every plank of the platform he was elected on. Tho the membership of the union had demanded amalgamation repeatedly, he has blocked every effort to consolidate the metal trades. He was one of those who helped wreck the great shopmen's strike of 1922 by the notorious Baltimore and Ohio agreement, and he was the outstanding leader in foisting upon railroad workers the notorious "B. & O. Plan" which grew out of the strike settlement. He betrayed the labor party movement into the swamps of LaFolletteism. Under his misleadership, the membership of the Machinists' Union has dropped from 375,000 in 1920 to 75,000 at the present time.

The result of such treason was inevitable—a growing revolt in the ranks. The membership demand protection in the shops, and this can come only from a militant policy of organization and struggle, which the Johnston machine refuses to adopt. Three years ago the rising tide of revolt foretold the present flood. The left wing ticket in the union elections polled a full third of the votes. In the elections just past the only way the Johnston machine could prevent itself from being submerged and swept away was by the wholesale use of trickery, arbitrary power, and election frauds. Could a correct count of the votes be had it would show the opposition ticket elected by a substantial majority.

NOW, Johnston proceeds to further desperate measures. He tries to demoralize and break up the opposition by expelling its leading figures from the union. He seeks to create a "red" scare in order to cover up his election frauds and to turn the workers' attention away from the pressing needs, which he constantly betrays. Under cover of a red baiting campaign in the best Strikebreaker Daugherty style, it is significant that the first act of Johnston is the suspension of Anderson—a non-Communist who defeated him with rank and file support in the last election.

But, his is a vain hope and a futile policy. Sigman tried a similar program and with disastrous results to his clique. Beginning two years ago, he expelled a large number of militants all over the country, but he was compelled to readmit them. And his present attempt to remove 77 members of the Executive Boards of Locals 2, 9, and 22, have resulted in at least half of the whole International Ladies' Garment Workers' Union revolting against him. The masses have risen to condemn him and his policies and to support the fighting program of the left wing. Johnston is going straight to a similar experience if he tries to enforce the expulsion program, which has been hailed so eagerly by all the enemies of the working class.

Johnston's expulsion policy has for its purpose the elimination from the union of all those who want to make the union a fighting organ of the metal workers instead of an adjunct to the banking and real estate schemes of the Johnston gang. The Communists and all militant and progressive workers who fight with them in the union, will not fall into this trap. They will stay in the union to expose the treacherous policies of Johnston. They will stay in the union to organize the workers for rank and file control. They will stay in the union to overthrow the bankers and real estate dealers who now run the union in the interests of the bosses. They will stay in the union to put militant workers at its head who will lead it in a fight against the open shop schemes of the bosses. They will stay in the

DAVISON, I. A. M. VOTE JUGGLER IN PITTSBURG

"Expel Communists" Cries Election Thief

By a UNION MEMBER.
(Worker Correspondent.)

PITTSBURGH, July 30—Secretary-Treasurer Davison of the International Lodge, Machinists' Association showed his fighting spirit last week when visiting Local 491 in Pittsburgh, one of the B. & O. railroad lodges blessed with the B. & O. co-operative plan but Brother Davison seemed to have no intention of fighting the capitalists and exploiters on the railroads or in the contract shops.

Far from that. His venom was directed against the militant members of the union, the Communists. He said, "The Communists have continually been fighting us (meaning the officials). Now we will give them all the fight they want, at the last session of our executive board it was decided to expel all Communists from the union."

Reads Circular Letter.

Mr. Davison quoted at length from a circular letter alleged to be issued by the United Industries of Rockfield, Ill., saying that this letter was sent to keymen among organized labor, (evidently that is why he got one). The letter dealt with the last election in the Machinists' Union showing that the Communists had supported the Anderson slate and also showing the demands made by the Communists. Mr. Davison made his own interpretation of this letter claiming that it showed that the Communists are working with the manufacturers and getting well paid for it.

A good many of the union members showed doubt on their faces at this assertion but Davison gathered all his courage and challenged denials from the audience. At this challenge Ed Horacek, member of Local 52, gut up and said: "Its a lie and you can't prove it."

Davison's only reply was to ask the local secretary to take Horacek's name, Local number, and address, evidently so that he may be sure to get him on the slate for expulsion.

To further clinch his arguments on why the Communists should be expelled, Davison read a set of minutes which he claimed to be from a secret conference held in Pittsburgh on February 21 at which Communists, mentioned by name, were present and at which among other matters the Machinists' Union was alleged to have been discussed. These minutes bore all the earmarks of a fake document.

Boosts Boss Plan.

Mr. Davison in speaking of the great future ahead of the union (meaning again the official family) stated that the B. & O. co-operative plan was now marching "victoriously" from coast to coast, that other railroads were becoming interested and that soon it would be established on the Pennsylvania railroad and the union would come back strong on that road.

He indicated clearly the future program the present machine, which holds control thru vote stealing, as being one of class collaboration to the greatest possible extent. However, he failed to mention that the fact that the Pennsylvania railroad management is getting interested in the so-called co-operative plan is natural because it sees a splendid opportunity for the establishment of a company union on the roads with the consent of the union officialdom. No live wire will today deny that this class collaboration plan leads to nothing else but company unions.

TRACTION TOOLS RAISE CAR FARE IN TWIN-CITIES

By G. SOLTIS

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn. July 30.—Beginning Saturday of this week, a new rate goes into effect covering street car fares.

By order of the state railroad and warehouse commission, the Twin City Rapid Transit Co., is authorized to raise the cash fare from 6 to 8 cents.

Tokens will be sold 10 for 60 cents. This new fare is temporary.

The car company has gone into the United States district court, asking for a permanent 8 cent cash fare, which is being fought by the Twin Cities.

INTERNATIONAL METAL TRADES AMALGAMATION COMMITTEE STATEMENT ON I. A. OF M. CRISIS

To the Membership of the International Association of Machinists—

Dear Brothers:—The Johnston-Davison administration that came into power once more thru fraudulent methods at the election, by stealing votes, etc., has started a war of extermination against the militant and progressive elements in the union. One of the first moves of the fake G. E. B. when it took power was the suspension of J. F. Anderson, opposing candidate for international president. The next move is to be a general expulsion policy against Communists and other militants organized around the Trade Union Educational League. Instead of proving that the charges of stealing the election are incorrect, the G. E. B. condemns itself by arbitrarily expelling its opponents.

The International Committee for Amalgamation of the Metal Trades warns the members of the I. A. of M. not to allow Johnston and Davison to sidetrack the issue. If the Johnston administration were really elected as they claim they could very easily discredit their opponents in the eyes of the rank and file, but they do not dare to submit to a recount or a new election.

The International Committee for Amalgamation of the Metal Trades calls upon all locals in the I. A. of M. to immediately protest against the suspension of Anderson and the general war upon the militant and progressive members.

This expulsion policy, if carried out to its logical conclusion, will only lead to a complete demoralization if not destruction of the union.

The present G. E. B. was never elected by the rank and file, it was only able to maintain itself temporarily in possession of the union's machinery by a lot of fake ballots as has been verified by the affidavits from Local 441 and by violation of the laws of the union.

We call upon all locals in the I. A. of M. to demand a recall of the G. E. B. and the calling of a special convention to change the laws so as to make it possible to secure honest elections in the future, and to transform the union into a rea. organ of the class struggle for the benefit of the rank and file both economically and politically.

A strong fighting alliance must be set up between the left wing and the Anderson group under the slogan of a "Recall of the G. E. B. and a special election."

A national conference of all militant and progressive elements should immediately be called to consider a minimum program of action. The removal of the present G. E. B. should not be regarded as an end in itself. A real campaign to organize the unorganized machinists must be started as well as an intensified campaign for Amalgamation.

The International Committee for amalgamation calls upon all militant and progressive members of the I. A. of M. to unite in the struggle against the reactionary Johnston administration on the basis of the following platform.

1. Abolition of the expulsion policy and reinstatement of all expelled.
2. Recall of the G. E. B.
3. A special convention of the I. A. of M.
4. New election of G. E. B.
5. A national left block progressive conference.
6. Abolition of the B. and O. plan.
7. Intensified campaign for Amalgamation of all unions in the metal industry.
8. Organize the unorganized.
9. Lifting the bar against the Negro worker.
10. For a labor party.

(Signed) International Committee for Amalgamation of the Metal Trades

RESIST THE EXPULSION POLICY OF WILLIAM H. JOHNSTON; FIGHT FOR UNITY OF THE MACHINISTS' UNION

union to transform it into a powerful weapon of the working class.

THE suspension of Anderson and the threats to expel all members of the Workers Party and the Trade Union Educational League are blows at the membership—blows at the union itself. It means that any member who asserts his right to criticize the Johnston policies is in danger of losing his union card.

The machinists will never support such a policy. It violates a fundamental principle of labor unionism, namely, that all workers in a given industry or trade, regardless of their political opinion, shall be organized in one union. It would reduce the I. A. of M. to a sect and eventually wreck it. The Workers Party members and all honest trade unionists will fight such a destructive policy to the death. They will appeal their case to the rank and file on the real issue involved. And their apeal will be successful. These masses will rally to the program of the left wing and they will sweep the reactionary Johnston machine from power.

The time is ripe for a united front of all revolutionary and progressive forces in the International Association of Macihnists. The betrayal of Johnston and his clique has gone far enuf. These misleaders should be recalled and a group of fighters put at the head of the organization, men who consider the union not as a means to gain for themselves a fat and easy livelihood, but as an instrument of the workers in the class struggle.

A special convention should be called and definite steps taken to amalgamate the metal trades and organize the three million metal workers into one great industrial union.

THE MACHINISTS' UNION must become the militant fighting organization to win better wages and working conditions for the metal workers from the employers. The Machinists' Union should take the lead in establishing shop committees organized by the workers to fight for workers' control of the industry.

The Machinists' Union should abolish all discrimination against Negro workers and take the lead in bringing them into the labor movement on an equal basis with white workers.

The Machinists' Union should wage a militant campaign to make the industries in which the machinists work responsible for the workers thru insisting that the industry take care of the unemployed workers. The Machinists' Union should take the lead in the struggle for the organization of a labor party thru which the workers can fight their political battles against the bosses. It is because the Johnston machine fears the coming of such a militant fighting union which will win better conditions for the workers in the metal industry that it is attacking the members of the Workers Party and the T. U. E. L. and all progressives in the union.

UNCONFIRMED REPORT SAYS SOVIET PLANNED FOR AT CANTON, CHINA

The International News Service in a dispatch dated at Hong Kong, China, Thursday morning at 8 a. m., states the following:

"Plans are complete for proclamation of a Soviet government in Canton, August 1, according to advices reaching here today."

The DAILY WORKER has received no confirmation of this news from other sources at the hour of going to press. Canton, China, is known as the center of the Chinese liberation movement. Its government has for a long time been independent of the Peking government and under the control of the Kuomintang Party at whose head stood the great leader, Dr. Sun Yat Sen.

PROGRESSIVE MINERS OF U. S. TO AID BRITISH

Significance of Big Strike Told by Reid

BI ALEX REID.
Secretary of the Progressive Miners' Committee.

The eyes of organized labor thruout the world are fastened on the British mining situation. Today the underground slaves of the English Isle are standing with their backs to the wall, their defiance flung in the teeth of their oppressors, the coal barons of England.

The threat of the coal barons to cut wages and lengthen hours when the miners are already in a state of semi-starvation finds the railroaders, engineers, machinists and shipbuilders, lined up solidly behind the miners in what portends to be one of the greatest industrial conflicts in modern capitalist Europe. The British railroaders are also threatened with a cut in wages.

All Eyes On Britian.

The scurrying of the military and naval lords back and forth to Downing street recalls to our minds the actions of the capitalists armed forces prior to Black Friday. Tomorrow the world will know the decision of the mining slaves and the probable results. The tying up of every coal mine in Britain, the tying up of every coal car on the railroad siding, the refusal of the German and French workers to ship a pound of coal to be used against the miners of Britain during the strike. The Saar Basin miners threw down their tools yesterday, 74,000 strong and the French and German miners are pledged to support the British miners in every way possible.

Premier Baldwin, the steel magnate and Tory leader, may intervene to stop the strike. The British government attempted to stop the last strike and miserably failed as they will this time. The miners failed the last time they struck to get their demands. Their failure was due to the black treachery of Hodges and Thomas on what has come to be known as "Black Friday".

No Treachery This Time.

There will be no Judas, Thomas or Hodges this time to betray the miners, the miners have taken that power out of their hands. The miners are determined men in this, their hour of prospective gigantic struggle. A bond of common interest has cemented the workers together, which has caused the capitalists of Britain to tremble with fear for their ownership of the mines and other basic industries.

The unity of the workers in this strike probably means the complete overthrow of the private ownership of the mines in Britain. Many capitalists themselves in Britain have stated that should the strike mature it will mean the nationalization of the mines.

The Royal commission, with Chief Justice Sankey, investigating the coal mining industry four years ago, recommended the nationalization of the mines, stating that nationalization is the only remedy for the mining situation. The miners have continuously fought for that ever since, and are very strenuously insisting on it now.

Fear Nationalization.

Fear of nationalization is seen in the hurried meetings between the capitalists, the first Lord of the Admiralty, Baldwin's Tories, navalists, militarists, and the threat of intervention by the government. These moves at this time are evidence of the fear of the powers of England and the rising power of the revolutionary miners of Britain.

The fear of the British capitalists is intensified by the knowledge that militant leadership has supplanted their treacherous lackeys. The left wing of the labor movement in Britain since the Hull conference in February of the present year has made such rapid inroads on the British labor movement as a whole that today it is practically dictating its policies.

Every real labor leader in the world today is pledging his support to his British brothers. Very noticeable at this time is the support cabled to Hodges by John L. Lewis, promising to support in any way the miners' international desired. The fact that Lewis is taking this step is further proof of the rising power of the militant miners in America, exemplified in the Progressive Miners' Committee of the U. M. W. of A.

Progressive of U. S. Pledge Support.

The Progressive Miners' Committee salutes the miners of Britain. We recognize their struggle is our struggle. We pledge you our support in every way possible.

We stand unalterably for nationalization of the mines, with workers control. We greet the workers of the world. We acknowledge the greeting of our comrades and brothers in Russia.

Long live the international solidarity of the workers! Long live the united front of all workers against all capitalist exploitation!

British Imperialism Is Speeding Up Armament Race for the Next War

By J. LOUIS ENGDAHL.

TODAY, British imperialism prepares to spend more than a quarter billion dollars more "preparing" for the next war—"The War in the Pacific." Parliament has put its stamp of approval on the Baldwin government's "cruiser building program," injecting another spurt into the armament race, that will call for an equal if not greater additional exertion by the United States and Japan and perhaps other nations.

It is natural that the two pacifists, J. Ramsay MacDonald and David Lloyd George, should heckle the government on its fears in the Pacific. These spokesmen of the labor and liberal parties are anxious to coin working class hostility to imperialist wars into political advantages for themselves. But when actual war comes, they prove the best of jingoes, and labor will not be fooled this time.

The discussion in the British parliament shows that the Baldwin government must even consider the United States as an opponent; a fear voiced by the conservative member, Maj. Sir Bertram Falle when he complained that Great Britain ranks third in naval power in the Pacific, asking the members of the House of Commons if they could be sure of America's friendship. He felt that the United States might be coveting Jamaica or the Bermudas, the Bahamas, the Falkland Islands or even Canada.

American imperialism is making its answer immediately by its plans to establish a gigantic lighter-than-air aircraft base at San Diego, Calif.; "dotting the Pacific coast with auxiliary air bases," in the words of the Hearst press; building new dirigibles three times the size of the Shenandoah, and with a touring range of 7,150 miles, while at the same time retaining the lighter-than-air aircraft base at Lakehurst, N. J. "to render the East safe from European invasion by air." All this while Coolidge is seeking to propagandize the world with his fraudulent disarmament proposals.

It is not impossible that American imperialism, in its efforts to gain complete ascendancy in the Pacific, should jockey British imperialism into a hostile position, even forcing it into alliance with the mikado's government at Tokio.

Canada and Australia, the two great commonwealths of the British empire, come closer to the Pacific policies of Washington than they do those decided in London. This is especially true of the American effort to make the Pacific "a white man's ocean."

It is Great Britain that is bearing with Japan the brunt of the hostility of the Chinese workers, growing out of the murders of strikers in the streets of Shanghai and other Chinese industrial centers. The Japanese were strong in their criticism of the United States both at the Pacific institute held at Honolulu, Hawaii, recently and now at the palaverts conducted by spokesmen of many countries at Williamstown, Mass. The way of British empire in the Pacific does not lie in an alliance with the imperialism that sails under Wall Street's flag, but rather in co-operation with Japanese imperialism against American dollar expansion.

It is significant that Great Britain plans for new cruisers as it faces its greatest industrial crisis with the approaching miners' strike. If British workers know how to unite their forces as they are evidently doing in support of their industrial demands, then they can also unite to war against the next imperialist war in spite of the pacifist illusions continually dangled before their eyes, even by some of their own so-called leaders.

British labor is today setting an inspiring example for the workers of both Japan and the United States. Let them profit by that example as the imperialist race of armaments goes on. Then the day of the only possible world peace under Soviet Rule will approach a little closer.

BRITISH GENERAL STRIKE INVOLVING 5,000,000 MEN MAY BEGIN AT MIDNIGHT

of other organized workers if the coal strike goes into effect.

First Clashes.

First skirmishes of the strike kept police busy in London and in Wales as Premier Baldwin and his cabinet redoubled their efforts to head off the industrial crisis.

Fascists and Communists engaged in a free-for-all fight in Hyde Park, while miners already striking in the anthracite district of Wales attacked the collieries and threw out a few scabs.

Nearly 4,000 miners armed with cudgels invaded the mine properties at Ammanford, Wales, where the anthracite workers are striking, and attacked the men who remained at work, dragging the safety men from their positions at the pumps. Police intervened but were outnumbered.

An official of the Saron colliery was struck with a charge of buckshot fired by a miner. Missles were hurled at the mine buildings there, smashing windows. Telephone wires were cut down by the strikers.

Communists Battle Fascists.

Four fascists were beaten by Communists when members of the black-shirted order attacked a Communist meeting in Hyde Park. The fascists retreated to their London headquarters and maintained an all-night guard there, arming themselves with drawn swords. The fascists claimed that further serious disturbances were threatened.

Premier Baldwin, after ineffective meetings with the leaders of both sides far into the night, was in conference again early today. The state subsidy for operators, to maintain the old wage scale until peace negotiations could be completed, was still under consideration, but the premier was withholding that plan for an eleventh hour resort.

Trade Union Congress in Session.

Thus far, the miners have steadfastly refused to accept the wage cut and longer hours proposed by the operators, apparently determined to quit work at midnight Friday unless the operators withdraw their offensive 20 per cent cut and longer hours demand.

The Trades Union Congress, meeting today, will determine the minimum scale the miners will accept, and will offer also a proposal that any profits gained by the owners during August be applied to make up wages of men who have taken a reduction.

The miners have been reluctant to accept any proposal which affects adversely the present agreement with all trade unionists to assist the miners in their fight. They are further reassured by the agreement of the International Miners' Conference at Paris to assist in preventing importation of coal in England in the event of a strike.

Government Strikebreakers Busy.

The postmaster general, Sir William Mitchell Thompson, presiding over an emergency committee organized to help the railroads combat the difficulties which they would face in consequence of a strike said the railroads have stocks of coal sufficient only for a month of curtailed services.

The committee is trying to work out a system for adequate transportation of food, in the event the railroads are paralyzed. It is making extensive use of plans devised by the Lloyd George government in 1920 when a general lockout and strike were threatened.

In the house of commons, Austen Chamberlain made without comment, an announcement that Prime Minister Baldwin hoped to issue a statement on the strike situation tonight.

BANDITS HOLD UP HOTEL AS 'DICK' SNOOZES

"It's a Hanging Case" Chortles Crowe

Last Wednesday several bandits raided the fashionable Drake Hotel in this city and got away with approximately $10,000. Two of the bandits were killed, two others were wounded and arrested one got away and one employe of the hotel was shot dead.

States Attorney Crowe is happy. "It's a hanging case" he chortled as he boasted that he would have the arrested bandits on their way to the gallows "within twenty four hours." At least two of the bandits are veterans of the world war. We are awaiting for some one to give a bed time story over the radio boosting the military training camps and tell of the "enobling effects of war on America's youth."

Holdup at Dick's Door

The Drake Hotel was full of parasites when the holdup took place. The bandits pulled off the stickup almost on the doorstep of the house detective's office. That gentleman must have been engrossed in his latest lesson from the correspondence school on "How to become a great detective," for it required a telephone call to get him away from his easy chair. Like the movie house dick, this false alarm, saw nothing until the house was shot up. Then, he crawled to his office door, opened it and began shooting in all directions. He claims to have killed somebody, whether it was a bandit or the unfortunate clerk may never be known.

Full of Booze

Evidently most of the bandits were amateurs at the game and also well filled with white mule. One of them said he was a high school graduate, but could not find a job. He was also a war veteran. This will not save him from the gallows if Crowe can help it.

The local Hearst papers have opened a war on Mayor Dever and Chief Collins for allowing the bandits to get away with it. Hearst would have them shoot anybody resembling a bandit on the slighest provocation or suspicion. In that case, judges and plain clothes policemen had better look out.

'Tic Toc' was Asleep

Holding up such a bourgeois rendezvous as the Drake Hotel gives Chicago a bad name and may keep wealthy people from putting up there. The house detective's heroic prese work may be due to fear of losing a job. But if he is such a hero, he may be engaged to supplant the police force, which spends most of its time, arresting workers for speaking on the streets and protecting scabs and open shop employers. There are enough cops guarding the plants of the International Tailoring company and the J. L. Tailoring company daily, to supply a personal watch to every bandit in the city.

Bandits should know that holding up those who have money at the point of a gun is hazardous and does not pay half as well as robbing the workers at the point of production. But bandits have always been a step ahead of the capitalist on the moral side. They usually rob the rich and take a chance on the jail or the rope. The capitalists rob and kill the poor and are honored for it. That's the difference.

BEHIND LOCKED DOORS LEWIS TRADES OFF THE MINERS TO OPERATORS

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., July 30.—The anthracite scale conference appears at last to be drawing to a climax as a result of developments within the last twenty-four hours. Sentiment of both operators and miners seems to be that the miners' case should be completed by the end of this week and that the operators' reply should be made on resumption of the conference after the week-end.

This definite movement became apparent yesterday when the little information dropped by both side as to proceedings in the locked committee room indicated the first day of real progress.

The four demands left to be presented are replete with technical ramificatios that could take days to elucidate, but it is believed likely that the miners will surrender them without much objection.

FASCISTS USHER IN NEW REIGN OF VIOLENCE

Destroy Headquarters of Catholic Clubs

PARIS, July 30.—The ordering of an American newspaper correspondent from Italy, the attack on Signor Orlando and the smashing up of several catholic clubs, mark the latest phases of the deterioration of the fascist organization.

Even papers formerly pro-fascist are now changing their policy despite the immediate risks that a change of front involve. But it is apparent that the power of fascism is on the decline and the trimmers who rode the storm one way are now going to ride it in the opposite direction.

Originally Atheists.

It is evident that Mussolini is unable to control his forces or else that his entente with the Vatican is impaired. It should not be forgotten that the original fascist tools of capitalism, Mussolini included, had no more use for catholicism than they had for masonry, and that the official alliance with the catholic church was due to the need of such a conservative body to aid the armed forces of fascism in breaking down the working class organisations and isolating them from Communist influence.

Smashing Things Up.

In this period of fascist disintegration the irresponsible elements in the fascist organization are wreaking vengeance indiscriminately knowing that the day is approaching when their bodies are just as liable as not to decorate lamp posts.

American correspondents in Italy are said not to be at all pleased with the conduct of U. S. ambassador Fletcher. They feel that he has been too willing to carry out the demands of Mussolini in seeking to put a muffler on the correspondents. It is the opinion of those correspondents that a little pressure from the ambassador would cause Mussolini to think twice before ordering the expulsion of an American reporter.

Vatican Criticizes Benito.

The officila organ of the vatican appeared with a mild criticism of recent fascist violence. Catholic clubs were broken into and the offices of catholic deputies raided. It was learned that the leaders in those atacks were commissaries of public safety. Not only did the blackshirts destroy ordinary furniture but they burned crucifixes, pictures of the sacred heart and of the pope.

The leading papers in Italy have been warned that any further criticism of the fascist dictatorship will be severely punished. The general belief is that fascism fears another and more severe crisis than any it has hitherto undergone.

Theunis Still Has Hopes.

BRUSSELS, July 30.—Still hopeful that the United States would remit that part of the Belgian war debt contracted while hostilities were actually in progress, M. Theunis, chairman, left the Belgian capital today and with members of the debt commission planned to sail tomorrow on the Olympic for the United States.

Our Readers' Views

Strikers Told to Scab

To THE DAILY WORKER: I have been a reader of your most interesting paper for about one year and it sure has helped me solve my problems in the labor movement.

I am not surprised that Johnston of the Machinist Union is going to expel all the memebres that belong to the Workers Party. As long as he can keep the members in darkness his job is safe.

In the strike of railroad men in 1920 the ship yards were out on strike in California and drawing strike benefit, but the leaders told the ship workers to go and take the striking railroad men's job, and some of them did so.

GOVERNMENT USES THREATS, CHORUS GIRLS, PROMISES AND WARNINGS TO RECRUIT NEXT WAR'S VICTIMS

By CLARENCE MILLER

NEW YORK, July 30.—Several officers of the National Defense with a band of military music to attract a crowd held a street meeting on the lower east side speaking from the top of a military truck. One of the speakers, a lieutenant, offered the following as an incentive to join his "outfit":

"If you want to learn how to shoot in order, say, to become a bandit, or if you like to play poker, we have some experts whose specialty is stud, or maybe billiards, or pretty women, or crap shooting is what you prefer, then your place is in our ranks."

From the above you might think that he appealed only to the low and degenerate, but watch this: "If any of you are interested in making something of yourself then you have a great chance in the national defense. To our outfit is attached one of the best collections of books that you can find in any club or library. There are some five thousand of them. Besides that after one year service in the national guard you are entitled to enter any military college. The captain, who spoke before, has worked himself up to what he is today. Don't miss your chance."

Workers Starved Into Army.

After about half an hour's worth of picturing the flowery side of soldier's life he contrasted it to the miserable condition of the workers. He said: "If you are out of a job you don't know where your next meal is coming from. If you do work you work long hours, and in a stuffy room. You ride in crowded subways to work. You have to worry about rent. And if you do work then very likely you are praying that you get a week's vacation without pay. Look how different it is if you join us."

This is a picture of the worker's life given by an army officer in an effort to draw some fools into the army.

The above is only one of the many means our government is employing in the feverish recruiting efforts. The other day several chorus girls from the Ziegfield Follies dressed, of course, in bathing suits, came out on Times Square and City Hall Square in an effort to vamp some fool young workers into the army.

If in addition to the feverish recruiting efforts of the government you consider the recent mobilization day, the maneuvers in the Pacific ocean, the increased armaments both of the army and navy, then you realize that there is something doing.

Predicts War Soon.

Here is how one of the speakers at the above meeting put it: "True," said he, "a war is possible, even probable, but then that is a thing we must always expect. But then you have an advantage also (if you join the army), the others who will be drafted and will be green, while you will be experienced. You know what we say is no bunk. Uncle Sam would not allow us to promise you anything we would not do."

Yes it is bandists, gangsters and strike breakers that the army prepares for "peace" time; cannon fodder for war times, and as the officer put it war must be expected and most likely very soon.

The Young Workers' League and Workers Party with their propaganda might not be able to stop the war, but when the soldiers in the next war which is going to be much more bloody than the last, will begin to think, then all of the bloody imperialists, who are planning that slaughter in order to make more profits, are going to land the same place the Russian czar and capitalists landed.

Call N. Y. Workers to United Front Meeting on China and Soviets

NEW YORK CITY, July 30.—The conference of labor organizations on the issue of "Hands Off China—Stand by Soviet Russia" which had been called by the Workers Party for August 3 will be representative of the workers of the city. The Kuomintang, the people's party of China, which has a large organization in this city, has been invited to be represented at the conference.

The conference will demonstrate its solidarity with the workers of China and will take practical steps to raise funds and conduct propaganda enlightening the workers on the significance of events in China, and especially the danger of a new war which the imperialist rivalry in China is creating.

All workers should see that their organization is represented at the conference which will be held on Monday, August 3 at Stuyvesant Casino, 142 Second Avenue, New York, 8 p. m.

All communications should be addressed—China-Soviet Russia United Front Conference, 108 East 14th St., New York.

POLICE ARREST SAN FRANCISCO PARTY SPEAKERS

Dolsen and Fleming Wouldn't 'Move On'

SAN FRANCISCO, July 30.—Apparently enraged by the success of the local Communists in holding street meetings on the Chinese situation, the police of this city arrested two local speakers, comrades Dolsen and Fleming, at an open-air meeting they were conducting here.

Dolsen had just started to talk when a bystander, evidently a stool-pigeon or "dick", darted into a cigar store nearby. In a few minutes Officer 829 arrived. He kicked the box out from under Dolsen's feet and told him to get out. When the speaker protested that the Salvation Army had just held a meeting on the same corner, the cop remarked that had been a religious matter. "Can I talk on religion, then?" asked Dolsen.

"No, you can't. Get out!" was the reply. Dolsen then called out to the comrades to sell the literature, that there was no law against that. Irritated by his failure to scatter the crowd, the cop then proceeded to grab Dolsen and march him down the street to the police alarm box, a block away, trying by shoving, twisting Dolsen's arm violently and rough tactics to provoke him into resistance.

While waiting at the box for the patrol wagon, Dolsen, noticing Fleming standing near, asked him to take the names and addresses of those who had seen the affair. As soon as Fleming started to do this, the officer brutally grabbed him and put him under arrest, too.

The comrades have been bailed out. The preliminary hearing takes place soon. The same charges were placed against both men—that of resisting an officer, of disturbing the peace and of refusing to "move on".

Whether the arrests are part of a general police attack on the local Communists or merely the venting of the personal spleen of the officer making the arrest remains to be seen. This is the first of such street meetings thus disturbed.

Paper Mills Follow Woolen Mills Cut in Wage Scale Cut

LAWRENCE, Mass., July 30.—A wage reduction of 10 per cent went into effect Monday in most of the mills of Greater Lawrence.

At the Merrimac Paper Company it was stated that a 10 per cent cut became effective this morning. This plant had not made public announcement of the cut previously. Two hundred are employed.

The Methuen Yarn Company, employing thirty, announced that a 10 per cent cut would be made in a short time.

MASS TRIAL OF 500 BESSARABIAN PEASANTS BEGUN BEFORE WHITE ROUMANIAN COURT, SPIES ON STAND

VIENNA—The great mass trial of Bessarabian peasants accused of participating in the Tartar-bunar (southern part of Bessarabia) insurrection of the year 1924, is under way. On the benches are 500 defendants.

The majority of them do not understand the Roumanian language and therefore the trial will proceed with the aid of interpreters. The indictment totals 600 pages and it will take several weeks before the defendants get acquainted with the charges against them.

About 800 witnesses will be called, the majority from the Army Intelligence office. New arrests have been carried out in the district of Tilkov in connection with the trial. It will last about two and one-half months.

The official press in preparing the ground for the verdict, opened a bitter campaign against the defendants and against Soviet Russia; it is being stated that the insurrection is the "doing" of Moscow.

A rumor is spread that the government is in possession of certain military plans sent from Moscow. The main defendants in the case are the peasants Ninin and Nikolai Sismon.

FARMING THE FARMERS IS MORE PROFITABLE THAN FARMING THE FARMS; BANKERS GET THE PROFIT

By LELAND OLDS

(Federated Press Industrial Editor)

Farmers get a far lower rate of return for their capital and management combined than they are forced to pay the organized money power for capital loaned to them. This is the story of the 1924-25 agricultural balance sheet cast up by the department of agriculture. It is the farmers' annual report, revealing the way the food producers of the country are exploited to feed the huge cities that serve commercial capital.

The outside moneylender, who provides the other capital required by farmers as the mortgage curse extends, assumes no responsibility for production. Yet he got 6.4 per cent interest while the farmer with full responsibility secured only 4.1 per cent for both management and capital.

Increase in Gross and Net Income.

Gross income from agriculture for the year ended June 30, 1925, amounted to $12,136,000,000, a gain of about 7½ per cent over the previous year. The increase in expense of operation was slight. The net farm income showed an increase of $725,000,000 or 14¾ per cent. It is this increase which has enabled the press to broadcast propaganda concerning the farmer's prosperity.

But the following figures from the government's annual report show that this gain is based on so poor a condition that it falls far short of placing the farm population even with the game:

Income from Farms	1924-25	1923-24
Gross cash income	$ 9,777,000,000	$ 8,928,000,000
Food and fuel	2,359,000,000	2,360,000,000
Total income	12,136,000,000	11,288,000,000
Expense of production	6,486,000,000	6,363,000,000
Net income	5,650,000,000	4,925,000,000
Interest on loans	784,000,000	808,500,000
Labor of Farmer & family plus taxes	2,938,000,000	2,932,500,000
Farmers net income	4,866,000,000	4,116,500,000
Net for farmer's management & capital	$ 1,928,000,000	$ 1,184,000,000

The food and fuel item represents food and fuel consumed on the farm where it is produced. The labor of the farmer and his family is charged for at the regular rate for agricultural labor.

Farmer Made Four Per Cent.

The total capital invested in agriculture is estimated by the department at $59,154,000,000 in 1924-25 and at $59,548,000,000. Farm indebtedness amounted to $12,250,000,000 being approximately the same in both years. But the interest farmers were forced to pay fell slightly from an average of 6.6 per cent in 1923-24 to 6.4 per cent last year.

The capital owned by actual farm operators, according to the department was $46,904,000,000 in 1924-25 and $47,298,000,000 the preceding year. Thus the return received by farmers rose from 2.5 per cent in 1923-25 to 4.1 per cent last year. This income is all the farmer gets for both managerial service and for the use of his capital.

right into the discussion, while the preacher continued to rant. "He has the right religion like hell," grunted the catholic. THE original interrupter found this addition to his intellectual arsenal too much for his emotions. Wordlessly, he grasped the new recruit by the hand and they both zigzagged down the street. The preacher descended from his lowly pulpit, grabbed his drum and began to wallop it. A tango was the result. Several liquored christians thereupon took to their feet with effort and kept time with the music. This scene was enacted on the corner of Green and Madison.

THE Riffians are not retreating noticeably. The French victories have turned out to be fictitious just as we surmised. The Riffs are starting a new offensive after saving their harvest. In the meantime Marshal Petain is returning to France, and the French government is raiding the offices of the Communist Party, in retaliation for its courageous opposition to the government's war on Morocco.

THE Fascisti speaker at the Institute of Politics, in Williamstown, Mass., frankly stated that England's possession of Gibraltar and the Suez canal, both ends of the great Mediterranean, formed serious threats to Italy's interests. The Fascist said that peace talk was foolish so long as economic differences existed between nations. This is quite true, but the Fascisti as well as capitalism must go before peace can be realized.

SIR Frederick Maurice of England said that fear was the greatest cause of war. This is only superficially true. The great powers and the little powers fear each other, much the same as rival bootleggers do. The cause of war is capitalism, that robber system which lives on the surplus values stolen from the workers. The Communists are denounced as prophets of violence, yet it can be easily proved that their program is the only one that leads to universal and lasting peace, because it goes to the root of the causes of war and proposes to abolish the cause, which is capitalism.

MORALITY is very much a matter of time and geography like right and wrong. A Christadelphian defended Jehovah of the old testament for ordering his once favored children of Israel to dispose of their male captives but to keep the virgins for the good of Israel, on the ground that the need for an increase in the population justified the edict. It was admitted that such conduct on his part today would be considered very bad manners. In olden days the illegitimate progeny of kings were more numerous than their legal offspring and usually more intelligent. I believe it was one of the Plantaganets of England who said, "A king's bastard is a house's pride."

TIMES have changed and so have morals. Thus we have Mrs. Guineveve Sinclair Gould, widow of the late George J. Gould, under a social cloud because she lived in France for several years with the deceased millionaire, while the legal wife lived elsewhere. Mrs. Gould has now married a Viscount Funsford, which transforms her into a baroness or something of the kind. The Viscount will transport her to London. American society is quite curious to know whether British royalty will receive the ex-concubine or not.

WE are not in the least concerned with the morals of those parasites. What we would like to know is, how long are the working class going to let a lot of useless human cattle live on their backs and spend their money in riotous luxury? Gould could afford to support more wives than the Sultan of Turkey, but most of the slaves who supplied him with the money to keep them, could not even support one in ordinary decency. This is how the world wags under the capitalist system, which is said by our preachers to be the cidatel of morality, religion and justice.

PULPIT POUNDER FAILS TO SPEAK AT CHINA MEET

Does Not Like Mixed Workingclass Crowd

By L. P. RINDAL

LOS ANGELES, Cal., July 18—(By Mail)—Yesterday a meeting was held at Music Art Hall, 233 So. Broadway, to protest against the terrible conditions prevailing in China as a result of endless abuses inflicted upon the Chinese people, by the imperialistic powers of a greedy world. This gathering was a let-us-all-get-together affair, in which various labor organizations took part. Not the least noteworthy was the interest manifested by representatives of the Kuomintang (Chinese national party) and the Japanese Workers Association.

Our native brothers of color were there also and, therefore, helped to complete the picture of a healthy, real proletarian unity, regardless of color, race, nationality or creed. The speakers announced were: Rev. G. Bromley Oxnam, of the church of all nations; Clinton J. Taft, director A. C. L. U.; Emanuel Levin of the Workers (Communist) Party, and representatives of the Kuomintang, and the Japanese Workers Association.

Church Head Shuns Mixed Crowd

The tardiness of the procedure to start the meeting was partly due to the changeable minds of Rev. Oxnam and his wife, from whom he had to have permission to speak. So free speech does not seem to be popular in that family. We all know that a woman has the privilege to chance her mind, but it is generally believed that preachers are men of their word.

Rev. Oxnam used to live in China and, therefore, he is more or less familiar with the conditions in that suppressed country. He had promised Director Taft to speak, and even came down to the hall, but he got cold feet after looking at the program. He objected to the parties under whose auspices the meeting was held, and also expressed disapproval of the recognition of Soviet Russia. One could hardly expect such a stand of a man who claims to be an all around mixer of nationalities in his "Church of All Nations."

Intolerance

Two years ago, Rev. Oxnam tried to break into the house of "Goslings" (as a liberal.) But did not make it. It that his reason for being intolerate today? Comrade Levin ran for the same office this year. And now this "broad-minded" gentleman refuses to speak from the same platform with a "narrow-minded" fellow victim of the same forces that kept Oxnam out from the board of (mis) education two years ago.

Comfort Prisoners

William Sneiderman (the red-headed boy orator) was chairman. He announced that the A. C. L. U. wants to collect old papers and magazines to be sent to the political prisoners.

Then his mind flow across the ocean and said: "The A. F. of L. has a long way to travel before it reaches up to English labor in organization."

Class Struggle

When the first speaker of the evening, representative of the Kuomintang party, took the floor, all hands applauded. "Imperialism must perish from the earth," he said. After having mentioned Karl Marx, he delved into the class struggle at Shanghai, China. He pointed out in details the demands of labor. "You, workers," he cried, "must force the hand of the government! Take the soldiers away from Shanghai! Hands Off China!" (prolonged applause).

News for President

Comrade Levin outlined the Chinese question from the standpoint of the Workers (Communist) Party. He read a "Hands Off China" resolution. It passed unanimously and was directed sent to the President, members of congress and to the press.

Clinton J. Taft also spoke. He was strongly opposed to the stand taken by Oxnam.

Jap Workers Ready

"The workers of Japan are willing and ready to stand by the Chinese and American workers," was the closing remarks by the Japanese representative (long applause).

Many Signs of Change in the I. W. W. Show Progress

been compelled to allow this pointed question, with all its consequential possibilities, to creep into official print though they shy away from any real answers. Quotations from the article follows:

"On All Sides"

"One hears on all sides: 'What is the matter with us?' Why is it that we cannot hold our membership? Why is it that since the birth of the organization more than a million cards have been issued, and after twenty years of effort, we have about 30,000 members?"

(We must insert here that the Bulletin in which this is published shows per capita payments to the general organization of 11,168 members for the month of June—H. G.)

"We must blend our ideals with our material desires. We must offer the working man, even as the A. F. of L. does, something that comes within his every day wahts; something real, tangible, and vital to his existence."

"There are thirty-three or four millions of workers yet unorganized. We want them, we need them, we must have them. How are we going to keep them? Why cannot we organize them? Does the fault lie with ourselves, in our educational methods, in our job tactics? These are questions that sooner or later we shall have to face."

Only A Real Change Can Help

There is little offered in way of answer by Marat to his own questions. But if pursued, they lead directly to the fact that the way to build an organization and keep it, is to correct past policy that has vitally and basically interfered with such result.

Stop trying to be a political party and a union at the same time. Get over the anti-political madness itself an instance of politics that aid capitalists, and while not being a political party as at present and being more of a union than we are—adopt a friendly attitude of co-operation with the revolutionary party of the workers, the Workers (Communist) Party.

A Wrong Tactic

Get over the idea that the way to organize the unorganized is to disorganized the organized. That is, stop dualist attacks upon other unions, be they A. F. of L. or independent. The members of the I. W. W. who are members of other unions because of job control of such unions, surely have better and more constructive work to do that to try to split off splinters from these unions of little and impotent groups of "convinced" rebels who take a negative and hostile position toward the existing union. Anyhow, the I. W. W. has tried it and it don't seem to work.

As to how you might keep the workers the I. W. W. might get from among those millions of unorganized, A. Martin of San Pedro suggests along with Marat that something tangible and material of the workers every day needs must be given them, as well as the necessary "blend" of revolutionary education. Martin says:

Why Not Discuss It?

"We can see that whenever we called a strike in the marine industry, the craft unions always scabbed us out of existence. They got a contract and we were left out in the cold. Let us be prepared and look at things as they are, and not as they should be.

"At the international conference held in New Orleans in the month of March, Resolution No. 1 of the Galveston branch of 510 was introduced. It read in part as follows:

"Whereas some sort of job control is necessary to protect our members from petty discrimination, resolved that some form of agreement stipulating wages and conditions be entered into for a period of one year, with provisions for termination (for cause) on due notice, and be it further resolved that this branch while favoring discussion of this proposition, desires to go on record as opposed to arbitration by imperial arbitrators."

Unions Must Control Jobs—

A Good Idea

Martin continues—"The resolution was not endorsed by the convention, but it was left open for discussion in our publications. Not having seen any kind of discussion on the contract system, I personally think if we are to be anything more than a propaganda organization, that something must be done if we want to function as a job organization that will better the lot of the Marine Transport Workers."

One more sign of good sense in the I. W. W. is noted in the Marine Worker of July 15. It says that the main office of the Marine Transport Workers I. U. No. 510 received the following cablegram from the Transport Workers' International propaganda committee of the Red International of labor unions. "Boycott Norwegian ships and ships for Norway in connection with Norwegian seamen's strike."

M. T. W. Acts Loyal to Class

We are happy to say that—true to the declared policy of unity and co-operation with other workers' organizations against the capitalist class, the Metal Trade Workers acted splendidly. The Marine Worker tells the story as follows:

"The cablegram was read at the regular business meeting of the Manhatten branch of I. U. No. 510 and much discussion took place in favor of co-operating with the Norwegian seamen against the ship-owners. The following motion was made and carried unanimously:

"That cablegram pertaining to Norwegian Seamen's strike be accepted and that we boycott all ships involved in the strike and that we ask all branches to do likewise."

This is Path to Power

This is the attitude and policy that will build the I. W. W. on the sea as well as elsewhere, but the policy of religious frenzy, of blind hostility to workers' organizations, political and economic, is not the policy of winning the unorganized or keeping them. All revolutionary workers will be encouraged to know what some elements among the I. W. W. are thinking straight and acting sensibly.

MOSCOW SAVED ARMENIA SAYS ENGLISH WOMAN

People Are Now Happy Under Soviet Rule

The London Daily Herald carried the following story of an Englishwoman's experience in Soviet Armenia:

Returned from a journey never before made by an Englishwoman since the Russian revolution, Miss Magda Coe, Joint secretary of the Armenian fund, nominated by the British government to deal with Armenian settlement, declares: "Moscow has saved Russian Armenia."

For three months Miss Coe travelled in the Caucasus, and thru the whole of the Armenian republic.

"Having worked for so many years with and on behalf of Armenians, whom I have seen in the depths of profoundest misery, what I have lately witnessed has come as a complete revelation," Miss Coe told a Reuter's Agency representative.

"Never have I seen among Armenians such unaffected happiness, freedom from fear, and evident wellbeing. Three years ago Erivan, the capital, was a city of starving people—today its streets ring with happy laughter.

Free From Massacre.

"For the first time these Armenians are free from massacre—and worse—and if the western world will try to understand something of what this freedom means it will realise that Moscow has saved Russian Armenia.

"I am convinced,' said Miss Coe, in reply to a question, "that people here do not realize how conditions have changed in Russia. Just before my arrival Chicherin and Rykoff passed thru Armenia. Told of a man who had been imprisoned for giving his father christian burial, Chicherin had the responsible officer before him and sentenced him to imprisonment. All churches in Armenia—except two—are open daily, and bells are rung for srevice twice on week days and three times on Sundays.

Doesn't Need Revolver.

"All this was to me a complete surprise. Before I left London on my mission I was told it was necessary to carry a revolver. I did not do so, and I never experienced anything but courtesy and consideration.

"As to the movements against religion, it was impressed upon me that the present reaction was one against parties rather than religion. A commissar, from whose lips I never expected such a view, said to me: 'What we want is universal love and peace.'

"I asked about the dreaded Cheka, and was told that everything had been changed since three years ago, and that no one was put before it without proper trial and the right of appeal to the minister of the interior."

SYNOPSIS—War Communism and the New Economic Policy and Nationalism were among the interesting subjects which appeared in yesterday's instalment of the official report of the British Trade Union Delegation to Soviet Russia, now appearing every day in the DAILY WORKER. Preceding instalments have dealt with finances, and a description of the route taken by the seven British trade union leaders who reported so favorably on conditions in the Soviet Union.

Trusts and Syndicates

The New Economic Policy restored not only the fundamental right of private enterprise, but also re-erected on it somewhat similar superstructures to those that have grown up in other countries, such as Trusts, Syndicates, and Banks. These were reproduced in Russia as State organisations operating on a self-governing and self-supporting basis. In other words, Big Business and High Finance in Russia are both under direct Government control, and do not, as elsewhere, indirectly control the Government. In some cases, as in the "Mixed Companies," in which public and private capital participate, new forms have been created. And in all cases care must be taken not to confuse these Trusts and Syndicates, which are a development of nationalisation on a business basis, with European Trusts and Syndicates. The Russians, first, under War Communism nationalized all commerce and industry, and then, under the New Economic Policy denationalised all that was without direct national importance, but "socialised" Big Business and High Finance. With us private enterprise is preparing nationalisation from a business basis by organising industry on national lines. In Russia the Revolution is reconstructing a nationalised industry and commerce on a business basis. The ultimate end will be much the same in both cases. But the present penultimate stage is very different. In Russia producers are rapidly acquiring sufficient freedom for the efficient conduct of their operations. In Europe the State is at present making little or no progress towards acquiring control over profiteers.

The demobilisation of industry was put in hand with great promptitude. By the end of 1922 there had been created 426 Trusts, each composed of factories mostly occupied in the same branch of industry. There were also by then 20 Syndicates or Combinations of Trusts for financial and commercial co-operation. All these, as well as the "Mixed Companies," operate under concessions.

Concessions

These are generally considered as originating in the New Economic Policy. But the first Congress of Councils of National Economy in April, 1918, issued a decree establishing a program of concessions for the attraction of foreign capital, and this decree was only suspended owing to the last invasion of Russia by the capitalist Powers. With the end of these hostilities in 1920 it again became applicable, a resumption that ante-dated somewhat the New Economic Policy. The difference under the New Economic Policy is that many of the powers given under concessions as privileged exemptions in the time of War Communism are now made generally applicable by the New Economic Policy.

Concessions in Russia have nothing peculiar in principle, only as nationalisation is still on a much larger scale than elsewhere concessions have a larger scope. In so far as they concern public services, lighting, transport, etc., they are very similar in character to concessions in other States. But these Russian concessions for public services, industrial exploitation, banking, foreign commerce are subject to certain requirements, such as minimum of production, previously applicable for the most part only to mining and such matters. Another peculiarity is that Russian concessions are in the form of contracts between the State and the private person, though in fact they are administrative and unilateral. As to whether concessions confer a right of ownership or only usufruct, Article 55 of the Civil Code, which provides "that large industries may not come into private ownership otherwise than by concession," seems to allow the first. Whereas Article 22, which only allows nationalised enterprises, buildings and vessels to be leased, contemplates the second. But as the concessionaire may neither sell, mortgage nor lease the conceded property, and must personally exploit it under pain of invalidating the concession, there can be in practice no question of ownership. He is not even an owner in the sense that English railways are in private ownership, because his exploitation is very strictly limited in time. He is still less an owner if he holds under lease. For a concession is for periods sufficient to allow of amortisation of installation expenditures, whereas a lease is for no more than 12 years, requires the return of all equipment, and does not, like the concession, allow the exporter to sell old equipment. But the concessionaire and leaseholder do have full ownership in their working capital, and, broadly speaking, in that alone.

Leases

Besides concessions private capital can operate under lease. These are different from concessions, which may concern only rights in property, in that they deal with the property itself. short (6-12 years) to repay any great outlay, and there is not short (6-12 years) to repay any great outlay, and three is not the same guarantee against loss due to legislation as in the concessions.

In some cases private enterprises can be started with only a departmental permit, as in the case of a printing business (Decree, December 2nd, 1920). Russian "Mixed Companies" also can obtain rights to work minerals on a small scale without a concession

Organisation of Trusts

The powers and position to be accorded to the Trusts were first worked out in the controversy over the formation of the Flax Trust, established by decree, August 12th, 1921. It was followed two days later by the general decree regulating the Trusts under the New Economic Policy. This at first limited to 10 per cent. the amount of produce at free disposal of the Trusts, which was, however, soon raised to 50 per cent. But a whole series of Trusts sanctioned by decree of October 27th, 1921, were allowed to dispose of their whole production.

At first the management of these Trusts was restricted and over-regulated, but before long it had become completely autonomous; even exceeding that allowed to limited companies elsewhere, as, for example, in conclusion of loans. Finally, a decree of May 23rd, 1922, recognised these Trusts as judicial personalities. They are indeed in some respects in a more responsible and autonomous position than the nearest things of the kind in Europe, such as Government railways and institutions. The reason for this is the intention in Russia to put these Trusts in a position to attract capital on their own account. The other form of "Mixed" enterprise in which the Government participates in shares, was considered in Russia suitable only for the smaller concerns.

Status of Trusts

The position of the Central Trusts is regulated by the decree of April 10th and July 17th, 1923, that of the local Trusts by a decree of September 17th, 1923. The statutes of all the Trusts have now, within the last six months, been brought into conformity with these decrees. These enterprises have thereby now been definitely separated from the State. This decree recognises the autonomy of the Trusts in all that concerns their operations and in accordance with their Articles of Association. It substitutes a "commercial basis" for their operations, i.e., the making of a profit, for the previous "economic basis," which only required a business-like bookkeeping. This again involves a renunciation by the State of all requisitions or even requirements from the Trust incompatible with commercial prosperity. On the other hand, the Government is not responsible for the liabilities of the Trust, or loss of capital, other than debts from State enterprises. This decree also defines for the first time the property rights of the Trust with a view to enabling it to get credit. In the first place it was necessary to guarantee the Trust against loss and liability due to State interference, which is done very fully by Articles 5 and 14. The State is, moreover, only entitled to any net profit after provision for sinking fund and the putting of 20 per cent. to reserves as well as to any assets after liquidation of all liabilities. The statutory capital is divided into capital and working capital; statutory capital does not include property. Basic capital cannot be alienated or mortgaged except by consent of the Supreme Economic Council. This applies also to long term loans. These provisions give the Trust a basis for credit; which is, however, restricted to its working (Oborotny) capital, against which alone creditors can proceed (Article 17). Structures, machinery, and equipment generally cannot consequently be used as security. The function of debentures is taken by a Government guarantee. Private capital is excluded from holding shares, though an exception in this respect is made in favour of co-operatives. The reason for this is that in the case of the co-operators there is no reason to fear the ultimate predominance of private capital.

Each Trust is based on Articles of Association (Ustav), which should more properly be called a Charter (prolozhenie); for, in legal lingo, these Trusts are neither Associations nor Corporations, but "etablissements publiques personnifies." They are judicial persons.

The division of powers as between the directors and the Government (Supreme Economic Council) is based on the principle that the State assumes the authority assigned in a limited company to the general meeting of shareholders appointing the directors, etc. (Auditors are appointed jointly by the Supreme Council and the competent Trade Union.) Indeed, the State is excluded from intervention in the management to an even greater extent than is the general meeting. Th State, like the general meeting, has authority over financial operations and all questions affecting the constitution and control of the Trust. To this must be added the usual authority assumed by the State over corporations under western legislation.

All Trusts must be members of the Bourse and register their transactions. (Article 48, decree 10 IV. 23.)

The Supreme Economic Council, the Council of Labour and Defence, and the Commissariat of Internal Trade, can, in "cases of necessity," fix the selling price of its products (Article 48 ib.). In equal conditions Trusts must give preference to State organs and to co-operatives over private enterprises.

By 1923, there were already 423 Trusts employing about one million workers.

Mixed Companies and Private Enterprises

The mixed companies operate like private companies and in virtue of a concession. The only complicated feature of their structure is the State participation, which is not in money, but in material, land, building, etc. But as this nationalised property cannot be alienated, the State's participation has to be expressed in the form of a remission of rent for a term, which complicates the balance sheet. Another peculiarity is that instead of the directors being appointed by the shareholders as a body, the State and the shareholders each appoint representatives.

In spite of these peculiarities, the mixed companies are, in respect of status, private companies. And, though there is a constant pressure for hteir conversion into official organs, they are likely to retain their private character. But further juristic definition of their status is probable and desirable

Concessions and Leases

The function of the State, which is limited in principle to supervising mixed and private companies, may become in practice a more serious control. For example, concessions and leases all impose a minimum production, and Article 162 of the Civil Code requires its fulfilment. This, therefore, imposes on private enterprises a public responsibility in the interest of national production and public property. To this extent, these private exploitations are still public enterprises.

State Syndicates

These are institutions very illustrative of the adaptatbility and spontaneity of the present economic structure. The Syndicate is a combine of Trusts somewhat similar in organisation and object to the Syndicates organised by Big Business elsewhere. It is like them, a free association, by Articles, of autonomous enterprises under a central management; which has in Russia a judicial personality. But whereas the Trust is a State organ, the Syndicate is a private association which as yet has not even been regulated. The functions of the Syndicate are defined in an official thesis issued by the Supreme Economic Council as being the better co-ordination and co-operation of the Trusts in financial-commercial operations in the sale of their products, and in the acquisition of raw material.

The Syndicates are directly under authority of the Supreme Economic Council. This authority is concerned with consent for the syndicalisation of any Trust with the confirmation of directors and auditors, the appointment of its own auditors, the inspection of audit and accounting, confirmation of distribution of dividends, and with dissolution. The Syndicate usually acts through an agent of its members nad consequently does not require working capital.

The Syndicates are in rapid process of development. They are, in fact, an amalgamation on a national basis of the individual Trusts engaged in each industry; and the more important industries, such as textile, oil, hides, tobacco, metals, etc., are all syndicated.

Industrial Congresses

These are conventions of representatives of all the Trusts engaged in any industry, with a permanent secretariat. They have no legal status, but are recognised and even summoned by the Supreme Economic Council, and their resolutions are generally reproduced in its decisions. They are both interesting and important institutions in the reorganisation of production on a basis of national autonomous industries.

Private Enterprise

Under the New Economic Policy private enterprise is in no way obstructed in the largest area of Russian production—that is in agriculture, home industry, and handicrafts (Kustarni). Large mechanical industry is nationalised, but its machinery and equipment may be practically privately owned, which obviously will cause complicated questions of ownership. All industry, national and private, is now on a business basis, but national industry is conducted and private industry in various degrees controlled in the interests of the National Economic Budget (Gosplan). National industrial enterprises can contract and even compete between themselves, but there is as yet little opportunity for such competition. On the other hand, the competition of private enterprise is encouraged in so far as it is a stimulant to the energy and efficiency of the national enterprises.

Competition of Public and Private Trading

Although under War Communism private property was in principle abolished and private capital wherever possible confiscated, yet with the introduction of the New Economic Policy private enterprise revived immediately and seemed to have all the financial resources it required. Private enterprise was indeed at first over-capitalised; and the result, combined with excessive profits, was a "boom" with all its usual accompaniments of profusion and profligacy.

Private enterprise having succeeded somehow or another in preserving or even accumulating reserves of capital under War Communism secured a great start under the new economic system in its competition with the co-operatives and Government Trusts. The co-operatives were slow in reorganising, and so private enterprise secured the greater part, in some cases the whole, of the new retail business. It may be of interest to trace the course of this competition in a representative manufacture and raw material.

In textiles, Government enterprises transacted in 1922—the first year of the New Economic Policy—about 60 per cent. of all retail trade, co-operatives about 6 per cent., and private traders 34 per cent. In salt the proportions were: Government, 33 per cent; co-operatives, 20 per cent; private, 47 per cent. But this start secured by private enterprise, owing to its being quicker off its moorings, was gradually lost as the co-operatives and Government Trusts got under way and gathered momentum. By 1923 we find the Textile Trust selling to its own Trading Syndicate 36 per cent. of its output instead of 12 per cent; the Wool Trust 25 per cent instead of 5 per cent; the Linen Trust, which was left at the post, 2 per cent. instead of 3 per cent. While the general average of output taken by private enterprise was only about 20 per cent. In the following first half-year of 1923-4 the Government tSyndicate took of cotton textiles 30 per cent., of wool, 45 per cent., of linen, 16 per cent., while private enterprise recovered a general average of about 30 per cent. In salt the official syndicate took as much as 47 per cent. in 1923, which, however, fell again to 30 per cent. in the first half of 1923-4.

'RIOT AND CIVIL COMMOTION' CRY AIDS INSURANCE

Nurse Nervousness of Coal Mine Owners

Coal operators, tho claiming to be unable to pay miners a living wage, are maintaining a select group of insurance men in luxury, it appears from the admissions of a man who writes coal insurance all thru Ohio, Michigan, West Virginia, Indiana, Kentucky and the coal ports of the great lakes.

"While rates are high, especially on older mines, we make most money out of a type of insurance that was developed just before the United States entered the world war," says this underwriter who was not talking for publication. "At that time many coal operators feared that German spies were hiding under the tipples ready to blow up the works at the first opportunity. To commercialize this fear a number of companies that insure mines and coal distributors devised the 'riot and civil commotion' policy to cover bombing, physical damages to plant in labor disputes and so on. The premium is automatically tripled in case of strikes and mob activity.

"It proved very profitable to the insurance companies and since the war we have carefully nursed the nervousness of the coal operators. The same policies extend to the costly unloading machinery on the coal docks of the big lake parts and the same psychological care is taken to keep them in force. A strike or lockout is a godsend to the insurance men. There is as a rule practically no damage to property but the premiums jump to three times the stated rate which is quite high enough to be juicy."

The scheme is on the same order as the advantage taken by the William J. Burns and other detective agencies to bleed bankers and business men during the red hysteria.

Low Wages, Hardships, Shoots Wife and Self

LOS ANGELES, July 30. — Louis Gamble, 35, postoffice employe of Hawthorne (suburban town) shot his wife, 26, and himself leaving three children behind. Gamble slaved in the postoffice for the miserable pittance of $18.00 a week, his wife was a clerk in a shoe store.

While father and mother were employed the children roamed around as best they could.

The couple were very much devoted to each other, the neighbors tell, but they had many arguments over the children, expenses, clothing, etc. At 5:30 one morning the children ran screaming from the house. Neighbors found both parents dead. After shooting his wife, Gamble placed the barrel of the rifle in his own mouth and blew the top of his head off.

N. Y. Workers Party Wins Against Cops

New York decided that it would test this right of the police. It arranged the meeting last night, determined that it would go thru with it, no matter what the police and Mayor Hylan decided to do.

Krumbein Opens With Defi

Comrade Krumbein, district organiser, opened the meeting, stating the purpose of the meeting and declaring that the meeting would be held no matter what happened.

The first speaker was Comrade Amter, who stated that "the constitution of the United States guarantees free speech and free assemblage. We know that these are only abstract rights, and that the capitalists have the right to use the streets, the public squares and all halls of the city and are not disturbed. The workers will get these rights when, thru their organized might, they take the right to use the streets. We know that in Pennsylvania, in West Virginia, where the United States Steel corporation rules, there is no such right for the workers. We know that on the western coast, the I. W. W. have to fight for the right of free speech, and many of their men are now in the prisons for demanding and fighting for these rights.

Only One Country Where Workers Have Rights

"The Workers (Communist) Party knows that there is only one country where the workers do not have to ask for the right to use the streets and public squares. That country is where the workers have established their political power and where they use their power to crush everything that is of the bourgeoisie. That country is Soviet Russia. Only when the American workers and exploited farmers have established a government of their own in the United States—when they have established a Soviet government in the United States, will the right of free speech for the workers be uncontested."

Comrade Weinstone, the next speaker, reviewed the various stages of the struggle of the Chinese people against foreign invasion and interference. Czaristic Russia, Germany, England and the United States have conducted a plundering policy toward China since that date, depriving China of sovereign powers. Extra-territoriality is one of the rights of the foreign imperialists who do not recognize the Chinese courts, and in this right is backed up by the organized military power of the governments.

"America's attitude toward China is that of honeyed words but brutal in action. It is time that the workers of the United States recognize what is going on in China. It is time for them to line up with their comrades in China against the imperialists. China has one friend—the workers and peasants of Soviet Russia, who following the guidance of Lenin will aid the Chinese people in the struggle against world imperialism."

Kuomintang Voices Its Ideals

Dr. J. D. Lamb, representative of the Kuomintang, was the next speaker, and pictured the situation in China. "The Chinese are struggling for three ideas: 'equality, freedom and democracy.' The capitalists are earning huge sums, while the workers hardly earn enough to live. This is not right," said the speaker, "and the workers of the United States must understand it."

Comrade Rebecca Grecht was the next speaker and declared that "the struggle of the colonial peoples against world imperialism is one of the signs that the world revolution is approaching. The protest of the Chinese workers is merely a symptom of what is happening in all parts of the world. The strike in Shanghai was the beginning of the general revolt of the whole Chinese people, and they are determined not to stop till the foreign imperialists are driven out. But the Chinese workers realize that the fight is not against the workers of other countries. They know that the ruling countries are divided into two classes: the ruling class and the ruled class. They reach out their hands to the workers of all countries in the common struggle. Soviet Russia is the ally of the Chinese workers and peasants, as she is of all the oppressed peoples of the world."

Comrade Darsy, representing the Young Workers League, depicted the methods and aims of imperialism. "We were told that the last war was the war to end all wars and to introduce democracy. If it was to be the last war, why did the United States government in 1919, one year after the armistice, appropriate one billion dollars for aviation? Why is Europe more armed today than ever before? Because the armistice was merely an armistice for the allies to recuperate from the ravages of the war. The Citizens Military Training Camps are means of mobilizing future armies. Defense day was a means of mobilizing the workers for another war. The revolutionary youth of the world will stand side by side with the Chinese workers and peasants and will fight on till all capitalism is destroyed and the workers and peasants have established Soviet governments the world over."

Browder Hails Purcell Visit

Comrade Earl R. Browder was the last speaker of the meeting. He showed that the world is not divided geographically but into two classes—the exploiters and the exploited. He showed that all the trickery of the imperialists to stop the united front of the working class is failing. "The British labor movement was one of the most conservative some years ago. But in the last two years a new wave is moving over the British labor movement. The left wing of the British trade union movement is uniting with the Russian labor unions to effect a united front of the organized workers the world over. A representative of the Anglo-Russian trade union unity movement will soon come to this country, and I hope that a crowd of workers many times this size will be present to greet him at the pier.

"What is transpiring in China is a symbol of the world revolution. The nationalist revolution in China is but the prelude to the civil war that is bound to come in China, till the workers and peasants have assumed power and imperialism will have been swept from the face of the earth."

Pass Resolution

The demonstration was enthusiastic from beginning to end, the speakers being interrupted by waves of applause. A resolution was adopted demanding "Hands Off China, Stand by Soviet Russia." A resounding aye sounded thru the street when Comrade Krumbein presented the resolution for adoption. Singing the International the crowd of revolutionary workers marched down the street, much to the dismay of the police.

For the time being, the Workers (Communist) Party and the Young Workers League have taken the right to use the streets of New York.

KELLOGG DENIES OTHER POWERS AGREE WITH U. S.

Canton Asks A. F. of L. to Stop U. S. Crimes

WASHINGTON, D. C., July 30.—While Secretary of State Kellogg was denying that his department had ever issued statements that other powers had agreed to the American proposal for a conference of the nine powers on the slubject of revision of the Chinese treaties, President Green of the American Federation of Labor gave out the complete text of the appeal cabled him from the South China government at Canton. It reads as follows:

"First, Wu Pei Fu, and now Chang Tso-lin, came into power in nearly the whole of northern and central China. He came to power because of the support given him by another group of imperialists. Now that he is in power he continues to be more faithful to his foreign masters than to the aspirations of his own people like the rest of his predecessors he will be overthrown and so on ad infinitum.

"This state of affairs, confused as it seems to the average foreign observer, has become perfectly clear to the thinking men of our own country. We believe this confusion to be due to the unequal international status of China. We are certain that so long as the unequal treaties exist China will not be able to put her house in order.

"Want Keys to Our Own House."

"Therefore we demand that our international status be forthwith changed on the basis of equality with other nations. Our people demand nothing but what they are ready to accede to other nations—equality in international relations, independence in the exercise of their sovereign rights. This entails the abolition of extraterritorial rights, foreign jurisdiction, economic prvileges which are unilateral in their nature.

"We demand the reversion of the maritime customs to the nation that it might have the chance of adopting such economic policies as would advance our economic development. We demand the keys to our own house. The abolition of the unequal treaties will at once cut the vicious roots which have been supporting and nourishing all our evils . . . .

Asks A. F. of L. to Halt U. S. Government Atrocity.

"China is not led by agitators who are supposed to be stirring up trouble against foreigners. China is rising because there is a deep-seated feeling of wrongs and injustices suffered at the hands of soulless exploiters. She is unable to endure these wrongs and injustices any longer.

"China appeals to you for fair play, for she is certain if the real facts will be known to you, you will not suffer your government to continue their atrocious policies in this country even for a day.

"You will add your voices to ours in the common demand for justice which to us means independence and to you means no harm at all, on the contrary it will mean to you more economic prosperity, more assurance that the peace of the world will not be endangered . . . .

"Anyway, we can not all be exterminated thru such massacres as have recently taken place in the most important cities of our country. It can only spur us on in our endeavors to free ourselves from imperialism thru means which the most farsighted of us can hardly foretell.

"Peoples of the world, we appeal to you for justice. Help us to do away with the evil thing called unequal treaties."

BUILDERS AT WORK

ANOTHER ISSUE IS READY

It's Here Again!

Once more the Workers Monthly, that great medium assisting the DAILY WORKER to build the Communist movement, is off the press.

The August issue is now going into the mails bringing to thousands of workers an array of facts and features seldom equalled in working class journals.

For Builders, for every worker, this issue of such splendid articles (made more interesting by a large number of splendid cartoons and striking photographs) brings home the life of the workers and their struggles as no other issue had in the past.

The struggles in the needle trades and in the steel industry (in articles by Wm. Z. Foster, Earl R. Browder and Arne Swabeck), the situation in China (in an article by a Chinese), a keen analysis of the leaderless LaFollette movement by Manuel Gomez, are only a few of the features which you will find between the covers of this issue.

You will get subscriptions for the Workers Monthly. All good Builders of the labor movement always do. But it is also important that you get a bundle of this issue to sell at your union meetings at the shop and wherever workers gather.

All you Builders—get behind this issue of the Workers Monthly—no better tool to build the movement has been turned out.

SOVIET UNION INCREASES AREA OF COTTON CROP; EXPORTS GROW

MOSCOW—(By Mail.)—In the beginning of March the Federal Soviet Cotton Conference fixed the cotton area—for 1925—for all the republics in the Soviet Union at 560,000 desiatins, of which 393,000 were to be planted in the Uzbek Republic, 106,000 in the Transcaucasian Republics, and 61,000 in the Turkoman Republic.

This total represents an increase of 115,000 desiatins, or somewhat more than 25 per cent above the aggregate of 445,000 desiatins planted in 1924. The maximum cotton area before the war was 780,000 desiatins, so that the program for 1925 is equal to 72 per cent of the largest prewar plantings.

Taking into account the possibility of a higher yield per desiatin, the total unginned cotton crop forecast for the 1925-26 season will amount to approximately 33,000,000 poods which will give 9,652,000 poods of ginned cotton.

Fur, Bristle and Skin.

From October 1, 1924 to April 1, 1925 the State Trading Bureau exported 18,600,000 gold rubles' worth of fur, bristle and raw skin products, exceeding the exports for the same period of the preceding year by 70 per cent and almost equaling the total of 19,200,000 gold rubles for the entire previous fiscal year.

These exports were distributed as follows according to products and countries. Furs—14,300,000 gold rubles, of which 53.6 per cent went to America, 26.8 per cent to England, 14.2 per cent to Germany, 5.4 per cent to France. Bristles—2,900,000 gold rubles, of which 45.5 per cent went to Germany, 44.4 per cent to England, 4.1 per cent to France and 6 per cent to other countries. Raw skins—841,000 gold rubles, of which 84 per cent went to Germany, 7 per cent to England, and 9 per cent to other countries. And other goods of this class, 30,300 gold rubles, of which 83.7 per cent went to Germany.

Sales on foreign markets totaled 18,200,000 gold rubles including 15,000,000 gold rubles' worth of furs, which surpasses the previous year's figure by 150 per cent. The principal markets are: America, 44.5 per cent; Germany, 27.4 per cent; and England, 26.7 per cent.

Export of Products.

The U. S. S. R. has already prepared a plan for export of agricultural products for 200,000,000 rubles. Among these products will be: 700,000 poods of hemp, 25,000 poods of bristle, and 100,000,000 rubles' worth of grain. seed-oil will also be exported in large quantities as there is a great demand for this product.

The demand for Russian eggs is also steadily growing. During the four months, from January to April, 1925, Russia exported to Germany 2,287,000 eggs. This was the first export of eggs to Germany since the prewar times.

The State Agricultural Bank has allowed 300,000 rubles to the peasants for agricultural machinery. They have already bought 350 tractors which are now being distributed among the peasants.

Increase in Flax Area.

Last year the flax area was 489,300 desiatins; this year it has been increased to 1,017,119 desiatins.

The government has spent 10,000,000 rubles for irrigation in the Central part of R. S. F. S. R. and the Caucasian region.

The Soviet Government has opened 75 new veterinary stations. R. S. F. S. R. has now 221 such stations and all of them are supported by the government.

(Special to The Daily Worker)

WASHINGTON—(FP)—When the people of a congressional district or a state send a representative or a senator to Washington or when the president takes a man out of private life and brings him there in an appointive position, it is almost equivalent to giving him a life tenure to a residence in the nation's capital city.

Many come but few go home. This fact is brought to mind by the recent retirement of Frank W. Mondell, former congressman who became a lame duck when he tried to enter the senate, and got a $12,000 a year membership in the War Finance corporation from his friend, the president.

Now he leaves that fat post to hang out his shingle here as a lawyer. Exstatesmen find plenty of ways to make money practicing before various government bureaus. Representing wealthy clients before the income tax unit and the prohibition unit, or before the supreme court, the interstate commerce commission, federal trade commission or tariff board is very lucretive.

Among one time cabinet officers who maintain law offices here are Robert Lansing, Bainbridge Colby, Newton Baker, A. Mitchell Palmer and Thomas Watt Gregory. Among the former senators are: George E. Chamberlain, Charles Dick, Hoke Smith, Robert Owen, Moses Clapp and Charles Thomas. Among the appointed officials who are still sticking around are Joseph P. Tumulty, Daniel Roper, James M. Beck, Breckinridge Long, Wade Ellis, Rush L. Holland and C. Bascom Slemp. More than a dozen defeated congressmen are still living here and making a living by practicing law.

The Answer to Imperialist Threats

Soviet Russia is answering in a deadly effective way the imperialist plots against the workers' and peasants' government.

Following the publication of the report of the official British Trade Union delegation, a committee representing French and Belgian unions has visited Soviet Russia and declared for support of the Soviet Republics, World Trade Union Unity and a solid front against imperialism.

A German trade union delegation is also now in Soviet Russia and the favorable impressions made by its investigation of the All-Russian trade unions and their role in government and industry guarantees that this delegation will join with the Britsih, French and Belgians in endorsement of the unity drive and the working class front against imperialist oppression and war.

The robber nations are worried.

They have pooh-poohed the idea that over the heads of capitalist governments could be formed an alliance between the working class of their countries and the 6,000,000 organized Russian workers. They have worked along the old lines and have paid out millions for lies and their publication. They have depended upon the social-patriots to perpetuate the divisions in the ranks of the workers and they have sacrificed a portion of their profits to keep an upper section of the labor movement passive.

They have made the task of securing unity very hard but in spite of their efforts the alignment of the decisive sections of the working class against imperialism is taking place.

No army can fight successfully if its rear is threatened. The armies of imperialism are powerless if the trade union movements behind the lines are actively against imperialist war—and without successful war the great imperialist nations enter a period of decay.

The trade unions are the combat organizations of the working class. Once they really realize the class nature of their problems and actually lead the whole working class in a stern struggle for even elementary demands of hours, wages and working conditions, the death knell of imperialism has sounded.

The intensification of the class struggle in the imperialist nations is the best protection for the workers' and peasants' government of the Union of Socialist Soviet Republics in its role of vanguard of the world revolution. The interests of the working class in the imperialist nations lie along the same line. For this reason the desperate measures adopted by the capitalists and their governments only can check but not stop the drive for World Trade Union Unity.

Great Britain, France, Belgium and Germany—in these countries the trade unions are divorcing themselves from their rulers in spite of all the social-traitors can do and the process is hastened by the continual onslaught of the capitalists upon the living standards of the workers in Great Britain where the appeal of the coal miners to their fellow workers thruout Europe has produced the greatest demonstrations of international solidarity in the history of the labor movement.

Workers at last are learning that the unity of labor is the hope of the world.

Imperialism's Degenerates

The Moroccan correspondent of the Chicago Tribune waxes enthusiastic over the exploits of the French airmen. It seems that the general staff chose a market day to bomb a certain village and the Tribune correspondent tells with great detail of the horrible carnage resulting from bombs dropped in the crowded market place during a raid made by twenty planes.

The town was wiped out.

We read that a number of American aviators have offered their services to the French government as part of the Moroccan expeditionary force and that their offer has been accepted. Their division will be called the LaFayette escadrille—after the LaFayette who fought FOR a colonial people.

The bombing of native villages is murder of the most cowardly kind and if the French aviators are murderers what are we to call these Americans who have volunteered to aid in the butchery that is carried out without risk to the perpetrators?

The most savage animals never kill for the sake of killing but these degenerates enjoy doing it.

Imperialism needs and therefore breeds the utmost brutality. The imperialists and their mercenary murderers will have no cause for complaint when the colonial peoples perfect their increasing mastery of the weapons of modern warfare and, actuated by memories of the mass murder of their helpless women and children, make reprsials in kind.

With the brutish exponents of capitalist civilization argument is futile. The mass power of the workers and farmers alone, in the imperialist and colonial nations, can give the proper answer to a system that wades thru blood of the toilers to its throne.

A British writer declares that war between the United States and Japan is inevitable. But what about a little war between Britain and the United States? Anything in the line of murder is possible under capitalism.

The Zankov government is still slaughtering workers and peasants. The socialists have expressed opposition to all executions, without trial. So Zankov gives his victims a real trial before hanging them. Thus justice is honored.

Many thanks to the bandits who held up the Drake Hotel. At least they shoved William Jennings Bryan off the front page. Before he has a chance to stage a comeback, let us hope the British mine strike will be in full swing.

The main order of business on the Coolidge administration's program for the next session of congress is a further reduction in taxes on the rich. There is nothing said of an increase in the workers' standard of living.

A United States battleship is visiting Ireland. It seems Morgan's bill collectors have a penchant for traveling these days.

Tasks of the Finnish Section of the Workers Party

Letter from the Finnish Communist Party to the Finnish Section of the Workers Party.

COMRADES of the Finnish Federation of the Workers Party of America.

At the session of the Enlarged Executive Commitee of the Communist International were discussed among other questions the differences, which have manifested themselves in our American brother party about the next tasks of the party, especially in the question of the labor party. The resolution which was with satisfaction accepted by the representatives as well as of the majority as of the minority of the Central Executive Committee is of a very important significance both for the development of the Workers Party into a Bolshevist mass party and for the awakening of the proletarian masses in America to independent political class struggle. Even if it is quite natural, that every member of the Workers Party now before the party convention thoroly studies this decision, the representatives of both groups of our American brother party in this connection proposed that also the Central Committee of the Finnish Communist Party, whose Polbureau-members were present in the session of the Enlarged Executive Committee and in the commission, when the question was discussed and decided, should write a letter to the Finnish Federation of the Workers Party, so that—as far as the Finnish members are concerned—the line of policy put down in the resolution would be energetically and wholeheartedly carried out.

COMRADES! The session of the Enlarged Executive Committee of the Communist International said—as you may see from the resolution—that the minority of the Central Executive Committee of the Workers Party of America was right in their confidence in the vitality and future of the labor party movement. The Executive Committee of the Communist International recommended unanimously to the Workers Party not to abandon the struggle for establishing a labor party, but on the contrary, in the most energetic way to advance the labor party movement. By the same, however, the Comintern corrected the previous slogan in the sense that now the question is not any more of a "farmer labor" party, but only of a labor party. As far as the majority of the Central Executive Committee of the Workers Party earlier had emphasized that the labor party—when organized—must have a broad base in the organized masses of the trade unions, this claim as such was correct, but that step of the majority of the Central Executive Committee was wrong, thru which it later abandoned the labor party slogan, and more than that—started a systematic opposition to it.

ACCORDING to our opinion it is now especially important—and just because of that we write this letter—that now—as far as the Finnish members of the party are concerned—will be guaranteed, that this labor party policy gets undivided support and that the unwavering realization of this policy will be warranted in the future by the party leadership. Your party must have such a leadership, which is a guarantee for the energetic carrying out of that work, which is specially mentioned by the resolution in this connection and which is very important for the future of all the revolutionary labor movements in America.

We know, that the secretary of your organization, who also is a member of the Central Executive Committee of the Workers Party took his stand in this question wholly against the minority of the Central Executive Committee and the policy proposed by them, and that he in a circular letter to the branches and to the members asked the comrades to approve the standpoint of the majority of the Central Executive Committee. The, at that time, one-sided position of the secretary of your organization and also of many other Finnish comrades was in part presumably influenced by the circumstance, that the minority of the Central Executive Committee of the Workers Party at that time defended the "farmer labor party" slogan in its former aspect, altho the changed conditions demanded a correction in part of this slogan. While in this circular letter besides that he especially appealed to the importance of concentrating all energy and attention direct on the development and organization of the Workers Party itself, this letter found a rather sympathetic response from the Finnish comrades. And this resulted on quite understandable and in themselves, right reasons. Because the Communists first of all should everywhere and always look upon the strengthening and development of their own party as their first and most important task. Especially the Finnish comrades whose own organization is relatively strong and who to their numbers form a considerable part—more than a third—of the party, and who feel that the greatest weakness of the Workers Party is, that it generally has yet very few members and relatively few of the American-born workers in its ranks, therefore Finnish comrades consider the question of building the party as very important. But it would be a great error to think, that the strengthening of the party and its participation in such mass movements as especially just the labor party movement, would be tasks, standing in contradiction to each other. Quite to the contrary, the great signification of the labor party slogan is just in it, that it is one of the best means, thru which the Workers Party indirect can develop to a Bolshevist mass party. Such a narrowness of understanding—even if deprived from right motives—which cannot see this meaning of the labor party slogan, can very easily lead to such efforts, which are akin with some one-sided I. W. W. tendencies, looking upon the building up of their own organization, of their own party, as a separate mechanic issue, having no understanding for uniting it with the movements of the big masses or with the struggles for getting the masses to move. This would be a serious fault and especially just in America, where all attempts to build revolutionary mass organizations—whether parties of the workers or revolutionary economic organizations—have been in vain, if not combined with struggles to get the masses moving. We hope that you, Finnish comrades, now notice this and concede it, and that you before the party convention will decide to follow the right policy put down by the Executive Committee of the Communist International.

IN connection with this question the Enlarged Executive Committee of the Communist International unanimously condemned that Second-and-a-half International tendency, which is absolutely strange to the main principles of Communism and which the editor of the paper of the German Federation, Ludwig Lore, represents over there. We hope, that you, Finnish comrades, also take a clear stand in this question. Let it be, that Lore in some details perhaps has happened to be right, the main thing is, that the political line, the principal standpoint of Communism by him is wrong and opportunistic. The last fact and not the first should be the measure for a true Communist when estimating Lore. Consequently stand against Lore must be taken without evasions, not giving him even the slightest partial support. One must decisively part with Loreism. In the Finnish Federation Lore is certainly rather unknown and thus the greater is the reason to expect, that he will not receive even the shadow of support from the Finnish comrades.

Comrades! Worthy of your special attention in the resolutions are the points about the centralization and the basic organizations of the party and of the work in the trade unions. We hope that the comrades of the Finnish Federation with energy will go to assist in the work carrying out these decisions. We believe that you yourselves, comrades, thru this will come in the closest contact with the American comrades and proletarians. You will be Americanized in the revolutionary Bolshevist sense of this word, you will develop from being members of that separate "Finnish by-movement" of the Workers Party to real members of the American Communist movement and of the Workers' Party. And you understand of which great use your ability and your experience will be for the American Communist movement.

We on our side, we assure you, are working with all energy to strengthen the Communist Party in Finland, to prepare and lead the revolutionary movement in Finland. Comrades, there is no reason for even the slightest doubt, that the revolutionary proletarian movement in Finland marches forward with sure and strong steps.

Close the Ranks of the Party

Statement of the Central Executive Committee

THE Finnish Branch of our Party in Superior, Wis., has issued, and caused the publication of two statements in some of our Finnish papers which indicate a very dangerous tendency. These statements are all the more serious since they come from a branch to which a number of leading Finnish Comrades belong. Both statements while ostensibly opposing factionalism within our Party at the same time appear to support an attempt to create a new faction. The statements deal with the convention assessment, raising an issue as to the amount as well as to method of collection; they further question the wisdom of the decision of the Communist International in dealing with the factional situation in our Party in that it proposed that either group having a majority, the minority shall be entitled to one-third; they demand a new discussion without raising any political issue to discuss; and finally they seem to be designed to mobilize the membership against the present Central Executive Committee and by protesting against the arrangements made for the coming convention at the same time casting a shadow of suspicion upon the future Central Executive Committee of the Party.

OUR Party faces a difficult situation at the present moment. Political differences that have existed up to the decision of the Comintern have caused the division of the ranks of the Party into factions. At the same time there is present within the Party a dangerous right-wing opportunist tendency which has crystallized gradually with increasing danger to the Communist integrity of our Party. This tendency represented by Loreism can only be combatted successfully with the united efforts of our Party. In the struggle against this tendency the process of Bolshevizing our Party will be the most effective means. This process of Bolshevization demands a complete reorganization of the Parfy which in turn cannot be carried out without the united efforts of all of our members. It is clear therefore that any tendency of a new division within our Party is necessarily weakening the Party, intensifying the inner struggles, making impossible a concentrated struggle against Loreism and a complete mobilization of all the forces of the Party for Bolshevization and the consequent reorganization.

Considering the two statements of the Superior Finnish Branch in the light of these circumstances and on the basis of their contents and tone, the Central Executive Committee does not hesitate to declare that these statements present the ideological preparation for a split in our Party. The Central Executive Committee is moved to make the declaration because of the following facts:

1. One of the two statements declares that the Finnish "Socialist" branch of Superior takes this and this stand. It is symptomatic for the ideology of these Comrades. They find it perfectly in order to call themselves a "Socialist" branch altho the Finnish Section after its last national convention discarded the name of Finnish Socialist Federation. The Central Executive Committee sees in this a tendency for splitting operations within our Party. The Central Executive Committee must condemn this clear manifestation of non-Communist tendencies.

2. Both of the statements make an attempt to discredit the coming Party convention, the future Central Executive Committee and the Communist International by trying to discredit the methods prescribed by the Communist International for the organization of the future Central Executive Committee and the method decided upon by the Central Executive Committee in organizing the coming convention. This is another indication of an effort to crystallize a sentiment within the Party against the Party, the Central Executive Committee and the Communist International.

3. The authors of these statements have also found it quite possible to resort to a quite common demagogical argument in raising a financial issue. The Central Executive Committee has followed the regular procedure of our Party in issuing the call for a convention assessment. This assessment was found perfectly natural by the whole Party. It is obvious that the convention could not be financed without an assessment. Not one of its sub-divisions has found it necessary to complain of the amount nor protest against the method of collection. But the authors of the statements of the Finnish Branch of Superior seized upon this assessment as a good issue to start a new fight in the Party.

4. Even the Party constitution must supply the authors of these statements with another artificial issue. In their statements they protest against the Central Executive Committee's call for a convention which does not permit, as they state, the constitutional 60 days of discussion. The insincerity of this statement becomes clear when we cite the facts (a) that the Party carried on a discussion lasting for many months on the political issues confronting it and (b) that this discussion exasperated these very Comrades to such a degree that they protested in strong terms against the discussion. In the face of this fact the Central Executive Committee can consider the constitutional point raised by the authors of these statements only as another convenient "issue".

5. In one of the statements the question of a national conference of the Finnish Federation of our Party is raised. The statement protests against the action of the Central Executive Committee in delaying the conference of the Federation. Here we are confronted with a very serious question.

The most difficult immediate task of our Party is that of complete reorganization. "It is necessary to fuse the national sections of our Party into one real united Party," says the Bolshevization thesis adopted at the Executive Committee of the Communist International. In this work the Party must have the earnest and intelligent cooperation of the leading elements in all its federations. The first difficulty to overcome is that of federation patriotism. An understanding and a desire for the establishment of the oneness of the Party must be created and cultivated. As long "as its organs and members act in an isolated way, each after its own fashion, it is hopeless to expect useful and desirable results," states the Comintern letter to our Party on organization. "Unlike a centralized Party, the Workers Party as it is at present constituted is not a party of united action. The Party members of the various national sections are not fused together into one whole but are divided among themselves. They do not discuss questions interesting all the workers and the whole party but they live the exclusive life of their own national minority or of its working class section, so isolated from the American workers that they even do not sufficiently know the direct interests of the whole working class of the United States."

THUS the Communist International judges the organizational shortcomings of our Party. In the face of this undisputable condition the Central Executive Committee sees in the protests of the authors of the two statements of the Finnish Branch in Superior an appeal to federation patriotism which tends to aggravate the conditions criticised by the Communist International instead of helping to alleviate them. Under existing conditions this appeal to federation patriotism can have only one result—that of widening the gap between the federation and the Party and thus creating a spirit of split instead of one of unity.

The attitude displayed by these comrades should be sufficient proof of the wisdom of the Central Executive Committee postponing the federation conventions until after the party convention. The Central Executive Committee is adopting uniform regulations for the calling of all federation conferences after the party convention to enable the Party to mobilize its forces for carrying on the Bolshevization of the Party, especially the reorganization of the language sections into a centralized Party organization.

6. The authors of these two statements also raise the issue of factionalism within our Party.

A party in which the political problems of the working class do not create lively controversies and political alignments is a dead party. It is true that these controversies may and do at times take on a serious and even dangerous form for the party. It is inevitable that a sharp struggle over political questions should develop such a situation. The solution is not that adopted by the Finnish comrades of Superior, but for the party to unite on the basis of the platform of the Communist International for the Workers Party. What our Party needs in the present situation of factional strife is common action on the basis of the now settled point of political orientation. The appeal for the creation of a faction against factionalism cannot tend to unite but is merely a factor of further division. The Communist International was fully aware of the situation in our Party and has decided upon the only effective method of unity. The work of the Party Commission has brought our Party a great deal nearer to the solution of the problem of factionalism. A completion of the work of this Commission and the work of the Party convention will finally reunite all the forces of our Party for common action and will thus eliminate the elements of intense factional strife. While the aversion to factionalism contains a healthy tendency it is non-Communist to speculate upon this tendency for the purpose of creating further divisions. Serious Communist leadership must use this anti-factional tendency among the members for the creation of an enthusiasm for complete Party unity thru a united line-up of the whole Party in common struggles.

The exploitation of existing anti-factional tendencies within our Party by the authors of the two statements in the factional manner apparent in their documents is only another indication of their aims.

7. A further indication of the dangerous attitude of the authors of these statements toward the Party is contained in their not having submitted either of these statements to the Central Executive Committee before publishing same.

THE Central Executive Committee of the Workers Party calls the attention of the comrades of the Finnish Branch of Superior to the dangerous direction their statements indicate. If they persist on continuing on this road they will find themselves in the camp of Loreism. Such a course will inevitably lead them farther away from the Party and the Comintern. The Central Executive Committee has sufficient confidence in the loyalty of these Comrades to our Party and to the Comintern to hope that they will speedily abandon this road and return to the path of common Communist action with and within our Party. These Comrades must open their eyes to the fact that their activities and criticism play into the hands of the enemies of our Party and strengthen their efforts to get into control of the Finnish workers, particularly the Finnish Socialists and anarcho-syndicalists who welcome every schism in the ranks of the Party and the Comintern.

THE Central Executive Committee calls upon all the members of our Party and especially upon the members of the Finnish Section to close their ranks against any attempt to lead them into the swamps of opportunism and Loreism. The inner unity of our Party and the international unity of all the Communist parties under the banner of the Communist International are the most valuable achievements of the revolutionary experience of the proletariat of the world today. To guard this achievement and to defeat every attempt of disruption is the aim to which we must devote the energies of our Party and to which especially is devoted the great process of Bolshevization which can be achieved only by united action.

STATEMENT OF THE FINNISH BUREAU

Statement of the Finnish Federation, Workers Party, in Regard to the Statements Issued and published by the Superior, Wis., Finnish Branch.

THE Finnish Branch of the Workers Party in Superior, Wis., has issued and published two statements, to which statements the Central Executive Committee of the Workers Party has issued the above statement in reply, condemning the views and tendency expressed in these two statements as non-Communistic and detremental to the party, which tendency ultimately will lead to Loreism and into the opportunistic swamps. It's hard for the bureau of the Finnish Federation to believe that the Superior branch should harbor such believes and tendencies as expressed in those statements, but there is no other way for the bureau to judge the actions of the Superior comrades than as expressed in those statements and therefore the Federation Bureau fully endorses the statement of the C. E. C. of the Workers Party and declares that the Finnish Federation Bureau condemns the views and tendency expressed in those two statements even in stronger terms than the C. E. C. of our party does and states that such views and tendencies will not have any support of the bureau or the great majority of our membership now or in the future.

The bureau of the Finnish section of the party calls upon the Finnish comrades in every branch to close their ranks and condemn the tendency expressed in those two statements and stand by the party and the federation in a united front and fight vigorously the tendency expressed in the statements, and do all in its power to educate and organize the Finnish membership of the party to a such part of it that it will and is able to help and build a fighting Communist mass party in the United States.

We point out to our Finnish comrades who may sympathize with the tendency and views expressed in the statements of the Superior branch; that by doing so they expose to a very great danger all the work what our federation in conjunction with the party has done in this country among the Finnish workers in educating them along the ideology of Communism and will throw the Finnish workers as a prey back to the social-democratic and anarcho-syidicalist ideological influence. Comrades turn back at once from this dangerous path to the path outlined by the Communist International and fight together with the Communist elements of the party to build of the Workers Party a united Communist fighting party under the program outlined by the C. I.

Down with all right wing opportunistic tendencies in our federation and in the party.

Executive Committee Finnish Federation,

Workers Party of America.

BRITISH COAL BARONS WEAKEN

RAILROAD WORKERS OF U. S. AND CANADA TO HOLD AMALGAMATION CONFERENCE AT CHICAGO SEPT. 12

(Special to The Daily Worker)

ST. PAUL, Minn., July 30.—The International Committee for Amalgamation in the Railroad Industry has issued thru its secretary, O. H. Wangerin, a call for the Second Amalgamation Conference of amalgamationists and progressive railroad men of the United States and Canada, to meet in Chicago on Saturday and Sunday, September 12 and 13, at the Workers' Lyceum, 2733 Hirsch Boulevard.

Invitations have been sent to all local unions of the sixteen standard railroad organizations of the United States and Canada, and all indications promise the largest railroad amalgamation conference yet held. Great numbers of local unions in Canada and the United States have already signified their intention of being represented at the Chicago conference.

Since the first conference, which also met in Chicago, on December 9-10, 1922, there have been several regional amalgamation conferences, all with large delegations.

The official call for this second conference issued by the committee reads as follows:

"To All Railroad Local Unions in the United States and Canada.

"Dear Sirs and Brothers:

"The past four years has been the most tragic period in the history of railroad unionism in America. During this time the great strike of the Shopmen took place. Its disastrous outcome is known to all railroad workers. Some of these unions have been almost entirely destroyed, while others are completely demoralized and beaten down far below their pre-war status. With the exception of the four transportation brotherhoods, all unions have suffered immeasurably in morale and membership, with hundreds of thousands of their former members, in company associations or in no unions at all. All told, over a half million members have been lost to the bonafide railroad unions.

Disorganized and Defeated.

"Taking advantage of the weakened condition of the unions, the railroad companies are carrying on relentless war against wages, hours and working conditions. With the help of the railroad labor board reductions amounting to millions of dollars a year have been forced on the workers. Not only has the national agreement been lost

AS WE SEE IT

By T. J. O'FLAHERTY

THE British tories have something else to worry about just now besides plotting a war against Soviet Russia. Even if the threatened strike does not materialize now, it cannot be postponed for long. The condition of British capitalism is such that it cannot survive, except at the further expense of the workers' standard of living. It appears that the workers are tired of allowing themselves to be sacrificed "for the good of the empire."

NOBODY can predict what may develop out of the present industrial crisis in England. It is different by far to any of those great upheavals that preceded it. There is a purpose behind the movements of the workers today that was previously lacking. They see before their eyes in the splendid progress being made in the Soviet Union an example of what the workers can do if they only have the will. They certainly have the way.

THE income of the Soviet Union has surpased that of the Czar's government in 1913. It has reached the colossal sum of two billion dollars. And that money is going to be used to develop Soviet agriculture and industry to educate the masses to improve their social conditions and to defend their government. No rouble of it will go to forge chains for the producing classes as is the case with the revenue of capitalist countries.

WHILE the economy of Britain, France and Germany is on the downgrade, that of the Soviet Union is going up. British capitalism can only continue to exist only if the workers agree to less wages, as well as work longer hours. But the Soviet Union becomes stronger as the standard of living of the workers and peasants rises. And this can only come about thru increased production. But the workers and peasants having the control of Russian industries are interested in increasing production, the benefits of which they receive.

THEREFORE the present industrial crisis in Britain carries a more sinister meaning to the capitalists than other strikes that took place before the Soviet Republic was established, or even after it was established, and when it was hanging on

BERLIN, Germany, July 31.—An attempt of the presiding officer of the Reichstag, Herr Graef, a nationalist, to expel the Communist Deputy Jadasch failed when the Reichstag voted that he remain.

The monarchist deputies rioted when Jadasch denounced the catholic church for its support of the capitalists and its antagonism to the Soviet Union.

Jadasch denounced the attempt of the catholic center party to pass new tariff rates on grain which would increase the cost of bread to the German workers.

GENERAL STRIKE OF BUILDING TRADES AT EAST LIVERPOOL, O.

WHOLESALE ARRESTS OF BULGARIAN WORKERS CONTINUE IN BULGARIA

SOFIA, July 31—According to the Bulgarian secret police, the wholesale raids in Sofia had "very satisfactory results." Four hundred people who could not produce "proper" documents were arrested.

In the vicinity of Selman, mass arrests have taken place. Three hundred peasants and workers accused of supporting the rebel detachment of Mitia Ganev were arrested.

In the town of Khaskovs 35 Communists and several members of the peasant party were arrested, among them is the barrister Keino Mitiev and his assistant Chemshirev. The latter threw himself from the fourth floor and was killed.

HYMAN WINS PHILADELPHIA CLOAK MAKERS

500 I. L. G. W. Members Repudiate Sigman

(Special to The Daily Worker)

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., July 31—In spite of the fact that shop chairmen were told by the watchers of the I. L. G. W. U. machine not to attend the meeting called for Tuesday, July 28, the meeting was a success. More than 500 workers came to the meeting and listened with great enthusiasm to everything the members of the Joint Action Committee from New York had to say.

The meeting opened with Max Levin, who was chairmand of the Cloak Makers' Joint Board of Philadelphia and was expelled from the union for belonging to the Trade Union Educational League in spite of the fact that a membership meeting called to decide on this question, voted more than 400 to 8 against expulsion.

Rose Wortis was then introduced and told in detail of what is happening in New York and went on to point out that the offilials of the International figured that if they succeeded in lining up the capitalist press and the manufacturers they would be safe, but they did not consider the fact that the I. L. G. W. U. has a membership to reckon with. But what is happening in New York is sufficient proof that the members of the union are alike and mean business when there is a militant leadership ready to lead and encourage them in the right direction.

No Gangsters Needed in Left Wing.

She further showed that the officials are trying to create an impression that the workers don't want to fight, and they are simply carrying out the wishes of the membership; but to see the picket lines in New York consisting of men and women from the shops, and not paid gangsters, is sufficient to prove that they are lying.

She finished by saying, "We the workers of the I. L. G. W. U. will not get discouraged, for we are fighting a just cause and we are sure to win."

At this time a motion by one of the audience was made that since the Joint Board of the Furriers' Union of New York are installing real leaders elected out of the rank and file and by the rank and file, that this meeting send greetings to them. The motion was passed unanimously.

PERSUADE SCABS TO QUIT STRUCK GARMENT PLANT

Pam Again Postpones Decision on Writ

As the fifth week of the strike of the members of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers, employed by the International Tailoring company and the J. L. Taylor company, came to a close yesterday, the strikers learned that work is entirely at a standstill within the plant.

Authoritative information has leaked out that only fifteen suits were turned out Thursday by the few scabs within the plant and most of these were so poorly made they could not be sold. Before the strike over 200 suits a day were turned out in one shop.

Pickets on the Job

Judge Pam, meanwhile, again postponed the rendering of his decision on the bill of the International for an injunction to restrain the strikers from picketing. Pam has had the case under advisement and is expected to rule this morning on the constitutionality of the Illinois anti-injunction law which the company's attorneys charge is unconstitutional.

There were even less scabs at work yesterday. A half dozen of them did not return to work, having been persuaded the night gefore to drop out.

Strikebreakers Get Shivers

There were only three button hole makers in the entire plant yesterday, the DAILY WORKER learns. These three are scared to death. They are "stalling" on the boss, they admitted. One of the scabs said, "Now they are giving us good pay, but when the strike is over they will put us on piece work so we will save our strength for that." It did not enter his head that organization prevented such slave driving conditions, he being a "hundred per cent American" strikebreaker.

Give Out Vouchers

At the strike meeting yesterday the vouchers for the strike benefits were distributed, strikers with dependents receiving $12.00 and those without $8.00. The strike fund of the Chicago Amalgamated is sufficing to pay these benefits, and the union has not found it necessary to call on the New York office for aid.

Speaking of the right of the workers to strike I. Rothbart, business agent of the pantsmakers, told the strikers that the International was NEWARK, N. J., July 31.—Rev. R. They were at once taken into custody on a warrant charging them with violation of the Mann white slave act.

STRIKING FRENCH BANK EMPLOYES FIGHT POLICE ON STREETS OF PARIS

PARIS, France, July 31.—Street fighting between the striking bank employes and the police, who have been called out by the large institutions thruout France, again has taken place here.

Practically all of the large staff of employes at the Credit Lyonnais, totaling 5,000, remained away from work. The Banque Nationale de Credit, and the Comptoir National d'Escompte are also tied up as the result of the general strike of the bank employes thruout France.

Profiteers Seeking Truce in the Face of Civil War

With the general strike of 1,200,000 British coal miners temporarily suspended by an eleventh-hour surrender of the mine barons, who were forced to withdraw their posted notices of a wage cut of 20 per cent and longer hours of labor, still the situation of European capitalism confronts continual crises of class war.

The aristocratic "Court of Inquiry" set up by the British government declares that the coal mining question is "insoluble"—which it is if private capitalist ownership is to continue. "Nationalization" is the answer given by the British miners and sooner or later this will be forced by the miners' union in the face of all opposition.

Altho a continued profit taking for the owners is impossible if the miners are to evade mass starvation and incredible oppression—this collapse of capitalist production has not led the mine owners to turn over their mines peaceably and without resistance. It has merely brought England to the brink of civil war.

Similar situations face the miners of the whole world—except Soviet Russia. German miners are desperate under the tyranny of the Dawes Plan, 74,000 working under the league of nations in the Saar Basin are on strike. French coal miners have already taken a strike vote, and in American mine districts indescribable suffering exists among the coal miners with an anthracite strike in prospect Sept. 1.

Symbolic of capitalist contradictions as a whole is the fact that over the whole world the miners, who are among the most necessary, hard worked and underpaid of workers, engaged in dirty and dangerous employment are literally starving with inadequate wages or complete unemployment while the coal mine owners are living in luxury.

STRIKE ORDER SUSPENDED IN GREAT BRITAIN

Operators Surrender at Eleventh Hour

(Special to The Daily Worker)

LONDON, July 31.—Britain's coal strike which treatened to assume the proportions of industrial civil war was averted at the eleventh hour today but only temporarily.

The miner owners agreed to withdraw for two weeks their notice for a 20 per cent wage cut, longer hours and a cancelling of the present wage agreement as from midnight tonight, on this basis the miners' executives telegraphed their district organizations to continue working the mines.

"Notices suspended, continue work" was the laconic message which went out in all directions from union headquarters and marked the end, at least temporarily, of the threatened industrial tie-up of England.

It is understood mine owners withdrew their notice suspending the existing wage agreement only on a promise that the coal industry would be subsidized by the government to the extent of $50,000,000 to help maintain their present profit rate until next spring.

Later Cook declared. "It is now too late to prevent stoppage of work by miners in the day shift who come up out of the mines at 2 o'clock this afternoon and brought their tools with them."

Premier Baldwin's secretary announced that a provisional settlement of the coal strike had been reached. He said the notices suspending the present wage agreement had been withdrawn for two weeks from midnight tonight subject to confirmation of this agreement by the coal miners' district organizations.

While the general strike order is off, there are 40,000 anthracite miners striking in Wales, and altho little appears in the London papers, the strike is being waged with unprecedented bitterness. The whole anthracite district of England is completely tied up.

Miners Raid Welsh Collieries.

Six collieries at Tirydail, Emlyn, Daron, Rhos, Pantyffon and Wernos were raided by miners singing the "Red Flag", who ran the officials off the premises with shotguns and cut all telegraph and telephone wires.

The strike started over the discharge of William Wilson, a local leader of the miners, whom the bosses tried to suppress by forcing him to move from

CONFLICT OF MINE WORKERS OF WORLD TOLD IN SUMMARY

The coal operators of Great Britain surrendered a few hours before the strike began—agreeing to withdraw their notices of wage cut of 20 per cent and longer hours of labor. Union halts strike action of 1,200,000 miners.

Government subsidy of $50,000,000 reported to be given to owners in order that their profits may not suffer by continuing present scale. A. J. Cook, Communist secretary of the British Miners' Federation, says that strike is only postponed.

French coal miners, in resentment of continued increase of cost of living and continued depreciation of the franc, have voted to strike work in northern France.

Miners of the Saar Basin, striking against wage rates of the league of natoins administration because of French franc depreciation, struck Monday last 74,000 strong.

In Germany, the Ruhr district alone has 70,000 unemployed miners, with unemployment thruout Germany combined with an attack on wages and hours under the Dawes plan. Miners' conference at Berlin announces a policy of struggle against long hours, and full support of the British miners.

In America the non-union mines are winning the union, supplying 70 per cent of the bituminous coal to the union fields 30 per cent. Of the "200,000 surplus miners" the elimination is being made of the union men from the industry. Strike of 150,000 anthracite miners is threatened on September 1.

Brookhart-Steck Contest Close

WASHINGTON, D C., July 31.—The Brookhart-Steck contest for the senate seat now occupied by Senator Brookhart of Iowa narrowed down today to where it hinges on a decision by the senate elections committee as to the legality of slightly more than 1,300 votes.

These votes have been challenged—about 1,000 of them, claimed by Brookhart and challenged by Steck, and approximately 300 claimed by Steck and challenged by Brookhart.

GERMAN MINE CRISIS GRIPS RUHR REGION

Miners' Union Begins to Plan Fight

(Special to The Daily Worker)

BERLIN, Germany, July 31—The coal industry of all Europe is in a critical condition. Germany is perhaps the worst of all. Wage reductions are threatened. Unemployment is increasing.

Yesterday the German Miners' Union met in Berlin and pledged their uttermost support to the British miners. They protested to the government against the high taxes against their wages, the tariff policy which keeps the cost of living going up, and they planned to refuse to work—which means to strike—against overtime.

Ruhr Paralyzed.

The Ruhr is paralysed. Small towns are deserted. Wittennam has lost 92 per cent of its population, Hattingen 52 per cent. "Over-production is given as the cause. The inflation period sent nearly 200,000 new workers into the mines. Nearly 8,000,000 tons of coal lie at the pit heads, unable to be sold, tho the owners say they have reduced prices for export from $3.57 to $2.61 per ton, the cost of mining, according to their figures.

A special commission of inquiry is appointed, but the question is regarded as "insoluble." The mine owners want an advance of 10 per cent on mined coal valued at $35,700,000, and a loan of $3,570,000. The Reichsbank opposes the loan.

Communists Have Solution.

Meanwhile the Communists, the strongest party in the Ruhr, demand a 25 per cent wage increase and nationalization of the mines with workers' control of production.

FRENCH COMMUNISTS INDICTED FOR OPPOSITION TO RIFFIAN CAMPAIGN

PARIS, July 31.—Formal charges of sedition were lodged against Communist deputy Doriot and the members of the "Committee of Action Against the Moroccan War" by the French government.

Doriot and his comrades were specifically charged with inciting the French soldiers in Morocco to mutiny and to fraternize with Abd-el-Krim's tribesmen.

QUEER CREW OF SCABS ARRIVE IN VICTORIA

Czarist Officers Toil in the Stokehold

VICTORIA, B. C. July 31.—The Empress of Asia arrived here recently from the Orient with the queerest collection of stokers than ever handled a slice bar, and a weird assortment of scabs from the dives of Hong Kong.

Most of the scabby stokers were formerly high officers in the Czar's army. Today they are picking the lice off themselves in the gutters of Oriental cities or else performing any filthy job that the older professional human vermin turn down.

In return for their strikebreaking work on the Empress of Russia, the steamship company hired a Russian general and his wife to give the scabs a send off. The grimy scabs were allowed to kiss the lady's hand. But, they looked as if they would rather be given the keys to the red light district.

Several workers gathered to have a good look at the ex-officers who were kicked out of Russia by the Red Army.

The Chinese Rebel

While the white guard scabs were examining the anatomy of lady something or other, another scene was being enacted in one of the berths where a Chinese sailor was held prisoner on a charge of being an agitator. The Chinaman was branding the Czarist scabs as "worms and vermin." The prisoner managed to make his voice heard thru the port hole of the berth. He shouted that it was all the same the world over, the bigger the company the less money they pay and the worse the conditions they impose on their slaves.

Victoria workers commented on the difference between the militancy of the working class in the land of the rising sun and the attitude of these sycophants of a decayed master class.

Will Get Order of Boot

But the worst was yet to come. Ten of those white guardist scabs ran away, from the ship in Vancouver and the entire police force, mounted and on foot is chasing them. When they are caught, instead of being allowed to kiss a female parasite's paw, they will be introduced to a boot in the posterior. This is the way such lice are usually treated by the master class, and it serves them right.

Perhaps the "saviors of civilization from Bolshevism" were not satisfied with kissing a lady's hand, as a reward for their scabbery. A rape or two would be more in their line.

THOUSANDS EXPECTED AT NEXT SUNDAY'S COMMUNIST PRESS PICNIC AT RIVERVIEW PARK

Final arrangements for the fourth annual workers' press picnic to be held next Sunday in Riverview Park, are now complete and nothing is left undone to make the affair the greatest success of its kind held under the auspices of the Workers Party in Chicago.

Thousands of workers who are not members of the Workers Party read the Communist press. Those workers realize the value of the Communist papers and are willing to support it. Because of that, thousands outside of the membership of the party are expected at next Sunday's picnic. Where there are crowds there is usually fun.

Next Sunday's picnic will be a rendesvous for radicals who do not often have the chance to come together and talk informally over current events. There are reports that a Soviet republic will be declared in Canton, China, tomorrow. This will bring big headlines in the newspapers. It may bring a big war. Perhaps the capitalist powers will protest against the formation of another Soviet republic in China, despite their devotion to the "right of self-determination."

So you see this picnic is not taking place at a slepey historical moment. Current history is throbbing with life. Why should we not be awake? And why should we not be on the job, raising money to keep our press alive, so that the truth about those great world happenings will be brought to the senses of the American working class?

Hear About Labor Movement.

It will not be all play and no work at the picnic tho the work will be interesting as well as instructive, and not onerous. The hardest work our guests will have is spending their money. That comes easy to some, to others it comes hard, particularly to those who haven't any. But how anybody can refrain from loosening up under the influence of oratory, music, singing, games, and all-around good cheer, is beyond my comprehension.

As for speaking! William Z. Foster, chairman of the Workers' (Communist) Party, will explain the latest developments in the struggles of the workers against the exploiters, nationally and internationally. Ella Reeve Bloor, who has just hiked her way across the United States and is now looking for new worlds to conquer, will tell of her adventure on the road, and how easy it is for anybody who is not deaf, dumb, blind and paralized to get subs for the DAILY WORKER.

Negro Speaker.

H. V. Philips, organizer of the American Negro Labor Congress, will tell of the phenomenal success which has crowned the efforts of the Negro radicals to unite the Negro masses against the persecution and exploitation of the white capitalists and their labor lackeys.

William F. Dunne, editor of the DAILY WORKER, will preside. The speaking program could hardly be improved on, and those who want to enjoy a forensic treat will not be disappointed.

One of the best orchestras in town is engaged to supply the music. The grove is conveniently located at Belmont and Western avenues. Admission is only 50 cents. Purchase your tickets now, either at the office of the DAILY WORKER or at the Workers Party local office, 19 South Lincoln St.

precariously with capitalist jackals baring their fangs against it on all sides. Today prosperity is marching along in Russia and no doubt the eyes of the exploited British working class are turned to the east and perhaps they are making up their minds, that after all the empire holds out no further hope for them. Let us hope so.

THE Milwaukee Leader, not having anything good to say about William Jennings Bryan, decided that a policy of silence was preferrable to risking the wrath of those babbits who believe no ill should be spoken of the dead unless the dead happen to be revolutionary. But the Leader was born under a lucky star, says John M. Work, and the opportunity to join the Bryan chorus was presented when the London Times took a stab at the dead revivalist for his opposition to the United States' extrance into the world war.

THE Milwaukee Leader admits with the London Times, that "Bryan's stand on the world war, especially after our (emphasis ours—T. J. O'F.) country got into the war was not admirable." That is, Bryan was not as enthusiastic about the war as Victor Berger, who contributed a couple of his relatives to the crusade for democracy. But of course, that is something for Americans to criticise him for. What right has a British foreigner to butt in and criticise one of our great men? This is the Milwaukee Leader—a socialist paper!

able to construct their beautiful building because of the profits made from the employes. "They turned that money made from your work into cement," he said. "The union expresses the desire of the employes for a decent living."

Samuel Smith, business agent in the Kuppenheimer shop, said that this strike is as important as the 1910 strike. "Then we were building the Amalgamated, now we are fighting to maintain our strong organization," he said.

Cowardly Deals Fail

The Amalgamated will follow the International to Moline and Rock Island if they try to carry out their bluff of taking over the Boone Woolen mills there. These mills are under a receivership, and the consent of the received would have to be secured if the plant were taken over.

The International has from the start played the cowardly role of spreading rumors and of running to the police and courts in futile attempts to break the solidarity of the strikers. First they used the method of police violence, and when that failed they ran for an injunction.

They made a deal with the United Garment Workers, affiliated with the American Federation of Labor, to secure scabs, but that move also failed to produce suits. Now they are spreading rumors of a move to Rock Island, but this will not break the ranks of the strikers.

pit to another. All miners quit instantly when his discharge was ordered and soon the whole field was involved, the second largest anthracite field of the world.

"Red Propaganda"—As Usual.

Tho the capitalist press makes their usual charges of "red propaganda," one can see that the Welsh miners, living in wretched shacks, toiling at hard and dangerous labor for less than $15 a week, do not need any propaganda more than the knowledge that most of the mines they work in is owned by the Duke of Northumberland, who is one of the richest nobles of England.

'NO PROGRESS' LEWIS REPORTS AFTER 3 WEEKS

Anthracite Miners May Strike About Sept. 1

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., July 31.—Fist announcement that "No progress of any character" has been made in the joint negotiations of anthracite operators and miners to avert a hard coal strike September 1 was made this afternoon by John L. Lewis, international president of the United Mine Workers of America.

The negotiations have been under way here since July 9. Little has been done eccept to enjoy the luxurious hotel and the sight of bathing beauties along the famous board walk.

"It is regrettable," said Lewis, "that no progress of any character has been made by the conference.

"The operators occupy their time-honored position of denying everything and yielding nothing. They continue to mouth their ancient phrases about wage reduction and arbitration.

"It is obvious to everyone that they have no intention of arriving at settlement before the present contract expires."

The statement of Lewis was taken as virtual admission that the controversy is developing a situation that may result in federal intervention.

FEINBERG 'FELT SICK', PERLSTEIN WAS 'OBSTRUCTED'

So Says Sigman in "Official Reasons"

NEW YORK CITY, July 31.—According to the statement appearing in Women's Wear—the organ of the garment manufacturers in the New York market—Morris Sigman, president of the International Ladies' Garment Workers' Union, has assumed managership of the joint board and will be "assisted" by a committee of the general executive board, including J. Breslau, S. Ninfo, J. Halpern and Dubinsky, together with as many other vice-presidents of the I. L. G. W. U., as Sigman may call in.

The manufacturers' paper, which states that "the latest information is that Feinberg and Perlstein will retain their posts as vice-presidents in the Intrenational," gives the reasons for the resignations of these two worthies from the joint board.

Feinberg "Felt Sick."

"Officially," says Woman's Wear, the reasons given for Feinberg's resignation that "for several months he has felt the rapid approach of physical exhaustion to the pressure of work connected with both his office and his appearance before the special mediation commission."

Also, says the paper, "He did not wish to feel that his retention in office would in any way hinder the union in its fight on the Communistic elements within the union."

"The reason given," says the bosses' paper, "for Mr. Perlstein's resignation, is that he felt that he could not get the necessary co-operation within the union in carrying on his work. He felt that he had been obstructed in the work he set out to do when he took over office in the joint board."

Feinberg and Perlstein White Elephants.

Sigman is said to have replied, when asked what connection there was between the demands of the left wing membership and the resignations of the two joint board officers, that "the only connection is that the fight against the Communists will now be carried on even more vigorously."

How either Feinberg or Perlstein was previously preventing this desire of Sigman, Czar Sigman failed to say. But Sigman announced that meeting of the new joint board with himself in command will take place at once to consider the further measures against the left wing, and a statement may soon be issued as to what this meeting of the joint board decides.

French Imperialism Picks Socialist for Outpost of the Empire in the Orient

By J. LOUIS ENGDAHL.

TODAY, Alexander Varenne, "socialist," is appointed by the French empire to the post of governor-general of French Indo-China, as French Communists are being indicted for warring on French imperialism in Africa.

It is declared that Leon Blum, the "socialist" parliamentary leader, is very angry, declaring that Varenne must either quit the party or refuse the office. But such anger is always short-lived. Greater crimes have been committed by the "socialist" against the workers in aid of labor's class enemy.

The French workers and peasants will refuse to distinguish as between Blum and other "socialists" in the French chamber of deputies supporting the war against the natives of North Africa, for instance, and Varenne, one of their number, accepting a lackey's job in Asia at the hands of the same imperialists who are warring against the Riffs. They cannot but look upon them all as agents of labor's enemies.

• • • •

Indo-China is a strategic outpost of French imperialism in the Orient, especially in view of the developing Chinese situation. It is within striking distance of Canton, where the revolutionists of South China have established themselves. It was the Yunnanese, from the neighboring Chinese province of Yunnan who were the catspaws of the French in their efforts to seize Canton, under cover of the crisis developing in the north following the murder of striking workers at Shanghai. But these French mercenaries were decisively crushed by the Cantonese troops, the fighting arm of the Kuomintang, organized by Sun Yat Sen.

• • • •

The appointment of the "socialist," Varenne, to his Asiatic post indicates that French imperialism is planning new maneuvers.

With the aid of the French "socialist" party, it is carrying European capitalist "civilization," with bayonets, poison gas, air attacks and other weapons of modern warfare to the defenseless men, women and children of the Riff. But its attack has met with signal rebuffs.

This same imperialism will try to tell the workers and peasants of France that it is carrying "civilizaiton" to the "barbarous" peoples of Indo-China and other Asiatic dependencies under the direction of its "socialist" governor-general. But it will fail. The French masses will know it for the same murderous exploitation.

If the "socialist" party in the United States were a power, which it never will be, it is as if Morris Hillquit got "open shop" General Leonard Wood's post as taskmaster over the Philippines, and the "socialist" congressman, Victor L. Berger were placed in charge of Wall Street's interests and the sugar trust's affairs in prostrate Porto Rico. This new face of the French "socialist" party, that joined on the imperialist side of the world war, that has helped establish the Versailles peace, and backs the Dawes plan, should prove interesting to workers everywhere, as typifying in all nations "socialist" betrayal of the workers' cause.

Varenne's appointment will have one salutary effect. It will expose clearly to subject peoples the colonial policy of the whole Second (Socialist) International. It will prove more than ever to oppressed peoples everywhere that their only reliance is in the Communist International and in the Union of Soviet Republics.

It was to this MacDonald that the Chinese workers appealed when British guns were shooting them down in Shanghai's streets. But they appealed in vain until they made their grievances plain to the masses of labor in the British Isles.

Varenne's appointment will one salutary effect. It will expose clearly to subject peoples the colonial policy of the whole Second (Socialist) International. It will prove more than ever to oppressed peoples everywhere that their only reliance is in the Communist International and in the Union of Soviet

The rise of French imperialism in the Far East, that has brought more than 17 millions of colonial slaves under its lash in Indo-China alone, seems near its zenith, even with "socialist" aid.

Out of the north comes the liberating power of the proletarian dictatorship that spells disaster and defeat for all imperialist aggressions.

General Strike of Building Trades at East Liverpool, Ohio

Mother Bloor gave the strikers the DAILY WORKER for dsitribution and to aid in welding the ranks of the men on strike.

Last night Mother Bloor addressed a body of workers at the Labor Temple, bringing to them the message of trade union unity and struggle against the bosses as voiced by the DAILY WORKER. A good number of subscriptions were given by the workers altho the strikers and other workers from the potteries of this city have been without work for months.

The potteries form the main industry of this city. All have been closed down for some time throwing most of the city's workers out of employment with no prospects in sight for re-opening.

During her stay in this city, Mother Bloor attended the Junior group outing arranged in her honor, and found a growing lot of little rebels of the local workers led by Sarah Verven, organizer, and Mildred Croxall and Mabel Waters, who are among the spirited youngsters giving life to the work.

From this city, two meetings call Mother Bloor to Cleveland from where she leaves to continue her hitch-hiking trip to Steubenville, Ohio, on August 1 and 2, and to the following cities during the coming week: Monday, August 3, Dillonvale, Ohio; Tuesday, August 4, Yorkville, O.; Wednesday, August 6, Neffs, O.; Saturday, August 8, Coshocton, O.

Time of Their Lives

Thirty-five Juniors are having the time of their young lives the first week of the Red Scout Junior Camp at Colman Grove, Elgin, Ill., on the banks of Fox River. They have swimming, eats, and everything in regular camp style. They took a big chance going out without enuf money to run a week, but I am sure every party member his going to chip in just as much as tho their own kids were out there. The Juniors are worth every cent we spend on them.

Greetings to the Junior Scouts! And the Junior Camp! May it grow and become a regular yearly outing for the future leaders of the Communist Party. Make them happy. Give and give now, for 75 are going out to the Junior Camp next week—that is, if you do your share.—Uncle Sam.

TOKIO, July 31.—Formation of a cabinet from members of the Kensoikai party was expected to follow the resignation today of all members of the Kato government after hot tax argument.

HYMAN WINS PHILADELPHIA CLOAK MAKERS

Joint Committee of Action, was introduced.

He spoke much different than the officials that we are used to hearing, who deliver polished speeches but never mean anything. He spoke like a cloakmaker who speaks to cloakmakers about the conditions in his trade and union. It is such as Hyman the Cloak and Dressmakers of the I. L. G. W. U. want leaders of theirs to be, and not $250 a week gentlemen who have already forgotten what a worker looks like.

He said, "In my opinion when the workers of a union elect an officer or executive board and this officer or executive board refuse to carry out the decisions of the workers, then the workers should come and demand that he resign, or that he be removed. But this did not happen.

"The workers did not want these three executive boards of Locals 2, 9 and 22 to be suspended. It was their wishes that we carried out, in spite of the officials of the I. L. G. W. U., and it is for that that we were suspended, not by the members of the I. L. G. W. U. but by executive board that has no members in back of it but is paid by the International to stay in the Joint Board to vote the way the officials of the I. L. G. W. U. want them.

Build the Union by Breaking Machine.

He further pointed out that Perlstein stated that they have an agreement with the bosses, and they will help the bosses by discharging those workers who refuse to carry out the orders of czars of the International, but when they do so, what happens? Every time one of our followers is discharged, not only all the workers of that shop, but workers of many other shops come and picket until the boss is forced to take this worker back. They can see that their threats mean nothing to the workers who now know their power and are going to use it.

When the corrupt machine will be broken, then we will build our union and the cry of the officials of the I. L. G. W. that we are trying to break the union is nothing but so many words, for the members of the International know who are the breakers and who are the builders.

After he finished speaking, he was asked to introduce a resolution by the Philadelphia Cloak and Dressmakers that they pledge full support to the Joint Committee of Action, both moral and financial.

This was passed by everybody standing up, nobody remained seated and amidst great applause the meeting was ended.

Much encouragement was instilled in the workers of the Cloak and Dressmakers of Philadelphia who have already experienced the pogroms that the Sigman machine can make when more than one hundred members of the union were expelled and many taken off their jobs for no more reason than the three locals of New York were suspended.

GOVERNMENT IS AT SERVICE OF STANDARD OIL

U. S. Report Promises To Aid Trust Heads

WASHINGTON, D. C., July 31.—The report just issued by the United States government "Federal Oil Conservation Board" which consists of secretaries Work, Hoover, Weeks and Wilbur, shows that the government's alliance with the Standard oil trust is becoming ever stronger. The report frankly puts the government at the service of the oil trust and promises every assistance to the oil corporations to help in increasing their profits.

A public hearing will be held in Washington," says the government board, in outlining its work, "to which will be invited the presidents of six or eight of the greatest oil corporations in America, and these will be invited to discuss publicly their views."

The purpose of the board is stated to be, "to arrive at a definite and impartial conclusion as to what should or should not be done to enhance the interests of government and industry."

"Data supplied by the industry itself (the corporation heads) is to be studied carefully," we learn, "with a view of reaching a conclusive policy which will tend to stimulate greater prosperity in the industry."

In commenting on the work of the board, Secretary Weeks said: "The oil industry (the corporation owners) has realized that this inquiry by the Federal Oil Conservation Board has been and will continue to be contucted with but one object in view, to arrive at a policy which will be helpful, stimulating, productive of lasting benefits to the govrenment and the industry (owners of the industry) alike."

to all trades, but in many instances seniority rights, working schedules, and rules enjoyed by the workers for many years, are being violated and abolished daily, against which the unions in their present condition are powerless to act. In the last four years a reduction of 297,000 in the total working force on the railroads has taken place, while those remaining on the job are coerced into doing extra work. Both periodic and continued unemployment is crushing great numbers of our members. Of the total of 1,700,000 workers employed on the railroads at the present time, only 700,000 are now affiliated to the 16 standard organizations, leaving the vast majority of 1,000,000 workers in no bona fide unions at all In the face of these facts it cannot be denied by anyone who does not blind himself to the truth that a most critical situation exists in the railroad industry.

Stop Division and Retreat

"This disastrous condition was brot about mainly because of the division in our ranks, the lack of solidarity and co-operation between the different trades and the domination of the unions by a reactionary officialdom which has stubbornly blocked every move forward by the membership to solidify and strnegthen our forces by amalgamation. Against this situation, the railroad workers must rally with all their fighting strength. Already 3,500 local unions of all 16 trades have indorsed amalgamation, together with a considerable number of division, district and system federations. The policy of retreat and surrender to the companies adopted by the officials must be combated with all the power of the membership and turned into a victorious advance. Wages of all trades must be increased, the eight-hour day must be protected, working conditions must be improved, the 1,000,000 unorganized workers must be brot into the unions, the organizations must be governed by a progressive and militant program, and all 16 trades must be amalgamated into one all-powerful fighting industrial union that will be in a position to protect the interests of all railroad workers. This is the task of the railroad amalgamation movement. Until this is done the railroad workers cannot hope for relief from their present predicament.

For a Labor Party of All Unions.

"Another serious contributing factor to our great defeat was the complete failure of the union leadership to realize that our struggles against the railroad companies for better conditions are essentially political struggles. They have continued their alliance with the politicians of the various capitalist parties, thereby sacrificing the interests of the workers. This alliance must be broken and the masses of workers united into a labor party. To further the labor party movement must be one of the principal objects of the militant elements among the railroad workers.

Representation and Finance.

"Yielding to the great demand of the progressive railroad workers all over the country for a conference to consider ways and means of coping with the present situation in the railroad industry, the International committee is hereby calling the Second International Railroad Amalgamation Conference, to take place at the Workers' Lyceum, 2733 Hirsch Blvd., Chicago, Illinois, beginning Saturday, September 12, at 9:00 a. m., and continuing on Sunday, September 13, 1925. All local unions or local and system federations are entitled to two delegates each. Local organizations will issue proper credentials which must be presented by the delegates to the conference, also notify the undersigned as promptly as possible of the election of their delegates. In order to finance the conference, all local lodges are urged to contribute a minimum of $2.00 each to the "Conference Fund." Those organizaitons in a position to contribute a larger sum are requested to do so. Individual contributions also accepted.

Constructive Action.

"This conference will deal constructively with the many problems confronting the railroad workers that require immediate action. In addition to the matter of developing and extending the work of the amalgamation movement, the tentative program to be taken up at the conference is enclosed herewith. This conference must devise a plan of united action on the part of all trades to increase wages and improve working conditions, to rebuild the unions, and to consolidate them as speedily as possible into one mighty organization. The program of the amalgamation movement is an indispensible necessity and the only solution to the railroad workers' problems.

"The Second International Railroad Amalgamation Conference in Chicago will mark the next step on the road to progress of the railroad workers. Elect your delegates! Act on this matter at your next meeting without fail! Send in your contribution to the "Conference Fund!" Come to this conference at all costs!

"Fraternally yours,
"INTERNATIONAL COMMITTEE,
"O. H. WANGERIN, Secretary."

This Second Amalgamation Conference will be the first international meeting since the famous Shopmen's strike of 1922 and 1923 and will consider many other recent developments. Progressive railway workers are still smarting in remembrance of the division in their ranks when seven unions struck and nine remained on the job. They are determined that this sort of thing shall not happen again. They know that no matter what their trade, there is a common interest between all workers in the railroad industry which must find expression in common action on a common program.

Progressives to Write.

Many delegates at the coming conference will also be delegates to the various rail union conventions which follow soon after, and it is expected that a constructive program of action dealing with amalgamation, wages, organization and other vital issues will be shaped up to harmonize the work of the delegates in their union conventions.

In the past it has been shown that the union conventions were cnotrolled by bureaucratic machines, while the progressive delegates, altho working for worthy principles, were not united on the most important issues. The coming conference promises to solidify the progressives of all rail unions so their work will be more effective.

Many Vital Issues.

Amalgamation will be the most important item on the agenda. The continuous decline in membership, disintegration and general retreat of the rail unions must be halted and the slogan raised by the International Committee fought for. Besides a real national labor party, the committee calls for the following:

"Increase in wages for all trades, maintenance of the eight-hour day, against company and dual unions, amalgamation, progressive leadership, every railroad worker a trade unionist.'

SAFE—POWERFUL— 1 ounce bottle for $2.50

Four Out of Five People Have PYORRHEA!

Dental statistics show that four of every five people over 40 years of age—and many younger—have PYORRHEA in some stages.

PYORRHEA is a disease of the gums, caused usually by mechanical injury from lack of function of the teeth or from some other injury, or from irritation from tartar accumulations below the gum line. An invasion of bacteria and germs between the teeth and gums follow, resulting in inflamation, bleeding, and shrinking of the gums—and then come pus pockets and the final loss of the teeth. From the absorbing of poison into the system from pyorrhetic conditions, from veritable wells of poison in the gums, come other serious disorders such as rheumatism, kidney and stomach trouble and even heart disease, besides, doctors say, other serious ailments.

What PYRADIUM Is

It is Genuine RADIUM compounded and held in solution with other well proven Antiseptic, Germicidal, and Healing agents in a powerful, cleansing, Mouth Wash, that gives prompt relief from PYORRHEA and other unhealthy gum and mouth conditions, such as "Trench Mouth". It has been used and tested drastically for five years by laymen and dentists. Names will gladly be furnished of satisfied PYRADIUM users.

Use PYRADIUM at Home

PYRADIUM is a Formula that is used as a Home Treatment for Pyorrhea of any degree—and to prevent and relieve other oral infections, in that it is used as a mouth wash. Simple directions on each bottle.

Dentist Assistance Required

However PYRADIUM does not remove tartar: to do this necessary thing, in the treatment of Pyorrhea, correct any mechanical condition and irregate puss pockets, which work must be done if a permanent cure is to be accomplished, the services of a good dentist is required.

PYRADIUM destroys the germs, soothes, hardens and heals the gums, and tightens and saves the teeth!

MONEY-BACK GUARANTEE

Each bottle of PYRADIUM is absolutely guaranteed to relieve PYORRHEA and if the user is dissatisfied with results, thirty days after and not over sixty days from the termination of its use, upon presentation of this guarantee answered and signed, together with the empty bottle to the druggist from whom it was purchased—or to the RADIUM Remedies COMPANY if purchased direct—the purchase price will be refunded.

Delays are dangerous with PYORRHEA—ask your druggist today and if he does not handle it, write direct, sending your druggists name. Send Money Order, or say, C. O. D.

TEXTILE MILL WORKERS TO OPPOSE CUTS

United Front Meet Is Called for August 4

By TOM BELL.

LAWRENCE, Mass., July 31.—Wage cuts affecting all workers in the woolen mills here have gone into effect. This is the leading woolen city in the country and the wage cuts affect more workers here than in any other textile center. Cuts have taken place in the huge mills of the American Woolen Co., and the Arlington, Kunhardt and Uswoco mills.

Last fall and winter the cotton workers had their wages slashed until today government figures state that the wage for a cotton worker in New England is $17.20 a week. Having reduced the wages of the cotton workers the bosses are now out to cut wages of the woolen workers. Great unrest has been created here by the recent wage cuts.

United Front Meeting August 4.

The United Front Textile Committee, composed of representatives of a few local unions, has taken the initiative in calling a mass meeting of textile workers for August 4, in the Winter Garden Theater to rally the workers for the struggle against wage cuts.

The meeting will be addressed by Tom Bell and John Bellam, and will be devoted to explaining to the textile workers the necessity of a militant program of struggle against the wage cuts, and the need of a general strike of all textile workers against the bosses' plan of crushing down their standard of living.

Little Union Organization.

The United Textile Workers' Union local here is very weak and is run on the basis of "co-operation between capital and labor." The union leaders spend their time hobnobbing with the bosses advocating plans for "industrial peace." There is also a local of the American Federation of Textile Operatives which has confined its activities to the cotton mills. The vast mass of the textile workers are not organized at all.

The textile workers of Lawrence have a militant history, and have struck in the past in face of all the powers of the capitalist state thrown against them. Their history is one of bitter struggle against the bosses. In the past struggles in the textile industry the lead has been supplied by the Lawrence workers. And today it is likely that the Lawrence workers will again show the rest of the textile workers how to fight wage cuts.

Unemployment in Canada

WASHINGTON, D. C., July 31.—The office of the secretary of the Department of Labor reports serious unemployment in Northern Ontario, Canada. The report says: "In sharp contrast to 1924, unemployment this year in Northern Ontario is a very serious problem. A marked lull in construction operations is said to be one of the prime causes of the large surplus of labor."

POLISH ORGANIZATION HOLDS PICNIC FOR THE INTERNATIONAL DEFENSE

The first organization in Chicago to get into action with an affair for the International Labor Defense is the Conference to Aid Political Prisoners in Poland. MIKE GOLD TURNS PEN ON MONKEYS FOR BENEFIT OF LABOR DEFENSE

NEW YORK, July 31.—The main feature of the outing of the International Labor Defense, New York section, on August 23 at Pleasant Bay Park, will be a mock trial exposing the evolution proceedings at Dayton, Tennessee. The skit is being written by Mike Gold and Joe Freeman and promises to be one of the finest things of the season.

"Monkey or Man" will bring the largest crowd that has ever attended an outing in New York. In addition a movie picture will be taken of scenes of the trial and of the entire outing. There will be athletic events and everything to make the outing most enjoyable.

Tickets are 35c and every worker who wishes to do his share in building up the International Labor Defense, for the defense and protection of all workers who are arrested for the expression of opinion and for the acts in the class struggle, would be present.

INTERNATIONAL LABOR DEFENSE TO SET UP LOCAL UNITS ON SEPT. 13

The national office of the International Labor Defense is accumulating more defense cases day by day. In addition to having a number of important deportation and other cases to handle as well as fulfill its obligation to look after the comfort and well being of prisoners and their families, there remains the problem of building up the organization nationally.

The day upon which the local units will be set up is September 13, "Labor Defense Day." In the meantime the work must go on. Here is the way contributions came to the office between the sixth and sixteenth of July:

CATHOLIC UNION RAISES FUND TO ATTACK RUSSIA

Priest to Spy on Soviet Government

NEW YORK, July 31.—A letter sent out by the Catholic Union, 39 West 56th street, begs funds from United States Catholics with which to fight the Soviet Union, and in return for money promises to give "rich spiritual advantages."

The letter, which has been broadcast thruout the country, states, "We are striving to bring back into the One True Fold over 120,000,000 members of the Eastern Orthodox Church, who now live amidst the chaos of Russia, the same sublime happiness that is yours as a faithful member of our Holy Catholic Church."

This counter-revolutionary organization, which has tried to carry on anti-Soviet propaganda in Russia, then goes to make a plea for money. The letter is signed by "Rev. Joseph Kreuter, executive secretary."

"I am still anxiously waiting to hear from you, dear Friend in Christ," Kreuter says. "Several people have written that they can't spare $10.00 for the Catholic Union. But the ten dollars for which we ask need not be paid all at once.

"Every mite will help. Every cent that you can spare is needed so badly right now that we may train priests to work among our separated brethren. In the name of our separated brethren of Russia and the Near East, I am awaiting your answer."

This letter, which asks for the pennies of the unemployed and toiling masses who are living in such "sublime happiness" that they havent ten dollars to their name, exposes the anti-Soviet activity of the Catholic church which plans to send trained spies, garbed as priests, into Soviet Russia.

Engels on Britain Today

$290,000,000 for new warships has been appropriated by the British government as the greatest crisis in its career approaches.

Even Premier Baldwin, hardboiled tory tho he is, was seemingly afraid to make the demand for this huge sum during the prevailing crisis, but the admiralty and the admirals delivered an ultimatum—either the appropriation would be made and work on more warships begun or they would resign.

The Baldwin cabinet agreed with the war lords.

Here is a classic example of the role the state—the agency of the capitalist class for the suppression of the masses.

Said Frederick Engels:

> The second distinguishing feature (of class society) is the establishment of a public power which is no longer identical with the population and which is organized as an armed force. This distinct public power is necessary, because of self-acting armed organization of the population has become impossible with the break-up of society into classes . . . .

The need of the British masses is for bread, not for battleships, but the ruling class and the "special bodies of armed men" upon whom it depends wants more weapons of warfare—and get them.

Lloyd George and Ramsay MacDonald join in futile opposition to the increase in armaments, but they do not challenge the capitalist state because they are part of it.

It is symptomatic of the crisis within capitalist society that the British militarists hold the upper hand and grab millions for the navy when the whole fabric of British industry is being ripped and torn by the greatest conflict in its history.

Engels might have been writing of Europe today when he said:

> The above-mentioned public force increases with the intensification of class antagonism within the state, and with the growth in size and population of the adjacent states. One has but to glance at present day Europe in which the class struggle and rivalry in conquests have screwed up that public force to such a pitch that it threatens to swallow up the whole of society and even the state itself . . . . .

Who can look with undrestanding gaze at Europe today without realizing that the armed forces of the great states have become more and more separated from the masses of the population until the ruling class can no longer count on loyalty to its instruments from the masses?

The state, synonymous with its "special bodies of armed men," appears openly as the enemy of the masses.

This heralds the beginning of great mass movements like that now gaining impetus in England and which can end only in revolution.

The Coal Crisis and the Need for Unity

In the coal industry the lines are being drawn for a great struggle. There seems to be little doubt that a strike will occur this fall in the anthracite regions upon the expiraiton of the agreement unless the coal barons make substantial concessions to the miners. The union officials have been forced by rank and file pressure to adopt a more militant attitude than they have shown in recent years and about the militancy of the coal diggers themselves there is no question.

In the soft coal fields the constant violations of the agreement by the bosses have practically wiped out all semblance of a contract and standard wage scale; the shutdown policy used by the coal barons has proved to the miners that they must either fight or surrender and they have no intention of surrendering.

There are greater evidences of international unity among the coal miners than ever before and a crisis exists in coal in England, Belgium, France, Germany and America which tends to bring closer the great unions of coal miners in all these countries.

Quite aside from the great importance to the American labor movement of the impending struggle of the United Mine Workers, the larest union in the American Federaiton of Labor, is the patent fact that the coal miners in all the capitalist countries need the closest kind of international organization.

Capitalist industry is so closely linked together today that strikebreaking has become an international enterprise. Coal from America must not be used to break the strike of British miners nor must coal from the Rhur break the strike of American miners.

The officialdom of the American unions opposed world trade union unity but the mass of organized workers will soon, thru terrible pressure from the capitalists listen more and more readily to the left wing of the labor movement when calls upon them for unity from below and in spite of the sabotage of capitalism's agents in the unions.

The Press Picnic

The workers of Chicago are cordially invited to the fourth annual workers' press picnic, which will be held tomorrow in Riverview Park. Communist papers depend on the nickels and dimes of the working class for its existenc.e The class that it serves must support it.

Therefore we hope that tomorrow's affair will be patronized by those who realize the value that the DAILY WORKER and other Communist papers are rendering to the working class movement.

Another Soviet Republic about to be proclaimed! This kind of thing is getting monotonous for the capitalists and just about as comforting as the ticking of a clock to the condemned man.

Julius Rosenwald has given more than two millon dollars to Negro charities, we are told. Where did he get the money? Very likely by exploiting Negro workers; most certainly by robbing white workers.

Australian capitalist politicians are entertaining the officers of the American fleet. But the Australian workers don't seem to be so enthusastic. There's a reason.

Communist Agrarian Program and Policies

The following resolution was unanimously adopted by the Parity Commission for submission to the National Convention of the Workers (Communist) Party to be held August 21:

1. The more deeply our Party is becoming Bolshevised, the clearer becomes its conceptions on the urgent necessity of an agrarian program and policies and systematic Communist work on the agrarian field. The Party must take closely to its heart and to its understanding the lesson given by the last plenum of the Communist International: that an under-estimation of the agrarian question by a Communist Party is fatal for the proletarian struggle for power.

2. One of the effective ways of Bolshevizing our Party is to increase considerably our interest and Communist activities in the Party's agricultural work. We may subdivide our agricultural campaign into two phases:

First—to draw the rural proletariat which is part of the working class into active participation in the class struggle side by side with the city proletariat against the bourgeoisie. This is part of the process of the unification of the working class.

Second—to separate from the bourgeoisie and neutralize and to win over to revolutionary proletarian influence and leadership the middle farmers, the poor mortgaged and tenant farmers and the semi-proletarian farming masses.

3. The Communist Party must still overcome certain prejudicies in its ranks in order to intensify and broaden its activities among the agricultural masses.

(a) We must reject categorically and fight energetically against that narrow guild or craft concept of the class struggle in our ranks which is the chief barrier to our approach and application of Communist tactics in our agricultural work.

(b) We must categorically reject the non-Communist and even anti-Communist attitude occasionally manifesting itself in our Party, of disregarding the tremendous significance of the farming masses in the struggle of the proletariat against the big bourgeoisie.

(c) Marx has well said:

"Only if we succeed in moving the peasant masses to a coalition with the proletariat, the proletarian revolution will have obtained a chorus without which its revolutionary solo (song) would become a swan song in all agricultural (peasant) nations."

4. Nearly one-fourth (about ten million people) of those employed in gainful occupations in the United States are engaged in agriculture. Of these about two million and a half are agricultural workers, proletarians of the farms, who have the same interests as the proletariat of the cities and must be made to struggle jointly against the common exploiters.

5. The Communist work among the agricultural masses is especially important for the Workers Party of America because:

(a) Agricultural production constitutes nearly 40 per cent of the total production in the United States.

(b) With the development of the United States as the dominant imperialist power the American colonial domain is growing to gigantic proportions. In those colonies the agricultural masses constitute the bulk of the population. Thus the agricultural question assumes for the American proletariat increasing importance because of its close connection with the colonial question.

(c) Furthermore our bourgeoisie are making strenuous efforts to utilize the present period of temporary improvement of the agricultural condition for establishing their domination over these rural masses at home and mobilizing them against the proletariat.

6. In planning our agricultural work we must recognize the various divisions within the agricultural masses in the United States. We must consider carefully the social composition of the farmers in the United States.

(a) There is a small section of wealthy farmers whose interests are unqualifiedly capitalist.

(b) One sixth of all our farms are mortgaged; that is, about a million and a half.

(c) Seventy per cent of all the improved land in the United States is today operated by tenants.

(d) There are two million agricultural workers. These farm hands are mainly disfranchised, migratory workers whose standard of living is low.

(e) We must take further into account the fact that in the United States except in certain sections of the South, we do not have a big, special land owning class in the European sense. The same bankers and manufacturers who own the mines, factories, railroads and shipping facilities are in the main the owners of the land used by the farmers.

(f) Furthermore, the conditions are such that in many instances farmers are simultaneously farmers and workers, the industrial workers turning to farming for several months of the year.

(g) In the United States, because of the tremendous economic and political power wielded by the huge banking and transportation monopolies and the trusts, there is a far sharper conflict of interests between even the middle farmers and the big bourgeoisie than there is between these farmers and the proletariat.

7 There are in the United States over two million tenant farmers and about one and a half million mortgaged farmers, whose average income is somewhere between seven and ten dollars a week. These two groups of poor farmers, semi-proletarian in their social position and mode of living, are struggling desperately to maintain an existence and are therefore in great need of assistance and cooperation from the city workers in the struggle against capitalist exploitation.

8. Unlike the conditions in some of the agrarian countries of Europe, there is in the United States, with the exception of the South, no large landowning class, no land aristocracy. The class that owns and controls the economic life of the agrarian population are the bankers, grain speculators, mine and railroad magnates, trusts and other capitalist corporations. That is, the same capitalist class that dominates and exploits the workers of the cities. Thus there is a clear community of interest between the working class and the poor farmers for a common struggle against the common enemy.

9. Undoubtedly the severe agricultural crisis of 1920 which produced such an intense ferment in the ranks of the farming masses has abated. The world crop shortage of last year was the principal force for whatever improvement recent months have seen in the lot of the agricultural masses. But it must be pointed out that

(a) Tho the crisis has abated it has not been solved completely. At the lowest point of the recent agricultural depression, which was the worst in the history of the United States, the purchasing power of the farming masses fell to 20 per cent below the pre-war level. Today, despite the much-heralded improvement of the economic conditions of the farming masses, the purchasing power of the agricultural population is still at least 10 per cent below the pre-war level

(b) Besides, the ravages of the last severe agricultural depression have been so sweeping and so deep going that it would take many years of considerable economic improvement for the farming masses to make up for their heavy losses.

(c) The fundamental causes for the agricultural crisis in the United States, a condition which has been and is part of the international agricultural crisis, have not been removed The basic causes for the unsatisfactory economic and social conditions of the farming masses in the United States are to be found in the wide gap, in the deep chasm, between the organization, or rather lack of organization, of agricultural economy on the one hand and the high efficiency of the splendid industrial organization on the other hand. American industrial production is organizationally on a highly social basis. American agricultural economy is still predominantly organized on an individual basis. The dire conditions in which the farming masses have found themselves are to be attributed to the fact that they are compelled to sell their products at a low price and are forced to buy the industrial commodities of the powerful trusts at exorbitant prices.

(d) The disorganization of the agricultural economy in the United States has been further aggravated by the over-development of agricultural production thru stimulation by the temporarily increased demands of the world war; the subsequent reduced post-war purchasing power of many countries and the loss of the markets of other countries, particulularly in Europe; and by the continuous strong support tendered the monopolists against the farming masses by the United States government thru high railroad rates and burdensome taxation.

(e) The basic factors that produced the agrarian crisis in the U. S. in 1920-21 have not been removed. The temporary alleviation of the crisis has been achieved by American capitalism at the cost of expropriating from their land hundreds of thousands of farmers. The impoverishment of the European population, resulting from the decline of capitalism, the emergence of Canada, Argentina and Australia as successful competitors of the U. S. on the agricultural world market and the relative improvement of the European agriculture are creating a permanent critical situation for the agrarian population of the U. S. A new wave of agrarian discontent is now in the making and it is the realization of this fact that makes the capitalists and the government of America pay so much attention to the agrarian problems in the U. S.

10. The burden of taxation is becoming heavier and more unbearable for large sections of the farmers. The American capitalists persist in their policy of shifting the burden ever more to the shoulders of the farmers and workers. Already there is a new campaign on foot to have the coming session of Congress revise the taxation laws still more in the interests of the big capitalists and against the farmers and workers.

11. Marx once daclared, "The changes in the relations between town and country are a sign of changes in the whole epoch."

(a) This truth is born out very vividly and intensely in the United States. The results of the severe agricultural depression are of the greatest significance. The migration of several million farmers from the rural communities into the industrial centers; the expropriation of hundreds of thousands of the exploited farming masses; the proletarianization of hundreds of thousands of poor farmers are only amongst the outstanding manifestations of deep going changes in the class composition of the United States. This process of agricultural expropriation brought about by the "scissors" relationship hastens the tendency towards the concentration of ownership and centralization of operation in agricultural production Thus, the bad economic conditions of the farming masses are further aggravated and their social composition is further undermined and fundamentally changed.

(b) The influx of hundreds of thousands of native elements primarily unskilled into the big basic industries where previously the overwhelming majority were foreign born, is a force hastening the creation of a homogeneous working class in America and consequently aiding the development of class-consciousness in the United States.

12. In the imperialist stage of capitalism the agricultural question is most pressing for the Communist Party working for the establishment of the proletarian dictatorship and the Soviet Republic.

(a) The bourgeoisie at this time are working overtime to create as big and powerful a reserve army against the masses which are being steadily proletarianized. The tactics of the capitalists in this is to count on the conservative character of the farming masses, their individualistic attitude arising out of the conditions and environment of the productive system in which they find themselves.

(b) The bourgeoisie are actively working to win over the broad farming masses as their allies against the proletariat. They are relying on the wealthy conservative farmers to serve as their advance guard to win the farming mass for capitalist reaction.

(c) The imposing question is whether the great bulk of the rural masses will be under proletarian or bourgeois influence and leadership in the gigantic conflicts that are to come in the United States.

(d) The capitalists are following, in the words of Comrade Bucharin, a united front tactic with the wealthy and middle farmers and thru them they are exercising a tremendous political influence over the poor farmers. This capitalistic united front with the farmers operates thru such means as the discriminatory use of credit facilities and the tariff in favor of one group of farmers as against the other, legislative policies of the same nature, etc. All these means are calculated to win the wealthy and middle farmers for capitalism and against the workers.

13. The American bourgeoisie are energetically working during this period of the abatement of the severe agricultural crisis to win over the rural masses. Our capitalists are talking of making concessions to the farming masses. They are talking of sundry relief measures by means of which they hope to put the farming masses in their camp and slightly to improve the rural economic situation.

(a) The bourgeoisie of the United States, as well as in every other country, approach the farming masses with concrete proposals, with specific but actually worthless concessions in order to establish their hegemony over these masses.

14. To counteract these tactics of the capitalists, the Communists must pursue a united front policy with the poor farmers to definitely win them over to a joint struggle with the working class against capitalism and to neutralize the middle farmer. The Agrarian Thesis of the last plenum of the Communist International lays down clear and definite lines for such a united front policy.

15. There are in the United States numerous farmers' organizations, cooperatives, unions, semi-political and political organizations. Most of these organizations are mixed in their social composition (rich, middle and poor farmers), with the wealthy farmers controlling the organizations. Some of these organizations, such as the Western Progressive Farmers, the Farmers' Unions, farmer-labor groups, and numerous cooperatives, are predominantly composed of poor farmers. It is thru these and similar organizations that the Workers Party must strive to establish a united front with the poor farmers for the purpose of winning them away from the capitalists and the rich farmers and for united action with the workers thru an alliance with the Labor Party.

16. In order to prepare the basis for our united front policies with the poor farmers, the Workers Party must first of all establish a firm base among the agricultural workers. We must organize branches of the Party of the class-conscious agricultural workers. We must assist and cooperate with the I. W. W. and other working class elements in the organization and strengthening of unions of agricultural workers. At the same time, we shall penetrate the existing organizations of farmers for the purpose of crystallizing within them a left-wing of poor farmers which eventually shall function independently from the rich and middle farmers and in alliance with the agricultural and industrial workers.

17 The first prerequisite for the carrying out of these policies is a clear, concrete and practical program of demands for the agricultural workers and poor farmers. Also the establishment of a well-organized agrarian department and an agrarian press.

18. The Workers Party shall actively support and fight for the demands of the agricultural workers dealing with minimum wages, hours, and conditions of labor, food, lodging, etc. The Workers Party shall strive to develop United Front action with the I. W. W. and other labor organisations for the following demands:

(a) These organized agricultural proletarians should be connected with the labor union movement of the industrial proletariat. Being real proletarians, these rural workers form the Party's firmest base in the ranks of the farming masses.

(b) The right of the unions to maintain employment bureaus in every agricultural center. Any interference with these employment bureaus by the American Legion, ku klux klan, or any other capitalist agency shall be considered a criminal offense and punished accordingly.

(c) The immediate repeal of the state vagrancy laws in all states. No persecution of migratory workers by arrests, compulsion to leave the community, or otherwise.

(d) Children of employed adults shall not be required to work. Children of school age shall not be permitted to work.

(e) The migratory workers shall not be denied the rights of citizenship.

19. The Workers Party shall develop united front action with the poor farmers along the line of the following demand:

(a) Absolute and unconditional opposition to imperialist wars, to military preparations and to militaristic propaganda.

20. The Workers Party shall support by all possible means the program and activities of the International Peasants' Council and shall strive to work for the affiliation of American farmers' organizations with the I. P. C.

21. The convention instructs the incoming Central Executive Committee to appoint a commission to study the agricultural question to propose a complete agrarian program.

FURTHER INSTRUCTIONS REGARDING THE PARTY'S NATIONAL CONVENTION

The postcriptum to the Call for the National Convention of the Workers (Communist) Party published in last Monday's DAILY WORKER called attention to the fact that the question of representation of the Young Workers League in the city and district conventions of the party was still to be decided as well as the question whether Chester, Pa. should be affiliated with the Philadelphia City Central Committee.

These questions have now been taken up and the following decision rendered by the Central Executive Committee:

1. That the Young Workers League city organizations shall be entitled to one delegate in the city conventions of the Party.

2. That the Young Workers League district organizations shall be entitled to one delegate in the district conventions of the Party.

3. The Party will send three delegates to the city and district conventions of the Young Workers League.

The provisions of the Party constitution covering the election of Young Worker League delegates to Party conventions as adopted by the last convention are as follows:

(a) City organization of the Young Workers League shall be represented in city conventions thru delegates elected by the City Central Committee of the Young Workers League the apportionment to be made by the party organization. Where only one branch of the Young Workers League exists that branch shall elect the representatives.

(b) District organizations of the Young Workers Yeague shall be represented in the District Conventions of the Party thru representatives appointed by the District Committee of the Young Workers League. No branches of city organization shall have delegates in the District Convention, except in such instances where no District organization of the Young Workers League exists. In these cases the City Executive Committee of the City Central Committee of the largest Young Workers League city organization in the district shall elect the delegates apportioned to the Party District Convention.

4. That the branches of Chester shall be affiliated with Philadelphia City Central Committee and send delegates to the Philadelphia city convention.

Fraternally yours,
C. E. Ruthenberg,
Executive Secretary

PARASITE'S WEDDING GETS MUCH PUBLICITY, WORKERS MUST RELY ON AND BUILD THEIR OWN PRESS

By GERTRUDE PINCIES
(Worker Correspondent)

NEW YORK, July 31.—Reading the Evening Journal, I came across a very interesting news item. A great event has happened amongst the royal 400. Vanderbilt's daughter got married.

The evening Journal devotes an entire page to this great event. I wonder how much publicity the slaving working class gets for toiling and creating the paradise for the parasitic Vanderbilts. The capitalistic press serves the bourgeois lords well.

The parasites who live on the blood and flesh of the exploited working class have built up a powerful press, that serves them well.

We, the toiling masses, must work to build up our own press to represent our life and our struggles. The workers must unite in the Communist ranks.

Let us build up our own organ, the DAILY WORKER.

State Appropriation for Tornado Area in Illinois Too Small

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., July 31—Indication that the state will use every cent of the $275,000 appropriated to repair 17 school buildings in the Tornado area of Southern Illinois, were given here today by Senator Richard R. Meents, of Ashkum, chairman of the executive committee that has just completed a tour of the region.

YELLOW "FORWARD" SECRETARY, CAP MANUFACTURER, CUTS EMPLOYES' PAY WHEN POWER STOPS; MEN PROTEST

Employes of the Alma Headwear company, 419 S. Wells St., of which A. Galitzsky, secretary of the Chicago Forward Association, publishers of the "socialist" Jewish newspaper, is part owner, are engaged in a dispute with the "socialist" owner because of his slave driving methods.

Recently the power in the plant was out of order for forty minutes, and Galitzsky, in true "socialist' style, deducted the time from the wages of the seven employes, who are members of the Capmakers' Union, located at 1145 Blue Island Avenue.

"My firm is a member of the Cap Manufacturers' association," Galitzsky admitted to the DAILY WORKER. "When the power stopped I told the men they could work an extra hour the next day or have the time deducted from their pay."

Galitzsky admitted that there was "some sort of a dispute," but denied there was danger of a strike. The union has not yet adjusted the dispute with the "socialist" manufacturer, it is learned.

The Stabilization of Capitalism

The Second (Socialist) International and Ourselves.

By N. BUCHARIN.

Below we publish from Comrade's Bucharin's report on "The Present Situation and the Policy of the Party," at the Sixth Union Conference of the Russian Leninist Young Communist League, the introductory section, which deals with the international situation.

IN analyzing the international situation, I must dwell on the question of the stabilization of capitalism.

First of all we must explain where we differ from all theoreticians, economists and politicians of the Second Socialist International. When they speak of the stabilization of capitalism (Hilferding and many who blindly follow him in Germany, Austria, etc., are typical in this respect) they describe the present period more or less as follows: the revolution which resulted from the war is, in its nature, no proletarian revolution and is altogether a peculiar kind of revolution. It is, as the menshevik Dan says, a military species of revolution. Now the excitement has subsided; Russia which has lived thru the military revolution, is being reestablished, according to their opinion, on the basis of bourgeois conditions, and a new cycle of sounder capitalist development is beginning. In the most important capitalist countries, things are again running on smooth lines capitalism is flourishing once more the curve of capitalist development is escending and capitalism is assuming new forms.

HILFERDING maintains that the Marxist assumption that the development of capitalism ~~is~~ inevitably accompanied by shedding of blood, should be done away with and that peaceful forms of understanding between the great powers are possible.

Thus we are entering on a great period of world history with a much greater advance and much wider development of capitalist conditions than before the war. This is the theoretical conception which the theoreticians of the Second International connect with the idea of the stabilization of capitalism.

When we speak of the stabilization of capitalism, we understand something quite different. We do not in any way repudiate our assertion that capitalism has entered on the epoch of its decay. We only state that in the course of this epoch there will be periods of ebb and flow, periods of decay and periods of expansion of capitalism. In one country capitalism will advance, in another recede. It will present a very variegated aspect. It will be different in the various parts of the globe and will change with the times.

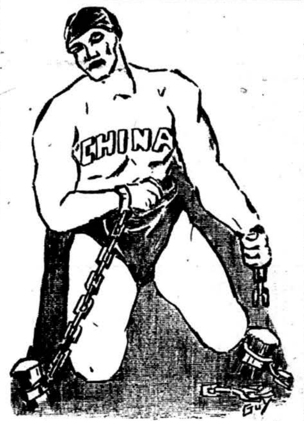
It would be wrong to imagine that capitalism will necessarily decline at the same rate in every country. During the last few years capitalism has declined, but now the picture has changed. In all European countries capitalism was a short time ago on the decline, but it is now beginning to raise its head again.

We say: in the first place, this phenomenon is a temporary one and in the second place it is not to be seen everywhere. It does not embrace the whole extent of capitalist conditions, but only some countries in which the crisis of capitalism has been particularly acute. This means that when we speak of the stabilization of capitalism, we understand a comparative stabilization.

NEEDLESS to say, this point of view is diametrically opposed to that shared by the theorists of the Second International. The theorists of the Second International maintain more or less the following: thruout the whole world, capitalism which has recovered from its wounds, is advancing uninterruptedly forwards. We however, say that capitalism on the whole is even now in a period of decay. Only in a single section of the front, in which the affairs of capitalism were in a very bad way, have conditions improved. But this is all.

It is not difficult to demonstrate that the deliberations of the theorists of the Second International are simply contrary to the facts. In all countries of the world, an increase of armaments and preparations for new wars are taking place.

Breaking Its Chains



NOT long ago a proposition was made at the Conference of the Limitation of Armaments called by the league of nations. The proposal was to restrict the use of bacteriological war, i.e. to institute a campaign against the use of bombs filled with cholera and other plague bacilli and all kinds of other good things (laughter). The conference rejected this proposal, alleging as the reason for its rejection that in any case the proposal could not be carried out. This means that the cause of war has already advanced so far that it would be of disadvantage to the most powerful states to limit themselves even in such a dastardly affair as is the preparation of bacteriological bombs. Armaments are going ahead at full steam. At the present moment there are more men under arms than before the war. The theorists of the Second International, however, say: "we are now entering on a peaceful epoch. We must do away with the Marxist assumption that there will always be war." And they say this when under our very eyes two wars are proceeding, in China and in Africa. We have at present a whole series of very deep seated conflicts and we have two wars.

In these conflicts and wars capitalism is showing its most loathsome sides. It is carrying on an imperialist policy of plunder which will lead to collisions and seroius conflicts and will inevitably result in a second world war. Therefore the menshevist theory as to a peaceful stage in the development of capitalism is a completely nonsensical, deceptive, mendacious and rotten theory, which is contradictory to facts.

CAN it possibly be said that the present situation is similar to that which preceded the war? This is simply nonsense! Before the war we had czarist Russia. Now we have Soviet Russia. In China, where there are 430 millions inhabitants, we have a colossal movement which is receiving spiritual nourishment from us. A very eminent German professor openly states that he wishes god would give every bourgeois government as much influence with its own people as have Comrade Karachan and the Soviet embassy in Peking. Thru its correct national policy, the Soviet Union has roused the greatest sympathy for our country among the enormous number of the Chinese people. Was there anything similar to this before the war? Not a bit of it, there was nothing similar.

Before the war we had a very powerful Germany. Germany and Russia were the incorporation of the international gendarmerie. At present there is no German navy and the German bourgeoisie has had its fangs drawn; therefore it hisses with a toothless mouth and preaches virtue: "Oh, how disgracefully the entente is behaving in China!"

NOW as regards England. The capitalist regime is still in force there. But the working class is there also now beginning to make its appearance as a fairly strong revolutionary force. Further, take into consideration a whole series of colonial ferments in Egypt and other countries.

Is all this a pre-war picture? How can anyone say that capitalism has a firmer foothold than before the war?

It is true, things have apparently improved in Germany, but in China there is a great commotion, but war is being carried on in Morocco. England has issued victorious from the German war, but on the other hand its working class has begun to get a move on. Draw the balance, and we shall see what kind of a stabilization you will have. So you see that stabilization is of an extremely relative and extremely conditional character.

Among the questions of international relationships which are at present of interest, there must be mentioned the question of the united front of the imperialists against ourselves.

YOU know that a comparatively short time ago, a series of communications appeared in the newspapers to the effect that the capitalist powers are preparing for a general attack against us. They spoke of the demand that the Communist International should be expelled from the Soviet Union, of the economic blockade and so on. An English squadron is to visit the Baltic in order to show how formidable it is. You know many other things as England's activity in Afghanistan, Persia, Turkey, Roumania, etc., not to mention the conference of representatives of the general staffs of the Baltic countries which took place a short time ago. To put it briefly, they are feeling our pulse in order to ascertain how weak or how strong we are.

The campaign against us was especially intensified in connection with the explosion in the cathedral of Sofia and in connection with the terrible, absolutely unprecedented persecutions which were let loose on our brother Communist Party in Bulgaria. The possibility of united action against us could be felt in the air. It cannot be said that an end has yet been put to this activity. At the first suitable opportunity the capitalist powers may inflict a whole number of horrors on us. That this has not happened so far is due to the fact that many states have more troubles than they know how to deal with. Do you not think that China is a pretty hard nut for England to crack? Do you think that Morocco is a trifle for France?

You know however, comrades, how things occur in history. Exactly the same cause, acting in the same way, leads at one stage to one kind of result and at another stage to completely the reverse result.

THE aggravation of conditions in China has up to now shattered the united bloc against us. If, however, events in China continue to develop, it is extremely likely that the imperialists, seeing themselves seriously threatened, will proceed against us in a united front.

All must know that we are not concerned in any "maneuvers" and that we desire peace at all costs.

Concerning Jackasses and Other Animals

By HARRISON GEORGE.

> "What the jackass community where Scopes is held needs to convince them (that all things are forever changing) is for an amoeba to develop into a whale during the years their bosses let them live."—The Industrial Pioneer, June, 1925.

BUT if, as the dictionary says—"the jackass is to be distinguished by its long ears and loud braying," the above quotation from the editor of the Industrial Pioneer, is an obvious discourtesy paid by a jackass who believes that nothing has changed in sociology since the I. W. W. preamble was written, to his fellow jackasses of Tennessee, whose biological knowledge is begun and ended with the Book of Genesis.

The sociological understanding, for example, possessed by the editor of the Industrial Pioneer, John Gahan has carried him no further than the conceptions of the yellow socialists of the Second International, that it is absolutely useless for colonial and oppressed peoples to try to throw off the yoke of foreign capitalist imperialism. Witness his editorial observations upon the question of China driving out those who have oppressed her:

> "This is unadulterated bosh. China is to be developed by foreign capital. American wage slaves. . . are destined to furnish the surplus value used by their masters to get factories in China started, mills running, mines dug, and railroads thrown across the vast territory. And after a while the goods produced in Chinese factories are going to be on the world market. Another erstwhile backward country will have advanced to industrial prominence."—Industrial Pioneer, July 1925, page 40.

MUCH good it will do the Chinese proletariat 6,000,000 strong, or the rest of the 443,000,000 Chinese people oppressed by foreign imperialism, to come to the I. W. W. for a solution of their grievances against their oppressors.

Are Chinese workers and students massacred by British and American troops on Chinese soil? "No use kicking," says John Gahan, I. W. W. editor, "it is all a necessary part of developing China."

When an American marine named Dizick shot a strike agitator at Shanghai last month, this act of imperialist butchery had the "scientific" approbation of the editor of the I. W. W.'s magazine—"China is to be developed by foreign capital." And it is clearly inferred by Gahan's social democratic theory, that Dizick's bullet was just as helpful as the surplus value furnished by American wage slaves to "advance this erstwhile backward country."

PLEASANT reading is the I. W. W. magazine to Wall Street bankers. It tells the American workers that by way of incident to "developing" China, American workers who are unemployed may get a job furnishing the surplus value. It tells the Marine Transport Workers' Industrial Union of the I. W. W., pleaded with by the Chinese Seamen's Union and the Red International of Labor Unions to block shipments of arms used to murder the Chinese workers, that such action is "scientifically unsound"—according to Marx!

This editorial ally of capitalist imperialism evidently regards the historic upheaval of the Chinese people as a silly mistake, the life long labor of Sun Yat Sen as misguided zeal, the Kuomintang party and the Canton government as a fighting center a piece of folly, and is prepared to sprinkle the holy water of "revolutionary science" over any armed invasion undertaken by the imperialist powers to drown it all in blood, with the blessings of the I. W. W. I am sure that the Chinese seamen, who have heard of the beauties of the I. W. W. philosophy from the honest rebel seamen of the I. W. W., will be saddened by their disillusionment.

I HAVE spoken of Gahan's idea of the relation of colonial and oppressed peoples to the proletarian revolution as belonging to the yellow socialist Second International. This, because under the period of expanding capitalism, the Second International, distorting Marxism and giving mere lip service to internationalism, acted as handmaiden to nationalist development and taught that each nation was a separate entity, the possibility of revolution within which corresponded to the completeness of mechanical development and financial concentration.

In this antiquated socialist view, each nation was an isolated economic phenomenon, independent of the others—and it ill becomes Editor Gahan to sneer at the jackasses of the Tennessee mountains who believe in the independent creation and non-relation of the species, so long as his practical solution of proletarian emancipation is based upon a theoretical ground essentially antagonistic to the integrated view of capitalism as a world system, a single whole.

EDITOR GAHAN may protest that he does believe capitalism a world unit, but so long as he regards that an incomplete industrial development in a particular country is an insurmountable obstacle to a revolution therein, he does not exhibit anything but confusion. For—once he grants that each nation is only one link in the great imperialist chain of the world system as a whole, he will have to grant a conclusion to which his "fundamentalist" fellow workers are very loth to admit.

For if capitalist imperialism is a world system, then where would one logically conclude the revolutionary proletariat would first break thru capitalist rule? In the countries where the capitalist dictatorship was most perfected, with its schools, movies, preachers, police and press (including the Industrial Pioneer) to divert, chloroform and convince the workers that it mustn't be done, or will the break come first in a country where the capitalist chain has its weakest link, with a homogenous mass schooled by the facts of life to revolt against universally hated exploiters?

Obviously, the imperialist chain is broken at its weakest —and not its strongest —point. And obviously, too, the I. W. W. does not understand this, because many of its spokesmen still insist that there has not been and could not be any proletarian revolution in Russia, because "Russia was undeveloped industrially, is just a mass of small farmers and there ain't no proletariat." Editor Gahan's dictum on China is merely a sample of the stock argument.

BUT Gahan's confusion on China is just one "fundamentalist" error of many which illustrates the ideological confusion under the burden of which the I. W. W. is staggering owing to his brilliant editorship. One can find as many solutions for proletarian emancipation in the pages of his Industrial Pioneer as there are writers therein.

P. J. Welinder, member of the I. W. W. general executive board, writing in the Industrial Pioneer, May, 1925, issue, page eight, states that emancipation is not to be consummated by "any general strike or any mass insurrection." But that did not prevent Louis Bartha, editor of the I. W. W. Hungarian paper, writing in the very next issue of the Pioneer from saying (page 18, June) that "This weapon of the working class was, and must ever be, its economic action—the general strike."

GAHAN makes no comment upon these conflicting theories of vital importance. One may take one's choice, apparently, between I. W. W. theories, they contradict and cancel each other! Gahan merely adds to the confusion in both the May and June issues, by casual shafts at "politicians," some of whom he claims advocate "voting" and others, more sinister, who observe that social revolutions are connected with what he terms the "madness of insurrection."

As for himself, Gahan can furnish the panacea for all social ills. The I. W. W. has sold it for, lo, these many years (though not so successfully as the A. F. of L. it must be conceded). His remedy is so general and all-embracing, that it cannot be mistaken, and as he fails to go into details, no one can trip him up. For years the I. W. W. has offered over its counter the good old remedy—"Organize on the job!"

NOW, there is nothing wrong with that. It is a perfectly good direction to put on the label. But when the workers take the wrapping off, there's nothing in the bottle—for the I. W. W. fails to tell them just what to do after they are organized on the job.

"Ah," but Gahan will protest, "didn't I say to 'take' the industries?"

Very true, my esteemed fellow, but you also objected to insurrection! And you, as editor of the Pioneer, allowed Welinder to discourage both insurrection and the general strike! How in hell are the workers going to get this revolution, by immaculate conception? "Fundamentalism" again!

NATURALLY, such sociological survivals object to Leninist criticism of their pre-war ideas and antiquated theories. Naturally, also, they find affinity in the labor fakers of the A. F. of L. officialdom in waging war on the Communists and the terrible "borers from within." If there were anything needed to convince the militant workers of the necessity of revolutionary work within the unions they belong to, it is this general assault on them as "borers from within." When rascals want to throw Communists out of the unions, it is proof that Communists ought to stay in—and work for revolution.

Again stepping off into reactionary paths as dark as his advice to the Chinese that they must bear with being shot down, beaten to death in the cotton mills and tried by foreign exploiters' courts set up by bayonets on Chinese soil—all in the interests of "developing" and "advancing" them, so does Gahan take the side of craft union reaction and all its unholy brood of labor fakers, when he preaches (Industrial Pioneer, April, 1925, page 46), that "It is folly to attempt the impossible"—in discussing the question of revolutionary activity in the craft unions.

Not only does Gahan lend aid to the reactionary labor fakers by his advice, which—read by those I. W. W. members and sympathizers who are, by reason of their jobs being controlled by the A. F. of L., members of such unions—actuates them to a passive or even hostile attitude toward the left wing groups which are fighting bravely against the sluggers and organized machines of the labor fakers, but Gahan goes on to crow over the set-backs which this left wing movement has suffered in its initial battles.

ONE battle (even many battles) is not a war. A war to revolutionize the trade unions, not to mention a war to accomplish to the overthrowal of capitalism, which is a uniformly successful war, which has no reverses and no defeats, would be a miracle, indeed. But Gahan, we must remember, is a "fundamentalist." He believes in miracles. He sees his pillar of smoke by day and his pillar of fire by night. He makes a sacrifice before his god of dual unionism, he knows that his god is pleased to witness the reversals of his enemies, for his god is a vengeful god who permits no other gods before him.

So in his editorial Gahan gloats that Bill Dunne was thrown out of the Portland convention of the A. F. of L. by Gompers, that the Communists were expelled by the reactionaries from the Seattle Central Labor Council, that Bud Reynolds was expelled in Detroit and Duncan MacDonald driven out of the Illinois Miners' Union.

ONE would think that after such an exhibition that Editor Gahan would take in good grace the accusation of a "fraternity between the most reactionary labor fakers of the A. F. of L. and the fanatical anarcho-syndicalist leaders of the I. W. W."—which I made in the March 31 issue of the DAILY WORKER. But anyone who reckons on a "fundamentalist" thinking about "what he thinks about," is due for surprises, as Mr. Darrow discovered at Dayton, Tennessee.

In a long article devoted to the general theme of showing the uniformity in idea and co-operation in practice between reactionary labor fakers and the present long-eared leadership of the I. W. W., I mentioned that "Gahan, editor of the Industrial Pioneer, is invited by the reactionary labor fakers of the Barbers' Union of the A. F. of L., to speak against the Workers (Communist) Party to the local. He did so on March 26."

NOW, as you will soon discover, Editor Gahan is adept at swallowing camels while straining at gnats. And so while it is true that the labor fakers of the Barbers' Union did, as stated, invite Gahan to speak to the local membership against the Communists, and it is further true that Gahan promised he would do so on the evening of March 26, yet it is not true that he actually did—for he failed to keep his promise to the fakers' emissary sent to see him at his office on West Madison street.

Whatever consolation Editor Gahan may get out of the fact that not knowing him personally, I depended upon him being an honorable man who would keep his promise—that consolation he may have, for, writing the article previous to the date mentioned (as journalists often do) I rashly depended upon Gahan doing as he promised, and remarked, as noted, that he had spoken. But, alas, there is no honor among labor fakers.

WHAT may be Editor Gahan's regards for promises, however, his conscience bothered him not at all about a virtue of their non-observance. Nor did his perception of the whole course of my article embrace the fact that the general charge made by me was that I. W. W. leaders and labor fakers work together against the Communists.

Having been charged with collusion with the officials of the local barbers' union—what does the man do but to rush down and get a certificate from these very officials, that he did not appear to speak at the meeting of the union and publish this labor faker's letter to him as proof that I "lied" when I charged the two of them with collusion!

He omitted getting a letter saying that he had not even been invited to speak, but it is to be presumed his collaborators in the Barbers' Union will furnish him with whatever sort of statement he desires.

WHY shouldn't the officials of Local 548 of the Barbers' Union be very grateful to Editor Gahan? They have a revolt on their hands against a sell-out, a surrender to the bosses on the matter of wages and hours—and both the bosses and the fakers are glad to see Gahan tell the membership that they "can't do anything" about it. These officials lately sent one honest union man to the hospital and have a list of seven left-wingers already expelled from the union.

The fakers furnish the broken ribs, fractured skulls and expelled rebels; Editor Gahan furnishes the editorials which the fakers can well pass around among the membership they wish to see remain cowed and helpless. Like the Chinese workers, the members of the trade unions are told it's no use—that rebellion in the unionis is "impossible."

The fakers say so because it means hanging on to the treasury for them. Editor Gahan says so because—until he sees the Communist amoeba develop into a revolutionary whale right under his nose—he will remain a "fundamentalist," regardless of his scornful braying at his fellow jackasses in the mountains of Tennessee.

The Real Rulers of These U. S. A.

By SID BUSH.

WHEN the average American speaks of "our National Government" he associates the thought with the Capitol, Washington, D. C., and all that goes with it. To the average citizen it seems as tho the real governmental power really lies in that city. Is not Congress holding its sessions there? Are not the president and the members of his cabinet there? Are not all of the most important of the nation's governmental institutions there? Are not all of the federal laws made there? And, finally, are not foreign relations settled there? The millions of Americans who look upon Washington, D. C., as the seat of the real government do not realize that it is merely the seat of the gigantic apparatus which is putting into effect decisions made by men who are neither congressmen nor senators, and who meet in an entirely different building than the National Capitol and in a different city than Washington, D. C.

One of the buildings where the real rulers of the U. S. A. meet is the Bankers' Club, in New York City.

ON July the 16th an eminent foreign gentleman was invited to a luncheon. The group which extended this cordial hospitality consisted of twenty-nine distinguished American citizens. The foreign gentleman was Baron Natzau, the German ambassador to the United States. To the right of him sat Otto H. Kahn, of Kuhn Loeo & Co., international bankers, director of the Equitable Trust Co. of los Angeles, I. A. & S. L. Railroad Co., Morristown Trust Co., American International Corporation and Mr. Schiff, partner of Kuhn Loeb & Co. Director L. A. & S. L. R. R. Co., Mortgage & Trust Co., Western Union Telegraph Co., American Railway Express, Wells Fargo Express, Pacific Oil Co., etc., and others representing such interests.

To the left of Baron Natzau were Mr. Young, the gentleman connected with and vitally interested in the enforcement of the Dawes plan.

Mr. Lamar, the representative of the House of J. P. Morgan & Co., George F. Baker, Jr., chairman First National Bank, director American Telephone and Telegraph Co., D. L. & W. R. R. Co., Atlas Portland Cement Co., American Sugar Refining Co., U. S. Steel Corporation, General Motors Co., General Electric Co.; etc.

BARON Natzau was the guest of 29 men who are holding under their iron rule and exploiting millions of workers, that control the great industrial and finance corporations, who are subjugating colonial peoples, and because they hold the supreme power of this country they dictate the national and foreign political policies of the government at Washington, D. C.

Baron Natzan was not invited for the sake of the luncheon. This was evident from the slight attention that was paid to the best of food obtainable. It was gobbled up quickly. That bourgeois decorum which in these circles at formal affairs was entirely lacking. Everyone ate his portion hurriedly as soon as it was placed on the table, without waiting, while conversations in a serious business-like mood was carried on. Those who served this choice coterie had to be very snappy, and before they even had a chance to remove the desert plates and serve the finger bowls they were herded out and the doors were locked upon the secret meeting.

THE business of that meeting was of most vital concern to the industrial and financial capitalists of the U. S. Was not the Dawes plan attacked and threatened by the International Congress of Bankers which was held recently in Brussels? Is not French capital forging ahead for and is cementing an alliance with the heavy industry of Germany? Is not the Treay of Rapallo between Russia and Germany a thorn in the side of the American capitalists, who in league with world capitalism, are preparing to crush Soviet Russia? Many other such vital issues must be settled. And just as soon as these gentlemen, the real governing power of this country, arrive at decisions at these secret meetings, then the official government at Washington begins to act, which seems to the average person that the course of action was decided upon by the president and Congress. Many counter-revolutions in Mexico and other Central American Republics and in the island possessions of the U. S. were concocted at these secret meetings and carried out thus giving the official government a cause to intervene in the name of establishing "law and order." And as soon as "law and order" is established with the help of American bayonets the latter remain guarding it in the interests of Wall Street.

NOW that since the world war the U. S. is the most powerful capitalist nation, and has placed Europe in the clutches of its finance capitalists, the latter are on guard against any one nation in Europe that may endeavor to dislodge them there just as they guard the principle of the Monroe Doctrine in the Americas.

The imperialists of the U. S. are now deeply interested in every nook and corner of the world. And just as England fought nearly every nation in the world to become the world power so is American imperialism preparing itself to war upon anyone that will stand in its way. This is the reason for the propaganda for preparedness by General Pershing carried by the newspapers of this country. In his last article of a series he says:

> At this time it again seems unnecessary to sound that warning against the danger of unpreparedness. There never has been adequate preparedness in this country. And again.
> We always have heard the "no more war phophesy". It was particularly strong after the War of 1812. It is of foreign importation having been heeded ages ago by nations which were thereafter destroyed by war and have only left their ruins to be excavated by scientists.

WHY does Pershing, the representative of American imperialist militarism, want more soldiers, more guns, more machinery for destruction? Because he knows that they are needed to defend the interests of Wall Street. He knows that Wall Street's interests grow heavier and heavier every day in every part of the world. Australia, one of the very few countries of the world which was not a victim of Wall Street yet fell into the clutches of J. P. Morgan & Co., to the tune of $75,000,000 loan placed on the market by that firm on July the 20th.

In addition to the $9,090,000,000 the world owed the American imperialists at the end of the year 1924, the latter extended another thousand million of dollars of credit during the first six months of the year 1925 according to the Investment Division of the Department of Commerce. These huge investments need protection.

IS it a wonder that there is a campaign for preparedness? Is it a wonder that "Defense Days" are being held when the entire country is mobilized for war? Is it a wonder that Pershing scorns that "no more war" idea? Is it a wonder that these secret meetings are being held at the Bankers' Club and elsewhere?

The capitalists are preparing to use the workers in another world slaughter. The workers must realize this right now and be prepared for the time when the capitalists, under hypocritical slogans, will endeavor to enlist them into another world war, that behind those slogans is nothing else but the hard cold cash of Wall Street that they are asked to sacrifice their lives for.

The working class, instead of fighting for the interests of the capitalists must begin the final struggle for its own interest—its own emancipation.

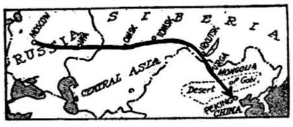
Air Routes in Soviet Union



The arrow shows the airplane route that has been established between Moscow and Peking. The first trip has already been successfully accomplished. Other routes will be begun soon, in different sections of the Union. The Moscow-Peking route not only cuts the time from Moscow to Peking by several days, but establishes closer connections between the workers of Russia and China.

Letters from Our Readers

Appreciates DAILY WORKER.

To the DAILY WORKER: Having spent some time in the orient, the recent editorials by Dunne, Engdahl, et al., have inspired a goodly respect for your paper. It is the only paper that gives to persons interested in the progress of that class which produces the world's wealth, truthful information on what is taking place in the world today.

From what I have experienced during my three years in China, I can imagine how Georges Tchicherin must now feel being aware of the broad justice of representing a comparatively free people, and in being unhampered in dealing with foreign affairs by the means of lying intrigues. He surely made monkeys out of all the "diplomats" who attempted to cross his path.

But to return to the matter of subscription—I wish your paper a fast and ever continuing circulation which means in the long run that there will be numbers added to list of those who are students of social economics, with a view of bringing about a condition where the proletarian will be master, to a great extent, of himself, his product and a builder for a nobler future society.—E. C. Wagstaff, Portland, Oregon.

Prosperity Bunk Shown Up.

To the DAILY WORKER: The sales manager of the Fox Film Co., devoted a full column in a trade journal to panegyrics on "Business is Good." But the same issue of the same paper carries long obituary lists of small movie houses that have gone out of business because of hard times. And the little fellow reads this as the handwriting on the wall. One of the little fellows, L. M. Jones, of the Arcadia Theater, Vandergrift, Pa., unburdened himself thus:

"In the Film Daily of July 6, the sales manager of the Fox Film Co. has a full column under the heading, 'Business is Good.' On the same day I talked with three film salesmen one of whom was one of the good Fox salesmen. Every one of them stated that they had never experienced such terrible conditions as right now.

"One of them stated that he was satisfied from personal observation, and general information that twenty million people in the good old U. S. A. on account of either total unemployment or part time work are not actually getting enough money to pay their rent and groceries. I agree with him. I know, and the salesmen know, and I have an idea that James R. Grainger and the other high salaried men who are putting out this 'bunk about good times' know that the picture business is very bad.

"Now on July 6 comes another half column of optimistic predictions. I do not know, and he does not know what is going to happen. But the facts are that conditions are very bad now. All the general sales managers are putting out this line of talk in order to spur their salesmen in to get more money from the exhibitor for good, bad, and indifferent pictures. I can read a lot of this bunk without getting riled as long as it is all prediction. But, when a man goes far enough in the face of present conditions, to head an article with 'Business is Good,' it is too much for me."

RUSSIA TODAY! Official Report of British Trad

The general recovery by private enterprise of some of its lost start is attributable to the stimulus given to trade by the stabilization of the currency and the new economic relation with the peasantry that caused a growth of retail trade in the provinces, of which the big official enterprises could not take immediate advantages. Since then a slower rate of development and the extension of the activities of Government Trusts and trading into the smaller towns has given less favorable opportunities to the private trader.

The above figures suggest that co-operatives are gaining ground on private trade with results examined in the chapter on co-operatives. Private enterprise is fulfilling the function assigned it, of acting as pacemaker and pilot to State enterprise. For the New Economic Policy is based on the conviction that the principles of the Revolution and the predominance of the workers will be sufficiently secured if the State retains command of the bulk of the capital and credit in the country and of its foreign commerce. Also that State enterprise can only be made efficient if put on the same business basis as private enterprises and brought into free and fair competition with them. In this competition private enterprise opens the new fields, and as these new fields come to be organised and operated on a large scale State organisations gradually drive private enterprise further afield again.

So far as can be judged at present the superior economy and energy of the private owner will tell in small industry and retail trade, while Government credit and co-operation will prevent any considerable control of large industry by private capital.

According to one good authority (Larin, "New Commercial Policy," 1924, page 19) the restoration of private trade has been so rapid that by the end of 1923, in Russia proper, private traders conducted nine-tenths of the retail village trade, four-fifths of the retail town trade, and nearly half of the town wholesale-retail. This last figure is confirmed by official estimates for the whole Union, which show wholesale and wholesale-retail urban trade distributed: 57 per cent. to State trading, 9 per cent. to co-operatives, and 34 per cent to private traders.

State and Private Manufactures

It is difficult within the limits of this report to deal with a comparison of State and private production. The following may give some idea of their present relationship: In the cotton textile industry 95 per cent. of the Turkestan crop was in 1923 taken up by the Trust (Turkkhlopkom), leaving only 5 per cent. for private industry, and of the Khoresm and Bokhara crops some 15 per cent. to 20 per cent. went to private industry. Of wool manufactures in 1923 22 per cent. to 25 per cent. were from private industry. In this industry private enterprise profited by want of solidarity as between State enterprises. In leather manufactures private industry in 1923-24 provided about 10 per cent. It would appear, moreover, that private industrials were often able to raise prices generally even with this small proportion of the business.

Middlemen

It is also noteworthy that of the wool used by the State Trusts only 30 per cent. was in 1923 bought direct from the producer and the remainder through private dealers. In the linen industry information on this point is less detailed, but it appears that in 1923-24 of the five Trusts two are sufficiently equipped to get their raw material direct from the producer, the remaining three do so through middlemen. The leather manufacturing Trusts obtain their material wholly through middlemen.

Bread production was, in 1923-24, estimated as being still to about 27 per cent. in private hands. But this proportion was not growing, and Government enterprises lost no ground when the sale was entirely freed and the wheat tithe in kind was converted into a money tax. On the other hand, the supply of the two main centres of consumption, Moscow and Leningrad, was more than half in private hands.

But enough has been said on this point to give an idea of the present relation between public and private enterprise.

Profiteering

The large share acquired by private trading, while greatly facilitating trade, has led to some profiteering. The State Trusts are, it is true, restricted to a profit of 13 per cent. as between their wholesale and retail prices. But private traders have been found to be making as much as 33 per cent. at Kharkov, and 150 per cent. at Rostov, and the same articles were found to cost double at Rostov what they did at Kharkov. It seems quite possible, however, that the average difference between wholesale and retail prices is no more than 50 per cent. (as stated in a report of Rykov), which would compare well with conditions elsewhere.

Cases of exaggerated profits are also generally found to be due to a local and temporary excess of demand over supply. They were worse in 1923, a period before the currency stabilization when prices included a large insurance against loss by depreciation of the rouble. They will no doubt disappear when industry can keep local markets fully and fairly supplied, also when the State trading and co-operative retail enterprises are more fully developed.

An outbreak of profuse private expenditure and profligacy in Moscow that resulted from the profiteering in 1922 and 1923 was sternly checked. Several thousand profiteers were banished from Moscow.

Future of Private Enterprise

The Communist Party is much occupied with proposals for checking such profiteering by "nepmen." But on the one hand it must be borne in mind that profiteering in Russia is mainly attributable to the present transition stage, and is in the aggregate and on an average much less excessive than in other countries, and, on the other hand, that there must be a greater difficulty in regulating private trading profits in Russia, even under Socialism, than elsewhere. For a calculation, unnecessary to reproduce, shows that of the total retail trade, 475 million gold roubles per quarter, only 282 million passed through wholesale trade. The remainder, about two-fifths of the whole, passed direct from small producer to small consumer. Regulation of prices in this direct local trade can only be effected indirectly through competition of State trading concerns and co-operation.

The State Trusts should be able to compete advantageously with the private trader, because they can work on longer credit (one to three months in 1924 as against one month to a week for private trade); and because the State Trust can, if necessary, be content with a manufacturing profit only—cutting the whole commercial profit on which the trader depends. That the growth of private trading has reached its limit, and that private enterprise is turning now to small industries, is suggested by a comparative classification of the licenses applied for in 1922 and 1923.

	Licenses
For commercial enterprises	523 thousand	346 thousand
For industrial enterprises	162 thousand	243 thousand
For industrial occupations	313 thousand	423 thousand
	998 thousand	1017 thousand

Organization and Regulation of Industry

The authority over industry is the Council of Labor and Defense (Sto) and its provincial and district economic authorities (Ekoso). General dispositions of this Council, enforcing the economic program (Gosplan), are directly applicable. Otherwise decrees concerning industry are executed through the Supreme Economic Council and its local organs, the district bureau (Promburo), and the Provincial Councils of National Economy. The administrative authority of the S.E. Council over Trusts is very considerable, but over mixed and private companies is limited in principle to seeing that legislation and the terms of their concessions are observed.

At the last reorganization of the S.E. Council the dual character of its responsibility for State Trusts was recognized by a division of its functions between a Central Administration of the national industry (Zubrom), which is a general administrative management of the whole national industry, and a Chief Economic Administration which performs the usual function of a Ministry of Industry in regulating industrial activities.

Gosplan

But the most interesting and, in some respects, the most important institution in the organization of the economic activities of the Union is the so-called State Planning Commission (Gosplan). This novel instrument for co-ordinating production and trade has its central department in Moscow with branches and agents all through the country. It has no executive or administrative powers, but its advisory authority is very great. Its approval is necessary for the framing of any economic policy generally, and its advice is sought by the administration before provision is made as to any State enterprise or expenditure.

The Central Council of "Gosplan" consists of 200 experts, picked for their practical experience, and it controls a whole body of sub-commissions, each dealing with some specific department. This body of experts plays no public part in politics. Their work, like that of a civil service, lies entirely behind the scenes. Their opinions are framed on the statistical and technical data that they collect daily. New plans and schemes for re-equipment and reconstruction are formulated by them in consonance with their general plan and in co-operation with the competent Departments and then carried out in consultation with the Commissariat of Finance in conformity with the possibilities of the Budget.

By means of the Gosplan it is possible to keep not only the policy of the Union but of the autonomous Republics subordinated to certain fundamental principles, such as balancing the Budget, and subject to the proper priority of investments of the national credit. In this way it is also possible to provide for new and necessary national schemes such as the electrification of all power and the standardization where possible of all machinery, the centralization of power and overhead charges, and the intensive development of agriculture—all matters which without the special attention of an expert authority would be overlooked in the competition for support of existing industrial and commercial interests.

In working out these schemes, the Gosplan is able to prevent one State enterprise from profiting to the prejudice of another and can direct the very complete control still retained by the Government over production and consumption, in the interest of the people as a whole. Thus it was due to Gosplan that the Government were able to handle successfully the "scissors" crisis, described later under agriculture, and so restore the economic exchanges between town and country to a healthy and natural operation. On the other hand it deals no less with such technical details as discovering the most suitable tractor for Russia or the application of American speeding-up systems.

The success of Gosplan depends largely, of course, on the Intelligence Service by which it keeps contact between the peasantry and the proletarian ruling class. So important is this that a wireless installation will shortly be set up with a special wave-length for this purpose alone. In fact, Gosplan is not only a novel department which has borrowed many of the most up-to-date features of the most up-to-date departments of the Western World, like the American Department of Agriculture, but is the official embodiment of a new governmental element—a new Estate of the Realm. If the new Government of the Soviet System has its legislative and executive elements still somewhat indefinite and, in some respects, under-developed, its new expert element can serve as an example to the still chaotic conduct and control of the national economy in Western States.

Financing of Industry

By 1922-23 industry was beginning to finance itself, and in that year State Subsidies reached 123 million gold roubles. By 1923-24 this fell to 93 million gold roubles, and the estimate for 1924-25 is 71.9. In 1922-23 textiles were heavily subsidized, but in 1923-24 subsidies went for metal, coal, and for electrification. Receipts from industry on the other hand have increased from 4.4 million gold roubles in 1922-23 to an estimated 45.7 and realized 31.2 in 1923-24 and to an estimated 61.4 in 1924-25. Expenditure and revenue therefore in 1923-24 leave a deficit of about 62 millions and an estimated deficit of 10 millions in 1924-25. This seems to represent the facts, though other estimates reduce the deficit in 1923-24 to about 24 million gold roubles and show a surplus next year of 21 million gold roubles.

But a more important point than the actual financial balance is the manner in which the money is spent. The 10 millinos spent on Don coal went to reducing fuel prices. The 1.7 million spent on oil went to building pipe lines. The large sum given to the metal industry is to keep it going only. And, in general, the subsidies might with advantage probably be increased.

Industry is perpetually clamoring for credits, and the Supreme Economic Council with the help of Gosplan does its best to give support when required. Thus the heavy metal industries desiring to increase production, without having profits enough to pay wages regularly, have been slowed down and have had to be helped. But in the interests of finance the program of general output in 1924-25 has been reduced from 303 million poods to 273 million poods, which reduces the subsidy from 47 million gold roubles to 36 million gold roubles and additional credits from 90 million to 75 million gold roubles.

As the general State subsidy anuually decreases bank credits more than take its place. In 1922-23, when the subsidy was 123 million gold roubles, debts to banks were 140 million gold roubles. In 1924-25, when it was 92 million gold roubles, the bank credits for the first nine months of 1924 were 351 million gold roubles.

Increase of Industrial Production

The result of the New Economic Policy in restoring production is best expressed in the following table, and is all the more remarkable when it is remembered that this was accomplished in spite of one famine year and with practically no help from foreign finance:—

ANNUAL PRODUCTION.
(In thousand rubles.)

		Per cent of pre-war.
1920	511,109	14⅔
1921	527,904	15
1921-22	753,633	21½
1922-23	1,127,381	32 1-3
1923-24	1,490,400	42

The following are the percentages of present production compared to that of pre-war in certain leading industries:—

Heavy Industries.	Per cent.	Light Industries	Per cent.
Coal	52.0	Electrical	59
Oil	63.6	Cotton textile	31
Minerals	8.0	Woolens	38
Cast iron	16.6	Linen	119.5
Metal (manufactured)	25	Paper	64.8
		Leather	54.5

Coal

The damage, amounting in some cases to destruction, by war of the Don Basin Collieries was one of the causes of the economic emergency in Russia. Of the 1,200 pits in operation in 1913, only 687 could still work in 1921. Enormous expenditure was necessary to re-equip these fields, with the following results:—

COAL PRODUCTION (GROSS).
(In millions of poods.)

	Total.	Per cent.	Don Basin.	Per cent.
1913	1,711	100	1,544	100
1918	709	41.5	541	35
1919	465	27.1	338	21
1920-1	472	27.5	286	18
1921-2	622	36.3	439	28
1922-3	696	40.7	494	32

The net production gives even better results. In 1922-23, it was 503,461 thousand poods; in 1923-24, it was 723,187. At the same time the coal used or wasted in the mines, which was in 1922-23 as much as 23 per cent., was in 1923-24 no more than 15 per cent., showing proportional improvement in methods and management. Finally, the coal dispatched rose from 461 million poods in 1922-23 to 612 million poods in 1923-24.

In the years 1919 and 1920 the Don Basin was continually under White occupation. The first year of return to normal conditions was 1922-23. Up to then colliers to a large extent went away in summer to the villages owing to insufficient pay. The present production is sufficient to meet the present requirements of Russia. The undeveloped resources of the Russian fields are enormous and there is a large accumulation of supplies in excess of demand.

Oil Production

Oil production has been even more exposed to disturbance by civil war than coal. During 1918-19 Baku was in occupation of forces hostile to the Revolution. Since 1921 production has increased until the home demand is fully met.

The industry this year has made no call on the Treasury; in contrast with last year when 23 million gold roubles were spent on re-equipment. The demands of transport and industry are fully met and large supplies await export (see report on Baku).

MINES

Production of Minerals

Iron Ore.—This is still an insignificant percentage of pre-war production. At present only 23 mines are working out of 122, and of late years industry has been supplied from pre-war accumulations. These are now nearly exhausted and a revival of production is in hand.

Before the war, the southern region supplied 73 per cent., and the Ural 21 per cent. Now in consequence of civil war, the South only supplies 37 per cent., and the Urals 46 per cent. The Centre produces 25 per cent. of its pre-war production, the Urals 15 per cent., and the South only 3½ per cent.

Machinery

The production of metal manufactures generally is at present (1923-24) estimated as about 25 per cent. of pre-war. As it was found that factories were working at 15 to 20 per cent. of their capacity, the Trusts agreed to shut down nine of the 67 works, thereby raising the percentage of full capacity to about 40 per cent. in some.

Banker Morgan Wars on the Riffs in Africa

By B. BORISOFF.

HAS the United States declared war on the Moroccans? No, there has been no official declaration of war. However, how could we interpret the action of a squadron of volunteer American aviators, holding high ranks in the American aviation service who have offered their services to the French government to assist in the military offensive against the Riffians? How will the Riffians interpret the action of this squadron when it will proceed to bombard their troops, to burn the villages of the natives and to kill innocent civilians, their wives and children? Surely, they will interpret that as a declaration of war, since it becomes apparent that this squadron is acting with the consent and under the silent approval of the American government.

THAT this is actually taking place is becoming apparent from the following report which we read in the Chicago Daily News edition of July 15:

"Paris: Premier Painleve last night gave his consent to the formation of a new Lafayette-American air squadron to proceed at once to the Moroccan battlefields. This squadron is being organized by Colonel Charles Sweeney and thus far the following veterans, who saw service in the French and American armies during the world war, have asked to join: Maj. Grey of Chicago, who commanded an American flying group in 1918 and won fourteen victories; Captain Wm. Rogers of Pittsburgh, formerly of the Lafayette squadron; Maj. Baer, assistant chief of the Peruvian air service and a member of the New York air police reserve force; Paul Rockwell, formerly a correspondent of the Daily News in Paris; Maj. Pollock, who helped organize the New York air police; Commander Parker, who won eight victories while in the Lafayette squadron; Col. Kerwood, who saw service in the United States, French, Honduran and Greek armies and organized the New York air police reserve.

"The members of the new unit will have French airplanes and will reach Morocco about July 22, in time to take part in the big French offensive against Abd-el-Krim."

WHEN the high ranked American officers will take an active part in the subjugation of Moroccans by the French troops, they will do so undoubtedly with the consent and silent approval of the American government.

To be sure we do not want to imply that there has been an official exchange of notes between the French and the American governments on the subject. Such would be unnecessary, and even embarrassing. But can any one conceive that these "volunteers," these war veterans who were brought up in military discipline, should act without being sure that their action finds the approval of their superiors of the American army officials, of the American diplomatic representatives in France and of the American government itself?

The government at the White House is thus responsible for the blood of the Moroccans to be shed by these aviators and for other crimes which they commit, unless it takes immediate steps to recall them.

THE American workers would like to know in the name of what cause this French-American war against the Riffians is being organized, and already the French and American imperialists are giving a suitable moral explanation. Here it is, as we hear it from the lips of the commander-in-chief of French armies in Morocco:

"I can hardly express my feelings in appreciation and gratitude for the magnificent generosity of those Americans who, in an hour when they consider France is again in difficulty, have again abandoned their personal interests and offered their help. It is not only the fact that the French air force will be increased by so many valorous elements that rejoices all Frenchmen; we appreciate far more the desire of the Americans to aid France in a difficult moment.

"The American people have always been on the side of justice, and this offer of new service to France is a sign of their belief that our war in Morocco is a battle for civilization and justice.

"We are not after territorial conquest. We want the Riffian mountaineers to live peacefully in their own country. We will give them every facility for trade with the people in our protectorate. But when they try to impose their will on territories that do not belong to them, they force us to take measures which will cost them dearly.

"No doubt the French will have to pay the price for victory, but we shall prove to the Riffians that they cannot disregard the rights of French with impunity."

THE French general appears to be overcome by emotion. He is hardly able to speak. Indeed, is it not a suitable occasion for such an emotional outburst? For again the "noble Americans" come to the rescue of "France" in a difficult mement. And again, as in 1914, this is by no means a war of aggression but a war for "civilization and justice." "The French government," the general assures us, "is not the invader of Moroccan territory, but the Moroccans themselves, attempt to force their will on the territories which do not belong to them."

So speaks the French general, a master liar in the employ of the French imperialists. He lauds the "heroic" act of the American volunteers as if it were inspired by the entire American nation. To quote again his own words: "The American people have always been on the side of justice and this offer of new service to France is a sign of their belief that our war in Morocco is a battle for civilization and justice."

THE general is lying. The great toiling masses of America refuse to be deceived this time. They do not believe that the invasion of French imperialism in Morocco against the heroic and brave people, fighting valiantly for their independence, can be explained as a war for "civilization and justice." The American workers understand that not civilization and justice are endangered by the Moroccans, but that the French imperialist rule in Africa is in deadly danger to be overthrown. The American workers do not approve the "heroic" act of the officer-volunteers, nor are they responsible for the silent support given this act by the American government. In their conception these high ranked officer-aviators are not heroes but simply hired assassins and murderers which should be tried for the destruction and murder they will inflict upon the totally innocent population of Morocco. It is quite clear that these volunteer aviators were bought by the promise of still higher titles, and altho at the present time it is said they receive only one franc a day, it is quite clear that a much greater reward is awaiting them in the future.

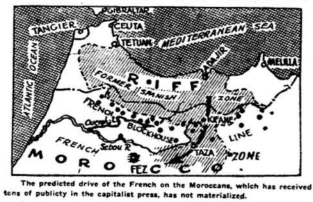
But what prompts the American government to allow the organization of American detachments for war against the natives of Morocco? Here, too, the explanation is to be found, not in the field of idealism, but in the field of imperialist self interest. What would happen with the loans of millions of dollars by the House of Morgan and Company to the bankrupt French imperialist government if France were to lose her African colonies? What would happen with the payment of war loans of France concluded in America?

THE interests of French and American imperialism are interlocked. They demand the subjection of Moroccans. The interests of workers are different. It is in their interest not that the French and American imperialism become strengthened, but, on the contrary, that the exploited colonial people win over their imperialist oppressors.

That is the reason why the American workers must demand that the American government should cease making war against the peaceful native population of Morocco; that this government should recall its volunteer aviators from Morocco and that it should compensate the Moroccans for the destruction of life and property which was caused by the American flyers in their war for "civilization."

The Workers (Communist) Party of America, the defender and champion of the exploited colonial people should be the first to act. It must tear off the mask from American imperialism; the party should demand an explanation why the government permits its officer-aviators to carry on war against the peaceful population of Morocco and why it assists the French imperialists to suppress this population. Our party should organize the working masses for a protest and struggle against the murderous acts of our "own" imperialism.

Riffians Halt Heralded French Drive



The predicted drive of the French on the Moroccans, which has received tons of publicty in the capitalist press, has not materialized.

No. 1 shows where the Riffians are massing troops for another attack. The French are already falling back around Quezzan, which the Riffians threaten to capture.

No. 2—The Moroccans are still pressing the French back near Taza, and the city is surrounded by the natives.

No. 3—The menace to Fez, the capital of Morocco, is still acute, the Riffians being in the country south of Taza.

The Riffians have captured several French posts in the past few days.

Along the Bowery

IT is night.

On the street of the poor the crowds walk up and down. . . . Up and down endlessly.

Outside of the "Holy Heart Mission" many unemployed are waiting to get their supper and lodging for the night. There are young, old, white, colored.

Not far from the mission a big crowd has gathered. It is an old man stretched out on the pavement. His face is ashen white, his eyes drooping and perspiration is running from his brow.

The crowd stands motionless and none stir to render any assistance to the poor unfortunate.

Every now and then the old man opens his eyes coughing chokingly, a whiteish foam coming out of his mouth. Then for a while he remains quiet, not moving at all.

LOUDLY ringing bells announce the arrival of the ambulance. The ambulance physician quickly steps out of the wagon, scrutinizes the face of the prostrate individual and with an air of determination pronounces:

—Hunger. . .

—He fainted from hunger.

The man is placed in the ambulance. The automobile drives speedily to the hospital. He may die when they arrive. Who can tell?

By this time the people are admitted to the " Holy Heart Mission," and the crowd continues to walk up and down the Bowery as if nothing had happened.

"MEN wanted". . . .

On the employment office windows the above is written. There is plenty of work, the wages are good, and there is need of men.

"The Ontario railroad is looking for men at seventy cents per hour, the work is easy, board, food, etc."

Questioningly I enter the employment office.

—What kind of work have you got for me?

—Good job.

—Is there a strike here? I asked.

—Oh, no! God forbid we would never hire scabs . . .

By this time about twenty men came into the office, mostly in overalls, workers, with unshaven faces. It is easily perceptible that they are long without employment.

THE train leaves at six at night, says the proprietor of the employment office. All write their name on a sheet of paper; at last they have work . . .

They are kept waiting for the train's leaving and a tall husky looking fellow guides them to the station.

I read in the Times the next morning: Four thousand men strike on the Ontario railroad. Bloody fight between strikers and scabs. Six dead, many wounded.

On the window of the employment office I still read the sign: "Help wanted" . . . .

SOMEONE screamed!

The passers by stop for a moment wondering what has happened.

In front of "Fairy Land" cabaret many gather to find out about the excitement . . . A man is struggling with a young girl.

—Give it back to me! he said.

—Nothing doing!

A policeman seen on the corner, stalks heavily towards the scene of the quarrel. He is a burly Irishman as tall as an electric pole.

—Whot the hell ar' yez doing? hollers the policeman.

Now the struggling ceases, the man's flush highly flushed with little streams of blood trickling down his forehead. The girl shoots nasty looks at the man.

—What happened? asked the policeman.

—She stole my money, the man replies angrily.

—He's a liar! the woman retorts.

—You did, you g—— w——! And the man is about to jump at the woman.

The husky bluejacket grabs both and leads them to the police station . . .

SHOP NUCLEI EXPERIENCES

By Martin Abern

ONE thing is certain, the Workers Party must be a Party of shop nuclei. With that feeling prevailing, the tasks before the Party are the steps to be taken in that direction.

Even the meager experiences of the Workers Party give some idea as to better ways and means for shop nuclei reorganization. Under pressure of the Party, some Party units have organized shop nuclei; other places on their own intiative have proceeded to organize.

It would be well for purposes of education and encouragement if various district organizers would report some of the results in their districts.

300 Members in Shop Nuclei.

IN District No. 8 a start has been made. There are some 24 shop and street nuclei in existence, as follows: Chicago, 7, composed of clothing, railroad, machine shop, printing. Gary, Ind., 2, a steel mill and a street nucleus. Pullman, Ill., 4, in steel mill and automobile factories. Hammond, Ind., steel nucleus. South Bend, Ind., automobile. Dowell, Zeigler, Valier, West Frankfort, are mine nuclei. There are approximately 300 Party members organised in these nuclei as follows: Chicago, 50; Gary, 60; Pullman, 46; West Frankfort, 40; Dowell, 9; Hammond, 15; Valier, 10; Zeigler, 75. This is about 10 per cent of Party membership in this district.

THESE figures in themselves do not mean so much, but in their possibilities, they are a good deal. The nuclei are organized in the large and basic industries, coal, mining, railroad, etc.

Gary, Ind., and Zeigler, Ill., Set Pace.

Gary, Indiana is completely organized on a shop nucleus basis. There are two nuclei, one a shop nucleus and the other a street nucleus. The shop nucleus has some 38 members at present. The comrades in Gary after a couple of educational meetings organized on their own initiative, and it is worthy of note and congratulations that the first city organized wholly on the shop nucleus basis is Gary, a main stronghold of the steel trust. All the language branches there are only auxiliaries to the Party and have no special Party powers.

PULLMAN has over 50 per cent of its members in shop nuclei and there is no reason why Pullman should not be altogether organized into shop and street nuclei in the next thirty or forty days. Only unnecessary objections which need not be taken up here can prevent that.

In Zeigler the 75 members in the shop nuclei, one of 65 and one of 10, are made up of the former language and English branches with the exception of a few language members who, it is reported, have refused thus far to enter the nuclei. Persuasion and education, not extreme measures at this time, will solve such difficulties.

IN Chicago the best functioning nucleus is the nucleus in the print shop, not because it is in the DAILY WORKER shop, but because the members are thoroly alive to the possibilities of nuclei organization. I do not wish to go into detail here on experiences of the various shop nuclei, but only to point out a few generally important facts which must be noted.

Greater Encouragement from Federations Needed.

First, as to the question of reorganization itself. There is the problem of getting the language federations to encourage reorganization to a greater extent than they have. In the writer's view, laxity of some comrades in getting into the nuclei, where they have been organized, is not due to their own unwillingness, but because they felt that their bureaus were not any too anxious to get them into nuclei. Leading comrades in Zeigler, for instance, report this, in their opinion, as one of the reasons why the handful of comrades yet remain outside the nuclei.

FURTHER it can be said, without any intention of discussing it from that angle now, that the factional situation in the Party has not contributed toward speedier shop nuclei reorganization. Where the nuclei are organized, with some few exceptions, the comrades report themselves satisfied with the change and lay plans for nuclei work.

The English speaking comrades nearly everywhere take the initiative in reorganization and the lead in the work and are most enthusiastic for shop nuclei.

Too many comrades approach the question of shop nuclei reorganization mechanically. They assume that reorganization is a matter of a Party edict or mandate, a sort of an affair where the Party rubs Aladdin's lamp and nuclei spring into existence. Some assume, too, that shop nuclei reorganization is a matter of setting a date in which the reorganization must be completed and the latter is over with. Shop nuclei cannot be organized after the fashion of a hen scratching for food. It must be more systematic and planned; with an understanding of Party history, its composition, kind of work our members are in, etc.

THERE are comrades who feel that in the reorganization and in the work of the nuclei, too much stress is laid upon the economic problems and that the political character of the nuclei does not come out. But it is a truism that the problems of wages, working conditions, etc., are the matters which first engage the attention of the workers, of the Party members. There is nothing terrible about that. Quite the contrary; these are closest to them and form the base of political development of the nuclei. Party guidance, meetings of Party functionaries with nuclei, will soon result in development of these primary issues into channels which result in nuclei developing these issues politically.

In a Party like the American Party, with all its diverse language elements, one of the first things in the nuclei is to get acquainted with one another to talk, to feel that the language differences are no barrier in the Party reorganization. In some localities the first contact of all comrades with one another has been thru nuclei. Discussion of shop problems is a first step toward getting acquainted and laying a sound basis for complete nuclei activity.

Organization Must Be on Large, Swift Scale

BUT if there is reason for care and planning in shop nuclei reorganization, there is, nevertheless no reason for slowness in reorganization.

Shop nucleus reorganization in the various districts shows this fact, thru reorganization cannot be on the style of the junk dealer, done on a second hand basis. Party reorganization must be on a large intensive scale, taking in large working areas at a time. Spotted organization, that is, organization of isolated nuclei here and there, instead of helping reorganization tend to hinder, discourage and, perhaps, for a time destroy possibilities of reorganization.

ORGANIZING in isolated fashion, which has been pretty much the case thus far, only results in most of the comrades not participating in the reorganization, in being by-standers, watching the parading shop nuclei, who are perhaps not all in step as yet, and who have not yet learned to drill or to function as they should.

Reorganization, to be effective, must beginning with the close of the party convention, be sweeping in its form. Cities must be chartered out into sections. Sections registered accurately, meetings called, sections reorganized into shop and street nuclei, shop nuclei branches wherever possible within the sections, formed, etc.

In the large cities the method of reorganization will vary in accordance with the kinds of towns and industries. In small towns the problem is simpler. But the question of organization in the different towns is subject matter for another time.

The Mission of Count Skrzynski

By M. DURDELA.

Count Alexander Skrzynski, Polish minister of foreign affairs, arrived in the United States on the 14th of this month. His arrival in the U. S. has much to do with the present political and economic situation in Poland. There is no doubt that his purpose is to gain the active support of American capital for the Polish policy of exploitaiton and oppression of the workers and peasants in Poland.

Count Skrzynski left Poland just after an agreement has been concluded between the Polish nationalists and Jewish bourgeoisie at the expense of other national minorities in Poland (Ukrainians, White Russians, Lithuanian and Germans.) For the promised support of the Jewish representatives in parliament the Jews have gained some privileges (viz., to keep their shops open on Sundays, kosher for Jewish soldiers in Polish army, etc.)

MR. SKRZYNSKI'S purpose evidently is to use the influence of rich Jews in America for strengthening of the alliance betwen Polish and Jewish bourgeoisie in his fatherland. He will also try to loan more money from the American bankers. A "special dispatch" from Washington, July 22, to the New York World says: "Coincidently with the visit to the United States of Count Alexander Skrzynski, foreign minister of Poland, to attend the round table discussions at Williamstown, Mass., Polish financial agents are preparing to approach American banking interests on the subject of a Polish loan, according to advices received in an official quarter today."

Of course, the loan is one of the main points on the program of Count Skrzynski. His lectures at Williamstown, Mass., are only incidental.

The money of American bankers robbed from the American workers, will go to the Polish bourgeoisie in order to strengthen the hold of Polish capitalism upon the workers and peasants of Poland, and the oppression of national minorities.

MUCH has been written in our press about white terror in Hungary, Jugoslavia, Bulgaria, Rumania, and about imperialism of America, England, France, etc. The case of Poland has been practically ignored. There is no reason for that. Poland is the most important outpost of European capitalism in the East. Soviet Union is her neighbor. Her role is that of a wall between the Union of Soviet Republics and capitalist Western Europe. The events in Poland have great bearing upon the general development of the struggle between capital and labor.

Poland, about the size of the states of West Virginia, Ohio, Kentucky and Tennessee, has the population of about 29 million. Of this there are 18 million Poles, about eight million Ukrainians, and the rest are Jews, White Russians, Lithuanians and Germans. The Ukrainians, White Russians and Lithuanians live in the eastern territory in Poland. In that territory they are in the majority, but in relation to Poland as a whole they are the national minorities.

The Third Congress of the Communist Party of Poland in its thesis on "The National Question" said:

"The present Poland is a state of nationalities, whose basis of existence is not only the class rule of the Polish bourgeoisie over the masses of Polish people, but also its rule over the masses of people annexed by force of arms to the Polish state (viz., Ukrainians, White Russians and Lithuanians), and over those scattered among the masses of Polish people (viz., Jews and Germans).

"THE hold of the Polish bourgeoisie over those conquered peoples is a question of life or death for the bourgeois Polish rule. The control of White Russian and Ukrainian territories makes Poland a great state with great military forces, and makes it possible for Poland to play an important role in international imperialistic politics. The control of Western Ukraine and Western White Russia (Soviet Ukraine and Soviet White Russia are "Eastern."—M. D.) is also from the economic point of view one of the most important bases of Polish capitalism: These territories are for Poland the sources of raw material (lumber, oil), as well as the markets for her manufactured products; in addition to that tens of thousands of Polish officials are enriching themselves in those "borderlands" at the expense of Ukrainian and White Russian peoples.

"Of special importance, both economic and political, are the 'borderlands' to Polish big landowners. They own enormous tracts of land in western Ukraine and Western White Russia, which circumstance allows them to wield great influence in state politics.

"The rule over the subjugated peoples is, therefore, one of the sources of the economic and political power of the Polish bourgeoisie; it strengthens their class rule, it increases the slavery of the Polish workers and peasants. The liberation movement of these peoples, which bursts the frames of the capitalist Polish state and aims its attack at the very basis of the class rule of Polish bourgeoisie, is the prerequisite of the class emancipation of Polish workers and peasants, it is one of the basic conditions of the victory of workers and peasants revolution in Poland . ."

The thesis on "The tasks of the Communist Party of Poland," adopted at the same congress, says: "The party, raising among the masses of Western Ukraine and of Western White Russia the slogan of joining those territories to the neighboring Soviet Republics, points out at the same time to them that under the banner of Communism only can they be victorious in their class and national struggle, propogates among them the feeling of solidarity with the exploited masses of entire Poland, and the consciousness that the victorious uprising in their territories is possible in this international situation only hand in hand with armed uprising of the workers' and peasants' masses in Poland."

THIS is the policy of the Communist Party of Poland in regard to national minorities.

On the other hand, the Polish bourgeoisie tries by all means to suppress any sign of liberation movement in non-Polish territories. White terror reigns supreme. The assimilation policy is being pushed with whole force. The "borderlands" are being colonized by the hangmen of the Polish bourgeoisie.

Thousands of the best fighters for workers' and peasants' interests are now in Polish prisons.

Count Skrzynski who has come here to fill up the money bag of Polish bourgeoisie will not tell of those things. He even does not mention the fact that at present millions of workers and peasants in Western Ukraine are now in the clutches of famine as a result of bad crops and ruinious taxation policy. The workers and peasants of Soviet Ukraine have sent about 30 carloads of wheat to the famine stricken; here in America the Ukrainian workers are collecting funds for that purpose. But the Polish bourgeoisie has practically done nothing. The Polish government has put aside a small sum of money in order to "help" the famine stricken population—and the help goes to the big landowners and rich peasants that they might buy some corn for sowing instead of helping the poor peasants to save their lives.

There is no doubt that Count Skrzynski, will now attain his purpose: he will gain support of the rich American Jews for the new Polish-Jewish bourgeoisie agreement in Poland and he will carry back with him new millions of dollars from American bankers. But the American workers should let Count Skrzynski and all his clique here, and in Poland, know what they think of the bourgeois Poland—the exploiter and oppressor of the Polish, Ukrainian, White Russian, Lithuanian, German and Jewish working masses.

The New Schools in Soviet Russia

By Morris Backall

I visited the "Lunacharski School" in Moscow on Chliebnaia Street. It occupies two buildings; one for the first "stupen" (stage), and one building for the second stage. I found three hundred and eighty nine children mostly of workers, playing joyfully, sitting in their classroom, but always doing something, always creating.

You could feel that the new spirit and new life takes hold of the entire school work. The teacher in the classroom, as well as in the play hall is not a superior, but a friend and helper of the children.

It was the old and able teacher Vaselievna who has been teaching for the last thirty years whom I met first, and her deep eyes stimulate the entire atmosphere of the school with their friendly looks.

Gives Teachers Chance.

She feels that the Soviet government is giving the teacher as well as the children the first chance in the world to create a new education, a new kind of children who will build a new world and be able to absorb and solve the difficult problems of life and society.

From the very beginning the Lunacharski school as well as all other schools that I visited impresses the American with its difference and novelty. It calls out the immage of our school life in America where everything is conservative, old and narrow, where the curriculum in American schools are relics of the middle age; where the pupils are quiet and dry and scared. In Russia the school rooms are full of life, full of movement, full of joy. The pupil is merely a member, an equal one of the creative life.

Work—Nature—Society.

The system of the Lunacharski school is the educational system of the (Gus) government educational system. It consists of three primary elements. First, work; second, nature; third, society.

Work: The spirit of work is the central one in the educational life of the school. The child studies the work shops, industrial history of its surrounding, starting with its district, going to its city and then state and government.

The school itself has work instruments like weaving, carpentry, shoe making, and so on. The child gets a knowledge how to produce, how to organize and how to study labor and its problems.

Study Evolution of Social Life.

But, as a school system, the method of study in the Lunacharski school as well as in all other schools of Soviet Russia is the new method of complex study. The child begins with the very simple beginning and goes through the entire evolution of human effort, for instances, house-building. The child learns that the first house was a cave, then a tent, then an improved kind of tent, small peasant house, up to modern apartment buildings. The same is applied to the metal industry which developed out of a stone knife.

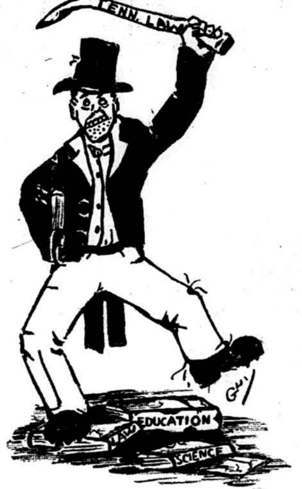
The method of education in its preliminary work is so combined and gives the child such a vivid picture of life that beginning from a house the child studies, not merely work, how a house is made, but also the evolution of social life, when people lived in caves, then in tents, small peasant houses, modern houses and apartment buildings. Together with this, children study the complex of modern plumbing, how at the beginning water was brought from the river and how people living in big apartment buildings and hotels are able to get modern comforts. Children works in the shops of the school; children visit small shops outside and factories and all modern big industries. They study the whole evolution of society, of labor and of nature, combining the three and uniting the efforts of the child through one channel, beginning with the house, then with the district, the city, state, government, and then in the higher grades the whole world.

Contact With Realities.

The children in the Lunacharski School as well as in all other schools in Soviet Russia study their reading, writing and arithmetic, not through books but from actual life, from actual contact with realities, therefore their study has not merely a practical value, but it is a part of their own life.

The children in the Lunacharski School, according to the educational program of the Soviet Government are socially organized. First, in a "sankom" (sanitary committee), which takes care of the sanitary condition of the children, and teaches that they should have clean hands, feet and dress. Second, a "belkom" (a committee for laundry), so that the towels and underwear of the children should be kept clean. Third, a "choskom" (house committee) which takes care of the building and school materials.

Going on a Spree



Study Peasant Life.

The school of the second stage begins its studies from the village. The life of the village in fall and all activities connected with agricultural life of that period of the year are explained. The holiday of harvest, of taking the grain to the city, the problem of speculation with the products of the peasants in capitalistic states and the changes that took place in Soviet Russia are gone into.

In this way the child gets a knowledge of buying and selling and exchange through a plain example of the life of peasant, the life of the village and the city, and also of the problem of co-coperative in distinction from private business.

The children of the Lunacharski School, as well as children of all the other schools in Soviet Russia are taken out for three months of summer to the villages of Russia. They work out a plan, then they go out to observe and study, then they write reports and stories and poems, then they paint.

It is wonderful to see the paintings of these children, how their imagination and fantasy and interest are awakened to nature, to work and to society, which they are reproducing in color and line and rythm. You see pictures on the walls of the schools of the open field, of the peasant working on the field, of workers in shops and of movements of the streets. The stories they write are full of the very life that surrounds them and through which they give expression of their knowledge gained in language, in their work.

Study of Labor Stimulates.

The children of the city coming to the village participate in the life of the peasant and at the end of the semester they bring back to the city a knowledge of the life of the village, together with botanical atlases and collections that they created during the summer months. Generally near the village a factory stands and the children of the Lunacharski School get acquainted also with the life and work of the factory.

The children of the school of the second stage do advanced work in the different occupations of which they get only a glimpse in the first stage of the school life.

Different groups of children study different occupations. Every group reports its accomplishments and problems to the other group, and so every child is confrited with the entire situation of labor.

It is in Soviet Russia where the spirit of labor dominates the entire life of the community, where labor came to the forefront of political economic, educational and artistic life that the children can realize the value as well as the necessity to study it, with that love that I could find there. With them it isn't mere theory but a stimulation to the entire life of childhood.

Study The Revolution.

The children in the schools of Soviet Russia are studying the holidays before the Revolution and the holidays after the Revolution. They express it also in painting and in writing their stories. The third year the children study the development of factories, transportation, culture, public utilities in the state. They begin with the times of the czar and end with the development of the same institutions in Red Moscow.

The fourth year the children study not only the development of the entire life of industry in S. S. S. R., but the struggle between peasantry in the village against the landowners, how the workers develop and how the interest of the working class combined with the peasantry and the present motto "with the face to the village."

Children Help Controlling.

In the fifth, sixth, seventh and eighth grades of the second stage the children studying advanced mathematics, physics, chemistry, also through the method of complex.

The Lunacharski School as well as all experimental schools in Russia, which are very many, took over from America the "Dalton Plan" which gives the child self control over its studies. The child itself takes care of the results of its studies and registers itself the outcome of its daily studies, daily attendance, hours devoted to each study, which is determined beforehand through a plan, and each child learns to be responsible for itself and to take account of its undevelopment.

Orphans Get Best Treatment.

There are thirty-three experimental schools in Moscow alone and they are very many experimental stations in Soviet Russia. Each and every school is doing its work through a general plan, but finding new methods how to make the general program more effective and more beneficial to both children and society.

There are Youth Organizations in the Lunacharski School which are to be found also in every school of the country. A young pupil was shown to me as the chairman of the "komsomol" organization. I asked him how he was getting along and he answered, "I live better than anyone, they all respect me," and I was wondering why he is treated better than anyone and I asked him, "Why, are there any privileges?" And he flushed and answered, "I am an orphan on both sides, I have no father and no mother," and I understood that this youth who would be an outcast in a capitalistic state feels more than anyone, the spirit of a communistic government.

Ideals of Youth.

He explained to me that their organization consists of fifty members and they have also one hundred and twenty pioneers. They organize debates and lectures and they are interested in the life of the children in America, in Germany. He told the dreams they dream of a new world and their readiness to help humanity, so I understood the ideal that Soviet Russia gives to its youth in the interest that awakens in the young generation to all phases of life, all phases of humanity.

There are 250,000 teachers in Soviet Russia living, teaching in the farthest corners of the big land; some of them teach for months at a time in lamp lighted rooms in distant Siberia; most of them work in villages among peasants, but all of them have the divine feeling that they are molding a new personality of collective life, of creative forces, a generation which will astound the world with its idealism.

Teachers Support Soviets.

At the last All-Russian Soviet convention of Teachers which was held in Moscow the teachers expressed their willingness and readiness to help the government of Russia in its educational efforts, notwithstanding the fact that only from eight to ten per cent of the bulk of the teachers are communists but they all feel that only the present Soviet Government of Russia is able to cope with the educational situation in Russia and is able to organize the most modern school system in the world.

PAM DE[illegible]ES ANTI-INJUNCTION LAW CO[illegible]UTIONAL BUT ISSUES AMBIGUOUS WRIT AGAINST UNION

An ambiguous injunction restraining certain forms of picketing was issued by Judge Hugo Pam in the superior court of Cook County which leaves it to the discretion of the court as to whether the strike of the members of Amalgamated Clothing Workers, employed by the International Tailoring Company shall be outlawed. Judge Pam earlier in the day made a decision that the so-called Illinois anti-injunction law is constitutional.

Judge Pam's decision was typical of his attitude thruout the case. Pam seemed reluctant to offend the garment bosses and at the same time afraid to make a clear-cut decision against such a mild act as the Cuthbertson law. Pam four times postponed action on the bill for injunction. Pam's decision decides nothing.

J. J. Neiger, attorney for the International Tailroing Company, declared the bill for an injunction will be taken to the higher courts. If the company moves to Rock Island and Moline and the Amalgamated begins picketing there, an application for an injunction against the Amalgamated will be made there, Neiger said.

Pickets Are Restrained.

The injunction restrains the clothing workers from "congregating or maintaining any picket or pickets at or near the premises of the complainant (the International Tailoring company) in going to and from their homes, in a manner or in such numbers as interferes with the orderly course of business;" from "obstructing the public streets or highways at or near the premises of the complainant, or from obstructing any of the employes or persons who may seek to become employes of the complainant any vile or abusive names, including 'scabs,' or 'finks'."

What number of pickets constitutes interference with the "orderly course of business," and what kind of picketing would be such as to "interfere with the orderly course of business," and what constitutes obstruction of "the public streets or highways at or near" the shops of the International Tailoring company, it is left to courts to decide, whenever the bosses, under cover of this injunction, choose to haul the clothing workers before the judges during the course of the strike.

It is not surprising that Attorney J. Neiger, speaking for the bosses, declared himself perfectly satisfied with the form of the injunction as it stands. It will not be difficult for the wealthy bosses, having at their command a large number of lawyers skilled in the pleading of cases against labor, to convince the judges of the capitalist courts that even a small number of pickets can interfere "with the orderly course of business," or that a group of ten or a dozen pickets has been "obstructing the public streets." It

By T. J. O'FLAHERTY

FOR the time being the ruling class of Great Britain breathe easier. The threatened coal strike has been postponed thru the enforced surrender of the mine owners to the pressure of the government. Stanley Baldwin, the agent of the collective capitalists of Britain succeeded in forcing the proud coal barons to withdraw the notices of reduced wages and longer hours they had posted at the pit heads.

BUT this compromise does not settle the question at issue. At least A. J. Cook, the miners' secretary does not think so. One thing is certain. Had not the miners strenghtened themselves by an alliance with the workers in the other basic industries the operators would laugh at them and the government, instead of using honeyed words would rattle the scabbard. This is a lesson in the value of the united front.

OF course there is nothing settled yet. But this knuckling down of the mine owners before the majesty of the united might of the workers cannot help but raise the morale of the labor movement. It will also increase the prestige of the new leadership of the British labor movement. It should not be forgotten that it was when J. H. Thomas, Frank Hodges and Clynes, held sway that "Black Friday" took place. Those gentlemen and the school they represent, took a back seat in the present struggle. What the capitalists in general, the mine owners in particular and their government will be able to do during the period of respite remains to be seen.

THE mine owners accepted the advice of Stanley Baldwin. This was a surrender, no doubt, but it does not necessarily mean a victory for the workers. It was a recognition of the power of labor, but a period of lull like this is more dangerous to the workers even than a fight. The right wing in the movement will get busy. All kinds of schemes for saving the empire will be put forward. The proponents of class peace and class collaboration, will work overtime. The mine workers must never forget that

TRIAL OF FIVE HUNDRED PEASANTS OF BESSARABIA BY WHITE TERROR CANNOT PREVENT SOVIET STATE

VIENNA, —(By Mail)—Five hundred peasants of occupied Bessarabia are now being tried by the Rumanian Bojars, 500 peasants who are accused of having participated in September of last year in the revolt in Tartarbunar. At the first glance this seems improbable, but one only needs to remember that it happened in Rumanian Bessarabia and that the accused are Bessarabian peasants—then it appears very natural.

After the occupation of Bessarabia by Rumania the history of the latter is full of such mass trials. The Rumanians have more than once shed the

SYDNEY BOYCOTT OF U. S. FLEET IS WIDESPREAD

Street Clashes Occur in Australian City

SYDNEY, N. S. W., Aug. 2—Trade union members have appeared at social functions given by Australian politicians to the officers of the visiting United States fleet and denounced the imperialistic aspect of the visit of the battleships to pacific waters.

The trade unions are boycotting the fleet during its visit, and many meetings have been held in protest. The boycott is also directed at calling attention to the numerous class war prisoners in the United States.

Despite the honeyed words of the public officials, trade union members and sailors are frequently clashing on the streets here.

French Troops Leave Essen

ESEN, Germany, Aug. 2—French troops of the occupational forces hauled down the tri-color and marched out today to the sound of fife and drum. The population was quiet as the troops left.

ORGANIZED WORKERS SEND PRAISE ON PUBLICATION OF "RUSSIA TODAY"

At no time in the existence of the DAILY WORKER has the response been as generous as the present to the serial publication of "Russia Today," The Official Report of the British Trade Union Delegation to Soviet Russia.

Trade unionists in hundreds of cities, unsolicited and with unstinted praise for the initiative of the DAILY WORKER in securing the publication of this great document, have not only sent in their subscriptions but have placed standing bundle orders for the period of the publication.

Workmen's Circle branches are among the other organizations responding with both subscriptions and bundle orders.

Individual workers, in the organized labor, socialist and Communist movements have sent in new subs with congratulations to the DAILY WORKER and expressions of support for Soviet Russia with their pledges to work for world trade union unity.

"I'll take the word of the British Trade Unions, for an honest picture of Soviet Russia," writes one worker.

"The generous way the DAILY WORKER printed the first installment in a full issue of the magazine section hit me just right . . . and I read it to it's most interesting end.

"Every day that I get thru with it, my buddy at the machine next to me gets it. Hes a fighting fool even if he did think that Sam Gompers was all there. You ought to hear the discussions at lunch hour in our shop on Russia."

This letter is typical of hundreds of others coming in from all sections of the country. The great demand for back issues, coming with new subscriptions, has practically cleared the files of all back numbers. The most gratifying results add another to the many achievements of the DAILY WORKER.

Notice!

To allow for special meetings for election of delegates by branches and shop nuclei to the Chicago City Convention, the City Central Committee meeting of August 5th, Wednesday, is called off.

'ONLY A TEMPORARY TRUCE', SAY BOTH SIDES CONCERNING DELAY OF BIG COAL STRIKE IN BRITAIN

LONDON, August 2.—All sides are taking stock of just what the armistice in the war between capital and labor means for them, since the strike of 1,200,000 miners and 5,000,000 other trades workers was averted at the eleventh hour on Friday last.

Everywhere it is recognized as only a truce, and but two weeks truce. Everybody but the Baldwin government, of course, claims that the government backed down and was forced to yield to the threat of a general strike which might have ended in revolution.

It finally agreed at the last moment to advance $50,000,000 in subsidies to the mine owners which it had previously refused.

Capitalist Press Is Bitter.

Capitalist paper are bitter at what they call the surrender of the government "to the Communists," it somehow being recognized that the Communists are the decisive element in the stiffening and unision of the labor front.

The government was "blackmailed" by the trade unions, is the general claim of capitalist papers.

Capitalist Press Savage.

The Daily Mail is particularly savage in a leader headed, "Victory for Violence."

It declared that Mr. Baldwin changed his mind under open threats of a trial of strength between the government and the Communists with the Communists victorious. This view, more mildly stated, is reiterated by the Morning Post, which says:

"Peace was bought at the price not of money only but of principle and that sacrifice of the principle will possibly be more ruinous than the crisis it averted." It declares that the terms were dictated to the governmen by the trade union congress.

The Manchester Guardian, a supposedly "liberal" organ, is glad that the strike was averted but deplored Mr. Baldwin's "bungling" until the last moment.

"The prime minister," says the Guardian, "has done the right thing but in the wrong way, from wrong motives and has done it clumsily, yielding not to conviction but to sheer brute force."

The Times declares that "the most critical chapter in the history of this country is closed, but only by opening another chapter even more critical."

The Miners' Federation officials all claim it is only a temporary delay, to which they had to agree by reason of the operators' withdrawal of the notices that a wage cut of 20 per cent and longer hours would be enforced beginning August 1. The operators, in turn, being insured by the government subsidy, promised at the last minute, that their profits would not suffer. So their surrender was passed on to the Baldwin cabinet. British industry as a whole must now subsidize the mining industry—consequently the kick from the newspapers representing other capitalist interests.

Some Blame Rise of Sterling.

Some elements of British capital the debtor class particularly, are blaming the coal crisis on the forced rise in the pound sterling.

The federation of British industries, declares that the resumption of the gold standard will ultimately do good, but say that only by an ingenious "deflation of labor"—known in America as "normalcy" can the stabilization of British industry be secured against temporary difficulties of returning to the gold standard. They regard that

PETAIN WANTS MORE SOLDIERS BEFORE ATTACK

Riffians Take a Fort, Bring Down Plane

PARIS, France, August 2—Altho there are two hundred thousand French troops now in Morrocco, Gen. Naulin has sent word here by Marshal Petain demanding two more French divilsons before beginning an offensive against the Riffian natives. "The offensive operations are impossible during August on account of the intense heat," says a French communique, "And will be impossible after September on account of the torrential rains."

Petain in his report to Premier Painleve has asked more French troops from the Rhine, and insists that the troops be French soldiers instead of colonials. The colonials cannot be trusted against their black brothers, Petain intimated.

It would be dangerous for Painleve to send more French soldiers to invade Morocco, as the workers are already raising vigorous protest against the invasion of Africa, instituted as it was by the French bankers. The sending of more troops might bring the fall of the Painleve cabinet.

The front is quiet. The Riffians have wiped out the garrison of the blockhouse at Ain Bouaissa, and repulsed a counter attack near Teraoul, bringing down a French airplane.

STATE LABOR PARTY, AMALGAMATION BEFORE N. Y. FEDERATION MEET

NEW YORK, Aug. 2—Elections of delegates for the New York convention of the State Federation of Labor is proceeding thruout the state. This convention will be held beginning Monday, August 24 at Schenectady, N. Y.

It is expected that important matters will come up for discussion at this gathering, among them being the question of a State Labor Party, State Welfare Legislation, workmen's compensation, organization of the unorganized, amalgamation, education and many other items of importance.

The American Communist Struggle Against Imperialism

The following resolution was unanimously adopted by the Parity Commission for submission to the National Convention of the Workers (Communist) Party to be held August 21:

1. The Basic Characteristics of Imperialism and Its Development in the United States.

A. The basic characteristics of imperialism are:

1. The concentration and centralization of industry and capital result in monopolies so powerful that they play the decisive role in economic life.

(a) Nowhere has monopoly developed to the extent that it has in the United States, the classic land of trusts and combines.

2. An immense accumulation of money capital available for investment and exportation, and a tremendous expansion of the credit system into a world credit system where groups of financiers finance first whole backward countries, their industries and governments, and later to finance even industrially advanced countries.

(a) The United States leads in the manifestation of this tendency also. More than half of the world's gold supply is accumulated here. From a debtor, the United States has been converted not merely into a creditor nation but into the investor and usurer nation par excellence. In war debts alone the world owes the United States over 11 billion dollars. The greatest of these debtors is its nearest rival and competitor, the British Empire with four and one-half billion dollars in round numbers.

(b) The world's total debt to the United States today is more than twenty billions in the last year alone, the American capitalists increased their foreign investments by almost a billion and a quarter. The Dawes plan, the repeated French stabilization loans, the financing of countries like Germany, Austria, Italy and France, etc., and even the British dominions as Canada and Australia (the recent loan of $75,000,000 to Australia) indicate clearly that it is no longer a question of financing backward countries but advanced industrial countries and colonies of rival imperialist powers as well.

3. The centralization of banking capital on an ever-increasing scale, and thru its financing, credit and investment development, the fusion of banking capital with monopoly capital and the creation of a financial oligarchy on the basis of the thus originated "finance capital." In the United States this tendency has gone so far that the federal reserve system has coordinated all banking groups into a single domestic and world financing organization under the control of the most powerful and most concentrated oligarchy in the world—an oligarchy which is personified by two individuals, Morgan and Rockefeller.

4. The basic determinant of world economic and political policy becomes the export of capital and not the export of commodities.

5. There arise international monopolistic unions of capitalists which divide the world among themselves.

6. The territorial division of the world is already completed and each shift in relative power among the imperialist nations is marked by a violent re-division of backward and even industrially advanced countries.

7. The seizure of the sources of raw materials and especially oils and metals and coal is another source of conflict for the re-distribution of the already divided world.

(a) The United States is especially favorably situated on account of its great domestic oil and mineral supply. It controls 43 per cent of the world's output of coal; 54 per cent of nearly 73 per cent of the petroleum; about 50 per cent of the copper, etc. In addition to the rich supplies of raw materials in the United States, the minerals and oils of Mexico, Peru, Venezuela, Colombia, Chile, etc., are increasingly getting under the undisputed sway of the U. S. Thus the U. S. enters into the conflict for European, Asian and African raw material sources with the preponderance already assured in its favor.

8. Imperialism thus broadens to a world base and sharpens the collosal conflicts, deepens the antagonism between rival national imperialist groups, suppressing internal competition only to intensify world competition.

9. This conflict tends increasingly to a violent form, accompanied by domestic reaction, savage exploitation of subject peoples, an increasingly rapid armament race, and the piling up of ever more explosive materials in the world powder magazine.

10. It provokes increasing revolts of the subject peoples, presently evidenced by the Moroccan and Chinese situations, the growth of anti-imperialist movement in Latin-America, the Turkish and Persian situations and colonial movements generally.

11. An historical alliance is being consummated in the alliance between the revolutionary proletariat and exploited colonial and semi-colonial peoples. This basic strategy of the world revolution, elaborated by Lenin, is now being confirmed by history; we are witnessing its conscious application, not locally, not within sectional limits, but on a world-wide scale. The astonished bourgeoisie, which predicted confidently the immutable binding power of nationality over the class interests of the workers in the home industries of imperialism, are being treated to the spectacle of the French Communists openly aiding the heroic Riff tribesmen to throw back the armies of imperialist France, while the socialist party, which has set up its usual "union sacre" with imperialism, is more and more losing the support of the French masses. The opportunist leaders of the British labor party have again declared for imperialism by voting for "imperial preference," but the Communist Party of Great Britain is cementing its fighting alliance with the national liberation movements of India and Egypt. Enslaved China has turned against its imperialist oppressors; it is the beginning of the surefated liberation of Asia and the mighty Kuomintang party of China welcomes and receives the support of revolutionary toilers in England, Japan, France, America—in all the home countries of imperialism. Moreover, Soviet Russia, the expression of the international victory of the working class, is China's staunch ally.

12. The imperialist struggles on all sides are an indication that the partial and temporary stabilization of capitalist industry, noted at the recent sessions of the Enlarged Executive Committee of the Communist International, has brought no real stabilization to capitalism. This is the final stage of capitalism. Bourgeois society is hanging in the balance. It will be buried by the combined forces of the proletarian revolution and the national liberation movements of the colonial and semi-colonial peoples.

2. America's Independent Policies.

13. The days of "national isolation" in America have been left far behind. The tremendous strides of American imperialism constitute one of the most significant developments of world capitalism since the war. American imperialists have now subjected over three-quarters of a million square miles of territory—but these figures give no real idea of the extent of the American empire, which brushes aside boundary lines and penetrates even into the most highly developed industrial sections of Europe. In his great work on imperialism, Lenin pointed

BOSTON RALLIES IN WAR AGAINST SIGMAN TYRANNY

Pledge Support to the New York Locals

By TOM BELL.

BOSTON, Mass. (By Mail.) — The cloakmakers and dressmakers of Boston rallied to the support of the Locals 2, 9 and 22 of New York in their struggle against the gunman rule of Sigman and Co. at the mass meeting held in Ford Hall here.

Seven or eight hundred members of the International Ladies' Garment Workers Union roared their approval of a resolution denouncing the attack of the Sigman gang on the three New York locals and calling for the removal of all those responsible for the attack from positions in the union, and pledging moral and financial support to the Joint Committee of Action until the battle against the reactionary Sigman clique has been won.

Faced Threats of Expulsion.

The mass meeting was a success in spite of the treats of expulsion made by the local fakers against and worker attending the meeting, and the gang of thugs that the local Sigman gang brot to the meeting with them.

The speeches on the New York situation were given by Louis Hyman, Rose Wortis and C. Burokovich all members of the Joint Committee of Action set up by the three New York locals to conduct the fight against the Sigman machine. The recital of the incidents of the New York struggle enthused the meeting and even the local officialdom and their thugs were kept quiet by the enthusiastic applause from the audience.

The resolution which was carried by the meeting is as follows:

"We, the Boston members of the International Ladies' Garment Workers' Union, assembled in mass meeting in Ford Hall, Boston, on July 30, 1925, having heard the reports of the attack on Locals 2, 9 and 22 by the Sigman machine condemn the actions of Sigman and Co. in suspending the executives and managers of Locals 2, 9, and 22, the biggest locals in the International.

Charged Union is Weakened.

"We declare that this was an unwarranted attack on these locals to suit the reactionary purposes of Sigman and Co. and weaken our union in face of the attacks of the manufacturers. The tactics of the Sigman machine in breaking into the offices of these locals at midnight with the aid of thugs and gunmen, taking possession and throwing out the legally elected officers before giving them a trial, is not only a violation of the constitution of the International but is a violation of the principles of trade unionism.

"We demand that those responsible for thees attacks on these locals be removed from responsible positions in our union as they have demonstrated their unfitness for holding office by their actions. The suspended officers of Locals 2, 9, and 22 must be reinstated, the reign of thugs and gunmen abolished, and the rights of locals and individual members respected.

"We pledge ourselves to support the Joint Committee of Action of Locals 2, 9, and 22 and to help them morally and financially in their struggle until our fight for a strong union controlled by the workers had triumphed."

AS WE SEE IT -:- By T. J. O'Flaherty

the war is not over, that it is only a truce and that there can be no solution of the conflict short of the abolition of capitalism.

WHAT is a fish fan? Perhaps it is a school in which political fish stories are hatched, but the Fish Fan's Club of Chicago did not become famous thru retailing yarns but thru retailing booze, unless truth and prohibition agents are strangers. We would not say a word about the matter but for the fact that the case has political significance and may be of interest to our readers who live in parts of the United States where capitalist law is held in respect. There being no such place, so much the better for the story.

WILLIAM HALE THOMPSON, while mayor of Chicago was known as a good fellow. In fact he was as good as capitalist mayors could be. The Chicago Daily News and the Tribune got on his neck and they stayed there until he decided that being mayor was not his favorite indoor sport. He refused to run for reelection. When he stopped running losts of good fellows stopped drawing their pay from the city. Other fellows equally deserving took their places. There was weeping and gnashing of teeth in many places and the fact that the Volsteadian lid had driven the goddess of spiritual comfort to cover, made it harder for those victims of political misfortune to bear up under the blow.

THOMPSON being hearty as well as hale conceived the idea of organizing a club where his friends could mourn the past befittingly. He chartered a goodly ship, and loaned a harbor from his friends on the Lincoln Park commission, where the vessel could be parked. Many men of renown joined the crew. The official captain was an old salt by the name of Stuart who served before the mast as political editor of Hearst's Chicago Evening American. Being an editor Stuart was qualified to keep the ship's log.

EVERYTHING went along swimmingly in the good old Fish Fan's galley, until, so the story goes, a reporter for the Chicago Daily News, was baffled in his effort to get a berth on the prohibition staff of the local sacramental wine wholesaler. The reporter blamed his ill luck on the captain of the Fish Fans and immediately proceeded to turn the light of publicity on the vessel. The enraged captain sued the reporter for $100,000, this being the approximate worth of that part of his reputation which was damaged by the reporter's revelations.

INCLUDED among the Fish Fans are many, many judges, prominent lawyers, real estate men, a secretary of state, a lieutenant governor, aldermen, congressmen, state representatives, and sundry other goodly citizens. In his wrath the reporter who wanted to become prohibition agent, demanded that this public nuisance be padlocked. The local foes of the demon rum, were aghast and well they might, for to raid the Fish Fans club was equal to making war on the state of Illinois, and as the part is not greater than the whole, neither were the local prohibition forces stronger than the law enforcing bodies which were at the disposal of the Fans. And who can tell but in a few years the Fish Fans Club may be the unofficial city hall? And Grand Fish Fan Thompson may again be mayor of this city.

FINALLY the government was called in and the Fish Fans got on the front page. One hundred and fifty judicial, aldermanic, legal, congressional and babbittarian lockers were broken into and rifled, with the result that Belmont Harbor, where the good ship Fish Fan was berthed is much more 100 per cent American than it used to be. Thompson, Stuart and the big fellows are keeping out of the scrap—in the open. A few goats will run the gauntlet of courts, bonds and baliffs. But those who favor liberty and the sanctity of the locker are up in arms. They believe that everybody's locker should be as sacred as his home.

THIS is a mighty good idea, but if instead of gin, wine and Scotch whiskey, the law officers found copies of the Communist Manifesto in the lockers of the Fish Fanners how many "public spirited" citizens would raise their voices in behalf of the inviolability of private clubs? Street meetings conducted by the Workers Party have been broken up here in Chicago recently and the speakers thrown in jail—a clear violation of the constitution—yet no outcry was raised. This is another proof of the hypocrisy of our petty bourgeois politicians.

CONGRATULATIONS on the ku klux klan. They have scored again and in the usual way. No, not exactly a case of rape. Third degree methods were not necessary. The Rev. R. Carl Zeigler, methodist minister of Newark, N. J., violated the white slave law and a girl of twenty-two. Another victory for 100 per cent Americanism.

Truce Is Temporary in Big Coal War

the trade union resistance to longer hours and lower wages is "preventing reconstruction."

Those opposed to the gold standard and the recent funding of the debt to the United States say that the increase made by these maneuvers in coal prices has cut England out of ability to sell coal abroad in competition with German, United States, and French coal, particularly the "reparations" coal from Germany. Coal, however, stands only in the foreground of what can be said to be a life and death struggle of British foreign trade for mere survival.

Capitalist Management Failure.

Communists are twitting British capitalists about their previous slurs at the efforts of Soviet Russia to reconstruct its destroyed industries, now that leading British capitalists assert that British trade is "near death," with no such physical ruin as Russia faced and conquered.

Revolution Viewed "From Below"

Directly connected with this view from the other side of the class struggle is the comment of the Welsh miners. Down in Wales, where 1,000,000 slaves of the pits live wretchedly when working at wages often no more than $10 a week, the crisis of the strike is looked upon as a forunner of the social revolution which all accept as a future certainty.

In Wales the miners are profoundly sorry that the strike did not develop, and some are bitter against the union spokesmen in London, for suspending the strike order even when their demand for a withdrawal of the wage cut notices was granted.

Angry at Postponement of Revolution.

"We would rather starve while striking and making a fight than nearly starve while digging coal with no promise of better days ahead," is their verdict. In the view of the Welsh miners, the revolution was avoided only by a hair's breadth by the surrender of the government to the operators' demand for a subsidy. The miners of Wales, black with coal, are equally black with surely anger at the delay of the revolution.

BALTIMORE CITY BUILDING TRADES WORKERS STRIKE

3,000 Workers Affected by Walkout

By IRVING SOLLINS.
(Worker Correspondent.)

BALTIMORE, Md., Aug. 2—The Central Building Trades Council of Baltimore, with the approval of the Baltimore Federation of Labor, has ordered a strike of all building trade workers employed on city contracts. It will affect approximately 3,000 workers.

Labor leaders today were certain that the strike would be effective, whereas the city officials claim that the unions will be defeated. They are proud of the fact that so many men are out of work in Baltimore and this would give them a large reserve army of scabs.

Charles H. Osborne, head of the city building commission, one of those not very rare swindlers, stated: "They (the union workers) are licked before they start; the city can get plenty of men. After two or three weeks the union workers will be glad to come back."

Fears for Civic Pride.

Mayor Jackson, in a statement issued today claims that the union officials and workers lack "civic pride," that they are deliberately tying up work on public schools "which," quoting the honorable faker's statement, "which are being built to educate their own children." Such lack of Babbit-like civic pride is inconceivable to honorable (?) mayor. Yes, of course, the strikers should be proud of the opportunity to send their children to the schools they themselves built, to the schools that teach their children to fight for the capitalist even against their own class.

Wednesday night, at the Federation of Labor meeting, Edward D. Bieretz, business agent for the Electrical Workers' Union, was vehement in his denunciation of the city officials. He charged that Mayor Jackson and Building Inspector Osborne were swindling the city taxpayers. He claims that altho the taxpayers are charged for union labor on all city contracts, the union scale is not paid, and that the city officials pocket the difference between the amounts paid for contracts and the amounts supposed to be paid for union work.

Union Leaders Not Straight.

That the city officials are crooks is not at all novel to Baltimorians. Neither is it novel to learn that the union officials, the so-called labor leaders, are crooked. The union leaders are looking out for their own benefit, and will be willing to call off the strike as soon as they are paid sufficiently, or rather, as soon as the city officials are gentlemen enuf to divide the spoils with them.

The following are the rates paid by the city and the demands of the unions:

GENEVA, Aug. 2.—The secretariat of the league of nations today announced that the United States had appointed Somerville Pinckney Tuck, American representative to the seventh session of the league's opium committee beginning August 25. Tuck will succeed Representative Porter of Pennsylvania.

The Line of the Class Struggle Becomes Ever Clearer to the Workers

By J. LOUIS ENGDAHL.

TODAY, the workers and poor farmers have another opportunity to study the bubble character of the so-called LaFollette third party movement in the results of the memorial demonstration long planned and just held in Chicago.

The date was set and this start made for the booming of the "Progressive (Third) Party" in Illinois long before LaFollette died. When the Wisconsin senator passed away, the outing at Riverview Park was converted into a "memorial," that was to "carry on," nevertheless, just as energetically for "the revolt against the old parties." But a mere handful of men, women and children, hardly more than a hundred, appeared, mostly children attracted by the amusements. The "memorial" was featured by dancing by a celebrity from one of the loop musical shows.

Perhaps no gathering of 100 people has ever carried with it the significance that this one did. It was clear testimony that the masses lured away from independent class political action into support of the LaFollette-Wheeler ticket last fall had finally realized how badly they had been duped.

Senator Burton K. Wheeler, of Montana, widely advertised up to the very last minute, especially thru the capitalist press, as one of the sure speakers at the "memorial," did not appear. The vice presidential candidate of last year remained in Montana, not sulking in his tent to be sure, but safe and comfortable in the democratic party, of Tammany Hall, John "Wallstreet" Davis and the late William Jennings Bryan, that he never left. LaFollette's death did not take him out of the third party movement any more completely than has the desertion of Senator Wheeler.

Neither was Robert LaFollette, Jr., there. He took a prominent part in his father's campaign last year and Madison, Wisc., his home, is not many hours away. LaFollette, Jr., talked long and loudly last year of the break with Wall Street, much after the fashion of his father, but the crown prince of Wisconsin capitalist politics is now busily engaged in riding the hearse of the funeral procession now almost forgotten, for a try at the paternal seat made vacant in the United States senate.

Neither were the hosts of Chicago labor officials present who climbed aboard what looked like a LaFollette triumphal bandwagon last year. They were all far away, acting in other fields of class betrayal, with the lone exception of Charles J. MacGowan, state chairman of the "progressive" party. But Napoleon in the days of his exile could not have been more isolated at St. Helena than MacGowan who found himself thoroly alone at Riverview Park.

It is well to remember that this third party, progressive movement, that has lost all contact with any numbers, is the one headed nationally by William H. Johnston, president of the International Association of Machinists, who has launched an expulsion drive against the militants of this union.

It was Johnston, LaFollette, Wheeler, Gompers, with the Magnus Johnsons and the Hendrick Shipsteds, with others of their kind, but of lesser importance, who led in the attack last year on working class political action, denouncing it as the usual "Communist plot" engineered from Moscow. They offered the LaFollette "progressive movement," that was not even a third party, as against the class party of the workers and farmers. They did considerable damage by misleading labor, in the cities and on the land, for a time. But the workers are getting back on their feet and thinking straight again, putting the traitors where they belong, either forcing them into complete isolation or driving them back into the Wall Street parties with their masks completely torn away.

Experience is showing daily that the Johnstons and Sigmans have just as small a following in the unions, among the rank and file, for their expulsion policies, part of the class-collaboration effort to betray the workers into the hands of the employing class.

• • • •

In Chicago, the lawyer, Joseph G. Grossburg, told the little Riverview gathering that LaFollette was trying to save the nation from "cruel feudal industrialism" on the one hand, and "Communistic propaganda" on the other. But the workers are learning that such trimmers, in the trade unions and in the parliamentary arena, are the best allies of the great exploiters. The line of the class struggle, that leads to complete victory over the plunderers of mankind, becomes ever clearer to new masses of workers and poor farmers.

Judge Pam Declares the Anti-Injunction Law Constitutional

will be a comparatively easy matter for the judge to construe the injunction in such a way as to outlaw the entire strike by ruling that the picketing has taken on illegal forms.

The injunction as originally drawn up by the lawyers for the International Tailoring company, which was later changed at the insistence of W. A. Cunnea, the Amalgamated's lawyer, nullified the anti-injunction act not by permitting a construction unfavorable to the workers, but by means of a clause which was later struck out. The original bill, after reciting what the striking workers may not do, goes on to tell what they may do—the pickets may peacefully walk the streets, may quietly approach employes of the company, etc., provided—and this provision would have had the effect of prohibiting picketing altogether without even the formality of a test case—provided "that nothing contained in said above-mentioned proviso shall permit more than one person to do any of the things therein mentioned at any one time or place."

Picketing by the clothing workers in front of the struck shops will go on as usual this week, in spite of the injunction handed down by Pam.

Pam declared the law constitutional on the ground that similar laws are in effect in other states.

In issuing his decision upholding the anti-injunction law, Judge Pam declared, "We have gone a long way from the labor law of two centuries ago, when England made it a criminal offense for a laborer to quit his work in an effort to secure higher wages.

"Both labor and capital must be given a wide field of action without too much interference from the court.

"The right of workers to strike and to quit their work, and induce others to do likewise, even tho the employers' property remain idle and deteriorates, was upheld by the California supreme court in 1902.

"This case is an extremely important one. The only conflict arises where peaceful picketing is concerned. I would have no hesitancy in issuing an injunction against picketing which does injury to property. But the mere parading in front of the plant and the exhibition of sign boards and placards is undoubtedly legal."

Judge Pam declared that boycotting was illegal, and that strikers had no right to attempt to keep the public from patronizing employers whose services they had left.

out that it is those countries that possess capital that dominate all other nations, despite the bourgeois-democratic fiction of the equality of nations. The United States is the greatest store-house of capital in the world; capital is being constantly piled up. American export of capital has more than doubled since the war, the total now invested abroad exclusive of war debts to the U. S. government being over nine billions of dollars. The United States is the world's money-lender; no big financial deal can be put thru without consulting the House of Morgan. To guarantee its investments and to open up new fields for them, the financial oligarchy centered in Wall Street makes ready use of its political instrument, the United States government. Also to monopolise markets and to control sources of raw material. American government officials travel the seven seas to do the bidding of Wall Street. American warships break strikes in Cuba and Central America, patrol Chinese rivers and engage in imperialist demonstrations in far eastern waters.

14. American foreign policy is imperialist policy. Broadly speaking, it revolves around three main slogans: the Monroe Doctrine, the "open door" and the Dawes plan.

THE MONROE DOCTRINE

15. This is the offical name for the policy in Latin-America. Latin-America is something more than a field for the investment of capital and a market to be monopolized, altho 44.4 per cent of America's total foreign investment is in Latin-America. The greater part of our raw material imports come from Latin-America. One of those raw materials is oil, which has become an elemental, vital factor in the life of modern capitalism—a central objective in the clash of rival imperialisms thruout the world. Latin-America is therefore considered Wall Street's eminent domain, where no foreign intervention, other than that of the United States, is to be tolerated. The Monroe Doctrine is a doctrine of "Latin-America for Wall Street." Native governments are either ruthlessly thrust aside, as in Nicaragua and Santo Domingo, where U. S. marine run amuck, putting the natives to work in chain gangs in the dust and sweltering heat of the public roads; or else the governments are intimidated, as everywhere in Central America; or they are threatened with revolution, as in Mexico and elsewhere; or they are encouraged to pro-American dictatorship, as in Venezuela and Peru. American imperialism has even created special organiaztions to assist in the domination of Latin-America, notably the Pan-American Union.

16. Out of the 20 Latin-American republics, 11 now have their financial policies directed by appointed officials from the United States. Six of these 11 have the financial agents backed by American military forces on the ground. Four of the remaining nine have their economic and fiscal lives closely tied to the United States thru large loans and concessions giving special advantage to American capitalists.

17. The Monroe Doctrine will not lose its importance to American foreign policy with the development of the American empire to worldwide proportions. On the contrary, it will be pushed more than ever to the fore. Latin-America is the primary foreign base of American capitalism. The plan for a Mexico City-to-Buenos Aires railway is the symbol of American imperialism just as the Berlin-to-Bagdad railway was the symbol of German imperialism.

18. Latin-America is still the principle field of American imperialism and one where its sway is relatively undisputed by rival powers. Its population is almost equal to that of the United States, its territory several times greater and the whole extent of a continent and a third is unified by common language, racial and social origins, traditions and history, culture, and economic and political conditions.

19. There is sufficient homogeneity to permit of the building of a powerful continental movement of the workers and peasants aaginst American imperialism, and sufficient resentment due to the occupation of the Central American and Carribean countries, the sustaining of autocracies such as those of Venezuela and Peru by United States aid, the interference in the internal affairs of all of the countries, the system of financial and military advisers, th monopolistic Monroe Doctrine and the robbery of the tremendous natural resources of Latin-America.

B. The Open Door

20. The "closed door" policy expressed in the Monroe Doctrine is substituted by its exact opposite, the "open door" in the far east. America came late to the Chinese treasure house. She got her first real foothold during the world war, with the activities of the American International Corporation and the Asia Banking Corporation, and since that time has been expanding her interests rapidly. Commerce with the orient constitutes 25 per cent of all America's foreign trade. For the United States, China is principally a market and a field for investment—an unbelievably vast one, as yet scarcely tapped. The Washington conference of 1921-22 marked the definite orientation toward the Pacific of an important phase of American foreign policy.

21. The "open door" policy is a pretended insistence upon equal rights for all imperialist nations. It was originally expressed in the Hay doctrine on China, but has since been expanded to take in Mesopotamia, Egypt, parts of Europe, etc.; in fact it has become a general slogan of American foreign policy, when not applied to Latin-America. In the far east, the policy means the playing off of Great Britain against Japan, and an attempt to dislodge both. Because of its hypocritical "open door" policy bringing it into conflict with the directly felt imperialist domination of Great Britain and Japan, the United States has created the illusion among sections, of the Chinese people that her purposes are friendly. This dangerous idea must be energetically combatted. Our party should take the lead in educating the Chinese as to the real meaning of the "open door" policy and the purposes of American imperialism.

The Philippines

22. The bitterness of the Philippine people against American exploitation and tyranny increases daily. Importance of the Philippines as the key to future struggles in the far east cannot be overemphasized. The anti-independence movement in the United States and the dictatorial policy of Wood in the suppression of strikes, murdering of natives, etc., make the Philippine situation ever sharper and more nationalist revolutionary in tendency.

23. Our party has already developed some influence among the Filipinos by its defense of their interests. The American party should intensify and increase its activities on behalf of Philippine independence, tie this up in the minds of the American workers with the situation in China and the possibilities of war with Japan. The Filipinos should be made to realize that the liberal "independence" movement in the United States is not to be reckoned with as the basis for a spirited fight against American imperialism in the Philippines, but that it must look to the Communist movement and the working class for such a fight.

A real effort should be made to organize the Filipino workers in the United States as a step to Communist organization on the islands. The immediate recall of General Wood and an investigation of his regime should be called for. Every atrocity in the Philippines should be the signal of protest meetings and resolutions in the United States. The party should explain in its propaganda for independence that a "Plattized" independence is no independence at all.

26. The campaign outlined in the party's Filipino program is to be prosecuted vigorously.

China

27. The United States continues to present itself as the hypocritic champion of the "open door" in China. It has held it "open" long enough to get one foot in. It is now trying to get the other in, and then kick Japan and later Great Britain out, and close the door in the faces of the other imperialist powers. The hypocrisy of the "open door" campaign must be exposed, the danger of war with Japan and the Soviet Union, the tyranny of the whole foreign intervention policy and its significance in making the east a storm center for a new world war must be kept in the forefront. The subservience of the American Federation of Labor President Green to the American state department has caused him to issue a pronouncement of the same hypocritical tone in the name of the A. F. of L. The party and the anti-imperialist yeague should hasten to address an appeal to the members of the A. F. of L. explaining to them the true state of affairs in China and presenting a concrete plan of action on the part of the American working class. (Similar use should be made of the Latin-American pronouncements of Green, the conferences called, etc.) Our party should intensify its work on the Chinese situation and prepare for a long campaign as the far east situation will continue perhaps for years in an acute stage. The party must demand the abolition of the four-power pact, the nine-power pact, extra-territoriality rights, concessions, etc., etc. It must seek fraternal relations with the Chinese working class and especially intensify its relations with the Kuomintang. It must propose fraternal relationships between the American and Chinese organized workers, and mobilize opinion among the American workers against further intervention and in favor of the Soviet policy in connection with China.

C., THE DAWES PLAN.

Comrade Stalin characterized the Dawes plan as an attempt to "cover and mask the desperate struggle between England and France for European supremacy, the growing hostility between England and America in the struggle for domination of the world market, the struggle of the German people against the colonial entente oppression." This was the final, amazing leap of American imperialism in its onward march, made possible by the ruin of Europe in the war and the new strength and consciousness of purpose of the American capitalists. When the after-the-war boom came to an end, it became apparent that the United States could not continue to hold aloof from European affairs. The tremendously developed industrial capacity of this country was lying idle with the bank valuts bursting with gold (call money was being lent at less than two per cent interest in the "outside market"), the urge to incorporate Europe with the American economic system and furnish an investment market for American capital became irresistible. The Dawes plan means not more employment for American workers, but less and more uncertain unemployment. The Dawes plan is an adventure in international monopoly built upon the enslavement of the German workers and tending to force down the standard of living of British, French and American workers as well. Together with the Hurley plan for France, the Mellon plan for Belgium, and the various systems of control imposed upon Austria, Hungary, etc., it expresses the insolent bid of American imperialism for world domination. But the plan is doomed to fail. A country like Germany cannot be kept as a colony. The attempt to do so means, as Comrade Stalin says, "to place Europe on a charged mine." Moreover, England and France cannot reconcile their multiple differences with the United States, of which the European situation offers only one phase. Another and an important one is the preponderant position of American capital in Canada, its growing strength in Australia and other British colonies. The entire European adventure of American imperialism is in itself an earnest of the approaching collapse of world capitalism. It rests upon a hundred sharpening contradictions. For the American workers it heralds the awful certainty of new wars.

28. Even before the war with Spain in 1898, American capitalism had reached the point of development where it could no longer maintain itself without giving up its isolation and being drawn into the current of world events. The west was becoming populated. Money was no longer at a big premium for internal developments. American capitalists could not count indefinitely upon a constant consumption demand in this country and industry was expanding rapidly. In the United States itself, Big Business had developed to the point where it was able to dictate the entire foreign policy of the government. The launching of the United States Steel corporation in 1900, personified the fusion of banking and industrial capital. It was the world war and the events subsequent to it that the United States was able to lay the basis for its present expanded policy.

29. American imperialistic foreign policy will now be intensified, particularly as the race for oil becomes hotter, as American surplus capital continues to pile up, as the clashes with rival imperialism become more unavoidable. Already Japan and England are engaged in fierce contest with American imperialism—Japan in the far east, England in Latin-America, China, Asia Minor, Europe—over all the world. England is the main competitor, the chief capitalist obstacle in the path of Wall Street. If England could be eliminated or rendered helpless, the United States would have a comparatively free hand with Japan. At the Washington conference the United States succeeded in breaking up the Anglo-Japanese alliance and in forcing England to recede from her age-old position of mistress of the seas, thru the acceptance of the 5-5-3 naval basis. Too weakened to conduct an independent policy of her own, England had been constrained to console herself in recent years with the role of a lesser partner in America's new imperialistic ventures—as in the Dawes plan in Europe—but England and America are irreconcilable rivals. The present situation in China illustrates the impossibility of reconciling the interests of the British imperialists with those of Wall Street. Our party must understand the basis of the fundamental conflict between British and American imperialism, and must be prepared for the titanic struggle which is approaching.

30. Another factor that imperialism cannot leave out of consideration is Soviet Russia. Soviet Russia has made the first breach in the circle of world capitalism. She represents the spearhead of the international class war piercing its way into imperialist situations. She has already shown what the far-reaching effects of this may be by her support of China. The United States, as the standard bearer of world capitalism, has of necessity become the rallying center for the battle against capitalism's mortal enemy. American workers must at all times stand by Soviet Russian in the attempts of the capitalists to wage war against her.

3. American Imperialism.

31. This "pacifist imperialism," as it has been called, is essentially warlike. The United States today spends tremendous sums of money on military and naval preparations. Thru the medium of the Citizens' Military Training Camps, Boy Scouts, etc., the entire population is being drawn into the scheme of militarization. A powerful, centralized, armed force is being built up, for use against the workers at home, and to crush the movements for freedom in Latin-America, Hawaii, and the Philippines—as well as to organize for the next war. "Navy day," "defense day," etc., are signs of the approaching imperialistic conflict.

32. The American imperialists know that their struggle to oust Japan from China is one that cannot be settlet without war. The United States is ready for that war. Hence the recent maneuvers of the fleet in far eastern waters—and its subsequent friendly visit to Australia. American imperialism is prepared to fight England but she wishes to detach England from Japan at all costs, and evidences of Australian-American entente, together with the Canadian situation, are calculated to make England think twice before she throws in her lot with Japan. Our party must conduct a relentless campaign against American militarism, inside the military training camps and out. The spread of Communism in the army, as shown in the cases of Crouch and Trumbull, is of great significance, and it is especially significant that they are stationed in a colonial possession. We must expose the imperialist purpose of "navy days" and "defense days" and we must tear the sham from off such slogans as "the yellow peril," "limitation of immigration," etc., so that the working class may respond to our fight against the coming war.

Imperialism and the Capitalist State.

33. The bourgeoisie develops an evermore powerful state machinery for the execution of its financial schemes, for armament, for colonial, for mandated areas and spheres of influence administration, and for suppression of class conflict at home.

34. The intervention of the powerful imperialist state machine in domestic labor conflicts (injunctions, use of force in strike breaking, compulsory arbitration, etc.), the growing drain of militarism and colonial wars and occupations, the imposing of the gigantic state apparatus, the sharpening conflicts leading to a new world war, the growth of unemployment due to industrial stagnation at home and export of capital on an ever increasing scale, the use of the lower wages and living standards and longer working hours among the subject nations and "Dawesified" European workers to depress working standards and wages at home—all these tendencies work counter to the tendency to corrupt the "aristocracy of labor" and identify it with imperialism, and they begin to make clear to the working class the irreconcilable opposition of imperialist opportunism to the general and fundamental interest of the labor movement.

35. Its enormous profits thru the exploitation of backward peoples enables it to bribe and corrupt main leaders of the working class and even create privileged industries and branches of industry, thus creating a fairly numerous "aristocracy of labor." Thus there is born the union of opportunism and imperialism, which in the United States expresses itself in the imperialist, nationalist and class collaboration policy of the leaders of the American Federation of Labor and in Latin-America in the policies of the Pan-American Federation of Labor. The creation of privileged sections of the working class leads to their separation from the broad masses of the workers. This splitting up of the working class is very marked in the United States and is an important contributing factor emphasizing the division between skilled and unskilled, organized and unorganized, Negro and white, foreign and native, etc.

36. The American capitalists have also succeeded in corrupting with some portion of their surplus profit, leaders of the working class in some of the colonial and semi-colonial countries. (Iglesias in Porto Rico and the Porto Rican socialist party, Morones in Mexico and the Mexican labor party, De LaSelva in Nacaragua; the leaders of the Central American Federation of Labor; the fascist elements in the Cuban Railway Brotherhood, etc.)

American Imperialism and Labor Aristocracy.

37. In the United States, opportunism is ripe and overripe. The beginnings of a counter tendency are making themselves manifest. This is to be noticed in the growth of a labor party movement, the platonic response even to the abstract amalgamation campaign, the marked tendency of the seamen to break down their isolation, etc.

38. Imperialism develops incerasingly its own contradictions which on the domestic field present themselves in the form of a parasitic, stagnating and even decadent form of capitalism. The capitalist is reduced to a coupon cutter. The oligarchy becomes so small and so powerful that it is possible to neutralize whole sections of the former supporters of the bourgeoisie, poor farmers, petty bourgeoisie, etc., and to win away whole sections of the masses that have hitherto followed capitalism.

The Tasks of our Party

39. One of the important tasks is to convince the American workers of the living reality of American imperialism, of its menace to them, and of the necessity of fighting against it. This involves intensive propaganda and organization of the left wing in the trade unions, where the labor aristocracy and especially the bureucratic officialdom are holding the fort for imperialism. The sinister connection between these elements, the capitalists, and the superprofits must be exposed. The imperialist role of the so-called Pan-American Federation of Labor, dominated by the American Federation of Labor machine, must be exposed. It is especially important to make the workers realize the connection between the imperialist policy of the corrupted labor bureaucrats and their whole class collaboration program, such as labor banking and the B. & O. plan. While an entire section of the highly skilled workers (the labor aristocracy) is also corrupted by imperialism, these elements should not be lumped together with the official bureaucracy of the unions; consistent efforts should be made to win the more proletarian sections of the labor aristocracy away from their cooperation with bureaucrats and bosses and into active struggle on behalf of their real class interests. Anti-imperialist work in the trade unions should be linked up with concrete proposals against imperialism. "Withdrawal of troops from Santo Domingo!" "Independence for the Philippines!" "Unconditional release for Crouch and Trumbull!" "Stand by Soviet Russia!" etc.

40. Educational work must go on in our party to acquaint our members thoroly with the problems of imperialism. The imperialist character of the present epoch must be studied in the works of Lenin, Bukharin, Stalin Zinoviev, etc. Special effort must be made to promote an understanding the essential unity between the proletarian world revolution and the national liberation movements in the colonial and semi-colonial countries. Anti-imperialist work in our party must be concentrated on the independence and anti-imperialist movements in the countries under the heel of American imperialism.

41. The second congress of the Comintern pointed out that "the policy of the Communist International on the national and colonial questions must be chiefly to bring about a union of the proletarian and working masses of all nations and countries for a joint revolutionary struggle leading to the overthrow of capitalism..." This is a tenet which we see working out so splendidly all around us today, and which is ringing the death-knell of the international bourgeoisie. In Latin-America, Hawaii, and the Philippines there is a national liberation movement, just as in China and the Riff sections of Morocco. The millions groaning under American imperialist rule have indicated in no uncertain terms that they want their freedom and are willing to fight for it. The Filippinos have voted overwhelmingly in favor of independence. In Porto Rico there is also an increasing sentiment for complete independence from American imperialism. The Cuban people are struggling to throw off the vicious Platt Amendment, which is strangling them. The Mexicans stand ready to fight American intervention with arms. The Haitians fight to the death against the American military dictatorship. We must give active support to these movements. We must form direct alliance with them. This must be done in close cooperation with the other Communist parties of the continent, and we must put forth every effort to build Communist parties in those countries where none now exists.

42. There is a strong tradition of Latin-American solidarity which is a historic force for the unification of the anti-imperialist movements of the various Latin-American countries. This will be an important weapon in the struggle against Wall Street. The All-America Anti-Imperialist League was created as the expression of the liberating movement of all the exploited peoples of the continent. The Workers Party took part in the creation. Represented in the League are also the Communist Parties of Mexico, Central America, and South America, as well as student groups, labor organizations, peasant leagues, and national societies in various countries.

43. For us, the League constitutes an organizational expression of our determination to fight side by side with the exploited peoples of America's colonies and semi-colonies. While we strive to make the groups affiliated to the All-America Anti-Imperialist League recognize in the Communists and the Communist International the leaders of the world struggle against imperialism, we must work conscientiously to build up the league itself to push it into actvity and to make of it a powerful driving force for the overthrow of American imperialism.

44. The following is our concrete program of joint action with the exploited peoples for the struggle against American imperialism.

(a) Expose the purposes and methods of American imperialism everywhere.

(d) Demand independence for all American colonies and unconditional withdrawal of American troops from Latin-America, Chinese and other foreign soil.

(c) Actively support Latin-American strikes against American concerns.

(d) Ideological and practical struggle against the doctrine of Pan-Americanism.

(e) Expose and struggle against the so-called Pan-American Federation of Labor as an agency of Amercian imperialism, and the Mexican and American parties shall work out joint plans for exposing the thrue character of the Pan-American Federation of Labor and propagate the idea of the formation of a Latin-American Labor Federation with anti-imperialist tendencies.

(f) Interchange of delegates at conventions and close co-operation with the Communist Parties of Latin-America; fraternal relations with the parties of the Far East.

(g) Help build the All-America Anti-Imperialist League into a powerful organization for the overthrow of American imperialism.

(h) Immediately strive to build up sections of the All-America Anti-imperialist League in parts of the United States, thru affiliation of resident organizations of Mexicans, Filipinos, Chinese, etc.

(i) Support the proposed plan of the All-Rmerica Anti-Imperialist League for an All-American Conference against imperialism.

(j) The Machete, organ of the Mexican Communist Party and El Libertador, organ of the Anti-Imperialist League (published in Mexico) should be circulated among the Spanish-speaking workers of the United States.

The American Labor Movement.

45. The decision of the Communist International on suppressed nationalities must be adapted and applied to the peculiar situation of the American Negro. The Negro, the foreign-born worker, the Mexican workers in the South, and the unskilled worker generally must receive more attention. The division of the working class into Negro and white, foreign-born and native, skilled and unskilled, organized and unorganized, must be a central point of attack for all of our efforts to overcome the labor opportunism of imperialism and unify the American working class. The anti-imperialist work forms an excellent entering wedge in this connection and should be more intimately tied up with the trade union work.

46. Among the organized workers the attacks upon class collaboration, upon the corrupt leadership, etc., should be closely linked with the anti-imperialist work. The rank and file of the labor aristocracy must be won for the class srtuggle and its leaders exposed in their eyes. The intervention of the powerful state machine in labor struggles must be made the basis of major campaigns. The relation of that domestic machine to imperialism must be made clear.

The Soviet Union.

47. All anti-imperialist campaigns must be tied up with the Union of Socialist Soviet Republics, as the living example of a great anti-imperialist proletarian power, and with the Comintern as the world fighting organization of black, yellow, brown and white peoples in a world united front against capitalism and imperialism in all their forms. The solution of the national question by Soviet Russia has not been sufficiently explained to the American working class. Nor has been the role of Soviet Russia in Persia and Turkey sufficently capitalized. It must be made clear that the war-plots and attacks against the Soviet Union are largely attributable to its anti-imperialist policy thruout the world. The "Recognize Russia" campaign must be intensified, and tied up with the struggle against imperialism.

NEW YORK TAXI UNION FIGHTS POLICE OWNERS

Police Illegally Given Control of Drivers

(From a Worker Correspondent.)

NEW YORK, Aug. 3. — Altho the Amalgamated Taxi Association lost in an attempt last week to get a permanent injunction, restraining the police department from supervising and licensing taxicabs or taxicab drivers, another attempt will soon be made to test the constitutionality of the notorious Hylan police taxi bill.

Officers and attorneys of the Amalgamated conferred last night at the organization headquarters, regarding a second test case by which they hope to establish that the police department has been illegally supervising and licensing taxicabs since the decision of the appelate division declared the home rule bill invalid.

Police Commisioner Enright is heavily interested in the New York taxi companies and as a stockholder is attempting to prevent the drivers from strengthening their union.

Abandon Road to Norway

WOMAN JAILED AT BORDER FOR RADICAL VIEWS

Two Children Also Are Locked Up, Tho Ill

Mrs. Matilda Weideman, Lettish woman who has been active in the radical movement, was arrested by federal authorities while coming over the border from Canada with her two children. Mrs. Weideman has been a resident of the United States and Canada for many years, one of her children being born here. She owns her own home in Manitoba, Canada, and she was arrested while on the way to Chicago to visit relatives.

She was lodged in a jail at Noyes, Minn., when International Labor Defense received word of her predicament. Her little girl, the message sated was ill. I. L. D. immediately notified its Minnesota attorney, John R. Heino of Duluth. Heino immediately went to Warren, Minnesota, where Mrs. Weideman has been removed with her two children. Heino found them confined in jail, the mother and both children, a boy and girl, very ill. He immediately started legal action for their release and is looking after their welfare.

BERLIN, Aug. 2.—Rumanian artillery may be called into action to quell a serious fire in the Rumanian oil fields. The Standard Oil company asked the government to bombard the burning oil wells in an effort to stop the blaze.

BOSTON JUDGE REFUSES TO GAG THEATRE PICKETS

Strike Hits Houses in Five Cities

BOSTON, July 31.—Musicians, theatrical stage employes and moving picture operators of five cities of Eastern Massachusetts are showing solidarity in a strike against the firm of Elies M. Loew and Philip Berler which operates the Strand Theater of New Bedford, the Capitol and Dreamland, of Lynn; the Rialto, of Lowell; the Majestic, of Fitchberg and the Dorchester Theater in Boston.

The strike stretches across the state line from Rhode Island, starting when the Loew and Berler company refused to reinstate a union employe unjustly fired in its Pawtucket house. Joint strike action against all the company's theatres was quickly taken by the American Federation of Musicians, locals 193, 83, 9, 126 and 214; the International Alliance of Theatrical Stage Employes and Moving Picture Operators of the United States and Canada, locals 182, 546, 245, 73, 86, 131 and 134.

Finding that pickets were keeping away the working people who furnished most of the custom before, the firm applied to Judge McLaughlin in the circuit court in Boston for a restraining order to stop the above named local unions from picketing and persuading persons not to patronize the plaintiff, from issuing circulars, explaining the strike, etc. McLaughlin turned the company down and picketing is going on without court interference.

SYNOPSIS—Industry and trade were the subjects discussed in Saturday's installment of the official report of the British Trade Union Delegation to the Soviet Union, which is appearing every day in the DAILY WORKER. Today's installment continues the story of how the Soviet government is increasing production of oil, coal and manufactures. Finances, and the relation between state and private production have already been taken up. The report of the British trade union leaders is an exhaustive and accurate study of all phases of life in the Soviet Union. Start reading it today.

Textiles

The importance of this nidustry lies in the prominent part it plays in the economic concordat with the peasants. In this case the industry suffered during the blockade from being cut off from its raw materials, the cotton of Turkestan and foreign wool.

1923-4 (half-year)	109,868	31.0 "

Even in 1922 these Cotton Textile Trusts made a profit of about 300,000 gold roubles. More recent results are not yet known, but prices have been lowered 30 per cent. Only 179 out of 210 factories are working, and at from 20 to 75 per cent. of their capacity.

Consumption

The high prices produced by a reutrn to a stable currency produced in their turn a drop in consumption, as is obvious from the following figures:—

CONSUMPTION OF INDUSTRIAL PRODUCTS
(Per head of population.)

Product—	Year 1913	Year 1921-2	Year 1922-3	Year 1923-4	Year 1923-4 as per cent of 1913
Sugar (Russian, lb.)	20.0	23.0	4.1	7.4	37.0
Salt (Russian, lb.)	33.0	13.1	17.7	21.0	64.0
Matches (boxes)	25.0	6.7	11.5	14.0	56.0
Cotton fabric (arshins)	25.0	3.8	5.3	9.5	38.0
Pig iron (Russian, lb.)	72.0	3.2	5.0	14.0	20.6

The Government accordingly took steps to reduce wholesale prices, which was done with remarkable effect as follows:—

PRICES OF INDUSTRIAL PRODUCTS
(Per cent of pre-war.)

Product—	Oct. 1, 1923	Oct. 1, 1924	Reduction (per cent)
Leather	322	218	32

Paper	179	141	21
Chemicals	175	124	29
Oils	117	101	14
All products	247	177	29

The result of this has been to stimulate demand so that factories can at present scarcely cope with it. But owing to the comparative slight control of the retail market, as yet obtained by State enterprise and co-operatives, retail prices have not correspondingly come down. This is a point to which attention is being directed.

Another such point is the cost of production, which, already too high, rose during the second quarter of the year, though it came down during the third quarter. In short, Government control is being directed at present to reducing costs of production and increasing output.

Electrification

There is a 15-year programme for the electrification of industry, which divides the country into ten regions, each with 31 regional stations giving about 1½ million kilowatts, and which includes the electrification of all railways and factories. This will save haulage of fuel—in Russia a serious matter. For example, it is cheaper now to get English coal by sea for the supply of Leningrad factories than to haul it from the Don Basin.

Of this scheme there are already in operation the stations at Shatoura and Kashira supplying Moscow from peat and Ouktina supplying Leningrad. Work is in progress at Shatoura, Volkhov, Leningrad, Kiyelov, Nijhni-Novgorod, and Shkierol, which stations will be completed in 1925.

General Conclusion

Of all the compromises on which the Soviet regime is based, the first and most fundamental was the New Economic Policy. And just as it was evident to many members of the previous Delegation in 1920 that War Communism was an experiment that must get more and more extreme until it exploded, so the present Delegation have come to the conclusion that the existing economic system is not only viable, but has real vitality; that it does not stunt, but can even stimulate the economic recovery that peace has now made possible. Further, that the proportion of present production to pre-war compares very well with that of other continental countries, and that the superior energy and efficiency developed by the novel machinery of the Soviet Government compensates to some extent for the want of capital. Finally that foreign capital now supplied to Russia should give good returns to the investor and provide valuable resources of food and fuel to the consumers of Western nations.

CHAPTER IV

TRANSPORT AND AGRICULTURE

Travel in the Union

The traveller to Russia today will find the railway service again normal, and though some pre-war luxuries are still absent, yet in punctuality and in cleanliness there is considerable improvement. One member of the Delegation sleeping in a coach on a remote rural branch line suffered from verminous cushions, but his experience was unique in six weeks' travel.

The compromise as between Communism and comfort takes the form of two kinds of passenger coach, not distinguished as Class II. and Class III., but as "soft" and "hard." The "soft" means a carriage up to good second-class standard for day journeys or a similar sleeper for night journeys. "Hard" means wooden seats or berths. The place of a first-class is taken by "wagon lits," known as "internationals" on the familiar model; which run on the main lines, generally in connection with restaurant cars. The running times are practically pre-war. Cheap excursions are run to the Caucasus and the coast in the summer, and the arrangements for reduced fares to families and workers are very liberal. Fares are much lower than in England, and, within the Union, passenger traffic may be considered as comparing well with any Continental country. Pre-war facilities are not yet restored in communications between the Union and Europe. At present the only regular routes into the Union are through Latvia, Esthonia, or Finland. The steamer connections between Black Sea ports nad Constantinople are quite unreliable in winter. The railway routes are reliable, comfortable, and comparatively cheap—a first-class fare from London to Moscow costs about £20 and the journey can be done for less than half that.

Ruin of Railways

But this is, of course, only a very superficial side of the transport question which is as vital a matter to the Union as it is to the United States. The wars—continental, class, and civil—had reduced the railways to ruin. By 1917 a quarter of the engines were broken down and the lines working were reduced from 70,000 to 52,500 versts, which again fell during 1918 to 20,000. The civil wars ruined 3,672 bridges, including those over the Volga, Dnieper, and other large rivers, 1,500 versts of line, hundreds of stations, and thousands of miles of telegraph and telephone lines—15,000 telegraph and telephone instruments being carried off by the "Whites." Nearly two-thirds of the engines and one-quarter of the trucks were damaged.

Rape of Shipping

Matters were as bad with sea transport. The docks and most of the ships fell into the hands of the "Whites," who burnt, sank, or carried away all they could—including 900 river steamers and 12,500 sailing vessels, barges, boats, etc. Sea shipping suffered even more. Sixty sea-going steamers, totalling 90,000 tons, were destroyed, and 300, totalling 470,000 tons, were carried away by the French and British forces in the Black Sea and sold by the French. More than half the total sea-going tonnage was thus lost, and the Black Sea was swept clean of steamer tonnage—a piece of piracy unexampled in modern history.

War Communism—Reconstruction of Railways

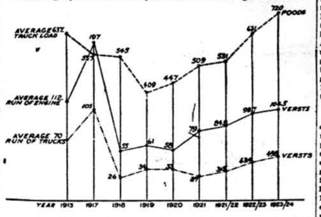
These figures may give some faint idea of the task that faced the Soviet Government—a far greater reconstruction of all transport with far less resources than in the case of any other war-ruined people. But it was begun in 1920, a year before war finally ended, and the Delegation in 1920 were much impressed by the labors of the "subbotniki," or voluntary workers, and the gaily-decked engines that were the result of their overtime. This was the period when the slogan (losung) of War Communism was "all hands to transport," and the results of this concentration on the transport front were remarkable. Popular energy and enthusiasm was worked up by a "war propaganda," and kept alive by daily bulletins of "sick" engines cured or convalescent and sound engines reconquered from the enemy. One of these bulletins shows that in January, 1920, the total number of engines was 9,438, of which 3,833 only were sound. In November, with final peace, there were 17,799, of which 7,451 were sound; practically all the additional recaptured engines having been damaged. The number of trucks in January, 1920, was 258,729, of which 204,983 were damaged, and in November 419,455, of which 320,309 were damaged. To give traffic a start 1,700 engines were ordered in Germany and Sweden in 1921, with 500 tank cars in Canada and 1,000 in Germany! but otherwise the repair shops kept pace with requirements. At the end of 1923 there were in reserve 2,764 sound engines and 60,724 trucks. Efforts were next concentrated on repairing the permanent way and bridges, nad by the end of 1921 only 12 bridges were still impassable.

War Communism—Shipping Reconstruction

The reconstruction of river shipping was no less rapid. By the end of 1921, there had been repaired 1,360 steamers and 1,719 vessels, and refloated 76 steamers, 593 vessels, and two dredgers, while an ambitious program of new construction was undertaken.

Transport Reorganization Under New Economic Policy

War Communism thus made a good beginning, but the introduction of the New Economic Policy required a complete reorganization of transport reconstruction on a business basis. Thenceforward reconstruction had to be treated as a business investment, not as an "internal front." The transition took time and was first formally enforced by a decree in January, 1922. The operation involved a complete reorganization and considerable decentralization of the Commissariat which was coupled with a technical planning Commission (Transplan). Attention was then concentrated on making the railways and shipping pay in accordance with plans for a ten years development. Steady progress has been made with this task and is perhaps none the worse for showing less sensational results than the feverish "offensives" of the War Communism. For example, the fuel expenditure has been reduced until it is 1.42 kopecks per 100 engine versts as compared with 1.03 kopecks pre-war, which is not bad after making the appropriate allowances. Damage and defalcations of freight which, in 1921-22, was as high as one pood per 50,000 pood versts has been brought down to 125,000 in 1922-23, and 750,000 pood versts in 1923-24. The improvement of the permanent way was continued; 17,000,000 sleepers being relaid, and all temporary bridges replaced by permanent. The reconstruction work can now be considered as practically complete, and the present task is to make the railways pay. This is largely a matter of making working more economical by running full loads. The average load pre-war was 66,000 pood versts, in 1923-24, it was about 22,000, in 1927, it is planned to be 33,000, i.e., half as economical as pre-war. The annexed graph shows the improvement in working conditions:—



The progress towards running the railways at a profit can be seen in the Budget (v. Finance). In 1922-23 the Government subsidy was 28.9 per cent. of the total expenditure, including re-equipments, etc. In the present Budget the railways appear to be paying their way.

Shipping Reorganization

Shipping is still in a more backward condition—though internal navigation seems adequately restored, and its economic efficiency is shown to be double that of 1922.

In the Baltic, tonnage increased since the organization of regular services in the middle of 1922, from 785,742 poods for the first half of 1922 to 7,959,028 poods in the second half, and nearly 20 million poods in 1923. In the Black Sea and Sea of Azov the average monthly freights which were 385,000 poods in 1921 and 990,000 poods in 1922, after the running of regular services in 1922 rose to nearly two million poods. But though this sea-transport continues to increase it is greatly hampered by want of tonnage and construction programs are being pressed forward. One of the Delegation crossed the Black Sea in one of the Russian regular service to the Straits and Syria and found the steamer clean and comfortable.

General Conclusion

It seems clear that the reconstruction of Russian railway transport is fairly complete and that railroads have been put on a paying basis. But that want of capital may delay profitable developments; and has already delayed, to the great disadvantage of foreign commerce, the reconstruction of shipping and the restoration of the steamer communications between the Union and foreign ports.

AGRICULTURE

Russian Agriculture and the Revlution

Russia is an agricultural country. Of the population 90 per cent. is agricultural. The pre-war export was three-quarters agricultural products, the import two-thirds for agricultural requirements.

All the same, until the Revolution, the position of the peasantry was deplorable. They only owned one-third of the land, and that mostly the worst, and the landlords kept them in a state of semi-serfage. Besides, of the land owned by the peasant, a large and growing proportion was in the hands of large farmers (kulaks) who were continually reducing the middle-sized holders to small holders and the small holder to a laborer (batrak).

Nothing was done to put the peasantry in actual possession of the land until the Bolshevist Revolution. On February 14th, 1918, an Act socialized the land by (1) abolishing in principle private property in land; (2) fixing standard holdings in different regions, and (3) abolishing rent and hired labor. By 1919, 96 per cent. of the land was in the hands of the peasantry, and 4½ per cent. under communal exploitation.

ENGINEERS TO ORGANIZE; WANT BETTER TERMS

They Are College Bred But Poorly Fed

NEW YORK —(FP)— Thirty-five hundred college bred technicians, employed by the city of New York, finding that their wages are pretty much on the level of manual workers' are taking a tip from the latter and organising. They have formed the Association of Engineers of New York and have as their immediate objective salary increases of 25 per cent.

At a preliminary meeting speakers pointed out that the engineers hold the key positions in the essential work necessary to the community and that the departments of water, fire prevention, sanitation, transportation, new construction and other vital municipal activities could not operate without them. In fact, several of the speakers reminded their fellow workers, the city engineer is such a necessary individual that when the engineers of Chicago started a strike, scheduled for three days, the city called them back to work in a half hour with the promise of meeting their demands.

As a start towards educating the public to the idea that the engineer is just an ordinarily paid person wage charts have been made public showing that 76.5 per cent of the city's engineers get less wages than plumbers and bricklayers and ten per cent less than the municipal ditch diggers. Only five per cent get as much as the contractors' superintendents whose business it is to follow the plans prepared for them by the engineers.

Aldermen Strike When Mayor Appoints Pulpit Pounder Police Chief

ALTON, Ill., Aug. 2—The three Alton aldermen, arrested by Mayor H. M. Sanders, in a factional row over administration of city affairs today issued a public ultimatum that not even notification of their arrest would force them to attend meetings of the town council "until the mayor sees the light" the way they see it.

Mayor Sanders arrested the three aldermen on charges of conspiracy and omission of duty when the council members refused to attend the regular council meetings. The split arose over various policies indulged in by Mayor Sanders, mainly the selection of Rev. E. N. Maberry as a member of the police force.

Escaped With Booty.

PEORIA, Ill., Aug. 2—A bandit today held up the H. & F. Weisger jewelry store in the south business district and escaped with $3,000 worth of diamonds, a large assortment of high grade gold watches and a small amount of money.

Terror Can't Stop Soviet Republic

blood of the Bessarabian peasants. They have shot over 20 members of the Bessarabian Parliament, the so-called "Zfatul Zeria" in order to arrange the "voluntary" affiliation of Bessarabia to Rumania. Six years ago the Rumanian bourgeoisie started the first Bessarabian trial of the "108" and thus tried to abolish the first mass organization of the oppressed population which refused to reconciliate itself with the rule of the feudal elements of Rumania.

Peasants Formed Revolutionary Committees.

The first great trial was followed three years ago by a second one with 27 accused, proletarians of Rumanian and Bessarabian towns who had joined together for struggle against the robbery of the Rumanian capitalists.

In the time between these two trials theer took place that of the "47" in 1920, which was intended to destroy the Rumanian Communist Party. After this short survey of the past the present trial of the 500 appears more understanable.

What are the characteristics of this trials there took place these two draw from it? The trials which are arranged periodically by the Rumanian oppressors illustrate clearly the development of the revolutionary movement in Bessarabia. We experienced a number of revolts which ended with the defeat of the peasants, because the latter did not yet sufficiently understand the revolutionary role of their class. A revolt of workers which is not at the same time supported by the organized peasants, is doomed to failure from the beginning.

A quite different picture is offered by the last revolt in Tartarbunar. We must state here above all that it was specially the peasants movement which undertook a conscious attack, the attack of a politically mature peasantry. Tartarbunar has raised high the revolutionary militant banner. It has understood that the high taxes, the suppressed economic life and the arbitrary actions of the gendarms can only be stopped by the peasants and the workers. Therefore the rebels have first of all endeavered to form a revolutionary committee.

From this we see that the revolt of the peasantry had an organized and conscious character. This organization was certainly not yet so perfect that it could lead immediately the whole population to revolt and this explains the defeat of the revolutionary peasants movement.

Whole districts were surrounded by Rumania gendarms and numerous villages have been wiped out completely. The unarmed population was massacred by the hangmen of Bratianu. More than 1,000 people have paid with their lives for the attempted liberation of Bessarabia from the yoke of the exploiters and hangmen of Rumania, hundreds of innocent people were thrown into prison and subjected to the most horrible tortures.

The voices of the 500 peasants who are today tried by the hangmen's government of Bratianu, call the Bessarabian peasants for new struggles for the liberation of the occupants. From the bench of the accused comes the powerful call:

"Against the occupation! For a free Soviet Bessarabia!"

Hangmen Occupied Bessarabia.

Bessarabia, the south western corner of the gigantic Russian Empire, on account of its geographic situation in the middle of 1917 was an object of the desires of the Rumanian imperialists. The agents of the government of that time, Margilomanus-Makensen, which was favorable to Germany, were specially instructed to contribute to the decomposition of the Russian army on the south front in order to facilitate for Rumania the annexation of Bessarabia.

The "true Russian" General Tcherbatcheff carried thru successfully the driving out of the revolutionary Russian troops from Bessarabia. Other agents of the Rumanian state, the Bessarabian social-revolutionaries Inkulez, Chaline, Katereo, Jerchan, etc., prepared the annexation of Bessarabia from within.

On the 20th of October, 1917, the incompetent congress of the Bessarabian military under active participation of the agents mentioned above, decided to call a national assembly in Bessarabia in order to establish its "autonomy". The composition of the "Sfatul Zaria" was decided by them in advance. On the whole 120 persons were to participate in the assembly, among them 84 must be Moldavians and 50 Moldavians must be elected to the assembly by the congress. These 50 persons, agents of the Rumanian state, were those members of the parliament, who supported the idea of the annexation of Bessarabia by Rumania.

On November 21st, 1917, the "Sfatul Zeria" was opened and on December 2nd it declared Bessarabia to be the independent democratic republic Moldavia. On March 27th, 1918, the "Sfatul Zeria" proclaimed in the presence of the Rumanian Prime Minister Margiloman the affiliation of Bessarabia to Rumania on the basis of local autonomy.

The voting took place in an atmosphere which is best characterized by the statement of the chairman of the "Sfatul Zeria", Professor H. Spare, shortly before the voting: "Before we vote on the question of the affiliation of Bessarabia to Rumania, I declare: Woe to the national minority that should dare to vote against the affiliation!" Before the voting several members of the "Sfatul Zeria", the members of the Presidium of the congress of the peasants, Kataros, Panzyr, Prachnitzky, Tchumatchenko and Litvanoff were shot on account of opposition.

On November 28th, 1918, the "Sfatul Zeria" declared itself against local autonomy and for complete amalgamation with Rumania. In a night session when only one-fourth of the members were present, the voting took place by lifting of hands and the votes for and against were not even counted.

Against this two-fold deception a protest was raised signed by the general secretary of the "Sfatul Zeria", the leader of the People's League, the chairman of the military congress, Jokuri, the peasants fraction, the trade unions and 40 members of the "Sfatul Zeria". The so-called "Law of Affiliation" constitutes the most unheard of violation of the will of the Bessarabian workers and peasants and an act of brutal violence on the part of the Rumanian occupants.

KEEP SCHOOLS RUNNING FULL YEAR, NEW PLAN

No Vacations for Kids of Working Class

From the latest developments it is more likely than not that Chicago public school children will lose their summer vacations. A committee appointed to investigate the possibilities for all year school for Chicago brought back a report strongly recommending the change. The committee was composed of assistants to the superintendent, William McAndrew with Chauncey Willard, principal of the Hale High School as chairman.

The report is now before the board of education. Edward B. Ellicot, president of the board, favors the all year round school plan. The superintendent not only favors it—he advocates it. For the board of education it means a big money saving. And since it has been the policy of Chicago's school board to place the saving of money above the needs of the children, it is more than assured that the schools will soon be running on the all year plan.

Bait for Tired Parents.

Questionairres are being sent to the parents by McAndrew. He says they will prove to all that the parents are for the new plan. And the committee in its report further throws out bait for overworked and discouraged working class parents. The report says: "There are thousands of parents in Chicago who are gravely concerned every June about what their children will be doing during July and August, where and how they will play, what dangers they will meet."

They figure working class parents are driven by economic necessity. The mother as well as the father must supply the running expenses of the home. Whether the mother is employed in gainful occupation, which is the case to a large extent judging from recent statistics, or whether she does all the household chores to keep expenses down, the children of working class families are turned loose upon the streets during the summer. As a means whereby they would be kept off the streets and off the hands of the busy mother the new plan is sure to be welcome. Of course the board of education would receive the surprise of its life if working class parents demand that the summer school be conducted in camps out in the open fields where education and recreation can be combined as is being done in Soviet Russia.

Run Schools Like Factories.

The following paragraph from the report gives the keynote to the board's motive in pushing this move.

"Chicago has a school plant valued at $120,000,000," reads the report. "At present over fifty per cent of the high school facilities and ninety-five per cent of the elementary school facilities are unused thruout the summer. No industrial concern would voluntarily keep its plant idle for two months each year."

Under the proposed plan the present school year would be divided into four ten weeks terms, with a fifth ten weeks term added in the summer recess, thus permitting a week's vacation at Christmas, and a week's recess during the summer. A pupil would be required to attend any four of the five terms or all of them as he chooses. Teachers would work either four or five terms and be paid accordingly.

GROCERY CLERKS UNION DEMANDS HANDS OFF CHINA

PHILADELPHIA, August 2—The Fruit and Grocery Clerks' Union of Philadelphia in a ringing resolution denounced the imperialist robbers of the United States, Europe and Japan for their brutal war on the Chinese people and calling on the workers of America to take steps to prevent foreign troops from interfering in China.

The resolution is signed by Morris Rosenberg, recording secretary of the union and by Joseph Drill, financial secretary.

A conference of all labor unions to devise ways and means of stopping further interference of foreign troops in the Chinese strike and the withdrawal of all foreign troops from China, is urged in the resolution.

BUILDERS AT WORK

The Party Press Is a Communist Teacher

St. Paul Shows the Way

Time and again the leaders of the Communist movement in this country and in the international have pointed out the importance of the press as a factor in building Communist parties.

The Communist Intrenational in its decision on the American question, tells us that we can build the party—and must—and tells us to do this on the basis of the DAILY WORKER and the Workers Monthly primarily.

Comrade Lenin calls the Communist newspaper the "collective organizer" and a teacher of the movement.

And slowly as the growth and understanding of the movement proceeds we find that more and more these lessons are being put into practice by our comrades. To teach our own membership Communist practice and to reach outside workers with Communist principles witness this proof in St. Paul where Communist are doing work by means of our press:

Dear Comrades:

I am writing you to see if it is possible to get 50 copies each of the June and July Workers Monthly. We are trying hard to organize Communist fractions in the unions, but we find that many of our party members do not get the full significance of what we are doing this for, and the benefit the party will get from such organization.

The industrial committee has read very carefully the articles of Foster on the trade union fraction and think that a wide circulation of these two copies of the Workers Monthly, especially calling the attention of the members to these two articles above referred to will do a great deal of good, and help us in our work and get the membership to see the importance of being subscribers to the Workers Monthly. So far the Amalgamated Clothing Workers and the Cloth Hat and Cap Makers have been organized on the fraction basis and the Carpenters are will under way. We have some good material in the Painters, but we also have a very stubborn reactionary group there. We are going to do our best to get a left wing functioning in the Painters. Hoping that you have copies of the Monthly on hand and that we will receive them at your earliest convenience, I am

Fraternally yours,
O. L. JOHNSON.

The Workers Monthly was sent to these comrades to help secure among them the understanding of the importance of the industrial work in our party.

And the DAILY WORKER and the Workers Monthly can help to Bolsheyize your local as well. Get a bundle each month (this month especially)—and let no professed Communist be permitetd to go without subscribing to these official organs of the Workers (Communist) Party.

Get a member for the Workers Party and a new subscription for the DAILY WORKER.

GERMANS, IRISH LEAD ARRIVALS OF IMMIGRANTS

401 Contract Laborers Are Turned Back

WASHINGTON, Aug. 2—A report of the bureau of immigration for the ten month period July, 1924, to May, 1925, shows a total of 269,010 immigrants admitted to the United States and 86,981 departed, leaving a net increase in the immigrant population of approximately 185,000. If the present rate for the full fiscal year is maintained the net increase in immigrant population will be approximately 215,000.

During the same period 147,997 non-immigrant foreigners arrived in the United States and 119,998 departed. Of the total number of immigrants who atempted to land in the United States, about 17,000 were turned back because they did not have proper visas under the immigration act of 1924, and 2,654 were refused admission on teh ground that they were likely to become public charges.

Four hundred and one contract laborers and 211 criminals were also turned back. Of the total number of immigrants received, 125,574 came thru the port of New York and 95,839 came across the Canadian border while 27,410 came from mMexico.

The Pacific and Gulf ports contributed very few. In the order of the number of their national emigrating to America during this 10 month period, Germany ranks first with 41,344, Irish Free State second with 23,505, England third with 12,959, Scotlnad, 11,460. Sweden sent approximately 8,000, Norway 6,000, Italy 5,300, Poland 4,700, Czecho-Slovakia 2,300, and Russia 1,650.

From the North American continent 94,327 came from Canada and 27,964 from Mexico. In the racial groups Germans again led with 48,885; English, 47,130; Irish, 38,466; Mexicans, 27,437; Scotch, 25,530; Scandinavians, 19,211; French, 21,654 and Hebrew, 9,502. The rest were scattered thruout the remaining nationalities. Among the skilled workers admitted, outside of clerks and accountants whose number was 12,000, carpenters and joiners led with 5,000; miners, 2,000; mechanics, 2,500; machinists, 1,800; masons, 1,200; painters and glaziers, 1,300, and tailors, 1,200. Of the unskilled 31,000 were laborers; 14,000 farm laborers and 13,00 were classed as farmers. Of servants there were 24,000.

Capitalist Graft

Why do capitalist politicians fight so vigorously for election to office? The reason is not far to seek. The answer to the question is: Graft.

The New York bonding firm of Sinnott and Canty, are suing newspaper owners and others to the tune of $13,000,000 damages for publishing news in connection with the relations of the bonding firm to the Hylan administration.

John P. Sinnott, leading member of the firm is brother of Mayor Hylan's son-in-law and private secretary. The firm had $500 in cash when they incorporated in Albany in 1922, with a capitalization of $10,000. Sinnott was the owner of $200.00.

What political power means to the politicians can be gathered from the fact that on Hylan's school construction contracts, involving $24,000,000, the contractors paid into the firm of Sinnott and Canty the sum of $163,000 in bonding premiums. Politics pays.

Mayor Hylan's enemies among the capitalist gangsters are making those revelations because they are out in the cold. When they succeed in defeating him, others will get the cream of the loot. It will only be a question of what gang will have the choicest seat at the pie counter.

During the czarist regime in Russia, graft was rife. From the highest officials of the state to the most menial employe, everybody was for sale. But since the Soviet government was established things have changed. Those who take liberties with the property of the workers and peasants today, do so at the risk of losing their heads. The result is that there is less corruption in the Soviet government than in any government in the world, despite its inheritance of corrupt officials from the old days.

Capitalism and corruption are synonymous terms. Communists refuse to get excited because the capitalist politicians rob their own government or rob each other. We only make use of those revelations as proof of their hypocrisy and crookedness and to point out to the workers as we did in the Teapot Dome scandal, that capitalist government besides having as it main object the suppression of the woring class is also a rogues' hangout where the robbers of the workers also fleece each other.

The Tribune as Crusader

The role of crusader to free Italy from dictatorship is essayed by the Chicago Tribune, after its correspondent George Seldes was expelled from that country, by Mussolini for the alleged bias of his news in favor of the anti-Fascist opposition.

The Tribune warns the Italian government that even tho the news agent sent out of Italy by its correspondent may not be entirely satisfactory, the stuff that will come from Paris, Geneva, Helingsfors or Riga, will not be near so palatable.

In other words the Tribune threatens to lie indiscriminately in retaliation for the expulsion of its man. It is not very likely that the Tribune can say anything so bad about Mussolini that will stagger on the wrong side of the truth. But the threat sheds light on the Tribune's policy. It shows that its devotion to facts does not interfere with business. Its readers want news about Italy, so any news is better than none.

The Tribune says it has no prejudice against fascism. This is very true. But it happens that fascism is not the kind of capitalist dictatorship that suits the Tribune's business at this stage of the game. Too much government, too much interference with the individual if that individual happens to be a member of the bourgeois or petty bourgeois classes. This is not comfortable. Had Mussolini confined his assassinations, suppressions and persecutions to the revolutionary working class movement, the Tribune's correspondent would not have occasion to arouse Mussolini's wrath. The writer would be too busy acting as Mussolini's press agent in lying about the radicals as he had previously lied about Soviet Russia.

The Tribune will not convince those who know its shamelessly reacitonary policy, and its utter disregard for truth where the interests of the working class are concerned, that its present offensive against Mussolini comes from an honest heart or because of loyalty to the truth. The Tribune simply believes that Mussolini, having temporarily wrecked the working class movement, has outlived his usefulness. But when working class democracy, thru the dictatorship of the wokrers and peasants is established in Italy it will have no more bitter enemy than the Chicago Tribune.

A Friendly Visit

The United States fleet is in Australia, after going thru a series of maneuvers at Hawaii, having for their object, preparation for a war with Japan. There is no significance to the Australian visit, we are informed, by the admirals of the American fleet who reply to the addresses of welcome from the Australian politicians.

The governor general of Australia toasted the king and the president, let us hope in water, and dwelt on the enduring friendship that exists between the people of the two nations. It seems to us that we heard those sentiments before, and unless we are mistaken they were bandied between British and German statesmen shortly before they started out to kill each other by proxy.

Admiral Coontz, speaking for the House of Morgan was not behind in handing out the soft stuff, tho it must be admitted that he added a note of originality to the proceedings unusual in a like situation.

He said: "Our visit to the south seas is a friendly one. If every nation would send a vast number of its citizens to visit other nations, a greater toleration would be fostered." Good, but the admiral did not say that those visiting friends should bring along their howitzers, poison gas, submarines, battleships, battle planes, Zeppelins and sundry other tokens of capitalist civilization. It strikes us that the millions of United States citizens that were sent to Europe in 1917 and 1918 did not contribute materially to making the United States better liked in Germany, at least not among the widows and orphans of the German workers that were killed by the bayonets of the American visitors. Admiral Coontz talked heap much hokum, tho the freshness of the output was welcome.

CORPSE OF LOS S. P. GIVES OFF STRONG AROMA

Only 23 Present at Debs' Coast Arrival

By L. P. RINDAL
(Worker Correspondent)

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Aug. 2.—The socialist party held a "regional red card convention" (as they called it) in the Labor Temple of this city. A resolution demanding the recognition of Soviet Russia was sent back to the committee on resolutions, but a motion in favor of recognition passed.

"We do not want to go against the wishes of Debs," said one self-styled leader, flashing a hostile look thru his glasses. This individual was also responsible for a motion demanding the release of all traitors in the Soviet republics. The motion passed 57 to 6.

These 63 souls were the voting strength of this "mass" convention of which more than half were new members. Thru the effort of Attorney E. W. Henderson, an I. W. W. defender, a resolution against the criminal syndicalism law was passed. A few "socalists" objected to the language used.

Praise Strikebreaker Calles.

In the Mexican situation Coolidge and Kellogg were condemned and Calles praised. The "delegates" (many curiosity seekers, scraped together on the spot) were also in favor of the new S. P. paper, the "American Appeal." However, only a few dollars were collected for its support. A sum of $200,000 is nedeed, they said.

Hard Up for Members.

The only credential necessary was a membership card, or an application for membership.

On the handbills Eugene V. Debs was compared with Lincoln, Huss and Jesus.

Not a Labor Convention.

The fact that the convention was called to order early in the morning when the slaves are working or looking for a job) seems to indicate that this gathering was a "nep-men" affair, not a real labor convention. The word "high-brow" was also used in this connection by Attorney E. W. Henderson mentioned above. An air of the middle class surrounded the "convention."

Hero Worship.

At about 9:45 Debs came—And the kissing game began in earnest. Gene seemed to be a real expert at it, too. Men, women and children of all ages had to be kissed. Lovely women that had not been kissed for 60 years had the time of their life. Everything nice indeed. But the class struggle can't be built on hero worship!

The Resurrection.

When the meeting was opened, 25 bewildered souls were present. The chairman, Debs, had a hard time to make these people, strangers to each other, feel at home. The S. P. must have been dead and buried for a long period.

And now the martyr and savior is here for the resurrection. Therefore the reference to Jesus on the advertising for this convention, I suppose. In Minneapolis, however, the situation was worse. The S. P. convention in that city, according to Debs, started with three people. One couldn't help but feel sorry for the old fighter.

Most of the forenoon was taken up by Debs' usual speech making. A few others spoke long enuf to say that Debs was the "greatest man in the socialist convention in the civilized world. But such a praise does not mean much—coming, as it did, from the glib tongue of a social democrat who excludes Soviet Russia from civilization.

Can't Locate a Socialist.

Mrs. French from San Francisco, who claimed to have attended every socialist congress in the world for 15 years, said almost with tears in her eyes that she had been unable to locate a single socialist in Los Angeles "before today." Socialism is the greatest ism in the universe to her, except isms connected with peace congresses. During the world war, in England, she had a h-ll of a time advocating peace. It was not so much hardship for working men or working women, to be radicals, she said, but for people of "higher standing it is awful." Anyhow, she had no jail story to tell.

Harmony—No Class Struggle.

Nearly all the speeches were tuned on the peace and harmony harp. And that at a time when the imperialists are running roughshod over the workers and their interests in every corner of the world. Not a word was said about the workers' struggle in China or the war in Morocco.

Another Abramovich Liar.

The rest of the few "leaders" present warmed up only when the Communists were mentioned. Cameron King, of Oakland, slapped at Moscow. Herr of San Francisco and Los Angeles, remembered the time when the "Workers (Communist) Party used its scissors" on the S. P.

But the man with glasses (mentioned at the beginning) was the most hostile of them all. He blamed all the trouble now going on in the clothing industry on the Workers Party and Moscow. He turned things upside down and called the Communists "scabs."

Abramovitch was praised as the one who told all the truth. This yellow-fish found plenty of opposition, however and no motion was passed on the subject.

In the afternoon a motion to open the doors to the gallery carried. Debs wanted to admit everybody, even members of the W. P. Said "yellow-fish" objected to the Communists, and the officials "forgot" to carry out the will of the membership.

Hopeless Effort by S. P.

In spite of the socialist boast that "Posters, window cards, letters, automobile signs, and small cards by the hundreds and the thousands are being distributed, besides 10,000 copies of The Labor World and an equal number of the Daily Forward"— the "huge outpouring" of "radicals" and "hundreds of enthusiastic socialists" did not turn out to be a "great socialist revival"—unless the curiosity seekers at the Hollywood Bowl can be called "a pilgrimage and a new crusade" for socialism. The people do not care for the S. P. By fighting against the cause of labor the S. P. has disappeared— and the real champions in the class struggle, the Communists, have gained in strength.

AGENCY SHARKS AND EMPLOYERS FILCH FAT FEES FROM WORKERS

By WORKER CORRESPONDENT.

NEW YORK, Aug. 2— -Talk about the slave market in New Orleans before 1860! Sixth avenue in this city in 1925 has nothing on it. All day long in front of private employment offices crowds of unemployed wage slaves may be seen eagerly scanning the tall signboards in the hope of finding a buyer of their idle labor power and a feeder of their empty stomachs.

That's where the slave of 1860 had it on the slave of 1925. He always was sure at least of his next meal. That's why the disappointment of the 1925 slave at not finding a job is so frightfully pathetic. It means he doesn't eat.

Employers in Plot.

His real troubles begin, however, when he does find an offer of a job to suit him. The fee the employment sharks charge for putting a slave to work is exorbitant and no fee in advance—no job. All the pleas of a starved-out worker to be put to work and have the fee deducted from the first week's pay fall on deaf ears.

The job won't last a week, you see. These human vultures don't grow fat on putting a worker into a permanent job. The scheme they work in conjunction with a certain group of employers is to get the fee out of a worker, put him to work for a week or so and have him back looking for another job and shelling out another fee inside of no time. Great scheme, isn't it?

No Jobs in Sight.

The peculiar thing is that the state financed employment office on Pear street, run by the American Legion is daily crowded by able bodied men and women, and some not so able bodied as a result of the late lamented fight for democracy.

All day these men and women hang around this office, and seldom is there a job in sight. No fees you see. And we are now living in a period of republican Coolidge prosperity. What a damned lie.

DISABLED WAR VETERANS TOLD BY U. S. THEY MUST LIVE ON $20.00 MONTHLY, HOLMES GOES ON TOUR

By EMIL E. HOLMES

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., Aug. 2.—The writer and several disabled comrades are on a tour of Minnesota for the purpose of attempting to place the facts before the workers on the causes of war. We do not seek sympathy—we shall ask only co-operation to spread our message.

My case is similar to hundreds. I have today received a letter from the U. S. veterans' bureau, saying in part: "You are informed that you were given a rating of temporary partial 25 per cent. with compensation payments at the rate of $20.00 per month on your disability of tuberculosis, pulmonary, chronic, arrested and plouri sy."

Also I was informed that when necessary I could apply for hospital treatment. Doctors tell me that to undertake any sort of work that will envolve lifting and etc., will in all probability mean that my case will again become active.

This has been the almost immediate result, of hundreds of boys who like myself, went into the army in good health and because of gas came out with T. B. We can not enjoy much prosperity at twenty dollars per month however, so what are we to do?

At every turn we find many applicants for every job, nothing seemed left but a campaign to bring the real story of war to the workers. We will appreciate requests and co-operation on the arrangements of meetings, to secure a meeting requests should be made at an early date.

NEEDLE TRADES WORKER PLEDGES SELF TO AID COMMUNIST STRUGGLE

In the special New York needle trades edition of the DAILY WORKER recently distributed here, we made an appeal to the workers in the needle trades engaged in the struggle to join the Party. The following is copy of a letter containing an application for membership, which we think merits publication. You will note we use the name Chas. B. instead of his full name.

"I believe that the place for every class-conscious worker is the Workers Party, the party which is based upon the principles of class struggle and make no compromise with the exploiting class.

"I came to this conclusion following the struggle that is going on between the so-called left and right wing in our cloakmakers' union. This fight revealed the real friends and traitors in our movement.

"I pledge myself to apply all my intelligence and ability to enlighten my fellow workers to join the Workers Party.

Yours for the social revolution,

YWL STUDENTS' FAREWELL PARTY GOES OFF BIG

Rock, Michigan, School Term Closes

By RAY AHOLA.

ROCK, Mich., Aug. 2—The commencement exercises of the Y. W. L. Summer School were a great success. About 250 persons were gathered at the main hall from three different states. The crowd would have been larger but many couldn't come on account of the rainstorm.

Were they pleased with our program? You tell the world they were! Our speakers brot them to the edge of their seats. They went wild over our songs and recitations, and our comical dialogues brot them to the point of crying. We also had a play called "Nick in Siberia" which made the hall ring with applause. Little time was left for dancing as the program took up most of the afternoon and evening but dance we did. "Apostles of Pep," our school orchestra, did its duty well.

Departure Came and Tears.

Comrades were sorry to leave the school and to part from their comrades, but the idea of advanced courses next summer cheered them up.

As a whole the courses and also the commencement program was something unheard of before and a success to the full meaning of the word.

The student body wishes to thank the local comrades of Waino for the co-operation they extended to us and also the DAILY WORKER.

Ohio Judge Held.

TOLEDO, Ohio, Aug. 2.—Judge John E. Tanney of Erie County, said to be the youngest judge in the United States, was free on $2,500 bond today, following his arraignment before United States commissioner, F. L. Gaines, here, on a charge of conspiracy in what is said by federal agents to be one of the greatest liquor conspiracy cases unearthed since the enactment of the federal prohibition law.

CLEVELAND LABOR HEARS 'HANDS OFF CHINA' SPEAKERS

Public Square Scene of Big Meeting

CLEVELAND, Ohio, Aug. 2—Fifteen hundred workers gathered at the Public Square here in spite of rain, at the demonstration called by the Workers Party and Young Workers League under the slogans "Hands Off China," and "Stand by Soviet Russia."

The Kuomintang branch of Cleveland joined in the meeting with two speakers, David Lee, and Warren G. Poyd, who described the miseries of the Chinese workers and peasants under the system of foreign industrial, financial and political domination now in vogue.

For Self Government

The speakers pointed out that the Chinese are fighting for the rights of self-government and also for freedom from capitalistic domination, and outlined the program of Dr. Sun Yat Sen, the founder of the Kuomintang party, which is following his teachings in opposing imperialism, and militarism and advocating international unity of the workers.

Alfred Wagenknecht, district organizer of the Workers Party, J. A. Hamilton, local organizer, and Carl Weisberg, organizer of the Young Workers League, also spoke upon various phases of the world-wide class struggle of the workers against capitalist imperialism.

Dunne, Editor of "Daily Worker," Speaks

Bill Dunne, delivered the main speech in which he pointed out the reasons behind the imperialistic designs upon China and against Soviet Russia is not only the greed of the financial interests but also the necessity they are under of finding wider and wider markets for the sale of goods and opportunities for the profitable investment of funds, and that the workers real interest is with the workers of China and Soviet Russia and not with the American financiers plotting against these countries.

The success of the meetings the Workers Party has been holding on the square is shown by the efforts of the police to embarass the meetings. The rule against the sale of merchandize in the public parks has suddenly been so strictly interpreted as to ban the sale of the DAILY WORKER, and at the July 25 meeting, the officers forbade the sale of the daily even on the nearby street corners, on the grounds that the paper had been mentioned in the speeches from the stump.

This is only another instance however of the arbitrary policy pursued by the police department under the administration of public safety director Barry and ought to be a lesson to the Cleveland workers as to what Barry would do in case of a strike situation of any magnitude.

Sunday Picnic Successful

On Sunday the local and district picnic at Willoughbeach Park was a surprising success in view of the very bad weather. "Mother" Bloor had one of her best days, with 28 subs, and Dunne made a well-received speech.

The Struggle Against Loreism in Our Party

By Max Bedacht

I.

WHAT IS LOREISM?

A PARTY of action must strip itself for action. In order to be able to overcome all the numerous obstacles in the path of action the party must cleanse itself of all inner obstacles to action for one on that path.

Loreism is such a serious inner obstacle to action for our party. To eliminate Loreism is a major task of our party at the present time. Our coming convention must mobilize our party completely for the accomplishment of this task.

What is Loreism? Loreism is an American variety of opportunism which manifests itself internationally in this period of temporary lull in the world revolution. This opportunism makes its appearance as Brandlerism in Germany, as Trotskyism in Russia, as Bubnickism in Czecho-Slovakia and as Loreism in America. Thus we find that while Loreism is a specific American product, yet, it is made of a substance that must supply the opportunists in all Communist parties with material for their platforms.

THE rapid development of American capitalism in the last decades has long shut up completely all avenues of escape from an existence as a wage slave that existed for energetic American workers in a limited way in the pioneer days. And the effects of the world war upon the economic structure of America has consolidated the working class. This consolidation is gradually, but surely, killing whatever illusions of "chances" may still exist in the heads of American workers and is thus offering the basis of the formation of the American workers into a political entity as a class.

This process represents a revolutionary event of first importance. It accelerates the development of consciousness and militancy among the workers. It confronts the conscious revolutionary section of the workers with tasks that demand imperatively to stop talking and philosophizing and begin action and organizing. Thus, while in the revolutionary movements and parties of old all sorts of tendencies could philosophize about the labor movement alongside each other within the same organization this "harmony" is no longer possible in this period of action. Action demands ideological unity of the revolutionists.

It is for these reasons that seemingly little differences in conception develop in our movement at the present time into deep going and important deviations. Loreism is such a deviation. The more our party develops into a revolutionary party of action, a Bolshevist party, the more will the foreign substances within our party come to the surface. The tremendous task of our party will need readiness and ability of action. Foreign substances, standing in the way of such action, either must be speedily assimilated in the fire of active Bolshevization and Bolshevist action, or it must be finally eliminated.

LOREISM is such a foreign substance. It presents the American variety of vacillating centrism. Eternal hesitancy before action, vacillation between one road of action and the other, and when action can no longer be avoided the invariable choosing of the wrong road, are the outstanding characteristics of this tendency.

The attitude of this tendency toward the tasks of the party are determined by an essentially petty bourgeois approach. The Communist Party for them is not an integral and inseparable part of the working class, fighting the battles of the workers—not for them, but with them—but it is a sort of settlement work with the task of uplifting. These comrades reason this way: The emancipation of the workers can only be accomplished by the workers themselves. But the workers need education to accomplish it. The party must convey this education to them. That is done with lectures, books, programs, etc. No action is needed. Action is even detrimental—because the education of the workers is not yet completed, they are not ready for action, and under these conditions action becomes adventurism and putchism.

THE total lack of understanding of the tasks of a Communist Party, paired with an utter lack of confidence in the abilities of the working class, itself, always supplies an excuse to these comrades why a certain thing should not be done at a certain time. And their aversion to action is invariably cloaked in a mantle of "realism." This pseudo realism leads to paralysis and is one of the most dangerous manifestations of Loreism.

At the same time we find this opportunism parade under the tune of radical phrases. The division of society into two classes is a very rigid one in the eyes of these comrades. On one side is the proletariat, on the other the bourgeoisie. This concept determines the attitude of these comrades toward the farmers. The farmers belong to the bourgeoisie, ergo they are reactionary enemies of the proletariat and must be combatted. No compromise with them—No alliance. That all sounds very radical, but it is not. It is, in the last analysis, only another argument against hated action. It is fundamentally anti-revolutionary because it attempts to prevent the revolutionary movement from exploiting the inner diviisons of the capitalist class which are especially serious between petty and big bourgeoisie. In place of revolutionary action they want to put on the throne the revolutionary phrase.

THE more rapidly capitalism pushes onward in America, the more the growing class antagonisms call for action, the more dangerous becomes the opportunist, even tho, and the more so when, he covers up his lack of revolutionary energy and understanding with a revolutionary phrase.

A shining example of this manifestation of Loreism is an article written and published by Comrade Lore two months ago about the Chinese situation. In this article Lore declares that the present struggle in China is a nationalist one, that the workers fighting under the banner of nationalism hope to free themselves from oppression. But that is Utopia, says Lore. First English, French, Japanese, etc., imperialism is so strong that the Cihense workers have no chance of victory. And even if they would accomplish the impossible it would not mean anything because the foreign exploiter would be replaced by the Chinese exploiter and things would remain for the Chinese workers as they are today. The only way to emancipation for the Chinese worker lies in the Communist revolution. But, so concludes Lore, the time for that has not yet come.

HERE we have opportunism in "Reinkultur." Here is the logical conclusion: A nationalist fight useless—a Communist fight premature; therefore why fight. No understanding of the dialectics of social struggles which can make and do make a Communist fight out of a national one, which made a proletarian revolution out of a bourgeois one. No understanding of the international character of all proletarian struggles in the age of imperialism; no inkling of the possibility that what may start as a nationalist revolt in India or China may end as a proletarian revolt in England or elsewhere. Revolutionary in phrase, but anti-revolutionary in practice, that is the leading characteristic of Loreism.

RED ARMY CHIEF WELCOMES GERMAN LABOR

AS WE SEE IT

By T. J. O'FLAHERTY

THE executive council of the American Federation of Labor has repudiated its feeble and faltering adventure in the direction of a political party, in opposition to the parties of the democrats and republicans, when it returned to the mis-named nonpartisan policy sacred to the bureaucracy, which never misses an opportunity to support one or other of the old parties according as their individual interests may be served. When the executive council decided to support LaFollette in the last election, it did so by a majority of one, Gompers casting the decisive vote. Green was opposed to this policy.

EVEN Gompers supported LaFollette under pressure from the rank and file. Coolidge's prosperity promises and threats of unemployment with other factors helped the G. O. P. to bury the LaFollette campaign. At the present time there is little enthusiasm among the workers for a break with the democratic and republican parties. The elections are away off and while the capitalist parties are preparing their fences the workers are apathetic. But this apathy is only short lived, and the ukase of the labor bureaucracy against independent working class political action will prove as effective as old King Canute's order to the tide.

THE barrage against Mussolini conducted by the Chicago Tribune still continues. What the devoted Trib is now publishing appeared many times in the DAILY WORKER. We did not expose Mussolini merely because of the methods he uses to maintain his dictatorship. It's the dictatorship of any other class but the working class that we are opposed to. And when somebody rises to say, that we are everything but democratic, we plead guilty to the charge but at the same time claim that the will of ninety-five per cent of the population even when expressed thru a dictatorship is more democratic in the real sense than the rule of five per cent over the ninety-five per cent, under the camouflage of a democracy.

FRANCE is fighting for civilization in Morocco. At least this is what Premier Painleve tells us. And no less a person that Karl Von Wiegand, German correspondent for the Hearst papers reinforces Painleve's statement. When France was fighting against Germany both Germany and France were fighting for civilization. So far, Abd-El-Krim only claims to be fighting for the freedom of his country from French and Spanish rule. And despite Arthur Brisbane's airplanes, Krim seems to be doing nicely.

THE British tories are not at all pleased over the turn taken by the coal strike negotiations. Baldwin bought peace at too dear a price they claim. The addition to the taxation burden is not what bothers those gentlemen so much as the moral effect of the government being forced to surrender to the might of the workers. Should the workers get the idea into their heads that they possess the power to make all the British capitalists bite the dust, the British tories would not have to worry about taxes.

MASS PICKETING TO CONTINUE AT GARMENT PLANT

Striker Is Arrested; Benefits Are Paid

The striking members of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers Union will continue to picket the struck plant of the International Tailoring company and the J. L. Taylor company exactly as they have during the past five weeks, it was announced at the strike meeting yesterday. Judge Hugo Pam's decision, upholding the constitutionality of the Illinois anti-injunction law, but restraining certain forms of picketing, will not hinder the Amalgamated strikers.

The injunction was interpreted by William A. Cunnea to mean that only "violent" picketing is unlawful. The attorneys for the International Tailoring company, however, declare they will endeavor to prevent mass picketing as a result of the writ.

Injunction Not Posted

The International company is obviously disappointed that all forms of picketing were not outlawed by Pam. No copies of the injunction have as yet been posted on the walls of the struck building at 847 West Jackson, the usual procedure when an injunction is issued. It is reported that the International is contemplating ignoring the injunction until an appeal can be taken, or a test case be taken to the supreme court.

Picket Is Arrested

One more arrest has been made, Tony Gollotti, a picket, being kept in jail for several hours before his release on $400.00 bond.

The strike meeting at Hod Carriers' Hall was well attended yesterday. All seats were taken and the strikers were standing along the walls. They were enthusiastic over the upholding of the anti-injunction law, and loudly applauded the statement of business agent Rothbart that picketing would continue exactly as it has in the past.

Strike Benefits Paid

The J. L. Taylor company, which is owned by the same employers, but separately incorporated, will apply for an injunction on Thursday and the fight must be waged in court all over again it is rumoured.

But the strikers know that their battle for union conditions will not be won or lost in any court, and they are determined to picket in the face of court orders or police clubs.

The usual strike benefits were given out yesterday, $12.00 to strikers with dependents, and $8.00 to single strikers.

Cunnea was in conference with the Amalgamated officials yesterday as to the meaning of the injunction issued by Judge Pam.

Picketing Is Lawful

The verbal decision rendered by Judge Pam stated, "Now, gentlemen, you have my opinion. I am upholding the constitutionality of the Act (Cuthbertson anti-injunction act.) I will refuse to grant any injunction in this case which prohibits picketing in itself. I recognize the right of labor to peaceful picketing and persuasion."

Lawyers for both the Amalgamated and the International presented to Judge Pam forms for the writ, and Pam did not use Cunnea's form as his model, but amended the writ proposed by the employers.

Discuss Resignations of Feinberg and Perlstein

(Special to The Daily Worker)

NEW YORK CITY, Aug. 3—The resignations of Feinberg and Perlstein from the Joint Board were discussed this evening at Cooper Union, at a meeting of shop chairmen and shop committees called by the joint committee of action, of locals 2, 9 and 22.

The call for the meeting went out to the members on Friday, and they were urged to remember that the battle is not yet won; that Feinberg and Perlstein are still vice-presidents of the union; that the joint board machine is still in power and as corrupt as ever; and that until these things are changed and the expelled members of the union are re-instated, the fight must go on.

The meeting tonight discussed the events of this past week and made plans for the future, especially with reference to the shops and the workers' jobs.

THOUSANDS ATTEND WORKERS' PICNIC, VILNIS WINS POPULARITY CONTEST, ENGDAHL AND DUNNE SPEAK

Four thousand workers attended the fourth annual workers' press picnic at Riverview picnic grove, Belmont and Western Ave., Sunday, to enjoy the dancing, games and music, and to listen to the speeches of J. Louis Engdahl and William F. Dunne, editors of the DAILY WORKER.

Vilnis, the Lithuanian Communist paper, carried off the Communist press popularity contest, with 14,020 votes, Rovnost Ludu coming second with 10,256 votes and the Metal Trades Worker taking the booby prize with 140 votes. Each vote cost one cent and there was much rivalry for the prizes, which were a percentage of the receipts.

The picnic grove was decorated with red banners bearing slogans coined by Marx and Lenin, and posters with pictures of the Communist leaders. The banner of the South Slavic Federation, with pictures fo Marx, Lenin and Ruthenberg, entitled "Our Leaders," excited much comment.

One of the novelties of the picnic was a wall newspaper. The large borders depicting workers and farmers hailing the red dawn of the Communist revolution, was painted by Lydia Gibsop. The newspaper carried articles by worker correspondents describing the meaning of the workers' press, and giving humorous quips at the expense of the bosses. Hundreds of those present took delight in pulling the long tail that was fastened to the caricature of William Jennings Bryan.

The DAILY WORKER did not take part in the voting for the most popular newspaper, as forty per cent of the receipts went to the Communist English daily, and it was taken for granted that the DAILY

POLICE KNOW WHO ARE ENEMIES OF THE BOSS; ARREST LEFT WINGERS

NEW YORK CITY, Aug. 3.—A fine of $10 each was imposed on Abraham Lupin, Anna Solomon, C. S. Zimmerman and L. Greenberg who were arrested on July 22 in front of 164 West 25th street.

These defendants were arraigned in Jefferson Market Court and the hearing in the case took three days. Altho Zimmerman was arrested because he urged an officer to arrest one of the thugs who was attacking the pickets, and altho the others had committed no offense and were simply peacefully picketing, all of them were found guilty of disorderly conduct and fined.

FRUNZE, COMMANDER OF SOVIET FORCES, WELCOMES DELEGATION OF WORKERS VISITING RUSSIA

YALE UNIVERSITY AUG 11 1925 LIBRARY

(By International Press Correspondence.)

MOSCOW, U. S. S. R., July 17—(By Mail)—Comrade Michael Frunze has published an article in the Pravda entitled "Welcome!", in which amongst other things, he says:

"The awakening interest of wide circles of workers in Europe in the work of reconstruction in Soviet Russia is one of the most significant phenomena of the present time. The many workers delegations which were recently our guests and who represented all possible shades of political opinion, are proof of a profound psychological change which has taken place in the West European working masses.

"The working masses seem to lose ever more their confidence in that picture of affairs in the Soviet Union presented to them by the bourgeois and social democratic press. The truth begins to be victorious.

To See for Themselves.

"The working class feels that the actual situation in the Soviet Union is very different from what they have been informed. However, they do not dare to take the word of the all too few friends who are prepared to tell them the real truth. Therefore, they have decided to form their own opinions upon the basis of their own observations.

"A few days ago we parted from the Franco-Belgian delegation. At the moment we are greeting a numerous German delegation which consists exclusively of workers from the shops. This fact is sufficient to insure them the warmest possible greeting in all parts of the Soviet Union, quite apart from their political opinions. They can be sure that not the smallest detal of our life and work will remain hidden from them.

Joy in Victories—Sympathy in Defeats.

"The working masses of the Soviet Union know that our successes will awaken the spirit of common joy and proletarian pride, and that our deficiencies and mistakes will not awaken a malicious pleasure in them, but honest sympathy and the fraternal wish to help us.

"The workers of the Soviet Union can with an easy conscience show the German workers many important things. Above all, the feeling of lack of confidence in their own strength that is given to the German workers by the disruptive and oppor-

GREEN UPHOLDS SCAB POLICY IN GARMENT STRIKE

Praises Renegades for Scoring Communists

Commendation for denouncing the Communist and condemnation for giving verbal support to the Amalgamated Clothing Workers in its strike against the International Tailoring company, was the double barreled massage sent by President William Green, of the American Federation of Labor to the Chicago central body. The letter was read to the delegates attending last Sunday's meeting of the federation.

The Chicago Federation of Labor took the position that the action of the United Garment Workers in recruiting strikebreakers for the International Tailoring company, against which the Amalgamated was on strike, was a piece of scabbery and could not be condoned by the labor unions of Chicago. This action was urged on the Federation by the DAILY WORKER, the Trade Union Educational League and the Communists in the locals.

As the Communists surmised, the attack made on them by Fitzpatrick and Nockels at the same time as the resolution against the United Garment Workers was passed, had for its object a form of protection against the wrath of Green for opposing what Jeff Peters of O. Henry's story would say a "legitimate form of scabbery" that is, scabbery conducted respectably under the banner and label of the American Federation of Labor.

Fitz Said Wright was Right

Prior to the reading of the communication from president Green, delegate Lichinstein, of Painters No. 275, created a mild sensation when he denounced the United Garment Workers' as a scab organization, and not only that but he deplored the general deterioration of trade unionism, as exemplified by some international unions. He instanced cases where labor leaders deliberately broke strikes on their own members.

Perhaps he was referring to Berry of the printing pressmen. What ever

FRENCH DRIVE ON RIFF FAILS TO MATERIALIZE

Natives Mass Troops Opposite to Quezaan

PARIS, France, Aug. 3—Riffians are massing around Ouezzan, sixty miles northeast of Fez, Moroccan capital, to repel any attack of the European invaders in that sector. The French have been bringing up troops and heavy artillery.

The long heralded attack on the Moroccans, which the French boasted would drive the Riffians to destruction, has not materialized. The war office announces that the drive will begin when the heat of summer has passed.

However, it is known that the Spanish have not yet signed an agreement to aid a proposed French attack to any real extent, and England has made it understood that she frowns on any maneuver that would establish either France or Spain opposite the English fortress of Gibralter.

The American Negro and the Proletarian Revolution

The following resolution was unanimously adopted by the Parity Commission for submission to the National Convention of the Workers (Communist) Party to held August 21:

The Negro in American History.

THE Negro has played an important role in American history. First his labor transformed the southern wilderness into an empire. More than a score of heroic slave revolts enrich the forgotten pages of American history. The smoldering fire of slave rebellion was one of the immediate forces impelling the first centralization of the government of the capitalist republic—the adoption of the constitution and the formation of the national army.

From being a passive center of the bloody struggle of 1861, the Negro was transformed in three short years into the black shock troops which helped to turn the tide of war against the southern oligarchy. Thus the Negro toiler played also his part in the consolidation of the capitalist republic.

"Abolition," however, did not free the Negro laborer from all of the impediments of chattel slavery. The decade of "reconstruction" closed with a rapprochment between the northern capitalist class and the defeated southern landlords, who obtained a free hand to exploit the Negro masses to whom the land was not allotted and who remained in a position of semi-slavery, politically disfranchised, victimized by super-exploitation and by exception laws.

TODAY the majority (about 8,000,000) of the Negro population consists of exploited farmers (mostly landless tenants) and agricultural laborers, and has a status little above serfdom. About one-third (4,000,000) of the Negro population are residents of cities, towns and industrial districts, where their occupations range from domestic and miscellaneous labor to industrial labor in the heavy industries. Practically without exception these are held by law and custom within the bounds of a labor caste, segregated, habitually terrorized, and exploited to a greater degree than any other section of the proletariat.

Nevertheless, unlike the Negro rural population, a large portion of this group, especially in northern industrial centers, has won the right to exercise the franchise. A number of them have come into the labor unions and consequently have been drawn directly into the general struggles of the American working class. From the Negro industrial workers the leadership of the American Negro mass movement must come.

The "Negro bourgeoisie" is but a petty-bourgeois section, small in number and of little significance as exploiters except insofar as they become agents of the big (white) bourgeoisie in the role of poisonous propagandists in reformist race movements or in capitalist political parties. With the latter exception the Negro petty-bourgeoisie as a whole itself suffers under racial persecution.

In chattel slavery the aspiration of the Negro was to attain the condition of "free labor"—the wage slavery of the white worker. The remaining special inabilities of the Negro discrimination in employment, exclusion from trade unions, inequality of pay, cause great masses of Negro workers even today ot regard the position of the white worker in industry as one

NEW BLOOD BATH OF CHINESE SHOT DOWN BY BRITISH RIFLES SETS SMOLDERING CHINA AFLAME

(Special to The Daily Worker)

SHANGHAI, China, Aug. 3.—The opinion of the imperialist nations that the upheaval of the Chinese people against foreign oppressors would subside if Peking diplomats only would stall along and delay settlement with mere promises of future fair dealing, is seen to be a completely mistaken estimate of the Chinese national liberation movement.

Every day's delay and every new deception only embitters the Chinese and adds new fuel to the flames.

British Using Rifles, Killing Four

Yesterday, when Chinese workers at Nanking demanded the wages due them from the International Export Company, a British concern, they were provoked by clubbing and insults and finally fired upon by British with rifles, killing four Chinese. One Britisher was also killed in the melee.

Students then began to round up British thruout the city, capturing one and taking him to the university, while the others fled to the refuge of foreign warships. American bluejackets from the U. S. gunboats landed to post a guard over foreign properties.

Food and water are being cut off from the British by the Chinese boycott thruout all Chinese ports.

Soviet Unionists Arrive at Shanghai.

A delegation of five from the All-Russian Trade Union Council arrived here in response to the invitation from the All-China Federation of Trade Unions to investigate the Shanghai strike situation. The head of the delegation, addressing a meeting of Shanghai unionists, greeted them in the name of the Red International of Labor Unions and declared that the workers and peasants of Soviet Russia are deeply interested in the conditions of the Chinese workers and peasants.

The indignation of the Chinese people is increasing at the continued deception and slighting of the Chinese by the foreign diplomats. They are asking why the original report of the diplomatic commission which investigated the Shanghai massacre was suppressed, and are charging that Britain and other imperialist powers are now preparing a whitewash of the bloodthirsty municipal council in a new inquiry.

Charge Whitewash of Shanghai Council.

C. T. Wang, member of the Chinese high commission named by the Peking government states:

"Why a judicial inquiry now? Had such an inquiry started immediately after the deplorable affair in Shanghai it would have been very proper. Being a lawyer, I would have supported it. However, the diplomatic corps took a different course when it appointed a special commission of inquiry which went to Shanghai, investigated and reported to the diplomatic body.

"The Chinese government was duly informed that the Italian and French ministers and the American charge d'affaires would represent the interested powers in dealing with us. The Chinese government agreed in this case. Suddenly the French minister declined to serve. The report was pigeonholed and the matter was allowed to drift while the Chinese in Shanghai suffered the great hardships.

British Ignore Chinese Severeignity.

"After more than a month Austen Chamberlain, British foreign minister, announced in the house of commons that a judicial inquiry would be instituted without even troubling to inform the Chinese government regarding the change in the procedure. Naturally the Chinese are justified in asking why this change was made."

While expressing admiration for the British people, Wang declares that the British government's proposal for judicial inquiry "outrages decency and justice," and gives Great Britain the appearance of wishing to whitewash the Shanghai municipal council. He inquires whether the report of the diplomatic commission was favorable or unfavorable to the council.

"Can the government impose its will upon another without the latter's consent?" Mr. Wang demands. The other members of the Chinese high commission assume a similar attitude.

Anfu Party Meeting Disfavor.

In spite of this pro-liberation sentiment showing definitely in such high places, the Peking government is more and more arousing against it the hostility of millions of Chinese because the provisional president, Tuan Chi-jui, is lining up with the imperialists and is supporting Chang Tso-lin in his efforts to suppress the Shanghai strike.

The political party of reaction among the Chinese, the Anfu clique, controls Tuan Chi-jui, a weak personality, and it is claimed that the real ruler is Tsao Ju-lin, a crafty politician of the Anfu clique known all over the orient as "Japan's best friend."

Speed Naval Armament.

NORFOLK, Va., Aug. 3.—That the United States government is speeding its war preparations is shown by the arrival at the Norfolk navy yard of the battleship Texas, to undergo modernization. Several other large battleships will also be remodeled.

WILLIAM J. BRYAN WAS MEMBER OF KU KLUXERS, IS CHARGE

WASHINGTON, Aug. 3.—Was William Jennings Bryan a ku klux klansman?

This question was being asked here following reports from Ohio that klan chapters there had held memorial services for him and carried banners praising him as "The greatest klansman."

Local klan officials said they "thot" the commoner was a member, because they had "heard his name in councils," but they were uncertain.

prince, and another thing, the imperial power of Germany is only hitting on one or two cylinders while the British empire managed to jog along on four. There are thousands of German workers who would also like to travel around a bit but they cannot eat sauerkraut and pay traveling expenses at the same time.

IF there is any luck attending the crown prince, he should be thankful that he is not the son of the czar of Russia instead of the son of kaiser Wilhelm. He would now be performing useful service to some part of the Soviet Union, by contributing to its fertility. No doubt the carcass of a prince makes good fertilizer. The price was lucky that yellow socialists and not Bolshevists ruled the political and economic organizations of the workers when the revolution that sent his father to Holland broke in 1918. But perhaps the prince might live to see another revolution. If he does unless, he has a fleet pair of legs, it is not likely that he will live to write its history.

tunist social democratic leadership and which cripples their revolutionary energy and readiness to fight, will be destroyed.

"The German comrades will see the working class of Soviet Russia which is building up its Soviet house with determination and decison. They will be convinced that despite the greatest cultural backwardness, despite the greatest material and technical difficulties, this work is not going badly.

Show Both Good and Bad.

"On several fields of our economy, we have reached already the pre-war level, and in some cases we have passed it. In one or two years we hope to reach the pre-war level in our whole economy. Taking our poverty andl backwardness into consideration, and the opposition of the entire surrounding bourgeois world, this is no small success.

"We shall show the German comrades also the shady sides of the picture. There are quite a number of these with us. For instance, we are only just beginning to carry on the work on the land properly, as earlier we had neither the strength nor the means, nor the time for it. We have now accumulated certain means and in the immediate future we hope to see a very great step forward in the villages also."

Fascist Violence Overcomes Opponents Votes at Palermo

ROME, Italy, Aug. 3.—The fascist party, following its usual policy of ruling over elections with bayonets and clubs, took the municipal elections at Palermo altho the opposition had the overwhelming majority of the votes. The fascists took 50 seats by violence, and the opposition was allowed thirty.

During the election the fascists attacked the headquarters of the opposition and one of their number was seriously injured.

U. M. W. OFFICIALS DENY PLEDGE TO AID BRITISH, LEWIS NOT INTERESTED

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Aug. 3.—Denial that the United Mine Workers of America had promised to aid in the general strike of the British miners, was made here on Thursday, while the British strike was still expected, by Phil Murray, vice-president, and Thomas Kennedy, secretary-treasurer, of the U. M. W. of A. when asked about a report from Paris that the American Mine Workers' Union had pledged itself to "carry out any action the Miners' International would ask." Lewis, when asked, said he was sleepy and was going to bed. So much for his interest in the British miners' strike.

The report from Paris on Thursday last quoted M. Vignez, secretary of the Miners' International as announcing such a pledge had been made in response to a cable sent the U. M. W. of A. by Frank Hodges.

This is now officially denied by Murray and Kennedy, who add that they "are unable to explain Mr. Hodges' remarks." Evidently no reliance can be placed upon the officials of the U. M. W. of A. to support the struggle of the British or any other miners.

ENDING OF HARD COAL SITTINGS SEEMS CERTAIN

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Aug. 3.—Early collapse of the conference between representatives of the anthracite miners and operators, who have been meeting here for three weeks considering the miners' demands for increased wages, was foreseen today as the result of the demand of John L. Lewis, international president of the Mine Workers, that the operators end their "shadow boxing" and send representatives empowered to act.

Unofficial word reached here from Samuel D. Warriner, chairman of the operators' committee, who is at Lancaster, Pa., that the personnel of the operators' committee would not be changed.

This was regarded here as meaning that the conference would break up soon after the next session, scheduled for next Tuesday, reconvenes. Lewis is declared to be determined to end the sessions here unless the operators send representatives who will not have to report back to higher officers.

A strike call is certain to go out, it was reported here, in the event the negotiations are broken off. It is believed, however, that the federal government will step in and attempt to bring about a settlement immediately if such action is taken. And Lewis, in that case, would again betray the miners by giving in, it is thot

Union leaders have accused the operators of desiring a strike so that surplus coal stocks may be "worked off" at famine prices. The operators, however, have denied this and countered the miners' charged with a suggestion that the miners continue to operate the mines pending a decision of outside arbitration.

The present wage agreement will expire at the end of this month. At the present there appears no prospects of a new contract being signed before September 1.

was the reason, delegate Wright of the printers, tho not a member of Berry's union, rose to a point of order against delegate Lichenstein. He said that the painter was not speaking to the question, and in elaboration of his point, declared that the object of the federation's action was to "bring about peace in industry" while Lichenstein's remarks were liable to create more turmoil.

Chairman Fitzpatrick declared the point well taken and motioned Lichenstein to proceed, which Lichenstein did to the approval of a large number of delegates who applauded his speech.

Finally the painter finished his remarks and peace reigned supreme until the clerk read Green's letter. The portion referring to the Communists is the old boilerplate that every stoolpigeon in the United States knows better than a craw-thumping bush babtist knows the old testament. But what he had to say about the Amalgamated was plenty. Those who expected Green to favor the entrance of the Amalgamated into the American Federation of Labor were over sanguine, if Green's letter means what it says.

It frankly states that the Chicago Federation of Labor was not acting in accordance with neither the letter or the spirit of the laws and usages of the A. F. of L. when it supported a "dual and seceding union" against the United Garment Workers, which is affiliated with the A. F. of L. The Amalgamated was refused admittance to the A. F. of L. Green continued, and they can never return until they first make terms with Rickert and company.

The Philadelphia convention, Green declared warned all bodies affiliated to the A. F. of L. to give no recognition to the Amalgamated. Who chartered the Amalgamated? Who gave them jurisdiction over certain work? How can the A. F. of L. recognize an organization it did not charter? These were some of the questions Green hurled at the Chicago Federation of Labor.

The ethical aspect of the case—meaning the scabbery—was not involved Green insisted. It was only a matter of rules and procedure. He was in office to discharge his official duties, and while regretting the "unfortunate conditions in the Chicago clothing market" he warned the local central body that "dual and seceding organizations can only return to the fold of the A. F. of L. after preliminary agreement with the officers of the union from which they seceded."

During the discussion which followed reading the letter, delegate Lichenstein again took the floor and aroused the wrath of delegate Fitchie of the Milk Wagon Drivers' Union. Fitchie rose to a point of order and proceeded to make a speech, excoriating the language of delegate Lichenstein, who was talking for honest trade unionism.

"We have been listening to this kind of talk for five years and it is about time it should stop" declared Fitchie, a giant hulk of a man who very rarely attends the sessions of the federation. While he was getting his anger off his chest a delegate shouted "sit down." and a considerable section of the delegates applauded the suggestion. But this is just the way Fitchie could not be induced to sit down. His 250 pounds of beef and muscle hurtled madly across the floor inviting the hardy wight who urged him to resume a sitting posture to reveal his identity. When the animated mountain of protoplasm was in front of the chairman's table, with delegate Wright impeding his progress by hanging on to the tail of his coat, a hardy delegate rose and said: "I told you sit down." This delegate a structural iron warkers, appeared to have a soothing effect on the angry Fitchie and he retired to his chair, having changed his mind about eathing up the delegates for lunch.

Lichenstein, continued to talk and say things. He said that it was time scabbery in the American Federation of Labor died a violent death and his international union would help to put the tin hat on it. He wore Amalgamated labels on his clothes and he said the members of his local were heart and soul for the Amalgamated in the present strike. He also accused Rickert of selling his label to convict labor contractors. Perhaps this may be news to the noted crusader against convict labor, Kate Richards O'Hare who is now on the payroll of the United Garment Workers and of the National Garment Manufacturers' Association.

A Monocled Delegate

Earlier in the discussion delegate Sorderberg of the Journeymen Tailors, a well dressed gentlemen (that's what some of those fellows call each other) expressed his indignation against the Amalgamated and said that the only labels the A. F. of L. recognized were those of the organization and Rickert's outfit. Sodérberg wore a monocle after the fashion of the Duke of Cornwall and Ellis Searles, editor of the United Mine Workers Journal.

Fitzpatrick hopped rather lightly on to Sorderberg stating that the question of labels was not at issue at all in the case. It was a question of scabbing, he said. Fitzpatrick, commenting on Green's reference to the history of the conflict between the two unions, said that the Chicago Federation of Labor, obeyed the order of the A. F. of L. to disaffiliate 35,000 garment workers who broke with Rickert from the local body. "And we will continue to obey the orders of the American Federation of Labor and to follow its policy no matter where that policy may lead us." he said.

Delegates With Amalgamated

There was no question where the majority of the delegates stood on the matter. They are against union strikebreaking. It is equally clear that the Amalgamated strikers would be unwise to rely much on the assistance they may expect to receive from officials like Fitzpatrick and Nockels who give lip service to the cause of honest trade unionism yet are willing to follow a rotten policy "no matter where it leads."

Edward Nockels finally moved the previous question and Green's letter was referred to the executive committee.

Several local unions, having offices in the Federation Building were declared in arrears with rent, some of them for over three years.

The delegates stood in silence for one minute in memory of John Sullivan of the Flat Janitors' Union, who died recently.

Nomination for delegates to the next convention of the Illinois Federation of Labor will be held at the next meeting and elections will take place at the meeting after.

"Pink haired" Charles Wills, business manager of the Federation News, was silent last Sunday. It is reported that the machinists panned him for his fulminations against the progressives in the union.

Raise Class Struggle Standards Against This Nonpartisan Betrayal

By J. LOUIS ENGDAHL.

TODAY, the officialdom of the American Federation of Labor stands recommitted to its worm-eaten non-partisan political policy. In following LaFollette last year it wandered just a little from its "reward our friends and punish our enemies" position held for years under the leadership of Gompers, who confined the working out of the policy to the capitalist parties alone, fighting all attemtps of the workers at class political action.

• • • •

But gone are the days when this policy of political class-collaboration can be put over with impunity. Gone with the death of Gompers! Gone with the passing of LaFollette! Gone with the wrecking of the hope, to which American labor has desperately clung, that something good can come out of the Wall Street parties, especially because they contain some so-called "good men".

Five million men and women, mostly workers, voted for the LaFollette-Wheeler "progressive ticket" last year because they thought it was a break with the republican and democratic parties. There was to be a new deal of some kind. Instead of building their own labor party the workers were duped into accepting this burlesque of a bourgeois third party. Today these workers stand disillusioned. They must make the next move. They will not all go backward.

The announcement of the A. F. of L. bureaucracy that it is going back into the camp of the capitalist parties comes quick on the heels of the declaration of LaFollette, Jr., that he wants to take the place of his father as republican senator from Wisconsin. Both moves are indications that their sponsors feel the masses will forget and return to their serfdom in the political citadels of the capitalist foe.

The whole political development since last November's election has sharpened the cleavage between labor and capital in the arena of politics. The twilight zone that might have been presented by a third party has been swept away. William Green, the present head of the A. F. of L., a democrat like Sam Gompers before him, is trying vainly to call into being another such a twilight zone in the resurrection of the non-partisan policy. This political strategy never appealed to the workers in the cities, and the poor farmers got their fill of it in the betrayals of the Nonpartisan League.

• • • •

The fight of the rank and file of the unions against class-collaboration policies, and their instinctive revolt against the expulsion, suspension or discipline of militants, is sufficient indication that the workers do not intend to readopt the degrading role of meek lambs in the oft-repeated labor tragedy of "The Lion and the Lamb", in which the lion and the lamb are supposed to lie down together in peace and harmony, according to the best precepts of the National Civic Federation. The experience has always been that the lamb has been found inside the lion; the workers betrayed to their exploiters. This is what William Green and Matthew Woll, and others of the A. F. of L. executive council, which also includes T. A. Rickert, head of the United Garment Workers of America, that is leading the strikebreakers against the Amalgamated Clothing Workers' strike in Chicago, are trying to do in the political struggle.

Rickert's scabbing in the industrial war now raging in Chicago's clothing industry, that received the condemnation of the Chicago Federation of Labor, is typical of the political scabbery espoused by the A. F. of L.'s non-partisan political policy.

Against the class-collaboration of their officials, the workers and poor farmers will raise the standards of the class struggle more vigorously than ever. Against the endorsement of "good men" on the democratic and republican tickets the energetic fight for the labor party enlisting the broadest masses of those who toil, those whose sufferings are increased by the alliance of the labor bureaucracy with the capitalists.

The readoption of its once discarded "non-partisan policy", by the A. F. of L. officialdom, is a challenge to American organized workers that will be answered quickly by a closing of ranks in the class fight against all labor's oppressors.

KLAN MURDERED WOMAN FOUND IN WELL, IS CHARGE

She Had Opposed K K K and Been Threatened

MATTOON, Ill., Aug. 3.—The ku klux klan here today was charged with attempting to coerce or persecute Miss Cora Stallman, 48, whose body was found in a cistern on her sister's farm home Saturday shortly after Miss Stallman had received a threattening message signed "K. K. K."

Thomas Seaman, brother-in-law of the dead woman, who found her body resting in a sitting position at the bottom of the cistern, revealed that he, Miss Stallman and others in the community who had not encouraged the klan, had recently received mysterious messages purporting to come from the "invisible empire."

Belief that Miss Stallman, a graduate of the University of Cincinnati, drowned herself because of fear inspired by the messages, was dispelled when a coroner's examination showed there was no water in the lungs. Neither were there any marks of violence. Vital organs were to be sent to the university of Illinois chemists at Urbana today to determine whether or not poison had been administered.

Klansmen tried to disprove connection of their membership with the apparent murder.

SOMETHING TO FIGHT FOR SEEN IN SWOLLEN RAIL PROFITS; MAY RAISE WAGE AND STILL PROFIT

By LELAND OLDS
(Federated Press Industrial Editor)

How the railroads have been increasing their profits for stockholders by laying off men is shown in an analysis of the net income of 38 important roads for the first 5 months of 1925 by The Wall Street Journal. The figures show that a majority have increased their net return compared with 1924 and that two-thirds report a larger return on their stock than in either 1924 or 1923.

Notable increases in net income for the first 5 months, compared with the same period of 1924 include: Santa Fe 20 per cent, Southern 13 per cent, Louisville and Nashville 32 per cent, Missouri Pacific 23 per cent, New Haven 14 per cent, Chesapeake and Ohio 11 per cent, Great Northern 15 per cent, Norfolk and Western 49 per cent, Big Four 26 per cent, Lehigh Valley 28 per cent, Wabash 34 per cent, Nickel Plate 23 per cent, Delaware and Hudson 50 per cent and Pere Marquette 18 per cent increase.

"Widows and Orphans" Get Fat Profits

Indicated returns to common stockholders for well-known roads compare with the actual returns in 1924 and 1925 as follows:

Railroad	1925 Pct.	1924 Pct.	1923 Pct.
Baltimore & Ohio	8.8	9.2	15.4
Chesapeake & Ohio	18.7	16.8	12.5
D. L. & W.	16.8	16.4	14.2
Lehigh Valley	16.6	12.0	14.2
New York Central	10.6	12.9	16.9
Nickel Plate	15.8	14.2	15.1
Pennsylvania	7.4	7.6	9.0
Reading	20.2	17.6	25.8
Atlantic Coast Line	22.1	19.3	18.6
Illinois Central	11.7	12.4	13.5
Louisville & Nashville	13.1	12.2	11.5
Southern	13.6	12.3	10.1
Santa Fe	14.8	15.4	15.4
Chicago and North western	6.1	4.2	4.9
Southern Pacific	7.5	10.2	12.9
Union Pacific	11.4	14.3	16.1

Combined Net Profit Gaining.

The combined net profits of all the railroads of the country for the first five months of 1925 a mount to $345,-900,340, a gain of approximately $30,-000,000 over the same period of 1924. The return on the heavily inflated property investment claimed by railroad owners declined from 43.38 per cent to 4.27 per cent due to increase in the investment account in the interval.

A profit of $72.73 per $100 share reported by the Michigan Central railroad for 1924 shows the possibility of exorbitant returns to the owners in the present rate and wage structure of the railroad industry. The net earnings amounted to $13,627,533 on $18,736,400 capital stock. Such earnings are the usual thing with Michigan Central. Last year stockholders' profits amounted to $14,176,448, a return of 75.7 per cent.

The New York Central owns $17,-764,700 of this stock and the profits go to the New York Central capitalists.

Boston Mayor Asks Strikebreaker Cal to Trim Building Toilers

BOSTON, Aug. 3.—Arbitration is already under way in the case of the Boston Street Carmen's Union's dispute with the Boston elevated system for wage increases from 72 to 95 cents an hour and arbitrations is on the horizon in the building trades' dispute between the Building Laborers' Union, demanding increases from 65 to 70 cents an hour to 77½ and 80 cents and the Building Trades Employers' Association.

The Boston elevated system was persuaded to follow the union's arbitration program by an overwhelming strike vote and the new trend of the Building Trades Employers' Association towards arbitration follows the declaration of the United Building Trades Council and the employers each side agreed to lay before its constituent organizations a proposal of Mayor Curley that the issues be thrashed out by a board of seven, three to come from the labor unions, three from the employers and the seventh man to be appointed by President Coolidge.

WOBS' DUALIST CHICKENS COME HOME TO ROOST

Poor Rule That Don't Work Both Ways

SACRAMENTO, Calif. — The so-called "emergency plan" of the I. W. W. splitters has had as one of its main arguments, decentralization and local autonomy. This cry finds foothold in the existing confusion in the organization because of the I. W. W. having not the slightest comprehension of democratic centralization in the conduct of organization.

Decentralization and local autonomy has therefore been in the foreground of the split which has given a terrible blow to the I. W. W. in the Pacific coast region, leaving the lumber, agricultural and general construction workers wholly without an organ of defense against the attacks of the bosses upon wage and hour standards.

No Idea of Democratic Centralization.

Among those who have fought against this tendency, without, however, offering a real plan of democratic centralization, has been Edward E. Anderson, branch secretary in Sacramento of the Agricultural Workers' Union. Lacking as they do constructive proposals, nevertheless Anderson gives in a recent bulletin, some good arguments against decentralization and wild-eyed local autonomy. He says in part:

"It takes all of us organized into a compact, self-disciplined body to win out. If decentralization and local autonomy is what is wanted, why organize at all—when the unorganized are already so admirably 'decentralized' and 'locally autonomous?' Decentralization carried to its logical conclusion is no organization. Is that what we want?

"Is it a wobbly tactic and tradition to run away from a job because conditions are poor, or is it our custom to stay and fix them? Why not apply this dictum to the organization? Is the job too big? If so, how are we to organize the workers to carry on production after capitalism is gone?"

Will They Learn from Experience?

This might be a poser for the decentralizers, except for the fact that it is actually the tactic for wobblies who chance to be members of the reactionary unions, craft or industrial, to desert it and try to make a "perfect and ideal" union of a handful of convinced rebels.

So Communists in the I. W. W., who have uniformly led the fight against the "emergencyites" splitting away and making a dual union to the I. W. W., call attention to the I. W. W. as a whole that those members who are in the reactionary unions should take this lesson to heart and "stay and fix them."

Closed Union Books Help Bosses.

I am a fur worker and being a non-union man, I am costantly struggling to keep up my existence. The bosses want me to work for half of the wage scale and also more than eight hour a day. I was not granted a union book yet, altho I made an application more than a year ago. The former leader of the Furriers' Union never considered organizing the non-union workers. Now that the clique of the yellow socialists were put out of office and replaced by progressive members there is hope that they will succeed in organizing a strong and real union for the benefit of the workers not for the 'Kaufman group".

CULINARY WORKERS DRIVEN MAD BY TERRIBLE CONDITIONS, BEG FOR A UNION THAT WILL FIGHT

(By WORKER CORRESPONDENT)

LOS ANGELES, Calif—"The culinary workers are in very good conditions in Los Angeles. Since June 1 they have been conducting a successful organization campaign in this city."

This is taken from a news-item printed in the Southern California "Labor Press" June 26, titled "Red Hot Race for Cooks' Secretary."

A Deliberate Lie.

That this is a deliberate lie is known to every worker in Los Angeles. Conditions for workers, in general, are extremely bad in this city. But the culinary workers are particularly hard hit. Hours have been lengthened, wages decreased, the workers speeded up and, in many places, the food, which is part of the wages, has been cut down either in quality or quantity or both.

Usually, by this time of the year, the great influx of migratory workers, who flock to Los Angeles to escape the rigors of a cold winter east, north and west, have left, and jobs are plentiful. The migratory workers have left, but jobs are at a premium.

Jobs Few and Hard

A dishwasher's, bus-boy's or waiter's job sells at three, four and five dollars. There used to be eight, nine and ten-hour shifts, now it is ten, eleven and twelve hours of the worst kind of slavery.

Wages have been reduced fifty cents to a dollar a day. Two dolars and a half for twelve hours work is the standard for dishwashers, bus-boys and yardmen, and three dollar for waiters. At most of the places the shifts are split up, so that you work most of the day.

What is true of the semi-skilled workers is also true of the highly-skilled ones — the cooks. Their hours have been increased, wages decreased —from one to two dollars a day and work speeded up.

Union Is Less Than a Joke.

Union men and women are afraid to admit that they carry a union card. The few "Union houses" that there are, mostly in the vicinity of the Labor Temple. They display union cards, in the window as a matter of good business policy. Being "Union houses" they can always get a moment's notice.

There Is No Union Scale.

The "Union houses", particularly the Leighton group, work the male-help only nine hours a day. But in these nine hours they are compelled to do eighteen hours work. And the union card in the window helps attract a great number of organized workers.

The female workers fare even worse than the male-workers. There is a state law which "protects" them. They can only be exploited in eight-hour shift. However in those eight hours they must make as much profit for the boss as their more physically able brother workers, who have more hours in which to do it.

The pay, of course, is for eight hours. The Standard is sixteen dollars a week for forty-eight hours. This forty-eight hours is a relative matter. It depends on many factors: The kindness of the boss, the courage of the workers and the conscience of the authorities. The forty-eight hour law for women is violated as often as it is safe to do so, which is quite often.

"Must Attract Trade."

One of the obligations of a waitress or bus-girl is to attract and hold male trade. Waitresses and bus-girls must do this if they wish to hold their jobs. The bosses think that this is not work at all, rather a pleasure diversion. However many sister-slaves have told me that this is the most unpleasant and hardest part of their slavery.

Imagine a married women, a mother of two or more children, who is forced to slave eight hours a day in order to keep maintain the small family. The husband and children have to be fed, the little apartment has to be swept cleaned. If they are fortunate to have a bungalow then there's still more cleaning to be done. Then there is the family wash. The children tear their clothes something scandalous. No matter how hard one patches and sews it is impossible to keep them decently dressed. In short there's work a-plenty.

Same Everywhere

When she comes to work she is allready tired. But now she has to don a white apron, paint her face and smile pleasently at some gay yokel who is trying to date her up. But often it happens that the yokel is neither gay nor pleasant, but downright vulgar and insulting. However she has to stand it all. Her job depends upon it. Besides, what's the difference, it's the same in all the other places.

The cashier, or head-waiter or waitress, is the boss's stool-pigeon in the dining room, the chef in the kitchen. Workers distrust one another, grumble, but are afraid to voice their discontent. Now and then one, usually a dishwasher, rebels, throws down his apron and tells them all to go to hell! Well, there are plenty of other dishwashers who will gladly take his job.

Maddening Work

For two years I have worked in the kitchen off and on. A man must be iron, or not have the slightest consideration for his physical or mental well-being, to work cotinually for two years in a kitchen. If the work is not as strenuous as that of a coal mine or steel-mill it is equally as killing. If you cook you burn your brains out. If you wash dishes you break your back. If you do yard-man's work you dont know half the time where you are at, — they drive you so from one thing to another until they drive you crazy.

Any restaurant that does any sort of business is a mad house. In Los Angeles there are two restaurants, owned by the same people, which sport the name "Mad House." I worked in both. They merit the name. But what is true of them is also true of all the other restaurants. Those places which display union cards are the worst of all.

Because of the nature of the work in restaurants, particularly in the kitchen, foul air—grease and filth everywhere — back-breaking, brain-burning slavery, long hours rotten wages and general atmosphere of crankiness. Any one who works even short time in a kitchen has his or her nerves shattered, torn to pieces, the restaurant slave does not keep his or her, job for long. The majority of us work only when it is absolutely necessary, that is to keep from starving.

In those two year of slavery I have done everything in the kitchen except being the main chef. Yet I never regretted when I lost a job. Whether it is as cook or pot-washer, what's the difference? They kill you anyway.

But I am not an exception. The majority of workers feel the same way about it. Most of us get sick of a job before we even start work. We know what's in store for us, and only the direst necessity forces us to remain at a job for more than several weeks. Two or three months is a considerable period of time. Six months is long, much to long.

There is not a group of workers who could be got to strike as easily as the culinary workers. Half the time they are striking anyway! They have so many grievances they could enumerate any number you please in their sleep.

A determined drive to organize these so terrible exploited slaves!

A call to battle!

A strike, a real strike! How it would gladden their starved hearts!

Fight? We would fight like hell! What do we care, can things be worse than they are?

Have we anything to lose?

Only show us how. Organize! Lead!

But it is useless to expect the fake to do anything for us. If anyone t– them that the culinary workers wish to fight the bosses they would r– into their little holes and shiver with fright.

"Fight the bosses? That's impossible. The bosses are organized. The bosses have money, they are strong We are weak. We can only beg them for favors. If they are kind enough they will grant us a little something. If not we will have to get along as best we can."

"Then what do we need the union for?"

"The union makes us strong!"

"The union makes us strong." But first we must organize something that will function like a union.

There's a tremendous amount of organizational work to be done in Los Angeles. But no group of workers need it more than the culinary workers. The class conscious, intelligent workers must lead the way, the masses will follow. I know them. I know their temper well. At first it may be difficult, but once they are started they will push beyond all the other workers.

A Challenge.

The Communists must organize a nucleus in each of the local unions, cooks, waiters, waitresses and start the necessary work.

Never have the culinary workers experienced such intolerable conditions as they are suffering from now. Now is the time for work among them.

ENGINEERS FORM UNION IN N. Y. ASK MORE PAY

Re-Submit Demand for 25 Per Cent Raise

NEW YORK, Aug. 3.—The 3,500 municipal engineers, who were recently unsuccessful in an attempt to secure a twenty-five per cent increase in salary, have formed a union, the association of engineers of New York, and will re-submit their demands for better wages and working conditions to the city.

The union, which is the largest single aggregation of the profession in the world, was formed "for the object of securing improvement of salary and working conditions."

At the first meeting several of the engineers called for an immediate strike if their demands are not granted.

BARBERS SPRING A NEW ONE ON REACTIONARIES

Support Officials in 7:30 Closing Fight

The progressive barbers of Local 548, Chicago, continue to battle against the reactionary machine. Despite sluggings and expulsions, they have driven the officialdom into a croner where, to save itself, it has had to make a show of fight against the bosses. But the progressives are determined that it shall be a real fight and not a sham battle. Therefore, they have issued the following circular to all barbers of Chicago:

Walk Out of Barber Shops at 7.30 P.M.

After a long fought battle the progressives in Local 548 have succeeded in obtaining a universal demand for 7:30 p. m. closing.

"This battle has not been without casualties. As a result seven of the leading progressives, Joseph Giganti, A. D. Albright, I. Eitingon, A. Knoph, B. Polk, Wm. Wolkowsky and Paul Petras stand fined and suspended from Local 548 by action of the international officials for having initiated the 7 o'clock closing movement and other progressive measures in Chicago.

"Our local officials have fought against earlier closing very bitterly. Now, all at once, they are ordering all union barbers to quit work at 7:30 p. m., in order to cover their former discrepancy.

"The Chicago progressive barbers urge all union barbers in the city to comply with the order. Quit work at 7:30 regardless of what the boss says! Report at union headquarters all violation of the order and see that each case reported is taken care of. The progressives demand a strike in every shop where the bosses refuse to release the men at the appointed hour.

"We wish to warn our local membership that this calls for wholehearted support to the officials, and factional differences must not affect in any way your conduct as union men. On the contrary, wherever the officials show weakness or laxity the members must unitedly insist that the officials perform their duty.

"The expelled progressives renew their pledge of loyalty to unionism, and place themselves at the disposal of the union for active strike duty if a strike should occur, or any other service they can possibly render.

"(Signed) Chicago Progressive Barbers
"I. Eitingon, Secretary."

SHOE CORPORATIONS CONSOLIDATE MAKING UNION AMALGAMATION A NECESSITY; MAKE BIG PROFITS

BOSTON, Mass., August 3.—Consolidation of shoe companies into large corporations should lead to easier organisation of the 215,000 shoe workers in the United States. So far, however, only about 20 per cent of the shoe workers are organized, and these are almost wholly in the small factories. From 60 to 75 per cent of all workers are employed in one-fifth of all factories, producing 65 to 75 per cent of all shoes made.

Good Profit in Golden Rule.

The Endicott Johnson corporation, one of the two largest manufacturers shows gross sales of $32,652,325 for the first six months of 1925. After allowing for all possible deductions this $36,000,000 corporation still has a net profit of $1,970,012 over taxes dividends and employes' profit-sharing.

This concern, with factories and tanneries at Endicott and Johnson City, New York, turns out 130,000 pairs of shoes a day. It sells wholesale, to retail stores and thru its own shops. The head of the company calls himself "Golden Rule Johnson," and opposes unionism by so-called welfare measures in his company towns.

Another Consolidation.

The International Shoe Co. is a $40,000,000 corporation with 36 or more factories, 22 in Missouri, seven in Illinois, one in Kentucky and a subsidiary, W. H. McElwain Co., having six factories in New Hampshire. The Shoe Specialty Mfg. Co. of St. Louis is a $25,000,000 branch of the International.

The International is a consolidation of numerous smaller companies acquired from 1912 on. The company controls tanneries as well as shoe factories and owns five realty companies. Its net sales in 1924 were $110,240,651 and its subsidiaries' sales were $44,-817,840. It had over $7,000,000 surplus over all dividends and expenses. The Shoe Workers' Protective Union claims some organization in several International factories.

Brown Shoe Co. is capitalized for $16,000,000. It makes 40,000 pairs of shoes daily and has factories in Missouri and Illinois. There are a number of five to ten million dollar companies making shoes; over 200 factories whose product is worth more than a million dollars. According to Sanford E. Thompson's figures quoted by the Labor Bureau, Inc., there is much waste in shoe manufacturing. The price of shoes could be cut 21 per cent, he says, by eliminating wastes incurred by workers waiting for materials and by receiving poor materials. The labor cost of a pair of shoes is under $1.

Controls Raw Material.

But the dominating factor in the shoe industry is the United Shoe Machinery corporation, a $75,000,000 concern which supplies shoe manufacturing machinery and shoe findings, or accessories, of all sorts. This corporation owns the United Shoe Machinery Co. of Maine and that of New York and the United Shoe Machinery of Belgium.

Besides supplying lasts and other essentials it has a substantial interest in the Turner Tanning Machinery Co. and supplies tanners' equipment. It operated 66 factories on January 1, 1924. Nine of them make shoe and tanning machinery and the remainder make eyelets, nails, tacks, lasts, brushes, dies, cutters and other findings. It employs 4,800 men and has over six million square feet floor space. Its patent rights alone are expected to net $400,000 in 1925.

Controls Shoe Machinery.

By refusing to sell much of its patented machinery the United Shoe Machinery corporation has a tremendous control over shoe production. It leases its machines to a large extent. It has a practical monopoly over the wood heel covering trade, an indispensible part of women's shoe manufacturing.

It has been an important influence in keeping the shoe industry highly competitive by selling or leasing its machinery to many small factories. It is cutting down the export market of American shoe factories by shipping its machines to all parts of the world. Since the war, however, the tendency toward consolidation has gained in the shoe industry and the profits of United Shoe Machinery continue as large as ever.

SYNOPSIS—Following the analysis of industry and trade as it is carried on in the Soviet Union, appearing in previous installments, the official report of the British Trade Union Delegation to Soviet Russia took up a discussion of transport and agriculture. Finances as they have been developed by the workers' and peasants' government have also been taken up. The report, issued by the seven trade union leaders who visited Russia to inform the British workers as to true conditions in the Soviet Union, continues today with a further discussion of agriculture. Yesterday's installment showed that transport is steadily improving, and the report showed that production is continually increasing, and the conditions of the workers improving.

As to the equalization of holdings, the following table shows the results of the Revolution and the policy subsequently followed of checking the acquisition of small and middle holdings by the kulak or large farmer:—

Small holdings	22.6 per cent	21.4 per cent
Middle holdings	41.8 "	66.2 "
Large holdings	35.6 "	12.4 "

In Bessarabia, on the other hand, the large estates of nobles, holding under Imperial grants, were also broken up at the Revolution. But since then the country has been occupied by Roumania, and large numbers of small and middle holders have been driven by pressure of taxation to sell both their new and old land to the kulaks.

The ruin caused by the counter-revolutionary campaigns, which affected the most productive regions, and the restriction of cultivation caused by the confiscation of crops under War Communism, brought Russian agriculture to a condition that threatened general famine. By 1920 the area under cultivation fell to 60 per cent. pre-war and in 1921 to 54 per cent. But Lenin had already been preparing Communist opinion for the necessity of a New Economic Policy. He saw that the peasant, no longer threatened with a restoration of a reactionary Government that would deprive him of the land itself, would no longer tolerate a revolutionary Government that deprived him of the fruits of his land.

Restoration of Agriculture

The first efforts of the Government were emergency measures to deal with the catastrophic consequences of civil war and famine—such as distribution of seed corn and potatoes. These measures reached their maximum in 1922. But there is still much to do in restoring the areas devastated. So much, however, has been done, that the Government outlay on agricultural restoration is now annually changing its character from that of relief and re-equipment to that of reconstruction by general electrification and technical education.

The New Economic Policy was, as explained by Lenin himself, introduced with a view to putting the relations between the proletariat and peasantry again on a business footing. Requisitions were replaced by a tax on agricultural produce rated according to taxable capacity and on a basis of ten per cent. of the gross production. And it is to be observed that under Tsardom the peasant was taxed, on an average, 30 per cent. of his production. Since the restoration of the currency, 1923-24, this tax is paid in mnoey.

In return, the Government not only allows, but aids the peasant to market his produce at the best price and uses its economic control of industry to see that the peasant gets in return for produce a fair value in goods. Thsi is the new economic contract or "clamp" (smytchka) between proletariat and peasantry.

The peasant was, moreover, not only given full disposal of the fruits of his land, but the vague tenure he had held under the Land Nationalization Act is now defined in a manner entirely satisfactory to him. He is allowed to exploit his land as he pleases, to separate his holding from the community, to increase it within limits, and to hold it in perpetuity. He can lease it for not more than six years and hire labor to work it within limits. By these and other provisions of the Land Code, the State is guarded against the re-development of a landlord class, and the peasant is guaranteed all the liberty he wants in using the land.

It will be seen that agriculture is being restored on conventional lines, and that the Communists have had to renounce any rapid realization of their program of equalization of holdings and of communal cultivation. It is hoped that co-operation may fill the gap and give such help to the small holder and laborer as will enable them to improve their standing. The money tax, which has replaced the tithe in kind and the original right of confiscation, is moreover proportioned, like an income tax, to the means of the peasant; and holders of less than ten dessiatines are exempt.

Area Under Cultivation

As a result of this re-orientation there has been an immediate revival of agriculture.

A comparison of the present total cultivated area with pre-war gives the following results:—

Year—	Area of U.S.S.R. (Millions of dess.)
1916	90.7
1922	63.5
1923	70.0

The decrease by districts in cultivated area as between 1913 and 1923 and the present rate of increase are shown below:—

Area under cultivation. Cultivated area in millions of dessiatins.

Region.	1913	1923	1928 (estimated on present rate of progress)
North-Eastern	0.8	0.7	0.9
North-Western	1.9	1.6	2.2
Western	5.3	4.6	6.3
Central Industrial ..	8.4	6.8	9.0
Oural	6.7	4.4	6.5
Central Agricultural .	9.2	7.3	8.4
Middle Volga	9.9	6.0	8.4
Lower Volga	7.7	4.3	6.5
North Caucasian	11.4	6.0	10.3
Siberian	6.9	5.1	7.2
Kirghiz	3.8	2.1	3.8
Wooded Steppes	11.0	10.0	12.3
Steppes	12.0	10.4	12.5

This shows a decrease in area of cultivation of nearly 28 million dessiatines since pre-war, and an anticipation that within five years cultivation will again be beyond pre-war in area and extending itself at an annual rate greater than pre-war. Other statistics show the following increase in cultivated area since the famine years of 1920 and 1921:—

AREA UNDER CULTIVATION

Region—	1922	1923	1924
Consuming	88.4	93.1	101.4
Producing	59.1	76.1	84.0

Ukraine	78.1	91.3	97.4
U.S.S.R.	70.0	77.8	83.2

The following table gives the rate of increase since 1920, which shows that it is still slow in the surplus regions of the South-East, which used to grow for export. An increase of the British demand would increase supply:—

Population and Stock

The agricultural population of the Federation, which was 109½ millions in 1916, had fallen by a million in 1923. The head of horses had fallen from 31 millions to 19½ millions, of which 16 millions were farm horses. In the Southern and Siberian regions the loss of horses was as much as one-half, a most serious matter. Cattle decreased from 50 million to 33 million in 1921, rising again to 38 million in 1923. Pigs similarly fell from 19 millions to 7 millions, rising again to 8 millions. All these decreases are disproportionately heavier in the regions affected by civil war and the famine. The following figures show a similar result in percentages:—

FARM STOCK

	U.S.S.R.		Famine area
Animals—	1923	1924	1923	1921
Horses	99.5	119	121	133
Cattle	110	132	145	185
Sheep	105	128	174	233
Pigs	106	196	229	662

QUANTITY OF FARM STOCK
(Percentage of 1916)

Animals—	1924	Animals—	1924
Working horses	72	Bullocks (over two years)	61
Cows	99	Sheep	58
Oxen	69	Pigs (up to one year)	100
Calves (up to one year)...	91	Pigs (over one year)	58
Bullocks (under two years)	97

In the famine areas the number of working horses is now 50 per cent. of pre-war, cows 83 per cent., sheep 116 per cent., and pigs 70 per cent. of the pre-war number.

The loss of agricultural machines can only be roughly estimated at about 50 per cent. Moreover, as the life of such machinery is normally only 15 years, much of it is now used up. The improvement in agriculture has created a great demand for agricultural machinery and implements. The sales of machinery by the Gosselsklad (a machinery-supply organization of the Commissariat of Agriculture) have risen from 6 to 13 million roubles. It is through supplying Russia with agricultural machinery that British commerce would be conferring a great benefit on a hundred million Russian workers and creating new markets for over a million British unemployed.

The importance of Russian grain to the population of Great Britain lies not only in the immense increase of supply possible with our help, but also in the fact that this grain, controlled by a Socialist State, cannot be included in the operations of profiteering rings.

Methods of Agriculture

An investigation by an advisory delegate of conditions in the villages of the Ukdaine wheat-growing area showed that nothing was now wanting but capital to produce an immense increase in production. The ruined villages and towns were again repopulated and reconstructed and the pre-war area of cultivation was being rapidly again brought under cultivation by pre-war methods, which owing to primitive machinery give a very low percentage of production in Russia from soil of first-rate fertility. But the present conditions would now admit of cultivation by modern American methods. The individualism of the peasant-owner, that received a great stimulus from the distribution of land at the Revolution, is yielding to various influences. One such is the Communist education in the schools, in the Red Army especially, and through the local Communist "cells" and "centres." And this education in the advantages of collective production has less to contend with in Russian peasant life, which still retains much of its medieval communal character. Another powerful influence is force of circumstances. The new Communities now starting in the ruined districts without other resources than their own labor, fertile land, and a few primitive tools, can only exist on a Communal basis. One such Community with a common table and all property in common was visited in Russian Moldavia, one of the worst ruined areas. These people were struggling to get a bare living with the help of a camel and a cow out of some of the richest land in Europe. Some of these were educated people, and the only thing wanted to make the Community not only prosperous but producing for export was a little capital or credit to get a tractor.

Tractors

The tractor is itself an instrument for creating such methods of co-operative and communal farming as must be adopted if outside capital is to be obtained and used to the best advantage. Thus villages join together in special co-operatives to buy a tractor, and they then organize communal tillage to get the best use of it. One described the results somewhat thus: "We sent Peter, Paul, and Andrew to the tractor-drivers' class at Odessa last winter, and this summer we got a tractor. Now, Peter sits on it and 'b-r-r-r' all the morning—four hours out and four hours back—Paul sits on it and 'b-r-r-r' all the afternoon—four hours out and four hours back—and Andrew sits on it and 'b-r-r-r' all night." That is three furrows in the 24 hours, eight miles long each.

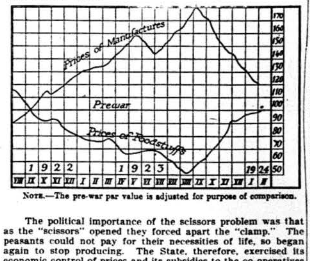
Six thousand American tractors are to be delivered, mostly at Odessa, this winter; and 3,000 drivers will have been trained by this spring. The tractors plow at a rate of five roubles per dessiatine, whereas horse-plowing costs 80 roubles. The tractor-plowed land yields on an average 15 poods per dessiatine more. What Russia wants is tractors on as long credit as possible; and they would be a most profitable investment for countries with a surplus of capital and a deficit of food supply.

The Russian Government is doing what it can. Schemes for improving breeds, dry farming, drainage works, and irrigation are under way. The estimates for the current year assign to the financing of agriculture 62 million gold roubles, of which 35 millions go to raise the capital of the agricultural bank to 90 millions. Add to this 48 millions spent in relief and you find that most of the proceeds of the agricultural tax are being reinvested in agriculture.

The "Scissors and the "Clamp"

The New Economic Policy substituted a new business relationship of free and friendly bargaining for the War Communist Policy of conscripting peasant labor and confiscating most of its produce. The peasant could again sell his produce and buy town products. He paid taxes and got in return the advantage of a good government. But this new contract or "clamp" (smytchka) between the proletariat and peasantry was hardly in working order before it was almost broken by an economic strain. This was the so-called "scissors" crisis, a symbol suggested by the ascending curve of rising prices in manufactures and the descending curve of falling prices in agricultural produce as shown in the diagram. These simple technical symbols—"scissors," "clamp," etc.—are very illustrative of the success of the Russian leaders in giving public opinion a grasp of the economic essentials underlying political problems. Under a party system the conflicting interests of peasants and proletarians would have been exploited and exaggerated in platform slogans. The speeches on it of Rykov and Kamenev are popular lectures on economics.

The "Scissors" Crisis



NOTE.—The pre-war par value is adjusted for purpose of comparison.

The political importance of the scissors problem was that as the "scissors" opened they forced apart the "clamp." The peasants could not pay for their necessities of life, so began again to stop producing. The State, therefore, exercised its economic control of prices and its subsidies to the co-operatives so as to reduce prices of manufactures and raise prices of agricultural produce. The burden involved for the Budget is shown thereunder. As appears from the diagram the "scissors" have now been closed. Indeed the authorities had soon to reverse engines, so to say, in order to check the momentum acquired.

(a) Flax.—The flax harvest for 1924 was good, being 7¼ million poods as against 5½ million last year.

WORKER TO TELL OF EXPULSION FROM MD. CAMP

Miller to Speak at Phila., League Meet

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., August 3.—The Young Workers League of Philadelphia will hold a protest mass meeting against the Citizens' Military Training Camps and American imperialism at Mercantile Hall, 849 N. Franklin St., on Friday, August 7, at 8 p. m.

Comrade Yusem of the Young Workers League will act as chairman. Comrade H. Miller who was just expelled from the Citizens' Military Training Camp for reading the Young Worker, will describe the harsh conditions and treatment of the young workers at Camp Meade, their militarization and their preparation for the great slaughters impending in the interests of the big business of this country.

Comrade Wicks of the Workers Party will speak on "Militarism and American Imperialism."

The American, the British, the Japanese capitalists look with greedy and jealous eyes upon the rich markets and fields of investment in China, in Africa, Asia, South America, and from this proceeds a mad race in armaments, in military training and preparation for imperialist wars.

The colonial peoples who are on the verge of revolt against foreign imperialism must be enslaved by force of arms; the rival capitalist powers who are seeking the same markets for the surplus products they have wrung from the exploited workers at home must be crushed.

And America stands out today as the foremost imperialist nation. The rich and arrogant American bourgeoisie is planning great imperialist slaughters for the hegemony of the world, and the C. M. T. C. are but a part of their preparations.

The workers of Philadelphia should attend this meeting, and make of it a real mass demonstration against capitalist militarism.

Wisconsin Federation Adjourns.

LAKE GENEVA, Wis., August 3.—Re-electing Henry Ohl, Jr., president, and J. J. Handley secretary-treasurer, the Wisconsin State Federation of Labor closed its 33rd annual convention at Lake Geneva. The 1926 meeting will be held in Green Bay next July. Resolutions denouncing the prison labor system of the state (making goods to compete with free labor in the open market), advocating greater trade union demand for union label goods and censuring the university regents for accepting a donation from the Rockefeller Foundation featured the convention.

NEW YORK BOSSES HOLD DOWN PAY OF WHITE COLLAR SLAVES BY GAG OF PLAYING ON RACE PREJUDICES

By F. C. M., Worker Correspondent

NEW YORK, Aug. 3.—Below is a list of advertisements from the New York World. New York is a cosmopolitan community of dollar chasers, and competition for profits is bitter. Good christian bourgeoisie, and good Hebrew employers who want plenty of gentile patronage are quite insistent upon securing stenographers who can write business letters in harmony with the New Testament:

STENOGRAPHERS, experienced and beginners; $12-$35; high grade Christian applicants. Aspell Agency, 1465 Broadway, Suite 402 (42d St.)

STENOGRAPHER, high school graduate; no beginners; bring references; salary, $20 to commence; permanent; advancement. Eureka, 131 W. 14th.

STENOGRAPHERS, $25-$18; bookkeepers and stenography, $25-$20; clerks, Christians, $16; free registration. Lamb Agency, 132 Nassau St.

STENOGRAPHERS, Bayonne, N. J., excellent opening for bright beginner, Christian; $18-$20. Ask for Miss Loomis, National Employment Exchange, 30 Church St.

STENOGRAPHER - BOOKKEEPER, pleasant environment, experience preferred, Christian; $18-$20. Ask for Miss Loomis, National Employment Exchange, 30 Church St.

STENOGRAPHER; office worker; experienced; willing to help; congenial, permanent position; Christian; no flappers; $18, Manufacturer. Address L 41, World.

STENOGRAPHERS, Christians, (1) beginner, $80 month; (1) railroad experience, $140 month; (1) clerical experience, $25 wk. 20th Century Agency, 200 B'way, Room 301.

STENOGRAPHER, neat, pleasant Christian; typist, $22. Greater N. Y. Agency, 258 Fulton St., Brooklyn.

STENOGRAPHER, Christian; fine firm, Wall St.; $30. Starks Agency, 1457 Broadway (42d).

STENOGRAPHER, neat, pleasant Christian; beginner; advancement; $20. Starks Agency, 1457 Broadway (42d).

STENOGRAPHERS—$25, $20, $18, $15, $12; free registration. McCarthy Agency, 154 Nassau.

STENOGRAPHER, Jewess, $27; Christian, under 30, $25. National Vocation Agency, 132 Nassau.

STENOGRAPHERS, Typists, Christians; legal, brokerage, commercial; $35-$20. Arcade Agency, 50 Boardway.

Casual inspection will reveal that a Jewess is offered $27, and a Christian, under 30, is offered $25. A manufacturer wants a Christian for $18, guaranteed not to flap, and Christian clerks are promised $16.

Attempt to Create Prejudice.

The result is that Jewesses change their names, secure positions, when jobs are not too scarce, become proficient, and hold their jobs. Negro girls who are not to easily distinguished are forced to live their working hours as "white" and their off-periods as black.

As for the Christian girls, they have the inside track on the majority of vacancies, but it is not expected that all Christian girls will be guaranteed positions until some time after hte year 10,000, barring of course the little matter of the social revolution, scheduled for a date considerably closer to 1925.

Small capitalists in this manner keep alive the prejudice among races and religions, and the fierce effort to secure a livelihood takes on the form of a racial conflict.

Want ads of this sort are very effective in preventing flapper graduates of a business college from understanding the class issue. Of course the education of prospective white-collared slaves is always difficult in view of their common expectation of becoming owners of factories and managers of offices when the boss and the 187 others ahead of them die off or get married.

But race passions make such a very pleasant red herring. With 100 applicants for 10 jobs, the 90 losers can have such a delightful time forgetting new clothes and the price of theater tickets by organizing a k. k. k., or an a. p. a. They actually make you forget to eat.

POLICE SEARCHING FOR LOVE NEST OF AMOROUS KU KLUX KLAN PREACHER

MILFORD, Pa., Aug. 3.—A United States marshal with a warrant charging conspiracy to violate the Mann act today was expected to intrude upon the love nest said to have been established here by Roscoe Carl Zeigler, former Trenton, N. J., methodist preacher.

Arrangements were said to have been made in a New Brunswick, N. J. railroad station, between Miss Margaret Roberts, of Trenton, N. J., Zeigler, his wife and William M. Chamberlin, one time fiance of Miss Roberts, whereby Mrs. Zeigler was to file suit for divorce against her husband, Chamberlin to renounce all claim to Miss Roberts, and the former preacher marry her.

Attempts to find Zeigler in Trenton for service of the papers was unsuccessful, according to police, so the search was extended here.

Chamberlin recently found Zeigler and Miss Roberts in El Paso, Texas, and a ku klux klan representative brought them back. Zeigler was a klan representative.

Hebrew Waiters Strike.

Strikers are picketing Seidner's restaurant in Chicago in an attempt by the United Hebrew Waiters' union to organize the place. According to Business Agent Garfield, the owner paid the union scale to a few union men but was preparing to discharge them as cheaper labor became available. The agreement provided for a minimum of $20 a week for waiters and $25 for countermen on 9-hour day and 6-day week.

The union has a membership of 300 and is a branch of Local 7 with a membership of 1,500, affiliated with the American Federation of Labor.

Child Plays With Candle; Dies.

BOSSES AND FAKERS BOTH INSURING US

Both Going to Make Us Die to Win

By HARRISON GEORGE

The working class of America is certainly going to be insured. Between the bosses and the labor fakers they cannot escape it.

The American Federation of Labor is starting a plan to sell death benefits to members of organized labor, in view of the fact that the unions, under the misleadership of the union bureaucracy, the benefits the members get while living are vanishing under the assaults of the employers without a fight of magnitude and determination.

These employers, however, have some schemes of their own about death benefits for the workers—derived from exactly the same idea as are the schemes of the labor fakers. The employers, too, knowing that the advantages of better wages and hours are the things most desired by the workers, yet intend to prevent the workers getting these advantages. As something "just as good" they promise them, just as the labor fakers do—death benefits.

Death Becoming Desirable

Recently, for example, 60,000 men and women railroad workers employed by the Louisville and Nashville, the Nashville, Chattanooga and St. Louis, and the Louisville, Henderson and St. Paul, have been, willy nilly, insured by their bosses.

These companies have made a deal with the Prudential company to insure all their employes. For those earning less than $100 a month, a life insurance of $1,000 will be taken out. Those earning from $100 to $175 monthly will be insured for $2,000 and those above $175 will "be permitted"—as the report states, the great boon of getting $3,000 when they die. No medical examination is required, and the policies for all will be effective when 75 per cent of the employes accept the scheme.

Boss Will "Bear the Burden" of Control

One fly in the ointment is, quite naturally, that the workers themselves are asked to pay the premiums in part—the companies will, so it is announced—"bear the remaining expense and will undertake the accounting and clerical work."

What the proportions of the premiums are which the workers pay, might be interesting, but even this point is not so interesting as the fact that the railroad companies, out of the boundless generosity of their hearts (!) offer to do the "accounting and clerical work." In plain English, they offer to control the funds, not only keeping in their hands the premiums paid in by themselves and also those paid by the workers, but in addition the companies will have the power to pay—or not to pay—the benefits.

A Nice Looking Trap

Now, one need not argue further with the average worker who knows well enough to what such a control will lead, in power to coerce the workers to remain "loyal" to the company, to discriminate against active unionists and "red agitators" and to hold the whip of loss of premiums over the workers when they threaten strike, and so on.

However, the workers are not without remedy in this dilemma, which poses the question of being victimized by the bosses or led into class collaboration and defeat by their labor fakers all in the name of insurance.

What to Do if You Must Die

Granting the desirability of life insurance, the workers must reject completely the poison proposal of the employers to trap them into a position of helplessness and inability to fight.

Equally, the workers, especially the membership of the unions, must vigilantly demand that the union bureaucracy cease to regard life insurance as a substitute for class struggle against the bosses, and that all such "business" be taken completely out of the hands of the officialdom and put into the hands of the membership under real control by them, upon a basis of genuine co-operative management.

Must Control Unions, Too

Nor will the movement ever be secure from corruption by the present reactionary bureaucracy, until the membership of the unions, following the program of the Trade Union Educational League, oust the old reactionary leadership and establish a leadership which will fight for working class interests and not evade the struggle by abandoning the fight for wages and hours and going into the banking and insurance business to "insure" their high salaries in the face of falling treasuries and loss of membership.

BUILDERS AT WORK

THERE ARE BOOKS ON EVERY SUBJECT

What Do You Do with Pamphlets?

Never was there such a demand for Communist books and pamphlets as there is today. Every mail brings letters from workers thruout the country for books on all phases of Communism. Workers whose curiosity has been excited by world events, by China, by talk of the "reds," are writing, asking just what are Communist principles and just what the Workers (Communist) Party stands for.

As a result thousands of books and pamphlets leave the office to give information on every phase of Communism and on all angles of the world labor movement. THE DAILY WORKER PUBLISHING CO. is now thoroly understood and well known as "the source of all Communist literature" in this country.

SOVIET GOVERNMENT INCOME THIS YEAR ALMOST TWO BILLION DOLLARS

MOSCOW, Aug. 3.—The Soviet government's budget, now before the council of commissaries is almost two billons of dollars, or about three hundred millions more than the 1913 budget of the Czar's government. It exceeds last year's budget by sevent hundred million dollars.

Revenue from the sale of spirits is only fifty per cent of what the czar gathered in on the sale of vodka. The government intends to issue a special international loan of $1,500,000,000 for the support and development of Soviet industry.

Extraordinary appropriations are made for improvement in the agricultural industry. All are agreed now that the Soviet Union is economically on the upgrade and tho her position diplomatically is by no means easy, her ability to resist attack was never at a higher pitch. And it is constantly improving.

NEGRO CHAMPION WIDELY READ BY RACE PRISONERS

The American Negro Labor congress office has recently received three letters from Negro workers in Leavenworth, stating that they had seen in the DAILY WORKER a notice of the launching of the Negro Champion and requesting sample copies. One of the letters stated:

"The way you have handled Paul Crouch's case has with little further explanation awakened many of the colored boys, and especially ex-soldiers, as to who their real champion is."

Another says, "I notice in the D. W. that the Negro Congress founded the new publication, and am satisfied from its origin that it is the real champion of the Negro workers. There are six or seven hundred of the Negro workers in here at present, many left wingers, altho not as many as there should be, but sufficient to disillusion any of Marcus Garvey's adherents who had chloroformed themselves into thinking that Garvey was their savior. I am 23 years old and am sentenced to life by courtmartial."

The other says, ". . . As there are 600 or 700 Negroes of the more cosmopolitan type here at this time, I am satisfied that if you could see your way clear to send me a few issues, so that I would be able to show it to the boys, that they would readily see it advantage over the Chicago Defender and kindred publications."

The American Negro Labor Congress at 19 S. Lincoln St., Chicago, would be very pleased to receive contributions which would allow these workers to be put on the regular subscription list. Subscription to the Negro Champion is $1.00 per year. It sells for 5 cents a single copy.

Must Hire Union Men Only.

BOSTON—Only union men may be hired in his plant, Isador Millman, Boston fur manufacturer, is told in a temporary injunction granted by Judge Hammond in the circuit court. Millman is held obligated to carry out the contract he became a party to when the Boston Fur Manufacturers' Association, of which he was then a member, signed a two-year agreement with the International Fur Workers' Union. Last March Millman withdrew from the bosses' combine and has been operating since then with what nonunion men he could get. This is the second time, only, a union has obtained such an injunction against an employer in Massachusetts.

Green As a Moralist

President Green of the American Federation of Labor, in a letter to the president of the National Association of Manufacturers and also to the president of the American Woolen company, declares that it is morally wrong for the manufacturers to "reduce the purchasing power of the workers—by force . . ."

The manufacturers did not take down their bibles to learn whether there was anything in that sacred collection of hokum against putting a ten per cent wage cut in operation. They simply cut the wages and allowed Green to go to the bible.

During the Boer war, one of the Boer leaders often missed splendid opportunities of wiping out detachments of British soldiers, because the confounded general was a bible fanatic and flew to Job for comfort when he should have been administering to the wants of his cannon. The British, tho they subsidize preachers never let them interfere with the business of killing their enemies. They won the Boer war.

The textile barons also support missionaries, but if there is anything in the bible which prohibits the kind of robbery that the capitalists are engaged in, they convenientlty ignore it. They "trust in god, but keep their powder dry."

William Green is also a bible student. But he served long enough in the miners' union to know that the workers never won any of their battles with bibles or by taking a "high moral ground." The power of labor and not quotations from scripture is what will impress the textile barons.

In his letter to the mill owners, Green seems to hint that it was not the reduction in wages so much as the manner in which that reduction was enforced, that aroused his anger. "The reprehensible feature of it is that this is a forced reduction in wages. (Emphasis ours.) The workers have not been consulted regarding acceptance or rejection."

The obvious inference is that had the mill owners conferred with some reliable A. F. of L. labor leaders of the Tom Rickert type and convinced those leaders that the interests of the industry demanded a wage cut, Green would not consider the blow at the "purchasing power of the workers" in so criminal a light.

What the reactionary leaders cannot condone is the tendency on the part of the employers to treat their slaves as if the labor lieutenants did not exist. Green's "solemn protest" against the ten per cent wage cut will not put any bread and butter in the larder of the mill workers. They must learn to rely on their own power and not on the sanctimonious appeals to the "spiritual side" of their masters, which appears to be the only weapon that faker Green is willing to use.

Self-Preservation

Self-preservation is said to be the first law of nature. Like many other scientific conclusions it has been abused, but never more so than by reactionary labor leaders who have used the terms recently in connection with the action of the officialdom of the United Garment Workers in resorting to strikebreaking in an effort to maintain a carricature of a labor organization which provides them with an easy living.

The secretary of the Chicago Federation of Labor justified the role now being played by Thomas Rickert, on the ground that no man would surrender to others an organization that he helped to build up, whether those others be the members of the union or their selected leaders. The law of self-preservation justified Rickert. And if the law of self-preservation is the first law of nature, then it is quite natural for Rickert to obey that law, and what is natural cannot be criminal.

The law of self-preservation compels the capitalists to maintain armies and navies, spies and agents provocateurs, preachers and labor fakers to protect them in their usurped right to rob the workers. But the same law of self-preservation compels the workers to organize for the purpose of taking away from the capitalists the right to rob them. Incidentally in accomplishing that task the workers will dispose of the capitalists. The fact that the law of self-preservation works equally well in both cases has no more effect on the struggle than has the religion of a real estate shark on his willingness to fleece all comers regardless of religion.

When the individual interests of a labor leader clash with the interests of thousands of workers, he must go, no matter how many excuses he may dig up to justify his actions. The self-preservation of millions of workers and poor farmers all over the world demands that the capitalist system be abolished and the individual interests of a small group of parasites must not be allowed to stand in the way.

Premature Rejoicing

When the newspapers published a statement attributed to Frank Hodges, secretary of the Miners' International, that in the event of a coal strike in Britain the United Mine Workers of America, thru their officials, had promised to take any action called for by their British fellow workers, none rejoiced sooner than American radicals. They assumed that Hodges was quoted correctly and that John L. Lewis actually had done the decent thing in offering the support of his organization to the embattled British mine workers.

But the rejoicing was short lived. Any doubts as to the normalty of the officials of the United Mine Workers of America, were quickly dispelled when Secretary-Treasurer Kennedy and Vice-President Phil. Murray repudiated the statement attributed to Frank Hodges and declared that they knew not what he was talking about. Lewis, when questioned on the matter, rubbed his eyes, yawned and said he was sleepy and would go to bed. This was on the day before the British strike was scheduled to start.

The officials of the U. M. W. of A. have no more conception of international solidarity than so many Australian bushmen. They are putting on a fake show with the operators in Atlantic City and enjoying the bathing beauties and the balmy ocean breezes while the operators are pulling the guts out of the organization. Tho hope eternal springs in the human breast, it would be a hopeful cuss indeed who would harbor the expectation that Lewis and company will prove by word or act that the struggles of labor in Europe mean anything to them.

which is still to be attained. This fact has caused much confusion and complication in the labor movement. It has created the basis of the false tradition that the Negro, even when drawn into industrial labor, is a "natural" ally and reserve of capitalism. In industry the fact that any degree of modern wage slavery has represented to the Negro an advance from his former serf-like status, taken in conjunction with the "labor-aristocratic" attitude of the trade union bureaucracy, has given birth to the false tradition that the Negro is a strikebreaker.

The basis of that tradition has been undermined in the tumultuous changes of the world war. The present is an epoch in which the industrialized Negro proletarian, and also the agricultural proletariat, moves into a position with the general working class.

The Negro Industrial Worker.

THE tremendous transformation among the Negro masses resulting from the world war and after war conditions, with the heavy migration of Negro agricultural laborers and tenant farmers into the cities and industrial districts, has placed the Negro definitely in a new position in relation to the American labor movement. From being a sectional question, the Negro problem became a national question. From being a secondary factor in industrial labor, the Negro moves into the position of a great mass employed in basic industries, and already in notable strikes in the coal fields, etc., he has shown himself eminently fitted for the front ranks of militant organized labor. The question of the full and unstinting admission of the Negro to the trade unions is placed more sharply than ever before at the door of the trade unions.

The constitutions of many of the trade unions exclude the Negro from the unions. In the case of those unions which have no such provision in their constitution the Negro is nevertheless discriminated against.

The increasing pressure of the Negro worker for admittance into the trade unions is an instrument for profound revolutionary change in the labor movement. It is no accident that the "Gompers" bureaucracy opposes the entry of the newly industrialized Negro proletarians into the trade unions. As an important and growing part of the most exploited section of the proletariat which does not share in the miserable bribes with which imperialism poisons the upper section of the working class, the mass of the Negro industrial workers is objectively and potentially a part of the left wing of the labor movement. In those unions into which the Negroes are being admitted, for instance the coal mining unions, the teamsters, longshormeen, building laborers, janitors, etc., the Negro plays an important part in strengthening the militant section of the working class. The obstinate failure to organize the general mass of unskilled proletarians, whose entry into the labor movement would serve as a further basis for proletarianizing the ideology of the trade unions and revitalizing the class struggle, is a part of the general service which the trade union bureaucracy contributes to its capitalist masters. And the failure to make a clean sweep of all obstacles to the Negroes' entry into the unions is an especially significant part of this service to capitalist reaction, for race prejudice of the white worker against the black worker is today more than ever a powerful weapon against the solidarity of the working class.

THE cause of the Negro in the labor movement is essentially a left wing fight, and one which must energetically be championed by the Workers (Communist) Party. Our party must make itself the foremost spokesman for the real abolition of all discriminations against Negroes in trade unions and for the organization of the as yet largely unorganized Negro workers in the same unions with the white workers on the basis of equality of membership, equality of right to employment in all branches of work and equality in pay. Our party shall bring pressure on the unions thru the activity of our Communist fractions among the Negroes already in the unions, getting them to fight militantly for the abolition of the color line, and by the activity of the whole left wing forcing the abolition of all racial discrimination. Our party must work among the unorganized Negro workers destroying whatever prejudice may exist against the trade unions which is being cultivated by the white capitalists, the Negro petty-bourgeoisie and the opposition of the reactionary bureaucracy as such, and must arouse them to demand and fight for admission. Our aim must be to show to the white workers that only by complete solidarity of the races can any progress be made by either and to show to the Negro workers that in spite of the anti-Negro character of some unions that in those unions where Negroes are admitted the racial question has been liquidated to the largest degree. Our demand is for the inclusion of the Negro workers in the existing unions, as against racial separation, as against dual unionism. Where Negroes are not permitted to join the existing "white" trade unions, it is the duty of the Communists to take the initiative in the formation of organizations of Negro workers declaring in principle against dual unionism and against racial separation, and declaring as a primary purpose the struggle for admission into the existing unions, but functioning as full-fledged Negro unions during the struggle.

The Negro Tenant-Farmer and Agricultural Worker.

EIGHT million Negro agricultural workers, share croppers and tenant farmers live in the southern states in a condition in some respects resembling the serfdom of Europe two hundred years ago. Agricultural laborers are forcibly held in compulsory labor under corporal punishment. Tenant and share farmers are bound to the earth, by force prevented from leaving a locality where they are adjudged to be in debt to landlords who exercise the rights of feudal masters. A racial caste system, remaining system, remaining from the chattel slave period, sharply divides the exploited masses into black and white, thus facilitating the most cruel exploitation. Political rights are practically withheld from the Negro laborer and farmer.

It is the duty of our part to take the initiative in organizing Negro agricultural workers into labor unions, together with white agricultural workers if possible, but separately if unavoidable, and to bring such unions into the general labor movement. Another supremely important duty of the party is to promote the organization of Negro tenant farmers, sharecroppers and small farmers generally (together with white farmers of the same exploited class if possible), and to bring such organizations into co-operation as allies of the labor movement.

The Negro and the Labor Party.

THE task of the Communists among the Negro workers as elsewhere is in its first stage to bring about class consciousness and to crystallize this in independent class political action against the capitalist class. The profound social changes of the war and post-war period have already shown indications of a partial exodus of Negro masses from the republican party; and this represents a break with tradition, a visible evidence of the beginning of the end of the alliance of the Negro with the capitalist class.

The labor party slogan and campaign possesses a peculiar usefulness in the work of bringing the Negro workers into the economic as well as the political labor movement. We shall advance the idea of the Negro workers taking an initiatory and leading part in the formation of the labor party. With this in view we shall in every labor party action prominently raise the issues of discrimination against the Negro politically, industrially, and in public customs. The disfranchisement of the Negro in the southern states must be made an especially urgent reason for the political organization of the Negro workers thru collective affiliation with the labor party; and the winning of political rights for the Negro proletarians must be placed before both white and Negro workers as an immediate objective of the labor party movement and a necessity for giving the workers' political movement its full strength.

Negro Membership in the Communist Party.

IT is absolutely essential that greater numbers of Negro workers capable of a leading part in the struggle be immediately drawn into the Workers (Communist) Party. In all of our party actions, all party units must make an especial effort to reach and enlist the most advanced Negro workers into our ranks. In order to meet our problems it is necessary to draw these comrades into responsible party work. A great significance of our work among Negroes is that it will facilitate the task of enlarging and establishing our party in the southern states, which has become a prime necessity that can no longer be postponed.

"Social Demands" of the Negroes.

ALL slogans of equality which are current among the Negro masses, or which can be awakened among them, which express the aspirations for equal rights and equal treatment of Negroes in political and economic life and in public customs, are placed among the demands of the Workers (Communist) party. Such are the demand for political equality, the right to vote, social equality, "economic" equality, abolition of jim-crow laws and also jim-crow customs not written into law, the right to serve on juries, the abolition of segregation in schools and the right of Negro teachers to teach in all schools; equal rights of soldiers and sailors in army and navy without segregation in colored regiments, the right to frequent all places of public resort without segregation (hotels, theatres, restaurants, etc.) and the abolition of all anti-intermarriage laws. In the course of the struggle with such demands we will demonstrate thru experience that these aspirations can be realized only as a result of the successful class struggle against capitalism and with the establishment of the rule of the working class in the Soviet form.

American Negro Labor Congress.

OUR work among the Negroes centers now around the American Negro Labor Congress announced for Chicago, October 25. Our party recognizes and supports this congress as a genuine expression of the Negro workers and farmers of the United States. It will be composed, according to the official call, of the following:

Delegates from Negro and mixed trade unions.

Delegates from Negro workers in factories and industries where large numbers of them are employed.

A few Negro workers who are known for their activity in behalf of the race.

Delegates from Negro farmer organizations.

Representatives of Negro semi-intellectual and semi-bourgeois organizations who are sympathetic to the movement of the workers and farmers.

The congress therefore will be basically a gathering of Negro workers.

The slogans of our party will be incorporated in resolutions and placed before the congress.

At the congress a permanent organization should be formed of groups thruout the United States composed predominantly of Negro workers belonging to unions where possible. In cities where this is not possible, the control of the committees should nevertheless be in the hands of actual workers.

In the agricultural communities similar committees composed of farmers and farm laborers should be formed.

The main object of the permanent organization should be to centralize the protests of the Negro workers and farmers, to stimulate the desire for organization, to secure admission to organizations of white workers and farmers on an equal basis and to establish organic connection between the struggles of the Negro and white masses.

The congress should connect the struggles of the Negro workers and farmers in the United States with the struggles of the Negro colonials in American possesions such as Haiti, etc.

It should connect the struggles of the American Negroes with those of the African masses and finally with those of all colonial and semi-colonial peoples.

It should address a manifesto to the Negroes of the world calling upon them to hold a world race congress.

The congress should strive to develop a leadership for the Negro movement of the world for which the American Negroes, by their superior industrial and political training are the best fitted.

Our party fractions will work for the above program.

In connection with the linking of the struggle of the American Negroes with those of their African comrades, the congress should point out the error of holding up Africa as a Negro Mecca. It must be made clear that the connection between the African and American Negro liberation movement is in the common struggle against world imperialism and that such schemes as migration, etc., are simply chimeras which serve only to confuse and conceal the real issues.

The congress should stand with Soviet Russia as the nation where a workers' and farmers' government has solved successfully all racial and national problems.

Lynching and Race Riots.

IT is the duty of our party to meet the problem of lynching and race riots, not merely with words of sympathy, but with concrete organizational methods which can be effectively applied. The essence of the problem is to create a united class front of the working class. We shall endeavor to have established in localities where both Negro and white industrial workers are employed, permanent inter-racial labor committees against lynching, against terrorization of Negro and white workers, against the ku klux klan, against the use of one race of workers against the other in strikes, against inequality of pay, against race discrimination in obtaining employment, for the full admission of Negro workers into the unions with equality of membership rights, for the complete organization of both Negro and white workers into the same unions. It shall be our endeavor to have such inter-racial committees of workers serve as a medium thru which the solidarity and co-operation of the working class and all workers organizations can be obtained in times of crisis such as strikes, race riots, attempted lynchings, etc., to prevent conflicts between the workers of the two races and to prevent lynchings.

The Negro and the Army.

WITH the world war and the conscription of the Negro Youth, resentment of discrimination and other brutal treatment in the army and navy became a major phenomenon among Negro toilers. Out of this mass conception arise many slogans and demands which the Workers (Communist) Party must energetically champion, and which especially the Young Workers League can well champion: the movement against segregation of Negroes in "jim-crow" regiments; against discrimination in the kinds of tasks assigned to Negro troop units; against discrimination against individual Negro soldiers; against the sharp and brutal punishment of whole groups of Negro troops ("24th Negro Infantry" case—13 summarily hanged, 56 imprisoned); against the principle of "white officers for Negro troops" against Negro officers' failure to defend the Negro troops from discrimination, etc.

The customary employment of Negro troops in imperialistic aggression against weaker peoples (Spanish war, the Philippines, and Mexico in 1916), intensifies the duty of the Communists to awaken among the Negro masses a sense of their own relation to the class struggle in the United States, and their relation to the present world-awakening of the suppressed races; their relation to the new world-wide capitalist slogan of "white supremacy" (as in China); in short an understanding of the international role of capitalist governments and their own role in the revolutionary epoch.

Negro Race Movements.

PARTLY as a result of the internal transformation among the Negro population in the United States and the West Indies, and also partly as a reaction to the war and the national liberation movements thruout the world (especially the colonial ferment in Africa, Asia, the Philippines, Haiti, etc), a Negro race movement centering in the United States has been stimulated to large proportions. This movement first crystallized into organizational form among West Indian working class immigrants in New York and other United States seaports as well as the British West Indian possessions, but spread rapidly among the native American Negroes, mostly of the working class. Under the name of the Universal Negro Improvement Association a fluctuating membership, at times approaching the half-million mark, was organized. At first it showed distinctly anti-imperialist tendencies, with specific working class demands such as the demand for opening the trade unions to Negroes with equality of pay, etc., as shown in the 1920 program of the Universal Negro Improvement Association. At all times these demands have been confusedly mixed with Utopian conceptions. Rapidly, however, under the leadership of its principal founder, Marcus Garvey, the Utopian pacifist conception that the oppression of the Negro in America and the world could be remedied by the building of a national Negro state in Africa, and that hence the struggle in this country is unnecessary, has become the dominant note of the organization. The exploitation of the Negro masses by demagogic leaders of this organization, who copy the arts of the Jewish Zionist movement, soliciting funds from white capitalists on the ground that they will teach the Negro toilers to submit to "white supremacy" (i. e. capitalist supremacy) in this country, while officially denying but in fact cultivating the dream of mass migration to Africa, is one of the cruellest aspects of betrayal to which the black worker is subjected.

An intense sympathy with the colonial revolts of the Chinese, the Riffians, Sudanese, East Indian, West Indian and Javan peoples against imperialism, is, however, an almost universal phenomenon among American Negro workers. It exists in a militant, aggressive, non-pacifist form, not only among some of the rank and file of the before mentioned organization, but also widely beyond the limits of any organized form. This phenomenon is found in its highest development among Negro industrial workers who completely repudiate the cult of submission in America and who conceive their fate to be bound up with the American labor movement. This element of Negro industrial workers is exceptionally responsive to the Communist program in both its international and its domestic significance. Their interest in questions of colonial imperialism (forced upon them by their own persecution as an "inferior" race), increases the value of the contribution which this most exploited section of the proletariat Negro workers can make to the labor movement. The guidance of this current into the channel of the labor movement and away from Utopianism is a very high task of our party. It involves the need of our party members working within the Negro race movement. It involves the struggle for the working class hegemony within the mass organizations of the race movement, including the struggle against the Utopian leaders—agents of the bourgeoisie. It involves combatting the ideology of concessions to "white supremacy," the insistence upon an uncompromising struggle against the ku klux klan, making these major issues against the reactionary leadership. Within such organizations we must insist upon the organizations taking up the issues of the class struggle, constanly pointing to the failure of the leaders to attempt to protect the Negro toilers from oppression in America.

TO accomplish this we should organize Communist fractions within the Universal Negro Improvement Association which shall strive to surround themselves with the working class and poor farmer elements for the purpose of carrying on the struggle to transform the organization into an organization fighting for the class interests of the Negro workers in the United States.

In the Negro race movements and organizations it is necessary constantly to emphasize the colonial program of the Communist International, pointing out that only with a united world front of all the exploited—only with the conjunction of the proletarian revolution with the revolt of the colonial peoples, that victory can be attained.

We should encourage the Negro workers to take an interest in and support the movement for freedom of the suppressed colonial peoples. But it is not permissible to encourage the Utopian idea that the Negroes in this country can win their emancipation thru mass migration or thru the establishment of a Negro nation in Africa. The reformist leaders (Garvey, etc.) do not have a program for the liberation of the Negro peoples throught the world. The revolutionary movement headed by the Communist International has a program which will liberate the peoples of Africa, Asia, etc., together with the proletariat of all countries. The Communist International and its American section is a friend of all liberation movements of oppressed peoples, and opposes only the misleaders and betrayers of the mass organizations of Negroes.

Other Negro Race Movements.

THE African Blood Brotherhood, with a program of class struggle combined with a militant championing of the special demands of the Negro workers against racial discrimination, is an organization which has done a pioneer work of considerable value, in organizing a militant advance-guard of Negro workers. Otherwise its chief successes have been in those cases when it has employed the united front tactics for enlarging its contact with and influence upon wider circles. Our policy in relation to this organization is to have the local organizations merge with the units of the American Negro Labor Congress.

In the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, the Negro petty-bourgeoisie, together with middle class white reformists and under the partial leadership of the big bourgeoisie (such as represented by Senator Burton, chairman of the last republican national convention) finds the chief medium for its reformist operations. Yet it is a singular paradox, and a reflection of the now passing period of the patronizing of the Negro's cause by the capitalist class, that this organization at its last convention appeared in the role of championing, tho in a timid and "respectable" way, Negro workers' right to admittance in the trade unions. Even in this organization, under present circumstances, it is permissible and necessary for selected Communist (not the party membership as a whole) to enter its conventions and to make proposals calculated to enlighten the Negro masses under its influence as to the nature and necessity of the class struggle, the identity of their exploiters, and their leaders in the same persons and the treacherous nature of the reformist measures proposed.

HOWEVER it is only when the Communist work is so broadened and extended in the field of Negro movements as to make our party stand out as the only real champion of the Negro against lynching, all discriminating and all oppression and exploitation that we can successfully combat the influence of such bourgeois movements.

The aim of our party in our work among the Negro masses is to create a powerful proletarian movement which will fight and lead the struggle of the Negro race against exploitation and oppression in every form and which will be a militant part of the revolutionary movement of the whole American working class, to strengthen the American revolutionary movement by bringing into it the 11,500,000 Negro workers and farmers in the United States to broaden the struggles of the American Negro workers and farmers, connect them with the struggles of the national minorities and colonial peoples of all the world and thereby further the cause of the world revolution and the dictatorship of the proletariat.

NOCKELS AN[illegible]ITZPATRICK ARE EXPOSED [illegible]OOLS OF 'B. & O. BILL' AN[illegible] SIGMAN MACHINE

That Edward Nockels as recently as June 5, 1925, sought an interview with Jack Johnstone, former member of the executive board of the Chicago Federation of Labor and organizer of the stockyard workers, is the charge made and proved in the following reply by Johnstone to the vicious attack made on the Communists by Nockels and Fitzpatrick a few weeks ago.

At the very moment that Nockels was penning the lying letter against the Communists, he was also penning a "dear friend Jack" letter to Johnstone, one of the leading Communists in the United States, whose work for the revolutionary movement is well known to Nockels. This proves Nockels' hypocrisy.

Johnstone exposes Nockels and Fitzpatrick not only as tools of the unspeakable Sigman-Peristein machine, but also as a willing assistant to "B. & O. Bill" Johnston, in that that election stealer's campaign to expel all the radicals and progressives from the Machinists' Union.

By JACK JOHNSTONE.

At the Executive Board meeting of the Chicago Federation of Labor held July 8th, two propositions were accepted which on the surface, seem to be unrelated to each other.

1. A resolution condemning the scabbing tactics of the United Garment Workers in the strike of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers against the International Tailoring Company and the J. L. Taylor Company.

2. The sending to all local unions a four page lying and vicious attack upon the Communists. We reproduce the last paragraph of the letter, which will give the readers the essence of the whole.

The Executive Board of the Chicago Federation of Labor exposes the Communists' tactics, unmasks their schemes and denounces their deceptive methods because they are sailing under false colors and dare not come into the open using their own name as Communists and the American agents of the "Third Internationale". Instead they use the titles: "Labor Defense Council," "Trade Union Educational League", "Amalgamationist", "Progressive Building Trades", "American Negro Labor Congress", "Irish Workers and Peasants' Famine Relief Committee", "The DAILY WORKER", and "The Workers Monthly". Beware of them!

Respectfully submitted,
Chicago Federation of Labor,
John Fitzpatrick, President,
E. N. Nockels, Secretary.

The uninitiated will say, well, where is the connection between these two acts?—that is the basis of this article.

Forced Their Hand.

The condemnation of the scabbing tactics of the officials of the United Garment Workers is endorsed by the Communists, the T. U. E. L., and the whole progressive movement gener-

AS WE SEE IT

By T. J. O'FLAHERTY

THE annual congress of the German Communist Party was held recently in the Prussian Landtag. This is not so much a tribute to the amiableness of the Prussian government as to the power of the Communists. The congress was addressed by French and British fraternal delegates from the Communist parties of both countries. The British delegate, writing for the official organ of his party, tells a very interesting story of the "Red Front Fighters" of Berlin.

HE attended a demonstration in the Neue Welt, a large open air theater. There was an unbroken line of nattily dressed young men on either side of the avenue leading from the gate. The Briton took them to be stewards. They wore light colored jackets with red bands on their arms. On arriving at the theater the writer noticed a commotion among the audience and thinking there was some trouble he got to the stage and witnessed a thrilling sight. The Young Pioneers of Berlin, with banners flying and drums beating were marching into the great auditorium, followed by one thousand of what he took to be stewards, but actually a detachment of the "Red Front Fighters."

NO national anthems were sung. Those young rebels stepped out to the music of revolutionary working class songs. The British Communist was amazed at the sight. But he was told that what he saw was only a small part of the military forces of the workers. Shortly afterwards, 3,000 more "Red Front Fighters" arrived. There are ten thousand of those in Berlin. It is a non-partisan organization and was founded to defend the workers against the armed thugs of capitalism. The meeting was attended by fifteen thousand workers. You can see by this that the German Communist Party has a kick to it.

PRACTICALLY every labor organization in the United States is infested with spies. This is also true of the political parties of the working class, with the exception of the socialist and socialist labor parties

POSTPONE TEXTILE CONFERENCE FROM AUGUST 9 TO SEPTEMBER 6

The latest wage cutting campaign among the textile workers has embraced a large group of workers who thought they were somewhat immune from such treatment—the woolen mill workers, who took no action when the cotton mill workers suffered the wage cut given them a few months ago.

In order that the victims of the woolen mill barons may be able to gather their forces and enter into a united struggle with all militant textile workers, the previously announced Textile Workers' Conference has been postponed, according to the following telegram:

> The date of the Textile Conference at New York City, which was to have been held on August 9, has bene postponed. It will be held on Sunday, September 6, at 11 a. m., at 108 East 14th street, New York City. All militant textile workers take note.

WEST FRANKFORT MINES TO OPEN SEPTEMBER 1, EMPLOYING 1,650 MEN

WEST FRANKFORT, Ill., Aug. 4—Sixteen hundred fifty men will return to work in West Frankfort by September 1, as result of an announcement here today that C. W. and F. Mine Number One, employing 1,050 men, will resume hoisting operations August 17 after being idle since last spring and that Mine Eighteen of the Industrial Coal company, where surface plant was destroyed in a tornado, March 18 would start production September 1 with 600 men returning to work. Work has already started at both mines getting underground plants in condition to resume normal production.

BALDWIN IS IN HOT WATER OVER SUBSIDY

Mine Subsidy Angers Other Capitalists

LONDON, Aug. 4.—Farmers of England today added to the cares of the Baldwin administration with a demand for a subsidy such as one thru which the premier found a solution of the threatened coal strike.

This complicating factor was an additional encouragement to the opposition press, which continued its freely expressed criticism, in anticipation of the debate over the subsidy in the house of commons.

The rest of the capitalist class are sore as a boil over the fact that they must support the burden of paying profits to the mine owners. They hoped the miners would be beaten and would stand this burden.

There seemed little doubt that premier Baldwin would be able to carry his promised measure thru parliament, but it also seemed certain that his administration has been weakened by the forced settlement of the coal strike. It will continue to be a thorn in the side of the administration, it was believed, as long as the tax-payers realize that their money is being paid out for the subsidy.

Debate on the measure in commons tomorrow was expected to be extremely bitter. The capitalist class as a whole cannot understand why the miners and their allies of the trade union movement were not defied and crushed—"once for all." They could not and still do not see the revolutionary possibilities of a general strike of 5,000,000.

Troops Massed on Bulgarian Border by Greek Dictator

ATHENS, Aug. 4—The Greek general staff today denied published reports that two divisions of Greek troops had been moved to the Bulgarian border.

Official announcement was made that a few reinforcements had been sent to the frontier outposts. Foreign minister Rentis stated today that this action was merely a temporary move and would be cancelled as soon as Bulgaria takes action to insure the safety of Greek citizens in Bulgaria.

Athens newspapers had said troops were being moved to the border because of the inaction of the Bulgarian government over Greece's protest against the murder of a Greek citizen in Bulgaria.

SOLIDARITY OF STRIKERS LICKS GARMENT BOSSES

Pam's Injunction Not Used by International

The striking employes of the International Tailoring company are picketing as usual, the company evidently having decided that the injunction issued by Judge Hugo Pam is so mild that it is not worth while posting on the struck plant at 847 West Jackson Blvd. No arrests were made yesterday, and the solidarity of the strikers is is firm as when the Amalgamated Clothing Workers' members walked out six weeks ago.

The attempt of the garment manufacturers to use the courts to restrain the strikers from picketing is not yet over, the company having shown signs of appealing to a higher court, and the J. L. Taylor company having declared their intention of applying for an injunction tomorrow.

However, the present injunction against the strikers, in itself means very little, as it merely orders the strikers to do nothing that is not already unlawful.

The present injunction declares that the strikers have the right to congregate, peacefully picket, visit the homes of scabs, and use "peaceful persuasion."

The injunction issued against the Amalgamated in 1916, practically declared the strike illegal. It outlawed payment of strike benefits, prohibited picketing and congregating in front of the struck plant.

Pam's Injunctions.

The injunction issued by Judge Pam states in part:

"On motion for a temporary injunction on the second bill of complaint and the court having heard the arguments of both sides orders:

"That upon the filing by the complainant of an injunction bond of $5,000 the defendants, and each of them, etc., be and are hereby restrained until further order of the court from doing the following things:

"1. From following or calling upon the employes of the complainant and from congregating and from picketing or maintaining any picket or pickets at or near the premises of the complainant or along the routes followed by the employes of the complainant in going to or from their homes or to and from the place or places of business of the complainant, in a manner that is intimidating or unlawful.

Picketing Legal.

"But this does not, however, restrain in any way or prevent the defendants from maintaining pickets or persuading employes of the complainant or from following or calling upon the employes of the complainant or from congregating in a peaceable or lawful manner as provided in the act of the legislature of the state of Illinois entitled, 'An Act Relating to Disputes Concerning Terms and Conditions of Employment.'

"2. From organizing or maintaining any boycott against the complainant.

GERMAN MINE OWNERS ALSO GETTING SUBSIDY WHILE WORKERS STARVE

BERLIN, Aug. 4.—The newspapers report the gold discount bank has granted to the Ruhr miring industry a three months' credit of 15,000,000 marks because of the present crisis, in which enormous stocks of coal are on hand without a market.

The mine owners declare that the situation is leading to ruin. They have resorted to wholesale dismissals of miners in an effort to economize and many pits are closed down.

Ninth Week Finds Strike at Shanghai Still Strong; Soviet Unionists Arrive

SHANGHAI, China, August 4.—It should be clearly understood that tho many of the smaller and inconsequential shops are open, the important mills and all shipping of Shanghai are still idle—the general strike is still going strong at the end of its ninth week.

The Union of Labor, Commerce and Education does not care about the small places, being concerned with shutting up the big mills owned by British and Japanese—and they are quite successfully doing this.

Saturday, the delegation from the All-Russian Trade Unions visited the General Labor Union and were welcomed by tremendous cheering. The delegation is four in number, Lepse, head of the Metal Workers' Industrial Union, Smorgins, Vaskroff and another.

Strike relief is coming in enuf to keep the strikers from privation more than that to which they have always been subjected under imperialist exploitation. The mass sentiment is unquestionably back of the strike.

China Opposes Whitewash Scheme.

A dispatch from Peking says that the Peking government has cabled Chinese ministers abroad, instructing them to notify the governments to which they are accredited, that China opposes any new investigation of the Shanghai massacres, and wishes to know what is the divergence from facts of the first diplomatic commission's report.

All China is still seething, in a way that no one not now conversant with it, can imagine. A correspondent in the famous "peaceful and model" province of Shanghai writes:

"The energy and careful organization of the liberation movement is almost incredible to those who recall the apathy of former days in regard to politics."

4,000 SHOP OFFICIALS OF NEW YORK CITY I. L. G. W. OVERFLOW COOPER UNION, CHEERING HYMAN

NEW YORK CITY, Aug. 4—The meeting last night of I. L. G. W. shop chairman and shop committees of the cloak and dress shops, overflowed Cooper Union and filled Manhattan Lyceum besides.

Four thousand shop officials, in galvanic certification of the fact that the conflict between the Sigman officialdom and the membership of the I. L. G. W. is a revolution and not a partial rebellion, pledged their united support and confidence to the Joint Action Committee of the suspended locals, 2, 9 and 22—and directed that body to continue the struggle until victory.

Louis Hyman, in a speech full of fire and scorching with flaming attacks on the Sigmanite bureaucracy, was given a great ovation when he declared:

"We cloakmakers suffer from hunger—and Sigman turns us over to the bankers that they may study our pains!

"We, ourselves, are the only ones who understand our sufferings.

"There is but one way to liberate ourselves. That is, when the season opens, to say—'We will not sew any garments until we get the possibility of making a living.'"

The meeting adopted resolutions demanding that Sigman resign, asserting that Sigman is more abhorrent to the cloakmakers than even Feinberg and Peristein. The resolutions also expressed complete confidenc in the Joint Action Committee as the true representatives of the cloak and dress makers of New York City.

GERMAN FASCIST ADMITS HE WAS A POLICE SPY

Kindermann Caught in Lies by Soviet Court

BY INPRECORR.

MOSCOW, U. S. S. R.—The examination of the German fascist, Kindermann, by the Soviet court here, brot out the fact that Kindermann joined the Communist Party of Germany as a police spy, and came to the Soviet Union to perpetrate terroristic acts against the workers' government.

Kindermann admitted that his father was expelled from the German Communist Party, and that he, his son, had close personal connection with the German fascist leaders. He also admitted that he studied to be a detective, and knew nothing of Communism. He joined the party, he admitted, for the purpose of furthering his terroristic expedition to Russia.

KATTERFELD GETS FINAL PAPERS FROM JOLIET PENITENTIARY

(Special to The Daily Worker)

NEW YORK, August 4.—L. E. Katterfeld, who was convicted for "conspiracy" in Chicago for the part he played in the organizing convention of the Communist Labor Party in 1919 and who served one year of his sentence in the penitentiary at Joliet, Illinois, and a second year "on probation" in New York, has just received his final discharge from the Illinois state penitentiary.

ANTHRACITE CONFERENCE BREAKING UP

Operators Trying to Force Arbitration

(Special to The Daily Worker)

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Aug. 4.—Unless the present personnel of the operators' negotiating committee at the coal conference here is displaced by men "with power to act," leaders of the United Mine Workers of America will withdraw from the joint conference of anthracite mine operators and workers, it was reported this afternoon just before today's session was to open.

John L. Lewis, international president of the United Mine Workers, conferred with union district heads, the reports said, and it was determined that unless Samuel D. Warriner receded from his stand regarding retention of the present sub-committee personnel, the conference would come to a sudden end this afternoon.

Lewis Says Warriner Lies

Union leaders said it would be "useless" to confer any longer with the present personnel of the operators' sub-committee. They declared that in spite of what Warriner says, this committee is not empowered to grant them their demands.

Should there be a strike, they asserted, the operators will then be in a position to unload nearly ten million tons of surplus coal now on hand.

Warriner Denies Agents Lack Power

In his letter to John L. Lewis, refusing to come personally to the conference, Samuel D. Warriner, chairman of the anthracite operators' association, said yesterday:

"You question the authority of our committee and the experience of its members. Let me assure you at once that this committee is fully authorized to represent and speak for the anthracite industry."

Warriner's letter goes further in pressing that there be no suspension

Building the Communist Press in the United States

The following resolution was unanimously adopted by the Parity Commission for submission to the National Convention of the Workers (Communist) Party to held August 21:

THE Communist Press is not only the collective organizer of the Party of proletarian revolution but the collective organizer of the masses for the revolution under the leadership of the Party.

This was the view of Lenin of the role of the Communist press and it is to make our press the collective organizer of the Party and the masses that we must strive.

Our Party has made some progress in this direction, but in the United States, where the propaganda agencies of capitalism have reached their highest point of development, the fact that the masses are almost literature gives the press an extraordinary power both in the hands of the capitalists and in the hands of the revolutionary Party.

1. The multiplicity of languages (a score of language groups within the ranks of our own Party) in America is a special difficulty that we have to meet and overcome.

This in turn creates the need for the greatest centralization of our press but the form of organization of our Party (inherited from the Socialist Party) has made extremely difficult the task of bringing under a centralized control the entire Party press. The lack of complete centralized control has resulted in many organizational weaknesses and serious deviations from the correct Communist line.

2. It has been necessary also to work unceasingly to wipe out the traditions of bourgeois journalism with which many of our comrades were infected due to the lack of proper training in the manner and method of securing, recording and sending to our press the news of the daily struggles of the American working class.

3. Another problem our press has had to solve was the belief among wide circles of party and non-party workers that Communist journalism consisted in hectic and flambouyant phraseology having little if any relation to the actual feelings and struggles of the workers, which satisfied the revolutionary ego of the writer, which sometimes served to conceal his lack of real revolutionary understanding but which has been characterized by the Communist International in its thesis on the Bolshevization of the press as follows:

"Two different things may be comprehended under revolutionary phrases in the Communist press. There are Communist papers which invariably follow the principle of employing the strongest and most urgent phraseology which they are capable of compiling and which give the impression that the writers must have been in a state of high fever.

"Viewed as agitation this fails to take any effect upon the masses, rebels them, and has besides this disadvantage that when the newspaper has to deal with some special situation it finds its vocabulary exhausted.

"A second variety of the revolutionary phrase is the ceaseless employment of Communist slogans without any internal connection with the lives of the workers. Frequently the simple narration of facts is more effective than the artificial and wearisome repetition of Communist slogans.

"More faith in the thinking powers of the readers.

"Lenin, on three different occasions, criticised this tendency:

"The revolutionary phrase consists of the repetition of revolutionary slogans, without taking into account the objective circumstances of the present curve of events and the present situation. Wonderfully captivating and intoxicating slogans, without any firm ground beneath them, are the essence of the revolutionary phrase."

And again:

"Why is it not possible to speak in 10 to 20 lines, instead of 200 to 400, of simple, well known, obvious matters, already fairly well digested by the masses. . . .?" (The Character of our Newspapers.)

Finally:

"Less intellectual talk, closer contact with life."

4. There has been the difficulty of making the Party realize that its daily paper is the principal weapon of the Party, that in addition to waging the Party struggles in the various districts, there is the duty of informing the Party press of these struggles and their implications.

Too often in the past it has been necessary for our press to secure its news of the struggles in which our comrares are engaged and at some times were actually leading, from the columns of the enemy press.

5. There is finally the major problem of building and maintaining the circulation of our press. If the news of the struggles of the workers carried by the Communist press is not read by them, then much of the valu-

PRESSMEN QUIT WORK; IT'S JUST LIKE A STRIKE

Fear George L. Berry Will Scab on Them

All workers in the Cuneo Printing corporation plant at Arthington and Spaulding streets and the Cuneo Press Inc. at 22nd and Cottage Grove avenue plants may quit work as a protest against the action of the two companies in ordering one pressman taken from all the presses on which two pressmen and two helpers were formerly employed.

The pressmen are all members of the Printing Pressmen's Union of N. A. No. 3. The companies ordered the new short crew rule into effect Monday. The companies and the pressmen's organization had negotiated for some time about the new rule. The question was taken up with the president of the Pressmen's Union "Major" George Berry who has won a reputation for himself as an official union strikebreaker.

Berry ordered the men to stay at work and accept the cut in the press crews while union officials continued their negotiations with the companies.

Realizing that to permit the companies to "get the bulge" on them by enforcing the rule and then trying to have the new practice discontinued the pressmen quit work as individuals.

If they had gone on strike, strikebreaker Berry would have not only revoked their charter but would have filled their places with out of town strike breakers the men believe.

At present there are about five hundred pressmen and assistants involved in the walkout which isn't a strike.

The plants do much work for mail order houses and if the other workers in them strike or walk out on vacations it will involve approximately 2,500 men.

Members of the International Brotherhood of Bookbinders working in the plant are talking of walking out in sympathy, and if the pressmen's walkout lasts any length of time, they are expected to take this action.

The Cuneo-Henneberry plant is one of the largest printing plants in the country. It prints catalogues, magazines, and other big printing jobs, including the LaFollette magazine, and much work for William Randolph Hearst.

The laying off of one pressman to a machine is one of the incidents in the drive of the printing companies to establish the "open shop" in Chicago and smash the printers' unions.

W. F. Hall Printing Company is already operating as an "open shop" having completely defied the union.

The Cuneo plant is working toward the same end, in line with the strong drive of the "open shop" employers' association in the printing industry on an open shop basis.

whose claim to represent the working class is spurious. The reason spies do not pay any attention to the latter is because they are inoffensive and harmless. Both the bosses and the government have their stools in the labor unions. There are thousands of detective agencies in this country and they make big profits. Sometimes a spy is caught and given his deserts but they usually get away for a long time before even suspicion is directed against them.

THIS is not the only country where where the organizations of the working class are subjected to the spy pest. At the present moment the British government is employing thousands of these vermin to keep track of the activities of the political and economic organizations of the working class, particularly the Communist Party. Recently a stoolpigeon was exposed in the Glasgow section of the party. He went under an assumed name, but it was discovered that he was a well known Orange bigot—well known in another part of the country.

THE fink was called to a special meeting of the branch and confronted with his past record. At first he denied that he was sailing under false colors, but he finally had to admit the truth. The committee asked him to write a statement explaining that he joined the party for the purpose of espionage. This he did in a cramped style. The committee therefore demanded that he produce something written in his usual style. He turned his pockets inside out, all except his hip pocket. This pocket contained a fully loaded revolver.

THE spy was conducted to the police station, not because the comrades were of the opinion that only a police court could do justice under the circumstances. They were anxious to learn how the police authorities would treat a case of the kind, particularly in view of the fact that the "stool" carried a gun. Just as they suspected the police said that he had a permit to carry a gun and he was turned loose. The Communists are not wondering what would happen to a comrade found under similar circumstances in some bourgeois organization. They know what would happen.

THE fascisti won the elections held in Sicily last Sunday by a majority so slim that it offers abundant justification for the belief that but for the use of black-shirt gangsters the voters would have turned down the Mussolini gang. The fascisti had terrorists posted at the polling booths and the voters were showed where and how to mark their ballots. The vatican is still hurling its thunder at Benito and the latter is beginning to chafe under the fire. If both should get into a real scrap, the casualty list would make interesting reading.

Jurisdictional War in Building Trades Again Rending Unions

NEW YORK, Aug. 4.—A new phase in the jurisdictional conflict between bricklayers and plasterers develop today when bricklayers employed by the George A. Fuller Construction company went on strike in all building projects in this city, Washington D. C. and Florida. Officials of the company said work was halted on approximately $20,000,000 worth of construction.

According to Fuller company officials, construction work on three large apartment houses in this city, a department store in Washington and three additional projects in Florida have been tied up by the strike.

The move was interpreted as a retaliatory stroke by the bricklayers' answer to the last move by the plasterers' union, with whom they have been at odds over union matters since last March.

BERLIN, Germany, Aug. 4.—Emil Eichhorn, Communist member of the Reichstag, who is dead here, was one of the leaders of the Spartacan uprising of January, 1919, when he was chief of police of Berlin.

Comrade Eichhorn had several charges of treason placed against him which, however, were not prosecuted because of his parliamentary immunity. When deposed from his post as chief of police, Comrade Eichohrn refused to vacate, but was forced out following the failure of the revolt.

Among the charges placed against him were that he allowed Karl Radek, Russian Communist, to enter Berlin, and that he armed workers.

of work on September 1, and that in case no agreement has been reached by that time the miners keep on working while "impartial" persons arbitrate the matter.

R. Dawson Hall, editor of Coal Age, organ of coal operators, also has joined in the demand for arbitration.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Aug. 4.—It was freely predicted today that the joint operators-miners wage conference will come to an abrupt end, probably tomorrow.

Negotiations which, it had been hoped, would stave off a national hard coal strike September 1, are at a standstill. These negotiations have been in progress since July 9 and little, if any, progress has been made.

One of the principal grievances of the miners is that they are being forced to deal with subordinate officials, operators without power to act.

John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers of America, has issued an ultimatum that Samuel D. Warriner, chairman of the operators' committee, take part in the conference when it is resumed tomorrow.

If he does not, it was indicated, disruption of the conference will follow.

In that event, it was reported, Governor Gifford Pinchot of Pennsylvania, will invite representatives of both sides to meet with him in Harrisburgh with a view of reaching an agreement.

Should this fail, federal intervention to avert a strike is a strong possibility.

"7. From calling any of the employes or persons in person who may seek to become employes of the complaniant any vile or abusive names, including 'scabs' or 'finks' and from addressing to them (in person) other vile of abusive epithets or language in writing or otherwise."

The International Tailoring company announced that it has taken six months' lease on the bankrupt Boone Woolen mills at Rock Island. It is pointed out by the Amalgamated that the fact that the Boone company lost three million dollars in this very factory, and that the plant was not bought or leased for a long term, shows that the International is making a futile gesture to attempt to scare the srikers. This fake is a last desperate effort to break the solidarity of the striking employes.

Find Judge Insane, to Place Him in a Private Institution

Preparations are being made to place Judge George Karsten, for 43 years a Chicago magistrate, in a private institution as a result of a hearing in his home at which he was adjudged insane and paroled in custody of his wife.

Artero sclerotic dementia was the technical term used in describing his physical and mental breakdown. He is 72 years old.

WALL STREET ANXIOUS THAT CAILLAUX COME

Former "Traitor" Now White Haired Baby

(Special to The Daily Worker)

WASHINGTON, Aug. 4.—Wall St. is keenly desirous that Joseph Caillaux, the French finance minister, shall come to Washington in person next month to negotiate the funding of France's $4,000,000,000 war debt, and to that end discreet hints are being dropped in Paris.

This became known today on the heels of the apparent collapse of the Anglo-French debt negotiations at London.

Flop in Fear

An undisguised fear here is that the same fate may overtake the Franco-American negotiations unless the French negotiators are headed by some one who has authority to commit the French government to a settlement.

The failure of the London negotiators to find a suitable basis for funding France's debt to Great Britain aroused keen interest among members of the American debt funding commission, but owing to the delicacy of the situation and the imminence of negotiations here all comment was withheld. There was no concealing the fact, however that the London failure injected a somewhat gloomy note into the optimistic views hitherto held that France would come to Washington next month prepared to settle.

THIRTEEN COPS ON THE MAT FOR THEFT OF LOOT

Charged with Neglect and Inefficiency

One detective sergeant, seven detectives from the bureau, and five patrolmen were named by deputy superintendent of police Mathew Zimmer as the men against whom he had written up charges in connection with the theft of $5,000 worth of stolen property which they were supposed to guard.

The policemen and detectives, according to the deputy superintendent, had been on duty at John Sovetsky's store in Wentworth Ave., following a police raid on July 9 in which $90,000 worth of alleged stolen property was found. The loss, in silks, furs, clothing and jewels was revealed two days later.

The charges are neglect of duty and inefficiency.

All the officers named in the charges have been notified and their reports are expected. Then the cases will be laid before Chief Collins, who may dismiss them, or, if he believes the charges well founded, may suspend the officers and forward his charges to the civil service commission for trial.

Open Shoppers Put an 'O. K.' on the A. F. of L.'s "Nonpartisan" Policy

By J. LOUIS ENGDAHL.

TODAY, salvos of applause from big business, from the open shoppers, from the press of the capitalist foe, arises everywhere in unstinted appreciation of the American Federation of Labor officialdom's return to its nonpartisan political policy of other years.

Thus the Chicago Journal of Commerce, champion of the Landis "open shop" plan in the building trades, proclaims with great approval that, "Soberly and sedately labor will walk the path which it formerly followed to its exceeding profit."

If labor gained anything thru the "nonpartisan" policy forced on it by the Gompers' regime, then the Journal of Commerce would be the first to denounce it.

If the "nonpartisan" policy had proved the gigantic success that is now again claimed for it, Sam Gompers, its chief apostle, would never have jumped to the LaFollette camp last year in his desperate fight to maintain his grip on the labor movement.

It is because of the sterility of this policy, in aiding the workers, that makes it so beloved by the Journal of Commerce and the capitalist class for which this sheet speaks.

It is because the A. F. of L. officialdom believes that it can scrape up a few crumbs thru this belly-crawling policy that it favors it; just as all the industrial policies of the A. F. of L. chiefs are drawn to cater to the whims of the exploiters, rather than to challenge them in the open class struggle and win thru the organized might of class power.

• • • •

The Journal of Commerce tries to console itself with the belief that, "Not for many and many a year will it again join in a third party movement." That is hoping a lot.

With the continued "open shop" war against labor, with wage cuts developing everywhere, with increasing competition with enslaved workers abroad under the Dawes plan resulting in a growing army of unemployed in this country, the struggle will increasingly grow, not only for a third party, where labor officials may find a soft seat, but for independent political action of the workers, resulting in a class party of labor.

• • • •

In the effort to win support for their latest backward move, William Green, Matthew Woll, "Strikebreaker" Tom Rickert, and the other members of the executive council of the A. F. of L., will argue for "immediate victories". Capitalist propaganda in politics for working class consumption bends in the same direction, "for immediate success". The LaFollette movement last year is dubbed a failure because it was not crowned with immediate victory. The attack is made on the Labor Party, charging it is "foreign to American institutions", and it can't win, so the argument goes. And in this same issue of the Journal of Commerce, it is claimed "a free and independent people like ours" is "irrevocably against Soviet ideas of control."

• • • •

Against this sapper propaganda, that has no existence in fact, the workers must be taught that the building of their class power may be a slow and tedious process, but it is the only successful means of reaching their goal. Workers know that when the bosses begin to praise the industrial policies of their unions, then there is something wrong, that the class-collaboration disease has set in. The same reasoning holds true when the "open shop" interests look with favor upon the political line laid down by the union bureaucracy.

The traitor in the organized labor movement can be spotted by the favor that he finds in the eyes of the bosses.

The bosses look with favor in the A. F. of L.'s "nonpartisan" policy because it is treason to the whole working class.

Refuses to Deny Bryan's Membership.

ATLANTA, Ga., Aug. 4.—"There is no one here that can say," was the only answer that came from the imperial palace of the ku klux klan here when the question was asked as to whether William Jennigs Bryan was a member of the klan.

"I just can't answer that question," the imperial palace spokesman replied when asked for his personal knowledge on the question.

Doors of Soviet House Thrown Wide Open to German Workers

COMRADE MICHAEL FRUNZE, Commandant of the Soviet Army and Navy, in greeting the delegation of the German workers visiting the Union of Soviet Republics, declared: "We are ready to accept all advice and suggestions, for we know that you are friends who are advising us. We open the doors of our Soviet House wide before our honored guests and declare from the bottom of our hearts, WELCOME."

WORKERS FROM GERMANY LAND AT LENINGRAD

Blacklisted Delegate Offered Putilov Job

(By INPRECORR)

MOSCOW, July 15.—(By Mail).—Immediately upon the arrival of the German workers' delegation in the Leningrad harbor, a meeting attended by thousands of people took place. The representatives of various trade unions greeted the German comrades and urged them to make a detailed study of the life of the working class in the Soviet Union.

A member of the Franco-Belgian trade union delegation which is in Leningrad on its return journey, Vergaiche, also greeted the German delegation and declared:

Will Destroy Bourgeois Lies

"We urge the German comrades to give the same careful attention to the struggle of the Russian working class as the Franco-Belgian delegation has done. We have recognised the immensity of the achievements of the Soviet Union and are determined to destroy the bourgeois lies about the workers' country."

Putilov will take Blacklisted Delegate

In the course of the meeting the chairman declared that he had learnt that a member of the German delegation, Kurt Berholdt, has been dismissed from his shop for participation in the journey to Russia.

The information called forth the greatest indignation amongst the masses. Berholdt, was greeted with storms of applause.

The representative of the Putilov Engineering Works who was presented declared that the works would offer with joy the comrade a position as a metal worker.

Mexican Government Looks for New Note from Coolidge Soon

MEXICO CITY, Aug. 4.—Both the American embassy and the Mexican government today were expecting that Ambassador Sheffield, on his return to Mexico, would bring a note clarifying Secretary's Kellogg's policy regarding Mexico.

Either the diplomat will bring such a note, it was believed, or coincident with his start south, after conferences with President Coolidge and the head of the state department, Secretary Kellogg will issue a formal declaration of policy.

Calles expects the next declaration of the United States to specify what Kellogg meant by his mention of danger to lives and property and rumors of revolt against the Calles government.

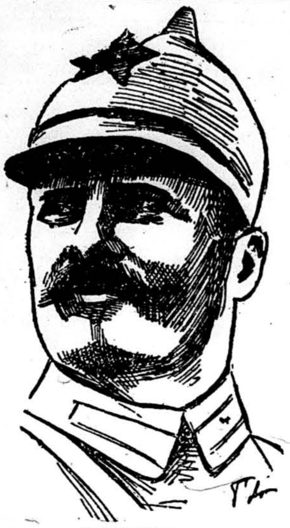
Chief of Soviet Red Army and Navy



MICHAEL FRUNZE

Michael Frunze, chief of the Soviet Army and Navy, in welcoming the delegation of German workers to the Union of Soviet Republics, said in part:

"Many German comrades have perhaps come here with the idea given them by the bourgeois and social democratic press, that here there is a wild and cruel dictatorship, which suppresses every initiative, every freedom and every creative attempt.

Will Find Freedom for Workers.

"Let the German comrades discuss this point with any workers, in any occupation, in any part of the Soviet Republics. They will learn from them that nowhere in the world is there such freedom for the toilers as there is with us, and they will also understand that in the circumstances, with capitalism surrounding us, and with the exiactence of tens of thousands of organized Russian, Georgian and other white guards, with the existence of social revolutionaries and menshevik counter-revolutionaries, which any capitalist government can buy for the struggle against the workers' and peasants' republic, it would be stupid and treacherous to let the sword of the proletarian dictatorship fall from our hands.

"The German comrades will furtherbe convinced of the depth of the warm sympathy, not only or the proletariat; but also of all the toiling masses of the Soviet Union, for the German proletariat and the whole German people.

"They will see that each of our workers is deeply convinced that the result of the struggle between capital and labor will be decided by the unification of the efforts of the proletariat of the Soviet Union with those of the proletariat of Germany, finally and incontestably.

Welcome Advice of Friends.

"They will hear our workers ask again and again with wonder how it is that a considerable section of the German working class still alows itself to be led by the Soviet Union-hating social democracy. Our German comrades will hear very many other things. I as strongly convinced that this will prove useful to us and to them.. "We on our side are ready to accept all advice and suggestions, for we know that they are friends who are advising us. We therefore open the doors of our Soviet house wide before our honored guests and declare from the bottom of our hearts—Welcome!"

ally. In fact, it was the left-wing that pushed this action upon Fitzpatrick and Nockels. A number of local unions had already condemned the United Garment Workers, and the fact that it would have come up in the meeting of the Federation any way pushed the Executive Board into action.

Without question this action aided the strikers at least morally. But, it does not go far enough. The strikers need and want the active support of the labor movement. A call from the A. F. of L. for mass picketing would assure the success of the strike. But instead of this practical step, they passed the buck to Bill Green, who promptly told them to keep their nose out of that situation. Which they are proceeding to do.

The Amalgamated Clothing Workers have been very good to the Chicago Federation of Labor. A call for financial support has always met with a quick response. And the least that could have been done was for the Chicago Federation to give them moral support.

Nockels Condones Scabbing.

However, Ed. Nockels at the meeting of the Federation let it be known that he at least condemned Rickert and his scabbing policy with fingers crossed. In fact, he admitted publicly that if he was in the same position as Rickert he would do exactly the same thing.

As for the letter condemning the Communists—that was for the purpose of offsetting any accusation that might be made by the reactionaries, thru whose grace they retain their present positions, that they were in league with the left-wing in condemning the scabbing tactics of the United Garment Workers. It also expressed their resentment against the left-wing for having compelled them to officially take such action. They would rather have had a number of private conferences with both sides to the controversy stretching over the entire strike period.

The sending of this letter to the local unions is a public declaration, to the reactionaries that control the labor movement, that they are good and kosher, that they have learned their lesson and will never again stray from the fold, and that from now on orders will be orders and will be carried out.

Sunk to Low Depths.

The labelling of the Labor Defense Council, the Irish Workers and Peasants' Relief Committee, the American Negro Labor Congress, etc., as Communist camouflaged organizations, shows the depths that these once misnamed progressives have sunk to. The Tammany Hall trickery of Fitzpatrick and Nockles is shown in the following exerpt from the letter mentioned:

"They (the Communists) principally use a letterhead having big, bold type, 'Labor Defense Council, National Office Federation of Labor Building, 166 W. Washington St., Chicago,' and then immediately under this in faint typewriting they have 'new address, 19 S. Lincoln St.' Only one person in ten thousand would look close enough to see the fraud."

This is to create the opinion that the Labor Defense Council never had an office in the Federation of Labor Building while the truth of the matter is that the Labor Defense Council had its national office in the Federation of Labor Building from 1922 until May, 1925, and quite naturally they used up the old letterheads.

As for it being a Communist organization, Buck, the editor of the "New Majority", was the chairman of the Labor Defense Council ever since it was organized and only relinquished this position when he moved to Washington.

The labeling of the American Negro Congress as a Communist organization by Fitzpatrick and Nockels will receive the whole-hearted support of every exploiter of labor in the country. They want to keep the negro unorganized. By propaganda they have for too long built a wall of race prejudice between the white and the colored workers. The American Negro Labor Congress is making a successful drive which is bringing a better understanding between white and Negro labor and which can only result in bringing large masses of negroes into the labor movement.

Against Negro Workers.

It is all right to talk about equality for the Negroes and as long as it remained in the talking stage Fitspatrick and Nockels were for it. But as soon as the Negroes tired of a mere talkfast decided to organize and thru organized effort abolish Jim Crowism and fight for social, political and economic equality, and Nockels, who like the twins Daughtery and Palmer, raises the red scare, sends a letter to every union in the city of Chicago which practically asks them to condemn the American Negro Labor Congress.

It is true that in all of the organizations mentioned in the letter Communists play their part, in some they play a leading part. The Communist work within every working class organization and very naturally in this stage of development of the American labor movement, always find themselves in the minority.

The writer along with W. Z. Foster, Joe Manley and other Communists are very well acquainted with Fitzpatrick and Nockels, having worked in close touch with them for many years. Never for a moment were we deceived with the progressive mantle that they donned for a short spell. The question was always at what point will they turn tail and run?

As long as they were assured of sufficient support in the Chicago Federation of Labor to insure them their official positions, they were quite willing to pose as progressives.

The success of the Russian revolution, the betrayal of the German revolution, the rise of military and fascist dictatorship thruout the world, dispelled the wrong conception held by the many revolutionary groups that existed in America as to how the world's proletarian revolution would be achieved, out of which developed the Workers (Communist) Party.

This followed by the rapid and for the first time, conscious development of the left wing movement under the leadership of the T. U. E. L. which drew the class lines much clearer putting to the test all those who considered themselves radical, from the mildest progressive to the conscious revolutionist. In other words, historically speaking, an abrupt and quick realignment of forces took place. Those merely posing as radicals quickly scrambled back into the reactionary labor official family.

No Fundamental Difference.

The personal antagonism that existed between Gompers and Fitzpatrick and Nockels, which to a very large extent forced them to assume a progressive pose, made them rather reluctant to go back into the arms of Gompers, so official pressure had to be brought to bear. Ideologically they never differed fundamentally from Gompers. The difference that existed was more a personal one than of policy.

The Chicago Federation of Labor took the lead in many progressive moves, such as the demand that the Canadian government release Trotsky and allow him to proceed to Russia, the recognition of Soviet Russia, the Mooney case, the organizing campaign in the packing houses and the steel mills, Defense of the Michigan cases, Amalgamation, Labor Party, etc. But it is a mistake to think that Fitzpatrick and Nockels initiated or even actively supported any of these moves. Their support was passive. In other words, they did not oppose them.

However, Gompers demanded a showdown. In a speech made in the Morrison Hotel Gompers frankly told the reactionaries that they must take over the Chicago Federation of Labor. It was rumored around that Gompers was going to send a special representative to organize against the progressives and to remove Fitzpatrick and Nockels if they continued to kick over the traces.

Fake Progressives.

This greatly perturbed these two pseudo progressives. They immediately began to count those who would support them. Nockels very abruptly asked the writer where the reds would stand if a fight between them and Gompers took place and he was promptly told that the reds would fight against the reactionary Gompers policy and would support them if they made a clear cut fight. However, something happened that made them change their minds very quickly and scampered back into "respectability".

There is no doubt that many labor officials, who were opposed to all the progressive measures passed by the Chicago Federation of Labor, but who because of personal friendship had supported Fitspatrick and Nockels served notice upon them that they would have to line up, abandon their passive support and enter into an open campaign against the progressives and if they refused to do this, somebody else would take their place as president and secretary of the federation.

So they decided to eat crow and the letter sent to local unions condemning the progressives, raising the red scare by following the bureaucratic lead and labeling the mildest progressive organizations as being a Communist camouflage is only one of the many goosesteps that they have made in order to prove to the Powers-That-Be that their conversion has been complete.

Nockels goes out of his way to assist the discredited Sigman, Peristein, Feinberg reactionary machine in the Ladies Garment Workers' Union, and publicly announces that it was he who got the management of the Ashland Auditorium to refuse to give their hall to the officials of Local 2, 9, 22 of New York City because they were progressives. In spite of the fact that the hall had been rented and paid for. This he did at the request of the local lieutenant of Sigman, Peristein and Feinberg.

Compelled to Resign.

Nevertheless a successful meeting was held in another hall and the story of the betrayal of the New York cloak and dress makers told to the rank and file of the Chicago garment workers. Since then Peristein and Feinberg have been compelled to resign and the overwhelming majority of the members of the I. L. G. W. are now demanding the resignation of Sigman.

Nockels at least, if not Fitspatrick, has also aligned himself with the crooked Johnston administration in the Machinists' Union. About three weeks ago, much to my surprise, Nockels phoned me at the office of the Trades Union Educational League asking an interview on a very important matter. A few days later I dropped into the Federation Building. Nockels was not there, but he had left his pink haired lieutenant, Charles Wills, a Johnston supporter to do Nockels' dirty work.

Wills in a very nonchalant way handed the writer an envelope containing two letters, one written by Wm. H. Johnston to Ed. Nockels asking him to try and get the original letter written by M. J. McMahon, a member of the General Executive Board of the Machinists' Union to a friend which exposed the corruption of Johnston, Davison and company in their fake labor banking schemes This letter, without the name of the receiver was printed in full in the DAILY WORKER of April 13th. Johnston is very anxious to get this letter to use it against McMahon with the purpose in view no doubt, of expelling him as he has J. F. Anderson, and as he intends to expell all of his political opponents because he cannot meet the charges of corruption brought against him.

Johnston in his letter begged Nockels to try and get the original even going so far as to offer to pay for it. The other letter in the envelope handed to me by Wills is herewith produced in photographic form.

You will note that Nockels states that he has a special reason for wanting the McMahon letter. But Wills was very specific just what the letter was wanted for, and when he was informed that under no circumstances would the Workers Party give the letter to Johnston or Nockels, he intimated that a law suit would force us to produce it.

Would Expose Johnston.

The Communists never go into a capitalist court of their own volition, but Johnston believes in capitalist "justice". But this is one case that he will not trust the courts with because in the process he would be compelled to expose his own corruption.

Fitzpatrick and Nockels have gone the way of many others who a few years ago thought they were progressives, as witness the socialist parties who have become the betrayers of the working class the world over.

The world war was the first clear and definite sign of the actual decay of capitalism. In that wild orgy capitalism delivered its own death blow from which it cannot recover. The present period of partial stabilization of capitalism does not mean that capitalism has overcome its crisis. On the contrary it simply means that the revolutionary center has changed from Europe to the imperialist colonial possessions, as witness the struggle between the Riffians and the French imperialists, the revolutionary crisis in China, which encourages and strengthens the fight for national independence of all colonial people and national minorities and weakens world's imperialism.

The threatened British coal miners' strike, now postponed, which has the support of the railroad workers, the Machinists and Marine Transport of Great Britain as well as the support of the revolutionary miners throut the world, when it breaks, will shake the British empire to its very foundation. These and many other movements show that the stabilization of capitalism in the European sector is not a lasting one.

Revolutionary Movement Gains.

On the other hand the success of the Russian working class against their capitalist class and their ability to hold their victory against a united world's capitalist front, coupled with the fact that in many countries all pretense of democratic government has been abolished, the bourgeoisie being compelled, in order to quell revolutionary uprising to launch a reign of terrorism and to set up military and Fascist dictatorships, shows the ascendancy of the world's proletarian revolutionary movement.

The vicious attacks made upon the progressives and the Communists in this country by the labor bureaucrats strengthens the hands of the enemies of labor. Letters such as the one sent out by Fitzpatrick and Nockels is, are attacks upon the working class. They can hinder the development of the left wing movement by raising the red scare but they cannot kill it. Slowly but surely the American revolutionary movement is growing in strength under the banner of the Workers (Communist) Party and under the leadership of the Communist International. Side by side with the Workers Party within the trade unions there is developing a militant conscious left wing under the leadership of T. U. E. L. and the Red International of Labor Unions. 66,000 votes in the miners' unions, the forced resignation of Perlstein and Feinberg in the I. L. G. W. U., the stealing of the election by Johnston of the machinists are not isolated incidents. They are the results of conscious movements from below that will eventually establish a leadership that will lead the forces of labor into the struggle to fight the battles of the working class.

RAILROAD AMALGAMATIONISTS TO HOLD CONFERENCE SEPTEMBER 12

PAUL, Minn., August 3.—The International Committee for Amalgamation in the railroad industry has issued a call for the Second Amalgamation Conference to be held at Chicago, September 12 and 13, at the Workers' Lyceum, 2733 Hirsch Boulevard. 4. Press.
3. Finances.
5. General Program and Demands:

Peking Reactionary Students Split Off from Student Union

PEKING, China, Aug. 4.—Influenced by the capitalist class who fear that the Chinese liberation movement is going "too far," the middle class faculties and a small group of the richer student body of the Peking colleges are denouncing the Students' Union, claiming that it is controlled by Communists.

That section of the Peking capitalists who are apprehensive of the liberation movement and who are in harmony with the Peking government of Tuan Chi-jui who has played traitor to the Shanghai strike and has evidently succumbed to the corrupting influence of the diplomatic corps led by the American Minister MacMurray, are applauding the action of the reactionary students.

The Chinese capitalist press which expresses the subsidized opinion of the Peking government says that there students are "responsible" and "really representative" as are also the capitalists who applaud them—they too are "responsible."

The Students' Union has not officially replied as yet, but members state that the "responsibility" assumed by the reactionaries is a responsibility for treason to the Chinese people and a responsibility for the massacres the imperialist have and will inflict upon the Chinese workers.

DO YOU WANT TO DIE? THEN WORK FOR THIS BOSS

Stone and Webster in Philly Death-Trap

By MATT PURO

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., I have been working at a Stone and Webster job about a month. But the other day when one man got killed alongside me, I quit. The day before three men lost their lives and every day someone gets killed or injured.

In spite of this astounding loss of life of the workers, nobody sees anything about it in the papers. Only one time did I see the Philadelphia papers say that a man was killed at Delaware avenue and Lewis street, but they did not say who the contractor was, they kept Stone and Webster's name out of it.

If any fellow worker wants to get killed, just let him come here and work for Stone and Webster. I didn't believe it myself at first, but when I saw it with my own eyes I had to believe it.

If the men who work there would get together, they could make things more safe, but as long as the men don't make it safe, the bosses won't There are always lots of other men to take the place of one who gets killed. A man's life means nothing to Stone and Webster.

Flour has advanced a cent a pound and the rise has been almost entirely since 1924 in that commodity.

BRITISH CAPITAL MUST PAY MINE OWNERS' SUBSIDY

Other Profit Takers Squeal at Holdup

(Special to The Daily Worker)

LONDON, England, Aug. 4.—Parliament today enters what is intended to be the last week of the session prior to adjournment for its summer vacation, Premier Baldwin announced that the house of commons would adjourn next Saturday until Nov. 16.

The main business will be to vote money for carrying out the scheme of financial assistance to the mine owners. It was this proposal by the government that led owners to agree to withdraw notices ending the present working agreement with the miners, preventing a strike.

The departments concerned will spend the next two days calculating the amount to be appropriated for the purpose, and a full statement probably will be issued Wednesday and submitted to the house of commons on Thursday.

The estimate originally suggested was £10,000,000, but unofficial calculations since have placed the figure at £20,000,000 to £25,000,000.

Thursday it is expected Prime Minister Baldwin will announce the scope of the proposed extensive inquiry into the mining industry and the names of the commissioners who will conduct it.

Goosestep Factory Gets Price for Each Piece of Gun Fodder

BOSTON—Bishop Anderson, of the methodist church, acting president of Boston University, is having trouble denying reports of a coming shake-up in the faculty of the university due to opposition of certain professors of the College of Business Administration to Dean Everett W. Lord's requirement that military training shall be compulsory for those physically qualified and shall count towards a degree. Earlier in the year student opposition to the R. O. T. C. (Reserve Officers' Training Corps) found expression in a satirical issue of the Beanpot, student publication, ridiculing college militarism and editorially intimating that the university got $5.98 a head from the war department for inducting students into the unit. Dean Lord had Miss Henrietta Perkin kicked off the Beanpot editor's desk and resentment has been bubbling up since. Governor Alvin T. Fuller, conservative republican and openshop man, was recently elected to the university board of trustees.

German Fascist Admits That He Was a Police Spy

ity of his father. The father was a business man in a large way before the war in Aachen, and a member of the social democratic party of Germany. Kindermann described his father as a victim of the political struggle who had in consequence lost his wealth and his means of life.

His father also carried on an agency. Replying to the question of the prosecutor who asked whether perhaps it was a police agency, Kindermann said, "No, it was a commercial agency." After the revolution, Kindermann's father went over to the independent social democratic party, and after the formation of the Communist Party of Germany, he became a member of the latter. He also carried on an Incasso agency in Duerlach.

To the question of the prosecutor whether or not Communists had been agents of his father Kindermann replied in the affirmative, which is of importance for the methods by which the party documents were obtained. Kindermann declared that during the revolution his father rendered a service to Duke Donau Eschingen, and that in the disturbances which took place in Duerlach he was able to save the life of a clergyman.

Father Expelled from C. P. of G.

Replying to the question of the prosecutor, why his father was expelled from the C. P. of G., Kindermann said that his father received no thanks for the work which he had carried on in the C. P. of G. In the further course of the hearing it was ascertained that Kindermann's father was expelled from the C. P. of G. because during the revolution as a social democrat he accepted from 80 to 100,000 marks from Duke Donau Eschingen, and that further he had conducted dubious business in his Incasso affairs.

Kindermann attempted to deny this, but was compelled to admit that the civil proceedings which his father instituted against those responsible for spreading such statements did not end with the condemnation of the latter.

The prosecutor suggested that the accused's father had been a peculiar sort of Communist as he had expected thanks for his work for the party. Perhaps he expected the same thanks as he had received from the prince.

Replying to the question of the prosecutor who asked the accused when he had received his party book, Kindermann said, that he had received it in August, 1924, thru the chairman of the Duerlach district group, Weiss, who was a friend of the accused's father.

Knows Nothing of Communism.

Kindermann declared the reasons for his entry into the party, to be, his Communist opinions and the projected journey to Russia. He requested and received recommendations for his journey to Moscow at Easter, 1924, from amongst others, Oskar Kohn. His attention was directed to Oskar Kohn by the lawyer, Theodor Liebknecht.

Kindermann admits that despite his Communist opinions, that he attached no value to his party book before his journey to Russia. Thru the same friend of his father he received credentials to the effect that he was to represent the interests of the South German Young Communist League in Russia. The prosecutor presented then the party book of Kindermann from which it was seen that the accused had himself filled in all the particluars, in particular he had dated his entry into the party back to 1920.

Replying to the prosecutor who asked him if he had stuck in the dues stamps also himself, Kindermann said that he knew nothing about this. He declared that despite the fact that he, Kindermann, lived in Berlin his expelled father in Duerlach had paid the dues regularly. The prosecutor then asked Kindermann if he was aware that forgery was punished with hard labor, Kindermann maintained an embarrassed silence.

Lies and Falsification.

The prosecutor read the passages from the statutes of the Comintern containing the conditions of entry into a Communist Party and asked the accused if the conditions were known to him. Kindermann did not know that there existed conditions of entry into the C. P. of G. Replying to questions concerning his party activities, Kindermann declared that he had held speeches in South Germany. To further questioning on the point he answered that the speeches had been delivered in the home of his father (storms of laughter). He had lectured there upon the Communist economic policy of Plato.

To the question of the prosecutor, why he wanted to agitate in Russia, Kindermann replied that he wanted to go as a bringer of culture, to learn the Soviet idea, to bring about an understanding between the German and Russian youth and to hold lectures to the Volga Germans.

The chairman of the court, Jaroslavsky recounted the lies and falsifications of Kindermann during the course of the proceedings, and said: "In the language of uneducated people like us whom you wished to educate, such an attitude as yours is termed mean treachery and falsehood. How is it called in the language of an idealist and philosophical doctor like yourself?"

Kindermann answered that up to the time of his journey to Russia he had not occupied himself with Communism. The chairman pointed out the contradiction between this new declaration and the earlier statements of Kindermann which were to the effect tht Kindermann had had Communist feelings since 1920.

Whereupon Kindermann said that he did not concern himself at all with the Communism of the present day, but with the classical Communism of Plato (storms of laughter).

The chairman then read a letter from which it is seen that the accused obtained recommendations from the Berlin "narcompross" (commissioner of education, Russian representatives in Berlin) by means of false pretenses.

Communism of Plato.

The prosecutor declared that Kindermann in no way possesses the scientific qualifications necessary for the alleged scientific aims of his journey to Russia. To the question, why Communist Party documents were necessary for a scientific journey to Russia, Kindermann answered ironically: "To establish good connections with those circles in which my tasks were to be carried out." (Movement in the court). The prosecutor declared that the evidence of Dittmar upon the nature of the Berlin discussion of the organization consul members is in complete agreement with the statements of Kindermann with the exception of the discussion of the terrorist intentions which Kindermann denies.

To the question of the prosecutor, what difference exists between the statements of Dittmar and the present statements of Kindermann, Kindermann replied that with the exception of the statements of Dittmar upon the relations of the group to the O. C., no difference existed. The prosecutor requested the court to make a note of this admission.

Fascist Worked as Detective.

The chairman enumerated the contradictions between Kindermann's evidence of yesterday and that of today, whereupon Kindermann suddenly declared that he had come to Russia to study Communism in its realization. To the question of the prosecutor, what literature dealing with Communism he was acquainted with, Kindermann replied that he had had Marx's "Capital" in his hands and also a few leaflets, he could however, no longer remember what they were about (merriment).

After long consideration, Kindermann mentions the "Communist Manifesto" (storms of laughter). Windermann declared that he was well acquainted with the Communism of antiquity. Of practical politics he understood nothing. To the question of the prosecutor, how he thought the understanding between the German and Russian youth was to be brought about, whether this understanding was not to be political, Kindermann replied in the negative.

Prosecutor: "How was it to be carried out then?"

Kindermann: "Thru the spread of cultural ideas." (Storms of laughter in which Kindermann himself joined.)

To the question of the prosecutor, how he had managed to find the means for his study despite the complete lack of means of his father which he had himself admitted, whether he had not worked in a detective bureau, Kindermann answered that he would have to explain that carefully. He had listened to lectures by Dr. Schneikert, the leader of the identification service of the Berlin police presidium, on criminal psychology.

Prosecutor: "Did these lectures take place in the police presidium?"

Studied to be a Spy.

Kindermann: "No, at the university."

Previously to this he had studied the psychology of crime in the north of Berlin practically, and he regarded the lectures of Schneikert as a theoretical complement. Apart from this he wished to provide himself with a profession and he was without means. The prosecutor suggested that the accused was apparently of the opinion that a detective bureau would fill his stomach better than the idealistic philosophy (laughter).

Kindermann: "I regarded the lectures as the basis for a practical activity" (stir in the court).

The prosecutor pointed out the importance of this sattement and asked whether the lectures of Schneikert had any practical results. Kindermann answered that Schneikert had advised him to search out something in the police presidium (stir in the court).

Prosecutor: "And you did this?"

Kindermann: "Naturally" (laughter). On the advice of Herr Dr. Schneikert I addressed myself to a detective bureau in the west end which was led by a former pupil of Schneikert. The negotiations were, however, never concluded."

Dittmar put the question to Kindermann, did the journey of the latter to Norway have any connection with the relations of the latter to the police presidium, and whether Kindermann considered that his membership of the O. C. and his activity in the police presidium were on a par. Kindermann declared that he knew nothing of the O. C., whereupon Dittmar reminded him of a dinner that they had had together in the club of the German bank at which he, Kindermann, had told Dittmar that he, Kindermann, would travel to Norway under the instructions of the chairman of the O. C. in Berlin. Michaelis for the purpose of establishing connections with the students there.

Kindermann said that the bishop of Bergen could give the necessary information about his. Kindermann's connections with Norway. He had been present at the consecration of the bishop. The prosecutor then asked Kindermann whether he had done this also in his capacity as a Communist (laughter).

The chairman then pointed out that Kindermann's entry into the Communist Party of Germany coincided with his opening up of relations with the police presidium and asked Kindermann if the latter considered it possible for a student with Communist opinions to look for employment in the police presidium. Kindermann declared that then he had had no time for Communism because he was without means and without money. The chairman then declared that all the statements of Kindermann upon his Communist opinions were nothing but a mask. Kindermann demanded the calling of Schneikert as a witness.

Kindermann Caught in Lies

Chairman: "The court is of the opinion that there are enough secret agents of the German police in Moscow at the moment and that it is therefore not necessary to see another one here." (Applause in the body of the court which is immediately suppressed by the chairman.)

Kindermann then told of his relations with the leading consul member, Johnson, and admitted discussing with the latter his participation in the Kapp putsch and in the various reactionary associations. However, he was not aware of Johnson's membership of the O. C. Dittmar reminded Kindermann that he, Kindermann and Wolscht had told him that Johnson was an old member of the Ehrhardt brigade. This was denied by Kindermann. The proescutor asked Kindermann how it was that he could mix so closely with open fascists at a time, June, 1924, when he alleges that he was a Communist. Kindermann said that this in his opinion was only a personal relation. He further said that he would like to see Johnson before the court so that Soviet Russia might see a real fascist for once.

Chairman: "With regard to that wish, the accused may rest assured that should Johnson ever come to Russia, he will find his way to the bench at present occupied by Kindermann."

The chairman then asked Kindermann if he read newspapers whilst he was in Germany.

Kindermann answered provocatively that there were no Chinese or Irkutskian newspapers in Germany, the answer was naturally "yes."

Chairman: "What papers?"

Kindermann (still in the same insolent tone): Ulk, the Munich Fliegende Blaetter, Simplizissimus. All famous comic and satirical German papers). After a short pause the accused thot better of his answer and added: "Also the Berliner Tageblatt and the Rote Fahne."

The chairman asked if he still, after admitting having read the German press, maintained his contention that he had never heard of the organization consul. Kindermann replied that in the papers that he had read there was nothing about the O. C. After a short time he suddenly requested permission to make a declaration about the consul affair. The chairman declared that the court had asked about him often enough about the matter and had often enough heard that he knew nothing about the O. C. and that that was enough.

LADY BARBERS ENTER UNION BY LEFT WING

Progressives Forced the Fakers to Accept

In a statement given out to the press, W. S. Leidig, president of the Barbers' Union of Chicago, says that women barbers will be taken directly into the local union. He also bemoans the fact that the women working at the trade have been receiving less pay and had to work longer hours than men.

This concides very well with what the progressives, who were expelled, fought for. The long fight to admit women into the union by Joseph Giganti, I. Ettingon, and the whole left wing, culminated in the modification of the International Constitution making it possible to organize the women.

Several months ago, the progressives addressed a letter to the union offering to start organizing the women barbers immediately. The officials, including Mr. Leidig, absolutely refused to read the communication to the meeting because, they said, "it is legally dangerous to do so, and might cause us some difficulty with the States Attorney's office."

This was a ruse to keep the rank and file from the knowledge that this was a progressive demand.

Now, altho the leading progressives have been expelled from the union, the officials are putting into effect the demands originated by the progressives and are claiming the honors.

The rank and file barbers' demand to these fakers should be: Reinstate those who are responsible for the betterment of our conditions.

Government Not To Interfere

PHILADELPHIA, Pa. —(FP)—"Cooperative marketing associations seek no government subsidy and are unalterably opposed to bureaucratic control," said John D. Miller, president of the National Cooperative Milk Producers Federation, speaking before the American institute of cooperation. Miller declared that U. S. government bureaucracy was inefficient and that he was absolutely opposed to any plan for federal interference with his association, under the guise of interstate commerce regulation.

L. F. McKay of Memphis said cooperative cotton marketing was offering new hope to the Sotuhern tenant farmer.

FARRINGTON BOUGHT "FRIENDS" AT $10 A HEAD TO CLEAR HIM FROM ACCEPTING $1,000 "FEE"

By ALEX REID

(Secretary of the Progressive Miners' Committee)

ARTICLE VII.

Before we can understand the present situation in Sub-District Four, District 12, (the expulsion of Freeman Thompson, John Watt and Tom Parry), we must know a little of the many things that have passed in the miners' union, and the part played in them by the above mentioned parties, in the last ten years.

Going no further back than to the special convention held in Peoria in November 1916, a convention called by the outraged miners of Illinois to try Farrington for misuse of the miners' funds, we find the following evidence presented by the miners, who were led by Freeman Thompson and Duncan McDonald, in the presentation of their testimony.

That Farrington did use his office for the political advancement of a militarist in direct violation of the constitution of the miners is admitted and proved in the following letter:

"July 10, 1916

"Colonel Frank L. Smith
"La Salle Hotel, Chicago, Ill.

"Ames has not yet returned report to committee on industrial relations. Need it for letter I am writing you. Nor have you fulfilled your promise made me while in Chicago last week. It is necessary that I have remainder of amount agreed to at once, so that I may go on with the work of organization."

"(Signed) Frank Farrington."

Under pressure Farrington admitted that he received $1,000 for the indorsement of the militarist colonel, but with the aid of Weeping Walker the President of the Illinois State Federation of Labor, and with the secret manipulation of the coal company's who spent money to see that Farrington was acquitted, the master crook got away with the graft.

The following testimony of one Peter Smith of Panama, Ill., brought out by Freeman Thompson is very interesting.

Peter said:

Friends Bought at $10 a Head

"They told me that Farrington was going to be tried in a special convention. They told me that there was money to be distributed to clear Farrington. They asked me if I was willing to make friends with Farrington? I said, 'If a man wanted to shake hands with me, I was willing to meet him halfway.' Then they presented a $10 bill to me and told me that was Farrington's money. I told them that I did not want to accept such stuff as that, but they said that unless I would take it that I could not prove where I would be a friend of Farrington's."

Threatened Smith

"The conversation had dropped for half an hour or more, then they said that if I did not take the money, I would certainly have to fight both of them and the officers of the organization, so I accepted the $10. I have the bill printed and in my record book, the number of the bill and just what the bill looked like."

Q. "It was a ten dollar bill and not a check?"

A. "It was a bill."

Another instance at the trial was the disclosure of the telegrams sent by Farrington to the miners' convention in the state of Washington, (out on the Pacific Coast) asking that he, Farrington, be invited to the miners' convention out there, which was done, and Frank proceeded west for a jaunt, again at the miners, expense.

The progressive miners at the Peoria convention exposed Farrington in many more things, and thruout the whole convention Freeman Thompson, at the head of the progressive miners, led the prosecution in behalf of the rank and file coal diggers.

Have Kept Up the Fight

Since that time Thompson, Watt and Parry have continuously fought for the miners and have kept exposing Farrington and his crooked machine.

Thruout the state of Illinois today the men are turning from Farrington as they would from a plague, and the expulsions are but a chapter in a losing fight by Farrington, the treasury parasite.

U. S. INVESTMENT EMPIRE SHOWING SPEEDY GROWTH

Uncle Sam Publishes Summary of Loans

By LELAND OLDS

(Federated Press Staff Correspondent)

Rapid growth of the American investment empire in the first half of 1925 is reflected in the summary of American foreign loans published by the U. S. department of commerce. The par value of foreign securities taken by American investors in that period amounts to $551,591,000, an increase of 45 per cent over the same period of 1924 when our capitalists invested $379,700,000 abroad.

This is of immense importance to American labor because such investment means the development of industry abroad to compete with those at home while the profits eventually flow to America in the form of goods.

Increase of Half Billion

If we deduct securities issued to extend old issues the total increase in foreign investment in the six months was 437,266,000. This means that in 12 months ended June 30, 1925, the American capitalist empire expanded by $1,089,353,000. This brings the total investment of American capital abroad to more than $9,500,000,000 without counting banker credits amounting to at least half a billion more and the enormous loans by the government to foreign nations.

The department shows the American empire distributed over the world as follows:

Foreign Loans	To Governments	To Industries
Canada and New-fd.land	$1,125,000,000	$1,420,000,000
Latin America	915,000,000	3,225,000,000
Europe	1,665,000,000	450,000,000
Asia and Oceania	442,000,000	250,000,000
Total	$4,147,000,000	$5,375,000,000

Here is a total of $9,522,000,000 with nearly $5,000,000,000 invested in the industries of Canada and Latin America and another $2,000,000,000 in the government securities of these Americas. The two American continents form the nucleus of the investment empire which is rapidly extending to Europe and Asia.

Modern Method of Conquest

So conservative a political scientist as Woodrow Wilson said that investment is the modern method of conquest and that by this process of investment modern nations annex provinces.

The report shows the rate at which the United States is going ahead with this modern method of conquest carving out provinces to be ruled by American financiers the world over. The report also shows that Great Britain, the empire of early capitalist industrialism, is falling behind. England's foreign investment in the first half of 1925 is placed at $244,800,000, less than half that of the United States.

An outstanding fact of the report is the increase in the proportion of industrial investments from 1.7 of the total in 1924 to 1.4 of the total in the first half of 1925. Included are investments in the steel industries of Germany Austria and Hungary and in the electrical industry of Germany. German industry alone received $36,000,000.

STRIKE OF BANK CLERKS HALTS FRENCH LOANS

Walkout Now General, Demand Higher Wages

PARIS, France, Aug. 4.—The strike of the bank clerks has become general and Finance Minister Caillaux, admits that the new government four per cent loan has been interferred with by the strike.

The bank clerks, who demand a fifteen per cent increase in wages, have forced Caillaux to agree to meet a delegation of the strikers which ho at first refused to do.

The employes of the Credit Lyonnais, one of the largest banks in France, appeared at the bank doors in the morning, but instead of going to their desks, marched in a body to the headquarters of the trade union to join the strikers.

N. Y. Young Workers Form International Labor Defense Branch

NEW YORK.—Sixty young Russian workers have formed a branch of the International Labor Defense, New York section. This is the first branch formed in New York, and the enthusiasm manifested proves that this branch will be one of the best functioning branches in the city.

Comrade Rose Baron, who had been a delegate to the International Labor Defense conference held in Chicago on June 28, made a full report on the conference, and outlined the structure of the new organization. The young workers listened to her report with great attention and asked many questions. Then the work of organization began and the first branch of the I. L. D. was formed in New York City. Other branches are rapidly being formed in the city—and within a few months there is no doubt that there will be large section of the I. L. D. in New York.

Security Pact Fails to Stop War Between German-French Coal

BERLIN, August 4.—The German newspapers fired a high explosive broadside at France today for her alleged violation of the interim commercial agreement with Germany.

The French government, it is charged, has put an embargo on the import of coal and lignite from the reich, despite the assurance given to the German trade delegation by M. Chaumet, the French minister of commerce, that no such measure would be taken pending resumption of the negotiations for a commercial treaty in September.

BUILDERS AT WORK

There Are Reasons for Special Offers

ARE YOU A PROPAGANDIST?

During July and August, special offers of a two month's subscription to the DAILY WORKER for one dollar have been made. This was done even tho the serial publication of "Russia Today" the official report of the British Trade Union Delegation to Russia—was sure to bring many new subscribers.

MOTHER BLOOR SPEAKS TO STEEL WORKERS AT STEUBENVILLE, OHIO

STEUBENVILLE, O., August 4.—Ella Reeve Bloor addressed here one of the greatest meetings held in years.

Speaking on the Plaza in front of the City Hall, her speech was continually interrupted by rounds of applause and shouts of approval from the thousands of workers who had gathered from surrounding towns.

From West Virginia across the river, where the slavery of the steel workers amounts to peonage, a large crowd came augmented by many miners among them. Whole families, including women and children were among those who came to hear this veteran agitator of 62 years on her cross country tour for the DAILY WORKER

In a ringing speech that stirred the enthusiasm of the workers assembled, she explained the reasons for the prevailing unemployment, wage-cutting campaigns, the need for organization and the message for them in the DAILY WORKER—the only paper fighting their battles.

Altho many of the workers have been without work for months and others are working but part time, a collection was taken to give subscriptions to those workers who were unable to pay.

The enthusiasm of the workers on the conclusion of Mother Bloor's speech ran high and on a suggestion of one worker a unanimous vote was registered to have Mother Bloor address them again in the near future if her trip allowed.

On Monday Mother Bloor continued her trip, speaking at Dillonvale, Ohio, proceeding to Yorkville on Tuesday and on to the following cities the balance of the week: Wednesday, August 5th, Bellaire, Ohio; Thursday, August 7th, Neffs, Ohio; Saturday, August 8th, Coshocton, Ohio.

MILWAUKEE LABOR TURNS OUT BIG FOR CHINA AID

Rousing Speeches for U. S.-China Labor

MILWAUKEE, Aug. 4.—In spite of the fact that the Socialist Party in this city and the Socialist controlled Federated Trades Council turned down invitations for a united front against the attempts of the imperialist powers to enslave China and to attack Soviet Russia the mass meeting arranged by the Workers Party and the Trade Union Educational League was a success.

The speakers were A. Overgaard, sub-district organizer of the Workers Party, H. Tseng, Chinese student, and Alex Reid, secretary of the progressive miners' committee.

The Chinese speaker told the story of the struggle of the Chinese people for national independence and of the terrible conditions under which the workers are forced to work, how children are forced to work in the factories at the age of seven and work 12 to 14 hours a day, how they are whipped if they dare to rest, also of the exploitation of women who have to nurse their babies at the same time they are working.

The Chinese speaker pointed out that the best friends of China today in Soviet Russia. He expressed his appreciation of the first time he was invited to speak to an American audience.

Alex Reid in a very able speech showed that only the working class united internationally will be able to solve the problems of the Chinese workers. That the imperialist nations no matter how beautiful phrases they use, are only interested in the exploitation of the Chinese masses. They must seek new markets in order to be able to hold their own working class in subjection.

He showed the present moves being made in Europe for unity of the trade union movement in Britain, France and Belgium.

A resolution was unanimously adopted by the meeting which demanded the self determination right of the Chinese people, the withdrawal of all armed forces and cancellation of unequal treaties.

A collection of $33.70 was taken to cover expenses and for Chinese relief. Significant to note, a good number of Chinese and colored workers were in the audience, as well as a good number of Milwaukee trade unionists who refuse to take the words of the Berger crowd. The meeting was indeed a real international gathering and a success from all aspects.

Hearst and Kaiserism

William Randolph Hearst is using his yellow newspaper syndicate to boost the faded fortunes of the former crown prince of Germany and his good-for-nothing family. An aristocratic sob sister has been employed to interview this "clown" prince without a kingdom. Even tho he has not a kingdom, he has plenty to eat and drink and nothing to do. The social democrats were very good to the kaiser's family and saw to it that the vulgar proletariat did not interfere with the extensive domains which those parasites enjoyed at the expense of the workers.

The crown prince wants unity between England and Germany. He is only echoing the sentiments of a large section of the German bourgeoisie which favors an alliance with England against Russia.

While this parasite is living in luxury the standard of living of the German workers has been forced down. The German workers were supposed to have dethroned the Hohenzollerns, but while they live in miserable shacks, the living quarters of the dethroned prince is thus described: "We were sitting in the cozy flat of the former crown prince overlooking the gay Unter den Linden which he uses as a town residence. It is in the huge building of the ministry of the imperial household, where the ex-crown prince also has his offices and transacts the business connected with his country estates."

Not so bad for a defeated aristocrat! Had this useless individual been one of the Romanoffs instead of a Hohenzollern, he would now be pushing up the daisies or perhaps juggling dishes in a hash house. The crown prince never produced anything of value in his life. He has slived the life of a waster and profligate. This is the man who is featured in the yellow rags of the sham republican William Randolph Hearst.

Investigations Without End

The textile workers whose wages were slashed ten per cent by their employers may take comfort from the decision of the executive council of the American Federation of Labor, that an investigation be made of the textile industry with a view to learning whether or not the manufacturers were justified in handing the workers another installment on what was coming to them for their patriotism in voting for Coolidge and prosperity in the last elections.

This is the traditional dodge of the reactionary bureaucrats. Instead of organizing a strike, the tried and true method to make the employer sit up and take notice, they propose to spend a few years going thru a sham investigation. There is no necessity for looking for any more information to prove that the bloated mill barons are only taking advantage of the weakness of their employes' organization and the failure of their leaders to fight for their interests.

The bosses have no objection to an investigation as an alternative to a strike. Anything to stave off a real struggle. The British coal operators were willing to have another investigation even tho previous ones had proven that they were a collection of pirates. But the British workers said they had all the investigations they wanted. They knew they were being robbed and they were not going to be skinned any closer at this time. The result of the militant stand of the workers was the surrender of the government.

The leaders of the British miners did not demand an investigation. They meant business and their determination resulted in a victory. But the comfortable gentlemen who sit on the executive council of the A. F. of L. are so much concerned over "peace in industry" that they would see the workers of this country turn into skeletons rather than disturb the capitalist system by a strike.

It's Symbolical

London's old Waterloo Bridge is sinking into the Thames. The engineers of the London County Council are watching it closely. It is one of London's old landmarks and as the name signifies, records one of those victories which have made the blood of British slaves throb to the union jack and the glories of the empire.

The masonry of the old parliament building is falling down. It is no longer considered safe to take afternoon tea on the veranda without protection from pieces of stone and mortar that are breaking away from their moorings. The historic edifice is rotting.

This is symbolical of what is happening to the empire. When the war was on, a French banker, who happened also to be frank banker predicted that Britian would win the war with Germany but would never win another. He said that the colonies would desert her and the end of the struggle would mark the beginning of Britain's decline as a world empire.

This is just what is taking place.

One good feature of French war on the Riffians, the Nation points out, is that it compels the French to withdraw their troops from the Ruhr. What the pacifists like least, is a war between the capitalist powers. This is the length and depth of their opposition to war.

American and British capitalists are gobbling up the dismembered parts of the Stinnes interests in Germany. Yet we are told the United States does not want to get involved in European entanglements. But we know that where the dollars go, there also goes the sword.

Only 30 per cent of the coal mined in the United States comes out of union pits. This fact does not seem to worry John L. Lewis. There are still enough miners paying dues into the union ot enable him to draw his pay.

The British businessmen who are howling because they must shoulder the subsidy to the British coal industry may have never heard of the dictum, "Who pays the taxes?" but they have a hazy idea that they are going to pay.

When Mussolini was doing his worst against the working class the capitalist papers were praising him. Now that he is nearing the end of his rope, the filthy rags are scoring the cutthroat.

New Zealand labor is opposed to any welcome to the American fleet. The workers know that Morgan's steel castles come not to bring peace but cannons.

Building the Communist Press in the United States

able results of our efforts has been lost. Our press must be a mass press—not published merely for the delight of those comrades who like to see their contributions in print.

6. Our press must be popular—but not in the social democratic sense. It must never cater to the perverted love of sensationalism that the working class has absorbed from its decadent rulers but it must not neglect those popular issues around which can be aroused and organized mass interest and the Communist viewpoint and program given to great numbers of workers while their minds are receptive.

8 There must be no confusion between "popularity" and a clear Communist character. The revolutionary political character of our press must never be sacrificed for the hollow reward of a large non-proletarian following. At all times the daily struggles of the workers must be linked first with the partial demands of our Party and then broadened to stimulate interest, understanding and sympathy in and action for the full Communist program.

9. Every Party campaign must be carried on with the fullest support of the Party press and during the period of the campaign all material in the press, so far as possible, should be selected with the view of mobilizing and coordinating its efforts for reaching the widest circles of workers and farmers.

In campaigns designed to reach specially selected groups, the same plan must be followed by all the Party editors.

There is among the language press, with a few exceptions, a deplorable lack of cooperation with the Party at present in this respect.

TO deal effectively with the above problems of policy and organization, our Party must immediately:

1. Set up a permanent subcommittee (section of Agitprop) of the Central Executive Committee which shall be charged with:

(a) Bringing all Party papers under the complete control of the central committee.

(b) Establishing machinery for centralizing collection and distribution to all the Party press of Party material and for editorial control of all publications. This control to be actual and not nominal.

2. The present corps of approximately 75 worker correspondents must be enlarged within the next year to at least 250. The proletarianization of our official organ which has taken place in the last nine months since these correspondents have been organized and special efforts (articles, pamphlets, special personal correspondence and instruction) been made to acquaint them with their important role, is sufficient justification for an immense extention of this vitally important section of work in connection with the Bolshevization of our press.

These worker correspondents are making our official paper a real mass organ and altho the work is just beginning it can be said that already they have contributed something new and virile to American working class journalism. Almost all the news of the daily struggles of the American workers carried by our official organ is furnished now by these worker correspondents. With greater numbers of them and better training our press will be able to record the class struggle in America with but little dependence upon the capitalist press services.

(a) The connection of the daily struggles of the workers with the partial demands and united front campaigns of the party can be made very directly thru the worker correspondents. The distribution of our press in the industries and to the worker about which the worker correspondents write is the most effective method of broadening the contact of our press and building its circulation. This method is the Communist one and its possibilities are inexhaustible if the work is properly conducted.

(b) The work of popularizing, circulating and maintaining the Communist press must under no circumstances be considered the work only of those comrades who are employed by our press. Such an attitude towards our most effective weapon is a relic of social democracy and its bureaucratic conception of party functioning that must be rooted out.

Wherever it exists, it must be replaced by a belief in and a loyalty to our press, arising as a result of the understanding of its mighty place in the struggle that will cause every comrade to never think of going to a gathering of workers without Communist papers for distribution.

TO accomplish this, special lectures on the following subjeccts should be given in all Party units:

1. The role of the Communist press.
(a) In the Party.
(b) Among the masses.

In every Party unit those comrades who are in charge of the distribution of the press should be looked upon not as more or less necessary evils, as is sometimes now the case, but as comrades charged with some of the most responsible Party work.

2. The coordination of all Party campaigns with the work of our press can be secured by abolishing all tendencies towards departmentalization and bureaucracy on the part of both the responsible editors and heads of departments and auxiliary organizations. The tendency of various departments to measure achievement by the amount of space secured in the Party press, regardless of whether the publicity matter is really connected with the lives of the workers or the campaigns of the Party, should be ruthelessly eliminated. One of the weaknesses of our press among the masses is the excessive amount of formal publicity matter carried. The correction of this condition will give our press much more space for live news of the workers and their struggles.

(a) Weekly conferences of editors and department heads should be held.

(b) Conflict between the business and editorial offices can be eliminated by the same method. These conferences should not be formal but in a comradely spirit so that at all times the effect of special campaigns, special articles, the general make up of the paper and the influence of worker correspondent stories on the masses can be estimated with some degree of accuracy and the necessary improvements and corrections made.

3. The adherents of our press to the line of Leninism cannot be guaranteed by any mechanical methods of control. Centralization can strengthen but cannot secure the Bolshevist character of our press.

It is therefore not permissible for editors of our Party press to be divorced from the Party work among the masses or from extensive contact with them.

Neither is it permissible for the Party to regard them and editors to regard themselves as specialists who simply carry out instructions. Still more non-Communist is a tendency of some editors to regard themselves as framers of Party policy rather than as interpretors and teachers.

These mistakes can be avoided only by bringing the workers on the Party press into all branches of Party work and by means of extensive conferences with the leading committees of the Party at which all phases of the Party work among the masses, its relation with the Communist International, the line of the Communist International, and the political problems of the day are discussed.

Centralization.

An army of worker correspondents.

Leninist education of editors and contributors.

Close connection with the struggles of the workers.

Close connection with the leading committees of our Party.

Close connection of the press with the inner life of our Party.

Understanding by the Party of the role of the Communist Press.

Thus will our press become a Bolshevik press, be able to aid in building a mass Communist Party, lead the American working class, and pave the way for the dictatorship of the proletarit.

Theoretical Magazines and Research Work

1. There shall be formed a special section of the Agitprop to supervise, stimulate and develop Communist research work and theoretical magazines and publications by the Party.

2. The Workers Monthly which has already succeeded in establishing itself among wide sections of workers shall be enlarged in size and enriched with more theoretical material on:

(a) Marxism and Leninism.

(b) Original scientific investigation of the structure and functioning of American capitalism and of the current phases of the class struggle.

3. A program of theoretical publications (books and pamphlets) for the current year shall be prepared by the propaganda section of the Agitprop which shall be carried out in cooperation with the DAILY WORKER Publishing Co.

Resolution on the Young Workers League

The following resolution was unanimously adopted by the Parity Commission for submission to the National Convention of the Workers (Communist) Party to held August 21:

1. With the continued existence of capitalism, the problems of the young workers become more difficult and more manifold. Capitalism while it uses the youth of the worker as an excuse to underpay him still more than the older worker, also concentrates its attention to the educational task of moulding the young worker into the most possible perfect robot.

2. Thus, while the struggle of the young workers is indissolubly bound up and is part of the struggle of the proletariat as a whole, yet the young workers are faced with various and serious immediate problem, which can be solved only if they organize for that purpose and if they ally themselves closely in their struggles with the revolutionary movement of their respective countries.

3. The revolutionary young workers have realized this and have organized themselves in all countries into Young Communist Leagues, part of the Communist movement of their country, united internationally in the Young Communist International, which latter works in fraternal alliance with the Communist International.

4. The young workers, who have been drawn more and more into public life since the last imperialist war, will form the best detachment of the proletarian revolution. A large section of the working class, past middle age, employed in the highly skilled trades, will not be won for the revolution until after the conquest of power. The young workers, mainly thrown into the ranks of unskilled labor, and exploited to a greater extent than the adult workers, must be drawn into the revolutionary movement and must form a reservoir of strength for the Communist Party.

5. The Young Workers League of America is devoted to the task of leading the young workers in their daily struggles and in the development of these struggles for their final emancipation. For the United States, the development of the Young Workers League is of special exceptional importance, more than for other countries, since the growing generation of the workers will bring both for the working class and into our party more homogeneity and greater freedom from social-democratic traditions and also lead to the greater Americanization of the working class and of our party.

6. The success of the struggles and the campaigns of the Young Workers League depend on unity of purpose and on inner unity of political orientation with the struggles and campaigns of the Workers Party. On the other hand, the success of the campaigns and struggles of the Workers Party also depends upon the close coordination of their activities with those of the League.

7 While up to the fourth congress of the Young Communist International there was not sufficient coordination between the campaigns of the Young Workers League with the political campaigns of the party, there has been a decided improvement since. We must say that despite the many difficulties, the Young Workers League has shown its ability to develop towards a mass young Bolshevik organization thru its active participation in the everyday struggles of the young workers and thru the initiation of movements which vitally affect the interests of the youth. The growth of the youth organization has been brought about by its drive to reorganize the league of the basis of shop nuclei, campaigns in the trade unions, factories and industries, anti-militarist activity, the transformation of its press into a mass organ, the building of a strong children's movement. In many fields of work the Young Workers League has even set the precedent for the Workers Party to follow. The political activity of the league has shown that it is rapidly developing into a mature political organization which will aid the growth and clarity of the Workers Party. But the relations between the party and the league is still far from being perfect.

8. The next tasks of the Young Workers League, those of extending its trade union work, anti-militarist work, and so on, can only be achieved thru the very closest of cooperation on the part of the party. The national convention declares that it is the duty of every unit of the party to give its utmost cooperation to the youth and children's movement. The party will not have fulfilled its elementary duty if it does not devote far greater attention to the Young Workers League than heretofore. No unit of the party should exist which has not a corresponding Young Workers League unit. "One of the tasks connected with Bolshevization is to win over the whole of the working class youth in all countries—that generation of the working class which grew up amidst the conditions of world imperialist wars, and the beginning of world revolution. While social-democracy relies mainly upon the more bourgeois sections of the labor aristocracy, which arose in the peaceful epoch, the Communist parties of all countries, on the contrary, among their other tasks, must strive to organize the whole of the proletarian youth of the new epoch under our banner," says the thesis on Bolshevization of the parties. The national convention, therefore, urges that the units of the party, far more than up till now, give their utmost cooperation and aid to the league in all of its activities, thus aiding in the building of a Young Leninist League of a mass character.

9. The party convention calls the attention of the Young Workers League to the decisions of the Communist International and the Young Communist International and expresses the belief that only with the cessation of the factional struggle can these decisions serve as the basis for the unification of the league. The achievement of this goal should be the aim of the convention of the Young Workers League.

Dangerous "Disinterestedness"

By JAY LOVESTONE

THE writer recals a debate he had with Mr. James O'Neal before the Italian section of the Socialist Party in 1919. It was the occasion on which I sought to secure the withdrawal of the Italian socialist federation from the socialist party and its affiliation to the Communist Party of America.

The main argument then presented by the writer in his appeal to the representatives of the Italian class conscious workers was that the Communist International was openly and militantly serving as the champion of the revolutionary proletariat, the working class the world over. I argued that the Italian workers in the United States had been occupying places in the front ranks of the class conscious workers in this country. It was my contention that it was the duty of the revolutionary elements in the Italian federation of the socialist party to take their rightful place in the Communist ranks in order to be able to lead the Italian working masses and secure their active participation in the class struggle in the United States.

MR. O'NEAL'S argument was twofold. First, he appealed to the delegates that they should shun the Communist Party because it was too revolutionary. This did not take with the delegation except for a few trade union officials. Then Mr. O'Neal made a plea for neutrality, for "disinterestedness" on the part of the Italian socialist federation in the question of its withdrawal from the socialist party and its affiliation to the Communist Party.

An Opportunist Trick.

THIS is a dangerous and typical method employed by the social-democrats and opportunists in the ranks of the workers whenever the workers are confronted with moments of decision involving important questions affecting the most vital interests of the working class.

Such positions of neutrality on serious questions of principle are invariably the entering wedge to attitudes and positions of hostility to revolutionary theory, to revolutionary practice.

The Dangers of "Neutrality."

IN our own ranks some comrades, now and then, for want of sufficient experience, tend to be neutral on questions of paramount importance not only for our own section of the Communist International but for the entire Communist International. In cases of this sort where we deal with rank and file proletarian elements it is primarily a question of educating, or informing, of properly directing the temporarily mistaken comrade to the correct position of active support for the right Communist principles and vigorous opposition to the opportunistic deviations.

But in instances where such attitudes of so-called "neutrality" and "disinterestedness" towards fundamental questions of Communist principle and policy are manifested by experienced comrades holding leading positions, we face very dangerous manifestations of unhealthy tendencies menacing the Communist foundation of our party.

An instance of the latter type is to be found in the attitude of "impartiality," "neutrality," "disinterestedness" on the question of Trotskyism displayed in an article in the Il Lavoratore of May 16, 1925. This article entitled "The Return of Trotsky" is signed by G. C., G. Cannata. Comrade Cannata is one of the members of the bureau of the Italian section of the Workers (Communist) Party of America. Comrade Cannata is one of the responsible leading comrades of the Italian section of the Workers Party. Consequently such "neutrality" by a comrade occupying the position that Comrade Cannata does is, to say the least, a strong manifestation of highly dangerous "disinterestedness"—an attitude undermining the Communist foundation of our party.

Trotzkyism and Our Party.

THIS is neither the time nor the place to enter into a discussion of the merits of the position of the "Old Guard" of the Russian Communist Party and of the demerits of the position of Comrade Trotsky in the recent controversy. This controversy was one involving basic Communist tenets. The questions involved affected not only the Russian Communist Party but every section of the Communist International, the entire Communist International.

It is not our objective to criticize Trotsky personally. It is not our task to criticize his position at length on this occasion. The model methods resorted to and the splendid results achieved by the old guard of the Russian Communist Party in dealing with the Trotskyist deviations have settled this controversy very effectively to the advantage of the Communist International. Unfortunately this can be said only insofar as the Russian Communist Party is concerned.

The manifestations of Trotskyism on an international scale were clearly evident in the Czecho-Slovakian Communist Party, the Italian Communist Party and in other Communist Parties. Of course, in each instance the sectional expression of this right wing tendency in the Communist International had its own additional specific feature. But in every instance the fundamental errors were obvious. In our own American party where the general thoretical level is on the whole below that of our European sister parties, the manifestations of Trotskyism did not assume the crust of a theoretical apology. These manifestations veered from an avowed sympathy for Trotskyism to camouflaged or insufficiently courageous endorsement of the fundamentals of the Trotskyist concept of the development of the world proletarian revolution.

Two Parts to Trotskyism.

COMRADE LORE was the oustanding representation of those holding an avowedly sympathetic attitude towards or actual indorsement of Trotskyism. The last Lenin memorial number of the Volkszeitung, edited by Comrade Lore, was a veritable apotheosis of Trotsky and Trotskyism. At the same time there were a number of leading comrades in the upper strata of our directing party group who, at the very moment that Trotskyism was a most burning question for the vanguard of the Communist International, the Russian Communist Party, did not think it necessary for the American section of the Comintern to take a stand on the struggle against Trotskyism led by the Central Committee of the Russian Communist Party. These leading comrades were guilty of "neutrality." Undoubtedly it was only the swift and decisive defeat administered Trotskyism that prevented these comrades holding an "impartial," a "neutral" position on Trotskyism, from taking their next and logical step, from becoming open, conscious supporters of this right wing of the Communist International. Here we have a very dangerous expression of "disinterestedness" in taking a position on a cardinal problem of the Comintern.

Real Meaning of "Neutrality."

BUT since then, more than a year ago, the Ides of March for many of our comrades in the March, 1924 sessions of our C. E. C., the above mentioned article by Comrade Cannata is the sharpest expression of Communist "neutralism," of "neutral" Communism in our party. This "neutralism" means in practice, no Communism, since the Communist movement is a movement of revolutionary action and not of stagnant "neutrality." We quote the following from the article of Comrade Cannata as a shining example of hothouse Loreism in our ranks:

"Concerning the polemics about Trotskyism we have not spoken; we have occupied ourselves in investigating to form an opinion impartially concerning the matter under discussion. We have our own opinion on the matter. An opinion which does not tie us to one or the other camp of the opposing sides. There are legitimate differences of view-point on profound questions of tactics and of economic policy. There are contrasts of a purely personal character. It is useless to claim a monopoly of an Olympian serenity, which does not exist among human beings for the leaders of the Russian Communist Party. There were mistakes and excesses committed on both sides; it is human to feel, as it is human to err."

The above attitude would be dangerous even if it were only wrong insofar as its conclusion is concerned. What makes this conception doubly dangerous is its basic non-Communist method. Here we have a method which is deeply impregnated with social-democratic eclecticism. Here we have a personal perspective, a use of personal intentions and motives as the basic factors in dealing with social movements. Here we have a flagrant attempt to play a so-called fair, a pseudo-impartial, a "neutral" role, in treating the most dangerous deviation in the history of the Comintern. The comrades cannot fail to note the covert endorsement of Trotskyism in this statement by Comrade Cannata. In this instance we really have an overt endorsement of Trotskyism, masked by a dangerous "disinterestedness." It is too bad that our C. E. C. has to date failed to correct this serious deviation from the position of the Communist International by Comrade Cannata.

"Neutralism"—A Phase of Oppertunism.

THIS attitude of "neutralism," this manifestation of Loreism, which in the opinion of the Comintern is synonymous with opportunism, has also assumed organizational manifestations in other sections of our party. The party has for some time had some serious differences within its ranks as to its major policies. These policies involved the very life of the party. It was and is the duty of every Communist in our party to take a position on the points at issue. To prate about "neutrality," about "impartiality," when fundamental policies are discussed or are at stake, is inevitably only a prelude to the embracing of the wrong position in the controversy by those very ones leading "disinterestedness" and "impartiality."

In the present party controversy, it is the duty of every comrade to take definite position, to fight for this position, and to reject categorically such quack opportunist nostrums as "impartiality," "neutrality," and "disinterestedness."

Communists are never neutrals. Communist always fight for their positions.

In subsequent articles the writer proposes to deal with the present major tasks of our party and the duties confronting the membership in realizing these tasks fully.

WILL NOT STOP FIGHT TO RID I.L.G.W. OF WHOLE SIGMANITE GANG, SAY LEFT WING LOCALS

(Special to The Daily Worker)

NEW YORK CITY, August 5.—That the members of the International Ladies' Garment Workers' Union in the city of New York are not at all deceived or placated by the resignations from the Joint Board of Perlstein and Feinberg, is seen from the following statement of the Joint Action Committee of Local 2, 9 and 22, just issued:

* * * *

(BY THE JOINT ACTION COMMITTEE OF LOCALS 2, 9 AND 22.)

In order to satisfy and quiet the members who are dissatisfied with them, the Sigman machine told Feinberg and Perlstein to resign.

The same Sigman who has just assured the public that all is normal, and that just a few Communists are making noise, and that at our meetings there are no cloakmakers, now this same Sigman is forced to dismiss his two principal tools.

Feinberg's and Perlstein's resignations are only throwing sand in the eyes of the workers. They think that the cloak and dressmakers are an enraged mob that can be quieted with the bluff of his resignation. The cloak and dressmakers know that Feinberg and Perlstein were only two of the leaders of the clique which has caused so much trouble.

Not Ready To Correct Crime

The fact that these two are taken away from the official leadership of the joint board does not change the situation. The corrupt machine re-

AS WE SEE IT

By T. J. O'FLAHERTY

THERE may be a general strike in the coal industry unless the hard coal barons and the miners' union can come to terms before September 1. There are hints that a nationwide stoppage will be called by the mine leaders, for the double-barreled purpose of forcing the anthracite owners to come to terms and also to halt the demoralizing effects of the Jacksonville agreement on the union in the bituminous fields. This would be good strategy.

INDEED if the miners' union had militant, class conscious leadership, they would not allow the situation in the soft coal fields to exist twenty-four hours without a fight. It is generally admitted that only 30 per cent of the bituminous coal hoisted today in the U. S. comes out of unionized pits. At the rate of progress made by the open shop, another year would see the entire bituminous industry mined by scab labor. This process should be halted at once. A general strike in the coal industry, hard and soft, is the way to tackle the problem.

THE American miners might take a lesson from their British comrades in the matter of preparing for a strike. Ever since "Black Friday" when the British coal diggers were betrayed by Frank Hodges and J. H. Thomas in 1921, the miners of Britain have been preparing for the next tussle with their masters. Under the leadership of the left wingers, and basing their policy largely on a Communist trade union program, the British unions succeeded in perfecting an alliance, so powerful that even the mighty British government was afraid to buck up against it.

NOT only were the million union miners, led by "an humble disciple of Lenin," A. J. Cook, ready for action, but five million railroadmen, transport workers and engineers had pledged themselves to walk out with them. No coal was to be moved by union labor, either from the pits or the sidings, or by sea. The government was faced with the prospect of a revolution and it could not stomach that. It gave in.

WHAT will happen in the United States if the miners strike in both hard and soft coal fields? There are tremendous piles of coal on the sidings. Sixty per cent of the soft coal is dug from scab pits. Are the unionized rail workers going to haul this

BALTIMORE BUILDING TRADE WORKERS STRIKE AGAINST CITY WAGES

BALTIMORE, Aug. 5—The mayor, Mr. Jackson, and Charles' H. Osborne, head of the building commission, decided that the city of Baltimore was too poor to pay union wages to electricians and other union workers in the building trades. The Building Trades Council replied by calling a strike that begins August 1. Over five million dollars of city building operations will be tied up, and 2,000 union workers will be on strike.

The Baltimore Federation of Labor is behind the strike and Ed. Bieretz, business agent for the Electrical Workers' Union says that the strike will undoubtedly spread to the private jobs being done by contractors or on which contractors are employed who use scab labor on city jobs.

WORKERS FROM ABROAD ALWAYS WELCOME TO SOVIET UNION TO SEE THE TRUTH WITH OWN EYES

MOSCOW, July 15, (By Mail).—An article in the "Isvestia" greets the workers delegations to Soviet Russia and writes: "Despite the campaign of the bourgeoisie, despite the calumnies, despite the difficulties which the bourgeois governments have put in the way of the delegations, despite the threats of dismissal etc., the workers from abroad consider it their duty to see with their own eyes the first country of the workers and to discover on the spot whether the representations of the social democrats and the bourgeoisie are upon the situation in the Soviet Union are correct.

"We will show our class comrades the whole truth and tell them everything as we have done to the English and Franco-Belgian and other delegations.

"Working class delegations are always welcome in the Soviet Union.

"May our class comrades see in this moment when the forces of the International bourgeoisie are being mobilized, that the workers and peasants of the Soviet Union are engaged in the peaceful work of reconstruction, may they also see who is interrupting them in this work, and why the enemies of the working class hate the Soviet Union."

GERMAN FASCISTS CONFESS FORGED LETTERS TO SOVIET UNION, MOVE TO SABOTAGE TRIAL COURT FAILS

MOSCOW, U. S. S. R.—The trial proceedings brot here against the German fascists, Kindermann, Wloscht and Dittmar, who came here to carry on anti-Soviet activity, including the murder of govrenment leaders, revealed that the fascists sent forged letters to the Soviet Republics.

They confessed to the Soviet court that they were not really on a scientific expedition, that they were paid well for their terrorist activities by the German fascist group, Organization Consul, and that they were treated excel-

COOLIDGE PUTS O. K. ON MORGAN'S BILLION DOLLAR RAIL MERGER

WASHINGTON, Aug. 5.—Backers of the proposed Van Sweringen "billion dollar Nickel Plate railroad merger," backed by J. P. Morgan, involving the consolidation of five big railroad systems with more than 9,000 miles of trackage, were elated today over the announcement from the summer White House that the administration favors the consolidation of the railroads. Coolidge statement is looked on as an order to the interstate commerce commission to approve the Morgan merger.

ARMY'S TYRANNY IS EXPOSED IN CROUCH APPEAL

Court Martial Unfit to Act, Judge Told

By GEORGE W. WRIGHT.
(President Honolulu Central Labor Council.)

HONOLULU, Hawaii—The Crouch case opened before Judge Wm. T. Rawlins in the federal court with a demurrer by Patterson to the returns made by the army, overruled. Exceptions noted, and case opened for argument.

Patterson presented a petition from Trumbull asking a dismissal of record, and the Trumbull petition for writ was withdrawn without prejudice. This was done after consultation with Crouch and Trumbull and on the request of the latter, who stated that he wanted to go to Alcatraz for reasons of his own and make a fight in the California courts. Patterson stated that the disposition of the court here made it very doubtful whether Trumbull could get a favorable decision, and an appeal from this court to the 9th circuit court in California would drag along until his sentence was practically all served.

The present arrangement will enable him to institute immediate proceedings in the California jurisdiction if he so desires, with the breaks more in his favor, and the general advantage of continued publicity. The action come as a great surprise to the government and they are anxious to

Pan Federation and Johnston Attacks

At the last meeting of Lodge 390, I. A. of M., a motion was made, and unanimously carried, to send a letter of protest to the Chicago Federation of Labor against its uncalled for and unjustified denunciation of the Communists and asking the Federation to pay more attention to the fundamental issues confronting the labor movement at this time instead of devoting its time to attacking one section of the labor movement.

In the discussion on the question, attention was called especially to the attack by the Federation upon the Labor Defense Council, which organization Local 390 has participated in and helped to build, and which the Federation was one of the first to endorse.

The local also protested to the Grand Lodge against the expulsion policy adopted by the G. E. B. against the Communists and advertized thruout the country in the capitalist press.

The petition for the recall of all present international officials, sent out by Lodge 1154 of Jersey City, was endorsed by the local.

Altho both Johnston and Davison are sending out a barrel of literature to the lodges all over the country attempting to sidetrack the issue of the election and drive it into other channels, the locals are not going to be fooled by this attempt, and are no doubt going to endorse the petitions for the recall of all officers declared elected by Davison thru his manipulations of the ballots.

FRANCE DENIES ANTI-SOVIET CONSPIRACY

Officially Notifies Soviet Government

NEW YORK CITY, Aug. 5.—The New York bureau of the Telegraph Agency of the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics (formerly "Rosta") today received the following cablegram from the Moscow offices:

"MOSCOW, Aug. 5.—M. Herbette, ambassador of France in Moscow, after consultation with his government, officially informed the Commissariat of Foreign Affairs that certain recent radio reports from Paris about Franco-Soviet relations are without foundation.

"These reports claimed that the French government intended to obtain clear evidence regarding the nature of the ties between the Soviet government and the Communist International before starting economic negotiations with the Soviet Union; also that France, Great Britain, Belgium, Italy and the little entente would hold a conference in September for the formation of an anti-Soviet bloc."

Motormen Fatally Injured in Crash of Trolley Cars

A score of passengers suffered cuts, bruises and abrasions and two motormen were perhaps fatally injured today when two trolley cars collided head on in a heavy fog in the Calumet district. The crash occurred where the cars use a single track.

One of the motormen had both legs severed. The other suffered a fractured skull.

Alliance of Railwaymen With Hard and Soft Coal Diggers Is Great Need

"The membership of the United Mine Workers must be prepared for struggle," declared William Z. Foster, secretary of the Trade Union Educational League yesterday, when interviewed by the DAILY WORKER upon the possibility of a strike of 158,000 miners in the anthracite fields in Pennsylvania.

"Not only must the miners in the anthracite be ready to strike, but the bituminous miners must also make common cause with them—and there must be an immediate effort to form an alliance with the railway unions, who need the miners' help when they strike," said Foster.

"And not only must preparation be made to struggle against the coal barons, but the fight must go on more vigorously against treachery and timidity than ever within the U. M. W. of A."

CAPITAL POLICE TO PROTECT KU KLUXERS' PARADE

Washington Officials Are Partial to Klan

WASHINGTON, Aug. 5.—The entire police force of the national capital will be mobilized on Saturday to cope with any disorders arising from the parade of ku klux klansmen down Pennsylvania avenue.

Acting Supt. of Police Evans said today he had been informed by klan representatives that 35 special trains would be run into Washington during the night, bringing klansmen from New York, Pennsylvania, New Jersey, Delaware, Maryland and Virginia for the conclave and parade.

The police are preparing for a parade of from 8,000 to 10,000 persons, although it is reported that no more than 2,000 will be in the line of march.

The police will be stationed at short intervals along the line of march.

The anti-klansmen were denied permission to parade.

TEXTILE WORKERS OF LAWRENCE CHEER START OF UNITED FRONT CAMPAIGN TO FIGHT WAGE CUTS

By TOM BELL

(By Worker Correspondent)

LAWRENCE, Mass., August 5.—The mass meeting of textile workers called by the United Front Committee at the Winter Garden in Lawrence was a great success.

Over 1,500 workers were present and greeted with enthusiasm the speeches calling for unity and struggle against the wage cuts.

Victor Romond was the chairman. Speakers included Joseph Salerno, in Italian, Oliver Christian, president of the American Federation of Textile Operatives; Emil LeFaire of the Franco-Belgian Club; John Ballam, Jim Reid and Tom Bell.

The slogans of the United Front Committee calling for an industrial union, for shop committees and a general strike of all New England textile workers against wage cuts and the speed-up system were wildly applauded.

This is the awakening and start of the textile workers in the fight against the attacks of the manufacturers.

HELPERS JOIN WALKOUT OF CUNEO PRESSMEN, BERRY HERE HERDING SCABS, HOLD MEETING TONIGHT

The walkout of the 500 members of the Printing Presamen's and Assistants' Union from the plants of the Cuneo Printing Corporation spread when the helpers walked out yesterday, and Strikebreaker "Major" George L. Berry is in Chicago with the entire international executive board of the union, endeavoring to round up men to replace those who quit work.

The international board members will appear before the pressmen at a meeting of the union, Local No. 3, tonight, at the People's Institute, Van Buren and Leavitt streets.

The pressmen quit work after the Cuneo company, which has plants at Arthington and Spaulding Sts., and 22nd and Cottage Grove, tried to reduce the crew of the presses from two pressmen and two helpers to only one pressman and two helpers.

Strikebreaker Berry had ordered the pressmen to accept the short crews and when the men quit he declared he would endeavor to secure pressmen from the International Union to replace those who walked out.

Previously the executive board of local number 3 had agreed to try out the new arrangement if the men were willing, but the union members voted to decline the Cuneo company's proposition. Berry then ordered the executive board of local number 3 to keep the men at work, but they quit work.

The Cuneo corporation had declined to accept the increase in wages which the pressmen won from all union plants, and the trouble with the company dated from that time.

WILL ASK PARLIAMENT TO SUBSIDIZE OWNERS OF MINES $50,000,000

(Special to The Daily Worker)

LONDON, Aug. 5—The Baldwin government has decided to ask parliament to authorize the expenditure of $50,000,000 as subsidy to the coal operators to permit the carrying out of the present wage agreement with the coal miners until next April.

Formal announcement of this decision was made today. The debate on the whole subject in the house of commons tomorrow is expected to develop spirited opposition, even within the ranks of Premier Baldwin's own party.

Strike Victim Gets Retrial.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., August 5.—(FP)—Sentence of not less than three and a half years or more than five years' imprisonment in the state penitentiary vanished for Ernest Schleifer, organizer in the International Association of Machinists, when the supreme court ordered sentence vacated. Schleifer was charged with inciting the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad strikers to violence during the shop crafts unions' strike in Nov. 1922. A new trial is ordered for the union man.

OVERFLOW MEETINGS OF I. L. G. W. LEFT WING SHOP CHAIRMEN ONCE MORE PROVES SIGMAN BANKRUPT

NEW YORK CITY, Aug. 5—The gatherings of the chairrmen of the cloak and dress shops were held in Cooper Union and Manhattan Lyceum. They were called only for the Cooper Union, but since the struggle began the cloak and dress makers have shown more than once that when the Joint Action Committee calls, they come in such great crowds that the halls are too small for them.

The same thing happened Monday. Regardless of the heat, the Cooper Union was soon packed in every corner and it was necessary to open another hall. So the Manhattan Lyceum was also hired, which was also soon crowded. The workers came with enthusiasm to hear the Joint Action Committee speak of the new developments in the fight.

No peace until the demands of the membership against the bosses and the machine are won! No peace with the pogrom-leaders! Sigman must go from the Union! The cloak and dress makers will stay in the struggle until the end! These were the slogans that marked the meeting.

Sigman Attempts to Disturb the Meetings.

A gang of Sigman agents came to disturb the gathering. Sigman, upon taking over management of the Joint Board, had organized his agents to come to the Cooper Union meeting to disrupt it and break up the meeting. But information was received in advance by those in charge of the meeting; the sluggers were well taken care of, and a number of the black gang had to remain outside in a condition of unemployment. The meetings were carried thru in the best of order.

Speakers Greeted Affectionately by Workers.

Speakers at these meetings were Sasha Zimmerman, M. Rubin, A. Katz, J. Borichovitz, A. Zerlin, Rose Wolkowitz, J. Portnoy, A. Goldberg, Miller and L. Hyman. Every one of the speakers had something important to report or to propose. They were greeted affectionately by the gathering.

A great speech which aroused the highest enthusiasm was delivered by Hyman. He excelled even his usual eloquence. His speech was full of biting humor and fire. He drew a balance of the Siman maneuvers with the governors' commission, and showed the intolerable conditions into which the cloakmakers had thereby been brot.

"The cloakmakers are in cramps from hunger and there in the commission are bankers studying our pains," said Hyman. "We ourselves are the only ones who can understand our sufferings, and not these class enemies and strangers. There is only one way to liberate ourselves from our sufferings. That is, when the season comes, to say that we will not sew until we get the possibility to make a living."

Resolutions Adopted Unanimously.

In both gatherings the following resolutions were adopted unanimously:

"We, the chairmen and shop committees, gathered on Monday, Aug. 3, in Cooper Union endorse the acts of the Joint Action Committee, and also the report of the Committee of Fifty of the chairmen.

"We find that our struggles for the rights of the membership which expresses itself in that we do not recognize the Joint Board or its officers, has thrown a deadly fear into the machine. They feel that the days of their rule are counted. Such a panic rules in their ranks that they are forced, in desperation, to sacrifice two cogs of their machine, Feinberg and Perlstein, who more than anyone else weer hated by the membership bcause of their treacherous leadership.

"We declare that this maneuver will not be successful, because the cloak and dressmakers are conscious of the purpose of their struggle. They struggle for:

"(1) The reinstatement of the three executives which were elected by the membership.

"(2) For proportional representation in the Joint Board so that it will be impossible for a minority to exclude a majority.

"(3) For the right of the membership themselves to decide on dues, assessments, strikes, and settlements, and also for the right to decide on the policies of the union in relation to the employers. And also that Sigman, the one who has caused the present situation, should resign.

"We express our abhorrence of Sigman, who appointed himself as manager of the Joint Board at a time when the cloak and dressmakers are even more against him than against the two who resigned.

"Taking into consideration that the Joint Board is bankrupt and has not a cent in its treasury, and has even misused some of the security deposited by the bosses, and that they are now borrowing money with a promise to impose a tax of $20 in order to pay these debts they are now making, we declare:

"That we are not now and will never be responsible for their debts, and will never pay any taxes in order to maek good their present debts.

"That we call upon the Joint Action Committee to stand solidly in the struggle until all our demands shall be won.

"We pledge ourselves and call upon all members of the cloak and dressmakers' union to carry on an energetic campaign for the Defense Fund in order to that the Joint Action Committee shall have full possibility to carry on the struggle. We express our confidence in the Joint Action Committee. We assure them that we will stay in this struggle until the corrupt machine in our union shall be broken, and our struggle for a union controlled by the membership will be crowned with success."

coal? Of course they are. Are the unionized stationery firemen going to shovel this coal on their fires? Of course they are. And they are going to do it, not because they are not willing to do otherwise but because of a pernicious misconception of unionism which is born of craft division. That kind of unionism must go or else the miners are liable to be crushed when faced with the mighty power of the local industry.

THE miners' union is faced with a serious crisis. Of this there can be no doubt. No matter how hard Lewis and company have tried to cater to the wishes of the barons, the latter prefer no union to even one ruled by Lewis. They don't want any interference with their right to run the industry any way they please. The divine right conception is not dead among them. The workers must convince them that a new day is coming for labor. And they can only convince them by power. An alliance between the miners and the transport workers is an imperative necessity. We believe that even if the heads of the rail brotherhoods turn down such a proposal from the miners, the rank and file of the unions would not.

IN order to stave off an industrial struggle that might develop into civil war, Stanley Baldwin agreed to subsidize the coal industry to the extent of the difference between what the miners wanted and what the operators were willing to grant. This subsidy will cost in the vicinity of $150,000,000 for the nine months during which it is scheduled to be in operation. Immediately other capitalists howled. They were not going to be mulcted for the benefit of the coal operators. Baldwin was in a quandary.

THE latest reports indicate that the money for the subsidy will be taken out of the beer industry. A tax of one penny will be placed on every pint of porter. This is called the "poor man's drink." It is the best he can afford. A pint of porter now costs nine pence. It cost only two before the war. The price will now be jacked up another penny, because the liquor men will not stand the gaff. The government exects the workers to growl over their recent "victory."

THIS only proves that the working class cannot hope for any guaranteed improvement in their conditions so long as capitalism exists. The government of Britain, like all governments except that of Soviet Russia, functions in the interests of the capitalists. Therefore it is constantly looking around for ways and means to help those who own it. This device, however, will not be successful. It will only infuriate the workers who will feel that a very contemptible trick has been played upon them by the Baldwin government.

COLLAPSE OF KANSAS CITY BUILDING KILLS FOUR, TWO MISSING

KANSAS CITY, Mo., August 5.—With two persons still missing, four dead and seven injured, one possibly fatally, workmen continued today the search of the ruins of a building in the downtown section which collapsed late yesterday when a cross beam, which had been used as a support by movers, broke.

The two upper floors of the three story structure were used as a rooming house. J. M. Holliday, 79 and his invalid wife, 75 years old, were killed as the aged man was ministering to the bed ridden woman. The other dead were William Banks, negro workman, and a lather named Peterson.

RATIFICATION A NEW TRICK UPON CHINA

Ancient Pacts Signed to Check Liberation

WASHINGTON, D. C., August 5.—Another step in the compromises by which the imperialist powers hope to "pacify" China and defeat the rising liberation movement, as well as a new step in the establishment of America as an imperialist competitor with the other great bandit nations, occurred today when formal exchange of ratification by the powers to two treaties.

The crafty "open door" policy initiated by Secretary of State Hay, became a formal treaty policy acknowledged and accepted with fingers crossed by the other imperialist powers. So, also, did the plan for revising to a slight degree upward, China's customs revenue.

Keep China's Government Weak

For decades, the foreign powers have starved China's government by decreeing that it could collect—or rather that Great Britain would collect, since English officers supervise Chinese custom houses—only five per cent customs duties. Where other nations have charged 40 to 100 per cent duties, and despite the traditionally devotion to "protective tariff" of the ruling parties in America, China has been permitted to get only five per cent, and, the indemnities and "loans" forced upon her are collected from this means by foreign powers.

Naturally, the imperialist powers who depended on exporting goods to China, wished to have no hindrance placed on marketing them there, so China had to agree to being starved governmentally by a reduction of governmental income to an absurd minimum. She had to agree because she was powerless to face the guns of imperialist aggression.

Not a Free Nation

Even now one should not think China is going to be "freed." The ratifications concerning customs revision today merely allows for China within three months to set a later date for a customs conference and outline the means of giving China, instead of one crumb—a crumb and a half or even two crumbs. That is to say, the imperialists are going to allow an increase from five per cent, to between seven and a half and ten per cent, on customs revenue.

The nation which is so hedged about and subjected to the wishes of other nations that she has to get eight other nations to agree on a modification of such a sovereign right, is scarcely a sovereign nation in fact.

A New Yarn on Tap

Secretary Kellogg again states that the diplomatic body in Peking is drafting a note to China setting forth the attitude of the imperialist powers on "an early conference to settle the question of extra-territoriality.

If this is true, which it may not be, judging from the rapidity with which Kellogg has made such announcements before and immediately denied them, American imperialism is in a way to get another forced concession from Great Britain's interests, as abolition of extra-territoriality or even a hint of it, will cripple British standing while forwarding American interests.

Open Door—for Burglars

The ratification of the "open door" policy today is one gain for American imperialism. Now it seeks to push further. None of these maneuvers, of course, is done for China, though a deal of talk about the "helping hand" and so on is given. China is to be tricked into a passive attitude and left to hold the sack if she expects any aid in real national liberation from America.

Even American Workers Are Due to Fracture the Theories of Professors

By J. LOUIS ENGDAHL.

TODAY, the French imperialist republic, thru its ambassador at Moscow, tells the world that France is not seeking out relations between the Union of Soviet Republics and the Communist International as the basis for determining the economic relations of France with the Russian workers and peasants.

France has learned that it cannot dodge vital issues with this subterfuge. The Communist International stands as the creation of the revolutionary aspirations of international labor, spurred to life by the world war, the same revolutionary struggle that gave to the Russian masses their Soviet Republic. Evidently French capitalist statesmen have accepted this as an incontrovertible fact.

But the American diplomats who make their headquarters at Washington, altho they get their cues from Wall Street, think differently.

William R. Castle, Jr., chief of the division of West European Affairs, in Kellogg's department of state, told the Institute of Politics at Williamstown, Mass., that:

> "The assertion of those who attempted to differentiate between the activities of the Soviet Government and the Communist International had been proved wrong. It is now clearly understood that the Soviet Government and the Communist International are only the right and left hand of the same organism."

The New York Times proudly proclaims that Rear Admiral Harry M. P. Huse, United States Navy; Professor Archibald Cary Coolidge, Harvard, and Professor George H. Blakeslee, Clark University, all joined in characterizing Mr. Castle's statement as "an important and authoritative pronouncement" of the policy of the American government.

• • • •

That should bring smiles to the faces of the Red Soldiers on the watch along the Soviet frontier. The rear admiral and the two professors cannot help but solemnly hold up the twiching face of American imperialism, gnashing its teeth that the soldiers of the social revolution in all lands should be able to shield the seat of power of their Communist International behind the Soviet bayonets of the First Workers' Republic.

How the workers in the Soviet workshops must chuckle as they hear the wailings emanating from this solemn nest of the intelligentsia in New England, that has given refuge to fascists and terrorists from practically every country of Western Europe that is receiving a lift from the American dollar.

This Mr. Castle declared that if American bankers approached the state department at Washington with a request for a loan to the Soviet Union, the answer would be "No!"

To be sure, the Soviet Union wouldn't object to additional credits in the United States. It would help its representatives purchase more of the things needed by the Russian workers and peasants. It would take many American workers out of the army of the unemployed and give them a job.

But Soviet trade with the United States is doing pretty well, even in the face of great obstacles. All trade records were broken during the first six months of 1925, according to the reports of the Russian Information Bureau at Washington.

Just a glance at the figures, and may they come to the attention of the rear admiral and the professors. The turnover for the half-year ending June 30 was $68,779,736, of which $52,610,645 represented purchase of American goods for shipment to the Soviet Union, and $6,169,091 sales of Soviet imports into the sacred precincts of the United States of America. How the state department at Washington must stand aghast at this Bolshevik penetration of this sacred capitalist land.

Cotton led the list of purchases with 75,498 bales valued at $26,479,500 as compared with $19,684,460 worth of cotton purchased during the same period last year. These figures do not include imports of manganese or of the Russian agricultural co-operatives; neither do they include unfilled orders for future delivery.

• • • •

So the raving of the state department and its propaganda agents, like Mr. Castle, does not seem to matter much. The Soviet Union would like to get help. It would result in a more rapid reconstruction. But if the help, in the shape of loans and credits is not forthcoming, it will get along just as well. Only the job will take a little longer. Russian labor, however, is as persistent as it is patient, an inspiration to American labor to battle untiringly for its Soviet Republic. Then it would be possible to hold a gathering of the Communist International in Washington, D. C., entirely upsetting the calculations of the professors, for then they would have to charge that the American instead of the Russian Soviet Republic, and the Communist International "are only the right and left hand of the same organism."

GARMENT BOSSES POST JOKE WRIT, PICKETS LAUGH

Police Renew Their Violence, 4 Jailed

Greater spirit than ever was manifested by the members of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers picketing the struck plant of the International Tailoring company at 847 West Jackson Blvd., as a result of the posting of the injunction issued by Judge Hugo Pam, which prohibits the strikers from doing that which is "unlawful."

The International company's hired thugs were passing out big bundles of copies of the injunction, and twenty-one copies were pasted on the building. The strikers, and even the policemen had great fun with the injunction, which is treated as a huge joke, for it plainly states that the strikers may picket.

Police Begin Violence.

Four strikers were arrested yesterday, the police evidently having been given orders by the International to recommence their violent tactics. Those arrested were Mary De Spenza, Joe Dumbrowski, Peter Korech and John Lotus.

Mary De Spenza was walking the picket line in a peaceful manner when she was seized by several police and hustled to the station house. At first the police threatened to hold her for "contempt of court" on $1,000 bond, but later she was booked on a disorderly conduct charge and released under four hundred dollars bail.

Imposing Phraseology.

The injunction which the finks of the garment bosses were peddling begins with imposing legal phraseology: "To the Amalgamated Clothing Workers of America: Whereas, it hath been presented to the Honorable Hugo Pam, one of the judges of the superior court of Cook county, in the state aforesaid, on the part of the International Tailoring company, a corporation, complainant in its certain second amended and supplemental bill of complaint exhibited before said judge, and filed in said court against you, among other things that you are combining and confederating with others to injure the complainant, and that your acts and doings in the premises are contrary to equity and good conscience.

Allowed to Picket.

"We therefore do strictly command you, the above named defendants and all associations and firms and persons assisting you or having knowledge hereof, that you absolutely desist and refrain . . ."

Then follows the "command" to desist from "unlawful picketing," which the Amalgamated never indulged in: "From following or calling upon the employes of the complainant, and from congregating and from picketing near the premises of the complainant, in a manner that is intimidating or unlawful, but this does not, however, restrain in any way or prevent the defendants from maintaining pickets or persuading employes of the complainant, or from following or calling upon employes of said complainant, or from congregating in a peaceful or lawful manner, as provided in the act of the state of Illinois, entitled, 'An act relating to disputes concerning terms or conditions of employment."

The employes are then ordered not to picket in such a way as to obstruct the sidewalks, not to call strikebreakers "scbas" or "finks," not to maintain a boycott, and not to interfere with the free use of the streets or with the scabs, nor to injure the company's property.

The injunction is not considered even legal, as it orders the defendants not to commit acts which are already declarde by law to be illegal.

Coal Miners Are Urged to Prepare for the Fight

"The policy of Lewis is shown to be bankrupt. His previous betrayals of the union, such as the Jacksonville three-year agreement, has, as the Progressive Miners' Committee prophesied, weakened the union fearfully. So much so, in fact, that the operators now pay no attention to Lewis and think they can whip the miners in a strike.

"This is quite possible, too, if the miners' union membership, remebering the treachery of Lewis in the other general strike when he surrendered to the Anderson injunction on the grounds of patriotism, do not apply the most vigorous pressure to prevent his betraying the present fight. Actually, only a new and militant leadership from the pits to replace the present Lewis machine, will be able to lead a real struggle.

No International Aid.

"In all this fight, it must be recalled Lewis has never asked the advice or assistance of the Amsterdam International. If he did, the American miners would not get it, however, considering the fact that Amsterdam gives only lip service to internationalism, and that Lewis himself has taken no action to aid the European miners in their battles. Only last week, Murray and Kennedy denied they had even promised to aid the great British mine strike.

"Miners everywhere must at once demand that Lewis refuse any arbitration proposal, which is always an effort to defeat the workers. Lewis must be made to understand that he must not compromise on this, and that the bituminous field be called out, an alliance with rail unions set up, and a militant fight made and no arbitration accepted—only direct settlement with the operators on the basis of victory for every demand of the miners."

Strike May Come September 1.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., August 5.—The conference between anthracite operators and miners' union representatives collapsed at six o'clock last night, and the possibility of a strike of 158,000 hard coal mines in a prospect for September 1.

John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers of America, shortly before noon, refused to say what would be the next move.

"My letter to Mr. Warriner is all I have to say just now—and it speaks for itself," he said. He would not say a strike was to be called on September 1. He refused to comment on strike.

Operators Snub Lewis.

In this letter to Warriner, Lewis charges the operators with bad faith for refusing to send responsible negotiators to the conference, Warriner and other big men in the operators' association refusing even to see Lewis and delegating underlings to do the negotiating. Likewise, Lewis' letter scouted the efficiency of the key proposal of the operators—arbitration.

The letter of Lewis to Warriner, which was read into the record as was Warriner's note refusing to attend, follows in part:

Mr. Samuel D. Warriner, chairman,
Anthracite Operators' Conference,
Philadelphia, Pa.

My Dear Mr. Warriner:

I enjoyed the delightful sophistry of your letter of August 3. It is a pleasure to exchange views with you, but how much more convenient it would have been had you come into the conference and debated with us face to face.

As usual, you argued from a false premise. You pretend to assume that the mine workers are trying to dictate the personnel of the operators' representatives. Such an assumption is far from the truth.

Statements Contradict.

Despite your gentle asseverations to the contrary, that condition does not now exist. On July 30, in a New York newspaper, Mr. W. W. Inglis, speaking for the anthracite operators' conferees in Atlantic City, gave an authorized statement that no concessions of any character, involving an increased cost of mining would be made by the anthracite operators in the wage conference.

On July 9 in your formal address delivered to the joint meeting at the Traymore Hotel, Atlantic City, you made the following significant remark:

Want Wage Cut.

"The anthracite operators feel, therefore, that the real issue before this conference is not the question as to whether or not we can join with you in an investigation of the facts and the application of those facts or the necessary reasoning and logic, and out of that produce a decision which will reduce the labor cost of mining."

The above statement is the key to the operators' position. You desire to reduce wages in order to increase your profit margins and because of that desire you place positive strictures upon your conference representatives, prohibiting them from negotiating in any manner except to revise the scale downward.

Refuse to Examine Costs.

Our representaties, therefore, proposed that the anthracite operators join with them in a mutual examination of the mine costs of the anthracite operators with an accurate ascertainment of the amount of money paid in salaries to corporation officers and executives, retinues of high-priced attorneys, multifarious publicity representatives, statistical and research organizations, and secret agents of various character.

Our people do not care to disarm themselves and stand helpless in the face of such a powerful adversary as the organized financial and operating interests which you represent. Our position on this question is definite and carries with it the overwhelming indorsement of the mine workers of the anthracite region.

(Signed) JOHN L. LEWIS,
President.

Russians Show Proletariat Can Live Without Bourgeoisie

"BY visiting us you will be convinced that the proletariat can live without the bourgeoisie, and that it can build up a new socialist economy as well."—Leningrad Metal Workers' Shop Council to visiting German Metal Workers' Delegates.

GERMAN MANUAL WORKERS BEGIN INSPECTION OF SOVIET RUSSIA WITH PUTILOV WORKS, LENINGRAD

MOSCOW, July 15.—(By Mail.)—On July 15, the German workers' delegation commenced its practical work by a study of the Leningrad factories. On the proposal of the workers from the Putilov works, the delegation decided to commence with a study of these latter which will take a few days.

The delegation formed itself into various commissions for this purpose, a trade union commission, an industrial commission, a cultural and a political commission. The delegation chose nine factories for examination, amongst them the "Max Hölz" metal works, textile factories, boot and shoe works, electric stations, etc.

The whole personnel of the Putilov works waited for the German delegation in front of the works. The delegation divided itself into six groups. After several hours examination of the smelting shops and after discussions with the workers, a meeting took place in the courtyard in which the whole 10,000 Putilov workers took part.

51 Years a Manuel Worker.

The members of the delegation, Freiberger, Schaudt and Lange, were elected into the presidium, the last named as the oldest workers with 51 years of physical work behind him.

The chairman of the shop council of the Putilov works, Matjuchin, greeted the delegation and declared that previously the works had only been visited by high foreign trade union officials and that the Putilov workers valued the visit of the German workers themselves exceedingly. The German comrades should prove for themselves on the spot how much was true of the lies of the Vorwaerts about the Putilov workers, for these workers who stood in the front ranks of the revolution already in the eighties of the previous century, were not prepared to allow such calumnies to be spread about them.

Offenhagen greeted the Putilov workers in the name of the Krupp workers and said:

No Place on Earth Like Russia.

"We could not have found a more fraternal greeting in any part of the world outside of the country of workers. Today we have seen you at work. In all other countries work is a torture because the workers know that they are only working for the profit of the capitalists. You, however, are working for yourselves and regard the work as your duty, you know that the fruits of your labor will go only to the benefit of the workers' state."

The speaker further described the birth of the delegation, the material and moral difficulties which had to be overcome. Another speaker declared that several members of the delegation had already received notice of dismissal from their jobs in Germany, whereupon the Putilov workers shouted that they would be proud if the dismissed workers would work with them.

Freiberger declared that the very first examination of the shops had destroyed the wild lies and the calumnies about the condition of labor and production in Soviet Russia. He declarde further, that only an enemy of the working class could fail to recognize the heroism of the working class could fail to recognize the heroism of the Putilov workers who, after the civil war in which they themselves had taken part, succeeded despite the blockade, despite the difficulties and the shortage, from their own strength without any outside assistance, in re-establishing a huge undertaking inside three years.

Freiberger called for cheers for the international unity of the working class in which the delegation and the huge meeting joined with enhusiasm.

Old Russian Worker Thanks Germans.

A Putilov worker, Beloussov, who had worked for 50 years in the same factory, then thanked the German workers for their visit to the Soviet Union. A delegate from Hannover then handed a flag emblazoned with the inscription "Prepared for the struggle!" to the Putilov workers.

The meeting adopted unanimously the following resolution:

"The full meeting of the personnel of the Putilov works in the presence of the German delegation, expresses its thanks to the German proletariat for its fraternal attitude to the Russian working class and in particular to the Putilov workers.

Will Aid Unity.

"It regards the arrival of the German delegation as an important step on the way to the victory of the united front of the working class of the world against opportunism and reformism, which atempt to weaken the working class in its struggles against capitalism by a policy of disruption.

"We are convinced that the delegates of the German workers will recognize after they have seen the success of our struggle for Communism, that the cause of the Russian working class is a just cause.

"The international bourgeoisie which lost the possibility of exploiting the Russian working class after the October revolution, has carried on since October hand in hand with the leaders of the Second International, a bitter and determined struggle against the dictatorship of the proletariat with weapons and calumnies, with the fabrication of documents, with treachery and provocation.

Class Traitors Exposed.

"Nevertheless, all their hopes have been in vain. For the working masses of Europe have taken the cause of unity into their own hands and they now wish to learn for themselves the truth of the situation in the Soviet Union. And the working class without the slightest doubt will be able to establish the truth about the proletarian revolution.

"We are prepared by every possible means to make the study of the German delegation of our conditions easy. In particular we would be thankful to our German comrades if they would study the conditions in our works in order to prove how far the leaders of the social democracy and the Vorwaerts were right when they calumnied the Putilov workers.

"German class comrdaes, tell the workers of all countries honestly the truth about the economic and political situation in the Soviet Union!

"Long live the united front of the international working class movement!

"Long live the alliance of the working classes of Germany and the Soviet Union!"

GERMANS AND SWEDES VISIT UNION COUNCIL

Even Socialists Moved by Workers' Power

MOSCOW, July 19 (By Mail).—On Saturady the German workers' delegation visited the Leningrad trade union council, the industrial administration of the north-east district and various cultural institutions. The political commission examined the activities of the party organizations.

In the industrial administration the delegates examined the statistical material upon the rise of production and the number of workers engaged in Leningrad industry. They put various questions upon the relations between the economic organs and the trade unions, upon the problems of export and import and the utilization of foreign capital, etc. Many of the delegates were present at sessions of the various trade union sections, and studied the collective agreements and tariffs.

In the evening a session of the Enlarged Plenum of the Leningrad trade union council took place in the presence of the German and Swedish workers delegations. The chairman of the German delegation, Freiberger, greeted the Swedish delegation and declared that the meeting of the two delegations was a step to the establishment of trade union unity.

In the name of the Swedish delegation, Tschilbum presented the Leningrad trade union council with a banner emblazoned: "From the Swedish workers to the revolutionary fighters of Leningrad!".

Pledges Defense of Soviet Union.

A social democratic member of the German delegation, Lehner, thanked the Russian comrades for their readiness to assist and declared that there had been no case in which information had been refused or in which the delegates had been prevented from studying conditions.

"We leave Leningrad," declared Lehner, "with the firm conviction that the Leningrad proletariat has accomplished tremendous things and that the German workers have been deceived shamelessly in relation to the conditions in the Soviet Union by the bourgeois press.

"We assure you that should an attack be made upon the Soviet Union, there is no shop in Germany which would not spring to the defense of your working class country. Whoever seizes Soviet Russia by the throat, will break his own neck in consequence."

Swedish Socialist Praises Russ Workers.

In the name of the social democratic fraction of the Swedish workers' delegation Tschelman declared that one must learn from the Russian proletariat and that without sharing in Communist opinion, he joined in the revolutionary enthusiasm of the Leningrad working class.

Other members of both delegations expressed without distinction of political or trade union tendencies, their recognition of the Leningrad working class and the will for international working class unity.

After these speeches, the enlarged plenum of the Leningrad trade union council adopted a resolution which declared:

Second International Scored by Council.

"The leaders of the Second International and of the International Federation of Trade Unions are preparing in this critical moment new treachery against the working class. In this moment, when imperialism has undertaken new adventures in Morocco and in China, and when it is preparing new attacks upon the Soviet Union, they evade the one step which is capable of defending the working class from the ever-growing imperialist danger, i. e., the creation of international trade union unity.

"Still more, they deliberately prevent this unity and demand class peace with the bourgeoisie.

"This makes the cause of unity the cause of the working masses themselves who are proceeding to unity above the heads of their leaders.

Visits Break Blockade of Lies.

"The Leningrad working class believes firmly that the workers of the fraternal delegations have also commenced this way to unity. By your arrival in the Soviet Union you will destroy the last ring of the blockade, the ring of calumny.

"The capitalists prevent the establishment of connections between the working class of their countries and the working class of the Soviet Republic. The very fact of your presence in Soviet territory is in itself a blow to capitalism and a step for the emancipation of the working class.

"May your visit, despite all the difficulties, make the fraternal solidarity of the workers of all countries still more firm and provide one more stone in the fabric of international proletarian unity."

SECOND VISIT MADE TO THE PUTILOV WORKS

Make Exhaustive Survey of Soviet Shops

MOSCOW, July 16.—(By Mail). Today the German workers delegation visited the Putilov works for the second time and studied the work of the shop councils, the illness funds, the workers' insurance and the shops themselves.

The delegates declared that such a progressed shop councils law existed in no othre country. Further, the trade school of the works was visited and made a great impression upon the delegates.

They examined all the details of wages, etc., in the course of some hours' discussion with the workers.

In the afternoon various co-operatives, trade union and public organizations were visited. In the evening a great concert in honor of the delegates was given. The concert was carried out solely by the workers of the Putilov works.

Tomorrow the delegation leaves for Moscow, where it will spend three days. Afterwards the delegation will visit various towns.

Three groups will be formed to study the condition of labor in the central industrial district, the Uural district and the South West district. It is the intention of the delegaton to remain in Soviet Russia for a month.

294 SWEDISH WORKERS, FROM ALL TRADES, IN DELEGATION LANDING AT LENINGRAD TO VISIT RUSSIA

MOSCOW, July 18.—(By Mail.)—Today the Swedish workers' delegation arrived in Leningrad. It consists of 294 members, 94 of whom are women, 100 are Communists, 100 Social-Democrats and the rest non-party.

The delegation was greeted enthusiastically at the border station and in Leningrad by thousands of workers. On the occurred.

From Soviet Russia a railway train consisting of eight carriages was sent to the Esthonian station. The Esthonian frontier officials, without any cause, held up the delegation and compelled it to remain in the carriages for four hours.

The Soviet frontier authorities demanded by telephone the immediate release of the train, appealing to the existing railway convention. Finally, the Esthonian frontier authorities released the delegation. Despite the late hour, the delegation was greeted on Soviet territory by numerous workers' delegations with music.

The delegation consists of 55 metal workers, 22 wood, paper and building workers, 60 railwaymen and sailors, 20 municipal employes, 20 commercial workers, 17 printers, 13 tailors, 12 workers in the food industry, 10 miners, 2 post workers, and 2 teachers. The delegation consists of Communists, social-democrats and non-party trade union officials.

SCABBY HEARST PAPER FINALLY SETTLES WITH UNION; TERMS SECRET

SEATTLE, August 5.—After [illegible] months at a strikebreaking non-union daily, Hearst's Seattle Post-Intelligencer is again appearing as the product of union printers. The terms are not made public but the official organ of Washington labor says, "It is safe to presume that both sides to the controversy made some concessions." Hearst had refused to pay union wages and observe union conditions.

300 More Strike in Paterson.

PATERSON, N. J.—Announcement of a wage cut of four cents an hour brot 300 employes of Cramer & King, dyers and printers, on strike. Three hundred and fifty silk workers of the Doherty mills are still on strike and two smaller strikes are in progress.

SHOP BY SHOP, GERMAN WORKERS PROBE CONDITIONS OF LABOR IN LENINGRAD; FINDING SURPRISES

MOSCOW, July 19.—(By Mail.)—The German workers delegation will arrive in Moscow only on Monday, in the meantime it will continue its detailed study of the conditions in the Leningrad shops.

Apart from the Putilov, the investigation of which was only completed on Saturday, the delegation has visited the electrical works Electrosila, a furniture factory, a textile factory, the famous rubber factory "Krasny Trougolnik," the tobacco factory "Uritzky," the state printing works, a metal works and finally, the Leningrad bureau of the metal workers union, where the delegation learnt the activity of a trade union.

The visit to each of the shops lasted several hours and the delegates asked the workers upon all details of the conditions of labor, wages, insurance, length of working hours, sickness arrangements, state of production, political rights, cultural work, union work, women's work etc.

In the Electrical Works—Where Profits Go

In the "Elektrosila" works the delegates asked how the profits of the undertaking were divided, and learnt in reply that 25 per cent was handed over to the state funds, 10 per cent went for the betterment of the conditions of the workers, and the remaining 65 per cent for the extension of production.

When the delegates were first told that apprentices received two months holiday, they thought that it must be a translation mistake.

Furniture Factory Work and Wages

In the furniture factory the delegates declared that the quality of production was not below the quality of production in Germany, and that the wages of the Russian wood-workers were on a level with, and partly even above the wages of similar workers in Germany, and at that, under cheaper cost of living.

New Things Found in Textile Mills

In the textile factory, the delegates discovered that the administrative staff, the director etc., had originally been taken from amongst the workers in the shops. The delegates were surprised to learn that women's work was paid the same wages as men's. The delegation further visited the dispensary and the club, etc. of the factory.

Rubber Factory Gets 6-Hour Day

In the rubber factory "Krasny Trougolnik," the delegates learnt that in consequence of the danger to health involved in the production of rubber, a six hour day had been introduced and a vacation of one month for each one of the 14,000 workers. 2,000 of the latter were taking their vacation at the time of the visit of the delegation, in health resorts in the country. In 1915, wages were 30 Roubles, in 1925, 35 Roubles, at present the wages are already 20 per cent more than before the war.

Printing and Metal Workers Better Off Than in Germany

In the state printing works the delegates declared that the average wage was 25 per cent higher than in Germany and this quite apart from the various privileges etc., provided for by Russian law.

A group of metal worker members of the German delegation formed themselves into a party to visit the Leningrad metal works, and they studied carefully the conditions of production and of labor. After examining the wage lists and after discussions with the workers the delegates declared that the wage conditions were considerably better then in Germany.

In the name of the metal worker delegates of the German delegation, Traus read the following greeting:

Metal Workers Delegates Praise Soviet Industry

"As delegates of the workers in the German heavy industries, we wish to express our pleasure upon the unity which exists between the workers and the technical staff in your shops. You are very far progressed. If you continue with the same intensity of labor as we have been able to observe during our visit, you will certainly experience a great revival of your industry. Long Live the working class of Russia and Germany!"

The shop council of the metal works requested the delegates to convey the following greeting to the German metal workers:

"Today your delegates have visited our metal works. They have been able to see our achievements and form an opinion upon the life of the workers in the town of Lenin by discussions with the various workers. They have seen our production, how, far from being in decay, it grows steadily.

"Our Foremen Chosen by Workers"

"They have met the foremen who have been placed at their posts by the workers themselves. They have learnt the truth about the Soviet Union.

"We do not doubt for one moment that your delegation will tell you only the truth about us.

"We are thankful to you for having sent a delegation to our working class land, and we are convinced that the unity between the workers of Germany and the workers of the Soviet Union will become ever more firm.

"We hope to be able to greet still further delegations of the German workers who will always receive a friendly reception in our metal works and in all the other factories.

Can Get Along Without Being Robbed

"By visiting us you will be convinced that the proletariat can live without the bourgeoisie, and that it can build up a new socialist economy as well.

"Long Live the fraternal unity of the metal workers of Germany and of the Soviet Union!

"Long Live the unity of the international working class movement!"

Two Pickets Only.

BRIDGEPORT, Conn., Aug. 5.—Judge John J. Walsh refuses to modify a temporary injunction limiting the United Hatters' Union to two pickets in its fight on the big firm of F. Berg & Co. which went open shop on moving to Norwalk, Conn., from Orange, N. J., earlier in the year. In its appeal for the writ the firm admitted that the union had it beaten unless the judge intervened.

Building Laborers Strike.

NEW HAVEN, N. J., Aug. 5.—The Hod Carriers and Building Laborers' Union has several hundred men on strike for a wage increase to 75 cents an hour from the 65 cents previously paid. For plasterers' tenders wage increases to 85 cents from 75 cents are asked.

JEFFERSON, Mass.—[illegible]ty-five employes of the [illegible] Mill are striking against a 10 per cent cut.

German Fascists Confess to Sending of Forged Letters

The proceedings of the fifth session are given below:

With regard to Kindermann, Dittmar says that the terrorist aims of the expedition to Russia were clearly dealt with in their first discussion also. Already then Wolscht was introduced to Dittmar as one aware of the secret aims of the expedition. The witness Fink, at present in Moscow, took part in this first discussion as the advisor of the Berlin O. C.

"Interested" in Terror

Kinderman denies now as before to have had any terrorist intent, he admits however, the order of the meetings as given by Dittmar. Wolscht declares that he has never had any discusion together with Kindermann and Dittmar. Kindermann stresses that he has never interested himself in terror, whereupon the prosecutor reminds him of his letter to Djerjinsky, in which he interested himself very much in detail in the terror.

Wolscht declares he made the acquaintance of Kindermann thru the member of the O. C. Fink. To the question of the prosecutor, how long had the journey to Russia been planned, Wolscht answers, a year to eighteen months. To the question of the prosecutor, what could cause him to interrupt his university study for so long, Wolscht is obviously embarrassed, commences to stutter and explains that he must find a formulation for the reason. Finally he says that material cirumstances had compelled him to do it. (Amusement.)

The prosecutor then suggests that one could hardly better one's economic circumstances by travelling to Jakutsk without means. Thereupon declares Wolscht suddenly that he had made a contract with the Berliner Tageblatt for a thousand marks a months during the period of his stay in Russia. The two thousand marks paid by the Berliner Tageblatt represented an advance of two months' pay in the spirit of this agreement.

Admit Forged Letters.

Dittmar continues and says that at the second discussion, in the home of Professor Thyssen, apart from the discussion of the terror plan, a made-up letter to the Jakutsk Republic was agreed upon describing the "scientific work" planned to maintain the scientific appearance of the expedition. Apart from this, the text of the telegrams already mentioned were agreed upon.

Kindermann admits that he received the telegram with the pre-arranged text, "Congratulations on the birth," he suggests however, that this arose from a beer freak of Dittmar. Replying to the question of the prosecutor who asked him how he could understand the meaning of the telegram without previous agreement about the text, Kindermann says that he "made up the correct combination himself!" (Laughter).

Now follows the discussion of the telegram already mentioned very often before with the name Gruenbaum. This telegram is of great significance for the whole course of the proceedings. Both Wolscht and Kindermann become mixed in endless contradictions upon this point.

Wolscht admits it is true that he signed the protocol personally in which he recognized the text of this telegram and its purpose, he says however, that he can no longer confirm the contents of the protocol himself. To the repeated questions of the chairman and the prosecutor in this connection he is unable to reply. The prosecutor quotes "Hamlet" to the effect that there are more things in heaven and earth. . .

Kindermann's Sabotage Facts.

Kindermann (with insolent laughter): "Especially in Soviet Russia."

Prosecutor: "Yes, especially for fascists."

Kindermann and Wolscht now attempt by means of endless requests to speak and to sabotage the negotiations. Despite the many previous warnings of Chairman Jaroslavsky, no disciplinary measures were however used.

Kindermann attempts in endless speeches to prove that he is an expert in polar science and bases his contention upon haphazardly chosen titles of books from the last century. To the question of the chairman whether or not these literary particulars could be found in a lexicon, Kindermann answers in the affirmative.

Kindermann admits also that he has never studied polar science at the university. Exploiting the patience of the chairman, Kindermann then proceeds to talk without cease of his hunger strike which he alleges that he conitnued for 48 days. There was loud laughter, and then Kindermann explains laughingly, "Naturally with considerable pauses in between."

Prisoners of Soviet Well Fed.

Hereupon the chairman reads the following note of Kindermann to the examining judge upon his epicurian tastes and desires: "Lunch was today good, but please, no dessert again, but only light food. No white bread, no cheese and no jelly because these are antipathetic to me."

Another note: "A roast and a chicken, not red compote but the earlier form."

A third note: "Please no compote, but various fresh fruit and some Malaga."

These notes are dated in various months of the arrest under examination. The chairman says that he is in a position to read dozens of the same nature. He then reads a letter from Wolscht in which the latter thanks the examining judge for the excellent food, explains his own taste and declares that the food is more in the nature of a fattening course than prison fare.

Jaroslavsky declares: "If the political prisoners in Germany were treated in the same way, one would be able to congratulate them on their imprisonment."

Kindermann Explores With Rear End.

Dittmar then describes the boasting declarations of Kindermann to him about his (Kindermann's) Spitzbergen journey, from which it would appear that the "Polar Explorer" Kindermann had only once walked on the ice and upon that occasion he slipped, fell upon his rear end and tore his trousers.

Since then he had shown no more interest for the polar nature of Spitzbergen, but he had compiled a long report upon the situation in the Spitzbergen coal mines and upon the extent of their financing by the Norwegian government. Dittmar declares that Kindermann has always acted from motives of gain.

Work Is Torture Under Profit System, Germans Show

"IN all other countries work is a torture because the workers know that they are only working for the profit of the capitalists. You, however, are working for yourselves, and regard your work as a duty, you know that the fruits of your labor will go only to the benefit of the workers' state."—Speech of German Shop Workers' Delegate Offenhagen, to 10,000 Putilov factory workers at Leningrad.

WORKERS' MEET IN PARIS FLAYS WAR ON RIFFS

Hundreds of Socialist Delegates Attend

PARIS, July 9 (By Mail).—Over the week-end of July 4-5 a great workers' congress was held here.

This congress, called by the "committee of action," represents the highest point yet reached in the struggle of the French workers for unity against the imperialist war in Morocco and against the whole bourgeois policy of the Painleve government.

Riffs Break French Front.

With 250 credentials still to be verified, it was announced, last Monday, that there were no less than 2,470 delegates present at the Paris workers' congress. These delegates represented 1,210,000 workers.

IT IS A PARTICULARLY STRIKING FACT THAT OF THESE DELEGATES 155 WERE MEMBERS OF THE FRENCH SOCIALIST PARTY, the infamous action of whose leaders in supporting the Moroccan war is well known. THERE WERE ALSO 195 TRADE UNIONISTS FROM C. G. T. UNIONS—i. e., the General Confederation of Labor, affiliated to Amsterdam, whose leader, M. Jouhaux, is one of the most unscrupulous and bitter opponents of international trade union unity. Some 343 delegates were non-party or "independent."

To have succeeded in calling a congress of this character—for Paris and district alone, let is be remembered—is a great tribute to the work of the French Communist Party and the left wing trade union federation (the C. G. T. U.), who were instrumental in organizing the committee of action.

"A Paris Soviet."

With justice one of the speakers christened the congress "the first Soviet of Paris." For most of the thousands of workers present had been delegated from their workshop, factory, depot, or office. One after another, during the two days of the congress, simple socialist and trade union workers got up to say, in plain, blunt language, that what they wanted was UNITY to smash the Moroccan imperialist adventure and to defend the workers' standard of living against the government proposals for inflation.

Speeches were made by outstanding leaders like Marcel Cachin and Henri Barbusse; but it was the continual stream of rank and file delegates, expressing the real feeling of the masses, often in halting and uncertain phrases, some of them still with the remains of a patriotic faith in their reactionary socialist and trade union leaders, that gave the congress its magnificiently impressive character.

Here was a real workers' parliament, setting itself boldly up over against the shams and mockeries of the parliament of the bouregoisie.

Women, Arise!

A woman worker comrade, Klaweis, who lost her son in the last "war to end war," said plainly:

"We must all of us take our stand, men and women alike, against the war. I ask the women particularly—we will arise for the social revolution against militarism and the bouregoisie."

Liabaers, the secretary of the Belgian Garment Workers' Union, a fraternal delegate, made a long and closely reasoned speech in favor of trade union unity.

"It is a lie," he said, "to say that Moscow is responsible for the division in trade unionism. The attitude of the reformist and socialist leaders in 1914 was the underlying cause of the crisis in the international labor movement after the war."

Trade Union Unity.

He concluded on a note of appeal, which roused the congress to the highest pitch of enthusiasm.

"Workers of France! You are faced with this alternative, from which there is no escape. You will either pay dearly for the error of your divided forces, and will allow still heavier chains of slavery to be rivited upon you. Or else, by trade union unity, you will be able to stop the criminal war in Morocco, and then to forge the weapon which the workers need for their final emancipation."

So ended a truly great congress—a real congress of the united front from below, the united front of the toiling masses, irrespective of section or tendencies.

It was unanimously resolved to send a strong deputation to the government and a commission of inquiry to Morocco.

What a contrast between this meeting of workers, full of determination to end the Moroccan war, and the meeting of the bureau of the labor and socialist international in London, also over last week-end.

That meeting received a report on the Moroccan question from M. Renaudel, the extreme right wing French socialist, who "explained the different views held within the French party."

The L. I. S. "postponed" any decision until after a future conference of the British, French and Spanish labor and socialist parties.

The attitude of the French socialists, however, evoked protests even from Dan, the Russian social-revolutionary. And those whom even in this counter-revolutionary scoundrel condemns—well!

mains in the saddle as before. And even the discredited leaders remain as vice-presidents and, in a roundabout way, can use their power over the union.

The joint board is not yet ready to correct the crime committed against the membership of the union—support and endorsement of the pogrom on the three greatest locals of the joint board.

The policy of ruling with delegates from paper locals and with strong arms, remains as before.

Unite with Bosses Against Membership

Instead of fighting against the bosses for conditions which should make it possible for the workers to make a living, they unite with them, and give the bosses the right to do with the workers whatever they wish, only requiring that the bosses help the machine to suppress the dissatisfaction and protest of the members.

With the present maneuver Sigman aims at securing the support of the personal opponents of the two resigned leaders, in suppressing the revolt of the members. He thinks that he will succeed in fooling at least a part of the membership and make them believe that from now on such crimes in the union will not be committed, that everything will be all right.

But we are sure that all cloak and dressmakers understand excellently this trick and the low object of the Sigman machine. The cloak and dressmakers will not give up their struggle against this czarist regime until they will eliminate the whole clique from the union, and until the joint board will be reorganized on such a basis as to give the membership a chance to have their say on the most important questions, and to decide their own fate.

It is an old trick of tyrants and corrupt rulers, when the people get to know of their crimes and treachery, to throw the guilt upon a few individuals in order to save the rule of the whole clique. But the cloak and dressmakers will not permit themselves to be fooled.

They were fooled and betrayed too much the bluff of resignation of the two leaders of the machine should satisfy them and cause them to permitt themselves to be led again by the same machine which has ruined them and brought about a condition that makes it impossible for them to make a living.

Sigman Has Not Changed

Sigman's declaration that he will now seriously begin a struggle against the bosses cannot be taken seriously. Sigman's machine was the one which up to now laughed at all demands for a struggle against the bosses for better conditions. They have given over altogether the demands of the workers into the hands of the Governor's Commission and such-like philanthropists.

This same gang which has permitted itself to suspend the biggest locals of the union and make a pogrom on the membership simply because those locals demanded a struggle for better conditions, those persons cannot overnight become fighters in the interests of the workers.

The cloak and dressmakers demand that the rule of terror should be abolished. They demand the reinstatement of the three locals, and that in the Joint Board delegates from those small paper locals who represent nobody should not decide the fate of 12,000 operators, 8,000 finishers, and over 12,000 dressmakers.

Membership Must Control

The cloak and dressmakers demand that in the union every member shall have the right to freely express his opinion, and that no one should be robbed of his right as member and be thrown down from the shops as is now the practice of the Sigman clique.

They do not desire anybody to provide them with rulers over their union. They were not asked if they want Feinberg and Perlstein as managers to boss over them, and they are not asked now if they want or they recognize those who were appointed in place of the resigned ones.

What Members Want

They demand, as members in good standing in the union, that they themsleves should elect their leaders, and that no one should in the middle of the night break into their offices to throw out their legally-elected officials. They demand that taxes and the raising of dues should not, by forcible means, be imposed upon them.

They demand that they should be given an account as to what is being done with their hard-earned money. And mainly they do not want that in their name and without their knowledge agreements should be made with the bosses, nor certain "supplementary" agreements, which bind them hand and foot, and make it impossible to make a living.

Will Fight Until Victory

The cloak and dressmakers will stay in this struggle until they will liberate themselves from this corrupt clique, and destroy the whole rotten base upon which this machine is built.

As long as Sigman and his terrorist policy will rule in the union and the membership will not have the right to freely express their opinions, so long will there not be a sign of true unity and fraternity. Instead of struggling against the bosses, this machine is carrying on a struggle against the members of the union. And if the same machine will remain in power it will do the same in the future.

ARMY'S TYRANNY IS EXPOSED IN CROUCH APPEAL

know the reasons, which Patterson refuses to disclose.

Courtmartial Unfit.

Emphatic objection and protest was made by Patterson to the refusal of the authorities to produce Crouch in court, but objection overruled and case ordered to pleadings. Patterson then proceeded with his arguments, presenting the case clearly and forcibly, with citations of authority. In answer to the request of the court to show wherein the federal district court had jurisdiction Patterson referred to many precedent cases and pointed out that the court stood as a bulwark between the constitutional rights of citizens and the abuse of military power.

He challenged the competence of the alleged courtmartial and the qualifications of its members on the showing of procedure in the transcript and the conduct of the "trial," and declared that the single fact that they had pronounced a sentence of 40 years at hard labor on a mere boy who was not even charged with any crime or violation of any law of the United States was sufficient proof of their prejudice to disqualify them and render void the proceedings of the courtmartial under the "due process of law" clause in the constitution.

No Criminal Act Charged.

He analyzed the charges and specifications and showed that nowhere was any specific act charged that was in itself criminnal, undawful or wrong. He showed that the laws of the territory of Hawaii regarding secret organizations cannot be held to apply to a military reservation, which is extra-territorial and under federal jurisdiction alone; and even if the law had applied, it only related to a misdemeanor that was punishable by three months' imprisonment.

He showed by precedent and authority that when an indictment or charge fails to state facts sufficient to constitute an offense the courts have no jurisdiction over the person of the accused, and when unlawfully restrained of his liberty under a decree of any tribunal adjudged under such circumstances the remedy lies in a writ of habeas corpust issued out of another court.

Legitimate Expression of Opinion.

He showed that the acts charged were not acts of offense but merely expressions of opinion and legitimate acts the right of which is guaranteed under the constitution, and that the acts charged as offenses were thus acts over which the courtmartial had no jurisdiction. He showed that the prejudice and animus against the accused was such as to create an atmosphere surrounding the proceedings which rendered a fair and impartial trial impossible and thus deprive him of his liberty without due process of law as guaranteed by the constitution of the United States.

Intolerance and Bigotry of Officers.

He closed the main argument with a bitter arraignment of the intolerance and bigotry of the army officials who had thus abused their power by the savage persecution of an innocent boy, whose only offense was that he held opinions different from their own and had dared to express them openly.

Col. Frederick M. Brown appeared for the army and defended the action of the courtmartial. He evaded the fact of the original 40-year sentence by showing that reviewing authorities had reduced it to three years, which he held was a proper sentence. His argument was confined chiefly to an effort to show that the courtmartial had full and complete jurisdiction, and that the federal court had no jurisdiction to step in between those who sought to enforce the law and a man who had deliberately violated it.

Many of the contentions of the petitioner he admitted, but insisted that all formality had been complied with in the trial and that it was a fair and impartial one and expressed the judgment of the tribunal by law to administer justice in the army.

Col. Brown stressed the alleged revolutionary character of the propaganda spread by Crouch and tried to show that his remark about the overthrow of the government was a deliberate advocacy of force and violence. He concluded his argument in the afternoon of July 17th.

The case has occupied the court for two days, July 16 and 17, and was continued to July 30, when Patterson will make a brief rebuttal.

Urge U. S. and European Labor Unite

statement has been issued as a call to the militant workers in these industries:

Never before in the history of modern capitalism has an industrial situation developed like the present state of crisis. In Great Britain the miners faced, and still face the greatest political and industrial struggle in their history.

British miners are driven to desperation thru starvation as a result of unemployment and low wages, which are, in turn, a direct sequel to the Dawes plan, that is slowly but surely throttling the workers in Europe. In reply to the threat to still cut deeper into the meager wages of the workers we find them fighting with their backs to the wall, determined to resist at any cost any further encroachments of the capitalists.

The miners were supported by the railroaders, machinists, and marine transport workers. An agreement had been concluded between the big four in Britain, guaranteeing that no coal would be produced or transported during the strike.

The railroaders of Britain also threatened with a wage cut, and the agreement between the big four at this time is considered in the labor circles to be the most appropriate and important development that could arise, and an event that has caused the surrender of the capitalist class before its tremendous power.

At a meeting held in Paris, July 28th, by the members of the International Mining Congress, it was unanimously decided to attempt to stop production of any coal in excess of the necessary amount for home consumption, thereby guaranteeing no available coal for international scabbery.

Today 74,000 Saar Basin miners have struck against wage cuts, with a prospect of the German and French miners following them immediately to offset similar attacks, applied by capitalism depreciating the money wages they are paid.

The anthracite miners in Pennsylvania are facing a strike for a living wage, while the bituminous miners throughout the organized fields of the United States and canada are unemployed and starving. Throughout America miners are striking and starving. Their living conditions are terrible. The non-union fields are working 66 per cent steady time, yet they are in as terrible a condition as the miners, and they are verging on slavery.

The International Mining Congress cabled to John L. Lewis and the American miners for support of the British and Saar Basin miners. They asked that no coal be produced for shipping purposes abroad that could be used against the miners, but Kennedy and Murray, officials of the United Mine Workers, deny promising any aid. True to the capitalist class, the cowards feared to pledge their support altho the Progressive Miners' Committee had already done so.

In this struggle we saw the international solidarity of the capitalist class. We see the same attempt in all lands to cut the wages and living conditions of the workers. We realize the fight is an international one and must be met and fought by the workers, organized solidly and internationally.

As the militant left wing (minority movement) in Britain have forced the formation of the great alliance of the four largest unions in Britain at this time, so must the militant left wing movement in America bring about an alliance for mutual aid in America between railroaders, miners, and marine transport workers, and also to be allied with the militant workers of Europe for mutual aid internationally.

The progressive miners, railroaders and marine transport workers must demand of their general officers that a general conference of the international officers of all unions in these industries be called at an early date to the end that such an alliance may be formed and that the following program of action be the basis of the alliance:

1. A real fighting alliance must be created between the men who dig the coal and those who haul it. This must not be a weak affiliation such as exists at present, which merely exchanges a few friendly telegrams when either group of workers are on strike, but the miners and railroad men must join together for united action and fight side by side in times of strike. No coal must be moved by railroaders when the miners are on strike, and no coal will be mined to make steam for scab railroaders.

2. As the British alliance at this time has shown the world the importance and necessity of international alliance we must have an agreement with the Marine Transport Workers that no coal will be transported across the seas for scab purposes.

3. An alliance to be negotiated between the American and European alliances for international solidarity of the militant workers.

Our slogan must be:

NOT A POUND OF COAL WILL BE MINED OR TRANSPORTED FOR INTERNTIONAL SCABBING!

Secretary of the Progressive Miners' Committee.

SCAB HERDING JOB SHARK HAS WORKER FIRED

Calif. Law Backed by A. F. of L. Worthless

By L. P. RINDAL
(Worker Correspondent)

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Aug. 5.—Jack Foley, 420 Standford Ave., bought a job (gardener, wage $60.00 a month and room, no board; shark fee, $5.00) at the Swedish-American employment agency, 1st and Broadway Sts. After a talk with the employer, Mrs. Robinson, 701 N. Belmont Ave., Foley was offered $80.00 and room a month if he wanted to stay. The lady notified said agency about this understanding at 3 p. m. the same day. And then the agent demanded $2.00 more in addition to the $5.00 already paid, or a fee of $7.00 altogether.

When the man refused to pay this additional blood money, the agency telephoned Mrs. Robinson to the effect that a man—just as good, if not better—could be found for $60.00 per month. Jack Foley lost the job which was said to be "very easy." But the easiest of all seems to be the way the almighty dollars are rolling into the coffers of scab-herding employment agencies in this city—notorious for its all-around low labor standard.

In Bad With Parasites and Country.

The initials of the International Brotherhood Welfare Association are I. B. W. A. These letters are also said to stand for "In Bad With America." Whether this is true or not, it will (with Wm. S. Murphy as organizer) surely be in bad around the slave market after this. The [illegible] employment sharks are the meanest kind of parasites in a mean society. They must be thrown off the bended backs of the exploited workers. Then and first then, will "Brother" R. E. Lampton (of the carpenters) be able to say—truthfully—that "nobody has to pay for a job." The slaves have to pay, and pay dearly at that, as pointed out in this case.

A. F. of L. Law Scrap of Paper.

The victim of this outrageous system of the plunderbund got no job and received nothing for lost time—except a few smiles, perhaps, from a woman who did not have backbone enough to resist a wage cutting tool of the Better American Federation.

And as far as the so-called free employment law of this earthquake state is concerned, for which the A. F. of L. officials claim credit, it is not worth the scrap of paper on which it is written.

ENGLAND NOT TO BREAK WITH THE SOVIET UNION

Rakovsky Blames Lies for Former Crisis

LONDON, England, Aug. 5.—There is no immediate likelihood of a rupture of British-Soviet diplomatic relations, Christian Rakovsky, Soviet charge d'affairs in London, declared here.

"I have received absolute assurance from the highest quarters that the British government does not contemplate any diplomatic break with Russia and that any such rupture is extremely unlikely," Rakovsky said.

Three things are responsible for the Anglo-Soviet crisis, British, German and czarist propaganda against the Soviet Union, Rakovsky declared.

Other countries are taking advantage of the possibility of importing Soviet grain and other products, while England sits back and sees red, thus being bested in this immense market.

STORY TOLD OF FARRINGTON'S ILLEGAL EXPULSIONS OF UNION PROGRESSIVES IN SUB-DISTRICT

By ALEX REID

(Secretary of the Progressive Miners' Committee.)

ARTICLE VIII.

In presenting the Thompson, Watt and Parry case I can only touch on a few of the more important facts that are necessary to give the miners a sample of what is happening to our union. It has been well said that if the miners knew one-half of what was going on in the miners' union, they would march to Springfield and run Farrington into the river. Freeman Thompson was elected president, John J. Watt was elected secretary treasurer, and Tom Parry was elected vice-president of Sub District four at the December election in accordance with the laws of the miners' union. Into this election the Farrington machine threw all their power to defeat Thompson, Watt and Parry but were unsuccessful.

Twice Repudiated.

The Farrington machine put up candidates against them, one of them by name, John A. Walker, running against Thompson. This Walker had been already repudiated by his local union, being beaten by Thompson by a two to one vote in their local union, when he run for the local nomination for the sub district presidency. This is the same Walker that Farrington illegally appointed to take Thompson's place after Thompson was illegally removed from office by Farrington.

Must Control by Fair or Foul Means.

Farrington expelled Thompson in violation of his own constitutional interpretations, on cases that were appealed to him from down state.

Charge of False Vote.

Similar cases to Thompson's from a constitutional standpoint in the southern part of the state, some time previous had been appealed to Farrington from the decision of Board Member Wright, but the appeals were overruled on the ground that the district organization had no jurisdiction in the case. Farrington refused to have anything to do with it, stating that it was a sub-district matter exclusively and could not properly come before the district board.

Freeman Thompson, Watt and Parry claimed that they and ever miner has the same protection by the constitution, and accordingly claimed that their case be tried in the courts provided by the constitution (the courts of the Sub-district No. 4), but Farrington in spite of the constitution, and in spite of his ruling on the appeal case from the south of the state, deliberately and unconstitutionally took jurisdiction of the case of Thompson.

What Does Constitution Amount to Between Friends.

Freeman Thompson refused to abide by the decision of Farrington to take jurisdiction, claiming that the order was unconstitutional, in violation, not only of the organic law of the miners, but of his own rulings as well. After many deviations, Farrington expelled Thompson and has denied him every constitutional right since, in the sub-district court as provided in our organization.

Watt and Parry were staunch supporters all the way thruout the fight, and Watt, as sub-district treasurer, refused to recognize Walker, the Farrington tool sent over to usurp Thompson's place.

This tool, Walker, in the meantime, had been shown to be a non-union member, by a committee of his local union. In spite of this Farrington expelled Thompson and appointed Walker, but immediately afterwards temporarily removed Walker and permitted Parry, as the properly elected vice-president to take Thompson's place, but shortly afterwards reinstated Walker and ruled Parry out.

Watt demanded that the Farrington crew live up to the constitution. He, Watt, refused to recognize Walker, and Farrington then expelled Watt for insubordination, putting a crawling crumb by the name of Shymansky in his place. The mud was getting thicker by this time. Frank was clearly losing control of his equananimity. He had seen the rising tide of revolt coming against him and in despair he had a puppet in the Divernon local union prefer charges against Parry for calling Frank Farrington names that Frank did not like, "So Frank sent a wire to Parry telling him to appear for trial at 10 a. m. which trial was held two hours before the wire was written."

As it was impossible to appear for trial under the circumstances, Parry paid no attention to the wire for the moment intending to draw it to Farrington's attention later, but was notified by the district the case had gone against him by default, and at the present time Parry is expelled.

LEATHERWORKERS OF RUSSIA SEEK WORLD UNITY

Fight Disruption of Reformist Leaders

(By the International Propaganda Committee of Revolutionary Leather Workers.)

Hardly anyone tries to deny now the vital necessity of trade union unity for the working class. Nevertheless, the consummation of unity among the leather workers meets with serious difficulties.

It will be recalled that the Russian leather workers have repeatedly attempted to establish direct and friendly relations with kindred organizations Similar attempts have been made also with a view to affiliating to the Leather Workers' International. The last (Dresden) Internationl Congress of Leather Workers, which put before the Russian and the other unions adhering to the platform of the consistent class struggle a number of ultimate conditions, did not make it possible for unity to be achieved.

Reformist Union Officials Evade Unity

Similarly, the invitation sent by the Leather Workers' Union of the U. S. S. R. to various kindred unions in Germany, England, France, etc., to attend its sixth congress, proved ineffective.

All these unions declined to accept the invitations, some of them basing their refusal upon the non-affiliation of the Russian union to the Amsterdam International and to the International Federation of Leather Workers.

Others referred to the alleged lack of freedom of movement in the U. S. S. R., to the lack of facilities for a free study of the life and activity of the Russian workers and to other reasons, which do not actually exist and which have been effectively refuted by the delegations of the British trade unions, the Belgian Clothing Workers, the Swedish Post and Telegraph Workers and by other visitors to the U. S. S. R.

Soviet Unions Favor Unity.

On this background of indifference (mildly speaking) to the cause of cooperation and unity of the various sections of the leather working proletariat, favorably stands out the position of the Swiss Union of Leather and Clothing Workers, which at its last congress (April 12-14) unanimously declared:

"During the period of the newly stabilized capitalism in many countries and of the strengthening of reaction, the interests of the clothing and leather workers of the entire world can be effectively and vigorously protected only by a solid united trade union movement in every country."

The congress endorsed the efforts of the unity followers directed towards the admission of the Russian Union of Leather Workers to the International Federation, the continuation of the Czecho-Slovakian union within the ranks of the International Federation and put forward a definite demand for the admission into the International of all the unions desiring to affiliate.

It is to be hoped that the voice of the Swiss comrades will not remain without a response. This hope is strengthened by various factors. The recent Anglo-Russian Trade Union Conference, which, incidentally was attended by our colleague, Poulton, the general secretary of the British Union of Boot and Shoe Operatives, strengthened the ties of friendship existing between the Russian and the British trade unions, thus proving the chances for the establishment of general unity in the near future.

It is our hope that the endeavors of the Swiss union and the change developing in Great Britain will soon enlist also the support of the Swedish, Norwegian, Danish and other organizations of leather workers who will do their bit in the cause of unifying the world movement of the leather industry.

BUILDERS AT WORK

A Comrade Takes Our Word for It.

BECOMES "NEIGHBORLY" IN ITHACA, N. Y.

Various suggestions given by the DAILY WORKER to its readers and Builders have been suggestions sent in to the DAILY WORKER—suggestions born of practical experience in soliciting subscriptions and in general propaganda work.

One little slogan used was: "Your neighbor would enjoy reading this copy of the DAILY WORKER—be neighborly, give it to him!" Some comrades took our word for it with astonishing results.

V. S. Dakessian of Ithaca, N. Y. was one of them. He sends us a subscription and with it writes.

"This is the result of being "neghborly"—one of the best ways of getting new subs!"

This suggestion for effective propaganda work is one that gets results. Many workers, like V. S. Dakessian, have tried it. And now we again mention it—perhaps you are one to those who hasn't found how well you can build the DAILY WORKER and thru it the labor movement—by simply being "neighborly".

Give your copy of the DAILY WORKER to your neighbor after you have read it. There are many good ways to "Build the DAILY WORKER"—and this is one of the good ones.

LABOR FAKER EDITOR OF DANVILLE STAR GREW WEALTHY FLEECING THE WORKERS; PAL MACHINIST OFFICIAL

By WORKER CORRESPONDENT.

DANVILLE, Ill., August 5.— Here is a little history of the life of F. A. Leven, editor of the fake labor sheet of Danville called the Vermillion County Star.

He was born and raised in Danville, Ill., and learned his trade here in the C. & E. I. railroad shop as a machinist. After he became a journeyman he took an active part in the Machinists' Local and got credentials to the Trade Assembly to represent the local. He was considered a progressive and on the strength of this he was elected recording secretary of the council.

Put Up As Dummy.

Then along came the Farmer-Labor Party and he got active there. The machinsit local was dissatisfied with its business agent, the one in office was not getting results. The progressives put Leven up against him. But during the campaign for his election there were indications that Leven was not on the square with the progressives. And wnen he refused to carry out the wishes of his group, namely, to go to outlying points to campaign for his election, it aroused our suspicions. The game became clear to us. He was put up as a dummy against the old business agent, Percy Molyneaux.

Further investigation brought to light that Molyneaux was kept posted on every move made by the progressives, that Leven was his man Friday. The strike in 1922 further showed up this pact. These two birds worked hand in hand in killing this strike. Leven shone forth with a big car and richer by two pieces of property. Molyneaux bought a $17,000 flat on the corner of Main and Buchanan.

Percy Molyneaux was still business agent of the machinists local. The Grand Lodge was sending funds right along during the strike. There was no strike benefits paid to the strikers. If a striker appealed for funds a committee was sent to his home. This committee looked into the coal shed and in the cellar, then it demanded to see the grocery bill and all of the personal business of that striker. Then maybe he would get a ton of coal or $5.00 worth of groceries. It was impossible to get an accounting of organization funds. These strikers who supported their labor organization thruout their membership were treated as paupers are treated by a charity organization when their appeal to their own union for strike benefits to which they were entitled.

Grew Rich by Treachery.

The strike on the C. & E. I. lasted from July, 1922, until Feb. 1, 1925, and during that interval Leven bought himself a newspaper called the Danville Record which he renamed the Vermilion County Star.

And before these two birds let it out that the strike was to be called off an article appeared in the daily paper that Percy Molyneaux and F. A. Leven had purchased the Noone undertaking business on E. Main street and would be open for business.

Later they moved their business up in the high rent district on Vermilion street. Their place of business is directly across from the Federal Building.

Still Fleece Workers.

The undertaking business does not keep Leven and Molyneaux from continuing to fleece the workers. Leven is running his paper and Molyneaux is still business agent of the machinists.

I am sending you this information so the workers may know the truth about these two labor fakers and I hope other workers who have the goods on labor fakers in their trades will send it along to the only real workers' paper in this country, the DAILY WORKER.

Long may it live!

Indicted for Monopoly of Fish.

NEW YORK, Aug. 5.—The eighteen corporations and eleven individuals indicted last week by the grand jury for alleged violation of the Sherman Anti-Trust Law in connection with marketing of fresh water fish, were ordered held in $2,500 bail each for trial.

The fish dealers, whose business totals about $30,000,000 annually, were charged with entering into a conspiracy in restraint of trade by limiting the amount of production.

Austrian Killed in Fascist Fight

VIENNA, Austria, Aug. 5.—A newspaper vender was stabbed to death here in a street fight between Austrian fascists and workers.

MINERS' UNION OFFICIAL MAKES TREASON CLEAR

Approves Company Violation of Contract

STEWARTSVILLE, Ohio, Aug. 5.—Frank Ledvinska, President of Sub district 5, District 6 U. M. W. of A., is the latest traitor to be exposed to the miners of that subdistrict. Ledvinska is one of the reactionary Lewis machine.

The miners at the Lucy mine in Stewartsville, had a proposal put to them by the J. C. Paisley Coal company some time ago, that they give up their bi-weekly pay day and accept a monthly pay day instead. The miners refused to do this, and are idle about a month now as a result of their refusal.

A Violation of Contract

The repudiation of the coal company's proposition by the men was well known to Ledvinska, as he was made aware of it by the miners immediately after they had repudiated it. The district contract provides that the pay day shall be semi-monthly (on the tenth and twenty-fifth of each month, and further provides it cannot be changed during the term set for its existance.

John L. Lewis has said that there shall be no backward step in the union, but all over the bituminous union field of America, similar betrayals are going on right and left, and John L. Lewis is doing nothing to stop it.

The miners, at their conventions in the past few years, have made a determined fight for weekly pay days, but up to the present time have been unsuccessful in their fight. The coal diggers will continue to fight for weekly pay days in spite of the betrayals of Lewis and Ledvinska and will not recognize Ledvinska's action as legal in the union.

The miners remember that a short time ago many mines in Illinois were closed down and the men were beat out of a month's pay by the coal companies. One miner at the local meeting said the same thing may happen here, and showed that if they accepted the monthly payday they may get beat out of two months pay instead of one. Ledvinska has by this action proved himself one of the greatest traitors in this valley, and the miners are proposing to call a special convention to throw him out of the office he has prostituted.

Sub-District President Proves Traitor

Ledvinska had the president of the local union call a meeting of the men working at the J. C. Paisley mine, and in spite of the fact that the men had taken the only constitutional action that could be taken, he (Ledvinska) informed them that he had sanctioned the monthly pay day for the Lucy mine. In taking this action Ledvinska violated his obligation as a member of the U. M. W. of A. that he would not harm a brother or see a brother harmed.

Ledvinska had the brass to inform the men that they could accept the company's proposal, and their union cards would still be good. No doubt our union cards would be good, as far as Ledvinska is concerned if we gave away every condition we ever had. The men are determined that Ledvinska will not get away with his treachery this time, and many of them are agitating for a special convention to throw the traitor out of the union.

Visitors in the Soviet Union

A large delegation of German workers, coming straight from the shops and work benches of Germany's industrial life, is making an extended trip of investigation into conditions of the workers under the Soviet regime thruout Soviet Russia. A similar delegation of French and Belgian workers is ending its visit as the Germans arrive. A Swedish delegation is on the way to Leningrad.

These delegations and their results are of the deepest significance. They are not composed of union officials, but of plain workers from the shops. Moreover, they are not composed of Communist workers exclusively. The chairman of the German delegation is a social-democrat, belonging to a party bitterly opposed to the Communists and the chairman himself freely states that he is going to be very critical of what he sees in Soviet Russia. Further, he wants it fully understood that he is going to tell the exact truth of Soviet conditions when he gets back to Germany.

Whatever may be the findings of this particular worker, news already arrived shows that the delegation as a whole is amazed at the contrast between what the bourgeois press of Germany has said about Soviet conditions and the facts they have found.

In what other country could shop workers go and be met with a tremendous roar of welcome? In what other country would the plain workers from the shops of Germany be met with an address of welcome by the chief military commander of the nation?

Can anyone imagine General Hines or Harbord of the U. S. army general staff, welcoming a group of hard-fisted, incredulous German manual laborers, and repeating to them the invitation given by Frunse, commander of the red army?

> "Let the German comrades discuss this point (freedom of the toilers) with any workers, in any occupation, in any part of the Soviet Republics."

Imagine such an invitation being proferred by the stiff-necked militarists of the U. S. army! And imagine what a torrential avalanche of discontent and protest at capitalist oppression the inquiring workers would be buried under!

The DAILY WORKER points the contrast, and announces that by the opportunity given by the International Press Correspondence, the story of what the German workers find in Soviet Russia, what they see and say from day to day, will be told in these columns.

Rockefeller Generosity

Hardly a month passes that the Rockefeller family does not endow a college or in some other way get rid of part of their great wealth. For these benefactions they are praised by the press and by the colleges and churches that benefit from the gifts. Where do the Rockefellers get this money?

We read in the Colorado Labor Advocate, that the officials of the Colorado Fuel and Iron Company, have announced a 15 per cent wage cut, bringing the scale down to the 1917, level despite the fact that the cost of living has soared since that time. Adding insult to injury, the company excuses this cut by claiming that the workers at one of their mines petitioned for the cut, so that the company could compete with other coal operators. But the mine where this strange petition is alleged to have come has been closed down for some time.

The Colorado Fuel and Iron Company is operated on the "Rockefeller Plan." The employes are supposed to deal with the company thru representatives. No labor union is tolerated. But the company is not able to successfully delude the miners even with this fake scheme. Despite the fact that the so-called representatives of the workers are usually picked company tools, the agents of the hypocritical Rockefeller, are not able to make the miners swallow the excuse of the latest wage slash.

The employes of the other Rockefeller mines were asked to vote on the proposition. They rejected it by an overwhelming majority. Employes of some mines not only voted down the proposed cut but demanded an increase of 20 per cent over the present scale.

This shows up the fraud of Rockefeller's "Industrial Democracy" in Colorado. The Colorado Labor Advocate asks how long are the miners of Colorado going to "stand for the brazen deceit of the so-called Rockefeller Plan . . . It does not seem that they will be always meek. The Rockefeller Plan has taken them nowhere as far as wages is concerned."

The slaves of the Rockefellers bought their experience with gifts coming from the masters. They should know by now that neither Rockefeller or any other capitalist robber will ever concede anything to them except thru force. Their power lies in their collective strength exercised thru unionism. They must ditch company unionism no matter under what fancy name it flaunts its rottenness and organize a real union, based upon the class struggle; a union that will fight for immediate gains and prepare the way for the final struggle to get rid of Rockefeller, not only in Colorado but thruout the United States.

Rockefeller can afford to endow churches and goosestep universities with the money plundered from its overworked, ill-paid wage slaves.

Not So Bad

Warren S. Stone, late president of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, did not leave one million dollars to his widow as was originally reported. This was an outrageous exaggeration, no doubt conceived by his enemies, perhaps William Lee of the trainmen's organization or by John L. Lewis of the mine workers. No, indeed, Stone was too honest a labor leader to leave a million dollars to his widow. The poor fellow had only $150,000 to his name when he passed away.

It is true that not every worker saves that much money in a lifetime, but when one considers the number of banks that Mr. Stone was interested in as grand officer of a powerful union and when one knows that he was financially interested personally in other companies, he might have left more money.

Stone's holdings were entirely in stocks and bonds. We would like to know how much (if any) stock Mr. Stone held in the New York Central Railroad? Or in the scab coal mines that he managed in West Va. Mr. Stone was an honest labor leader! The poor fellow left only $150,000 behind him, when he might have left a million.

Our American Pledge to the Soviet Union

The following resolution was unanimously adopted by the Parity Commission for submission to the National Convention of the Workers (Communist) Party to be held August 21:

WHEN, on November 7, 1917, the Workers', Soldiers' and Peasants' Councils, directed by the Bolshevik Party led by our Comrade Lenin, seized state power from the treacherous hands of the Kerensky regime, a new era in human history was begun, an era of the proletarian revolution. And the fire of proletarian emancipation lighted by the immortal Red Guard has not failed to light the path and warm the faith of the exploited and oppressed of all races and in every land.

Now, in the eighth year of the Soviet Power, the Union of Socialist Soviet Republics, triumphant over every foe, internal and external, stands like a giant citadel of proletarian power from the Baltic to the Pacific, from the Black Sea to the Arctic ocean.

THRU the dark and terrible years since 1917, the workers and peasants of Soviet Russia have starved and battled against every sort of discouragement and assault. Unified and led by their vanguard, the Communist Party of Russia, they themselves have been the heroic vanguard of the world proletarian revolution.

Suffering unexampled sacrifices and starvation, the workers and Peasants of Soviet Russia have proven their right to rule and won fervent admiration and active support of the workers of all the world. Ringed around with the invading armies of the combined imperialist nations, murderously attacked by white guard armies under Yudenich, Denikin, Kolchack, and the rest, betrayed and stabbed in the back by the menshevik assassins of the Second International who were subsidized by the allied robbers nations, and starved by the allied blockade and the drougth and crop failure along the Volga—thru all, the armed workers and peasants have clung persistently to the state power of Proletarian Dictatorship, and today all their Communist theory is justified, all their sacrificial action is rewarded as the Soviet Power stands unified and extended triumphant and strengthened, to the joy of the world proletariat and the chagrin of world imperialism.

The reactionary generals are defeated, the invading armies of the "democratic" allied robbers driven into the seas and across the borders by the pressure of Soviet arms and the threat of revolution by the workers of the western nations, the counter-revolutionary lackeys to the bourgeoisie organized in the infamous Second International which has sold itself to the capitalist, discredited and unmasked, roost like lean vultures around the chancelleries of Paris, London and Washington, the allied blockade is broken, the famine ended, and with the powerful Red Army and the watchful Red Navy guarding the outer fortifications, the workers and peasants of Soviet Russia are successfully hammering out Socialist reconstruction and building stone by stone the structure of a new society.

THIS tremendous success of the economic restoration of the Union of Socialist Soviet Republic recognized in the Report of the British Trade Union Delegation in 1924, has penetrated even the most remote sections of the world's working class, together with the growing fraternal relations between the Soviet Union and the races and nationalities oppressed by world imperialism, is stirring and setting in motion the exploited and suffering masses of the entire world.

The movement for International Trade Union Unity, the shattering of the leadership of the treacherous, class collaborationist social democracy in the unions of both Europe and America, the struggle against the Dawes' plan, the mobilization and march to the left of the British workers, the Indian strikes, the rebellion of colonial peoples in Africa, the savage clashes in the Balkans, the sporadic workers' revolts in Latin America and the intensification of a national revolution against foreign imperialist oppression of the Chinese people, all points not only to the revolutionary stimulus which Soviet Russia affords all oppressed by its very existence, but point as well to the menace to capitalist imperialism which such existence constitutes.

SENSING its historic doom, the sinister forces of world capitalist imperialism again are gathering their armies and navies, again loosing their floods of lying propagandists, again mobilizing their lackeys of the social democracy and trade union reactionaries to attack the Union Socialist Soviet Republic. The so-called "Security Pact" in the west, the arming of the puppet nations on the Soviet Union's western frontiers, the establishment of a British naval base on the Dago Islands in the Baltic, the efforts of the imperialist powers to unite their forces against Soviet Russia in China against the Chinese-Soviet rapprochement, the provocation of British courts trying Soviet citizens on Chinese soil, the attempt to sever trade relations by the Baldwin cabinet, the British naval maneuvers in the Baltic, the military preparations in America, and Coolidge's continued and studied insults to the Soviet Union, all indicate an approaching new war of violence and invasion against the wrokers and peasants of Soviet Russia.

IN this hour the Workers Party of America, knowing its duty and ready to act with vigor and decision, pledges anew to the workers and peasants of Soviet Russia its every effort to defend and advance the world proletarian revolution, to support Soviet Russia and its allies among the world's exploited and oppressed, to extend and intensify the movement for recognition of Soviet Russia by the American capitalist government on the basis of the common interests of the workers and poor farmers of America with the workers and peasants of Soviet Russia. We shall make all efforts to resent a new militant attack upon the U. S. S. R. and to hold aloft the banner of the Proletarian Dictatorship before the eyes of the toiling masses still exploited by the Dictatorship of the American bourgeoisie.

International Labor Defense Endorsed

The following resolution was unanimously adopted by the Parity Commission for submission to the National Convention of the Workers (Communist) Party to be held August 21:

THE recent action of the supreme court in upholding the constitutionality of the New York criminal anarchy law, under which Comrade Gitlow was sentenced to prison, foreshadows another period of prosecution and repression of the working class movement under which the liberty of its best fighters will be placed in jeopardy. This new decision marks another stage in exposing the sham character of the supposed rights of freedom of speech, press and assembly stated in the constitution and practically ratifies the criminal syndicalist laws of 35 states and makes concrete the danger of the enactment of a federal law of the same character.

This presents the greatest danger to all working class organizations, especially to its most advanced and militant sections. This decision, taken together with the fact that in spite of all pretenses of democracy and cessation of war-time persecution at least 128 workers are still confined in state prisons for no other crime than activity in the interests of their class demonstrates the imperative necessity of all class conscious workers banding themselves together on the platform of the common fight for the release of all class war prisoners and for the defense and support of new victims and their families.

THE International Labor Defense which was recently organized at a national conference in Chicago, as a non-partisan organization, for the defense and support of all workers persecuted for their activity in the class struggle in America and for the assistance of the victims of the white terror abroad, has taken upon itself obligations which should be regarded as the common obligations of all sincere and class conscious workers. The International Labor Defense fills a long-felt need in the American labor movement. It brings new courage and hope to the working class fighters who languish in prison and gives the assurance to all workers on the firing line of the class struggle that they will not stand alone and their families will not be neglected in time of persecution and imprisonment. The International Labor Defense has already made substantial progress in its work, has given substantial evidence by the actions it has already taken, that it defends and supports all class war fighters irrespective of their organizational affiliations, and has been widely acclaimed in all sections of the militant labor movement.

International Labor Defense is an absolutely indispensible organization for the militant labor movement and merits the unqualified support of all those who stand on the platform of the class struggle and who recognize the necessity of a common fight against persecution and reaction. The International Labor Defense must be built into a mighty organization embracing scores of thousands of workers and exploited farmers, regardless of their political affiliations.

THE Workers Party endorses the International Labor Defense and pledges full support to its activities in defense and support of persecuted workers in America and all countries of the capitalist world. The convention calls upon every Party member to do his full duty by joining the International Labor Defense as a dues-paying member, by giving moral and material support to the organization in all of its work, and by carrying its message into all labor organizations with which they are connected and to strive in every way to draw them into its ranks.

The Struggle Against Loreism In Our Party

By MAX BEDACHT.

THE Loreist concept of party tasks proceeds on the erroneous theory, that there exists a difference between the task of building the party and that of entering political activities, and executing maneuvers. Again and again we meet the argument that we must first build our party before we can enter this or that action. This attitude is social-democratic.

The task of building the party cannot be separated from the political activities of the party. Our only source of new strength is the working class. We endeavor to set the toiling masses into motion in the direction of a decisive struggle against capitalism. Our party cannot carry on this struggle without the masses; the masses cannot carry on this decisive struggle without the Communists. We build up the party in the same degree as we succeed in identifying it with the struggles of the masses. As long as we are a small party our participation in these struggles will be one with comparatively small means. But just as the athlete gains and improves his abilities in practice so does the party build itself in action. The Communists will win leadership only if they really lead. The workers will learn to follow the Communists in final action if they see them march and fight with them and ahead of them in all preliminary actions.

WHEN Loreism expounds this theory of first building and then acting, it tries to cover up its opposition to action with a plausible formula. This formula is the more dangerous because the special regard these opportunities seem to have for our party carries an appeal to loyal and well-meaning party members. Thus the ideological influence of Loreism in the party tends to paralyze the party's activities to a much larger degree than the organized strength of the Lore group would indicate. The last party discussion, for instance, revealed to what a degree this untenable theory of a dualism of party building and party activities, is accepted even by leading members of our party who otherwise, admit the dangers of the Lore tendencies for our Party. The Comintern took cognizance of this tendency in our party when it wrote into the decision on the American question the following fundamental principle that the Communists must continually influence the workers in a revolutionary sense, and that this task cannot be accomplished by mere agitation and propaganda. Any ideological struggle against Loreism must, therefore, also uproot these tendencies where they have lost their clear identity with Loreism, and especially when they make their appearance as "pure Communist principles." Comrade Lenin called this tendency inverted opportunism.

It is evident that the opportunist tendency of Loreism finds the more bases for crystallization and exposure the more the party Bolshevizes itself, the more the party becomes a party of proletarian leadership and revolutionary action. And it is just as evident that the dangers of this tendency for our party increases with this process.

TOWARD the party Loreism has always maintained an attitude of "superior" criticism. Neither the left wing, nor the party was their movement. From the Olympian heights of their "intellectual superiority," they consider the developments and the doings of our movement and pass judgment "over" it. This judgment, of course, is always against the party's and the Comintern's doings and invariably in favor of their own concept, that of Olympians. But in spite of the "serious shortcomings" of party and Comintren these Olympians condescend to grace it with the honor of their membership. "Altho I am a member of it, I cannot take responsibility upon myself to advise any one else to join" declared Lore in a meeting of German-speaking comrades in New York at the time of the organization of the Communists in an underground party in the face of wholesale persecution of party members by the government. Here we have Loreism again in "Reinkultur." The party is never their party. The party is one thing; and a Loreite is another thing. Tho the two may meet, they never merge. This inability of the two to merge, demonstrated by the attitude of Loreism toward the party, must also be officially recognized by the party. The recognition of this inability to merge must in turn be demonstrated by the party in a relentless attitude toward Loreism.

IN the past the struggle against Loreism was a sporadic one. Since the tendency was not crystallized in a distinct group but manifested itself mainly in what individual party members of that tendency said or did. Comrade Lore himself was again and again the object of criticism and attack for his consistent non-Communist attitude. In the left wing movement at the time of the birth of our party Lore was the center of very justified suspicion and attack. At that time his attitude of superiority led him to a criticism of the left wing which in many points coincided with that of the right wing. In the days of the underground party the state of war of the party against Lore was a permanent one. At the time of the formation of the Workers' Party, Lore's membership in our party became so questionable that he was treated completely as an outsider.

Several times during the existence of the Workers Party we find the party in fight against Lore and Loreism. Even the walls of Sing Sing prison could not prevent Comrade Ruthenberg from taking issue with Lore because of the latter's attitude toward our underground party. Comrades Lovestone and Pepper took issue with Lore in the "Toiler," in the underground "Communist," and in the "Weekly Worker."

The party took issue very decisively against Loreism when it raised its head in a dangerous form in the Jewish Federation, like it does at present in the Finnish Federation. The Central Executive Committee at that time proceeded to save the party from Loreist poison. In spite of a hesitancy on the part of some of the members of the then C. E. C., the majority of that body proceeded firmly with its measures. It put the "reiheit" under immediate control of the C. E. C., and, finally expelled Salutsky, who had developed his non-Communist atitude quickly into an anti-Communist one.

DURING the last two years, with the slow process of Bolshevization, the Lore tendency crystallized slowly as a group. In this crystallization it was aided considerabaly by the fact that outstanding adherents of this tendency were not only permitted to occupy but were even appointed to important party positions.

But whatever the causes of this crystallization might have been, the fact remains unchallenged that Loreism, while in the first period of the existence of our party merely a tendency, has become a distinct group which menaces the Communist integrity of our party and tends to arrest the party's progress toward complete Bolshevization.

WHILE organizational steps, such as are proposed by the parity resolution on Loreism, are absolutely necessary in our fight against Loreism, yet they will not be sufficient. Loreism, the theory of hesitancy and inaction, must be overcome by an antidote of decisiveness and activity. Loreism must be drowned by Bolshevism. This is not merely a phrase; Bolshevization will drown Loreism—first because it will draw all Communist elements of the party away from inaction where idle speculations may make the victims of Loreism, and pulls them into the mechanism of revolutionary political action; and second, it will make existence for the unassimilable non-Communist elements within the party a physical impossibility.

Our Readers' Views

To the DAILY WORKER: I am lying on my back in the Morton Hospital, Taunton, Mass., with a broken leg (femur) and am likely to be here for some time. Am enclosing $1.00 which is all I can raise to have the DAILY WORKER sent me for as long as that will pay for. If any local comrades or sympathizers could visit me here, welcome would be a cold word to describe my sentiments. I can see enough in the bourgeois press to convince me that the Riffs and the Chinese in two widely separated parts of the world are bothering the imperialists somewhat.

But even tho I know the lying bourgeois propaganda for what it is, I hate to have to read it alone without the Communist light rays to illumine it. Quite a tempest in a teapot this Scopes' trial seems to me. Both sides in the controversy seem to be convinced that the questions of science and religion can be fought out on their own feet without any question of their merit or demerit to a particular class. Let them go to it, tho. There is no doubt that the wide publicity given the matter will force open new though cells in the brains of the static ones. Some day before long we well get Marxian-Leninist questions attracting the attention the Darwinian ones now are.

Entering the hospital here, I was asked my religion. I answered: "No religion. I am a Communist. As such we get along very well without gods or other spooks."

There are lots of catholics among nurses and patients here so we have plenty of beads and the poor, hurt children are told "God is punishing you. Be resigned." It makes me grind my teeth at times to keep from opening direct battle with the exponents of such a theory, but I have to lie silent. But I know the day is almost here when the working class in those of their children. The capitalpower will blow all the dark mists and terrors from their minds and ists will beat us in many a battle yet, but for all that we will win the war: the class war.—Fraternally, H. C Fillmore, care of Morton Hospital Taunton, Mass.

P. S. I hope that you can read this lying on my back is not conducive to good writing.

GERMAN WORKERS GO TO MOSCOW

AS WE

By T. J. O'FLAHERTY

TWO sets of alienists who examined Russell T. Scott, condemned slayer, now fighting to dodge the gallows, have reached different conclusions as to his sanity. What must be proved is whether or not he became insane since his trial and conviction for the murder of a drug clerk during a souse party in a drug-store. Those who are paid by the state declare he is sane, while the alienists employed by the defense, find him crazy.

THIS same Scott, by the way, was once the director of a thirty million dollar corporation. Those were the days when the boobery, as H. L. Mencken calls easily gulled people, who think the way to wealth is open to the "common people", had saved some money from the hectic war period when the House of Morgan needed munitions so hastily that cost plus was the rule and not the exception. Even the wage slaves were able to store up a little coin. It was then that fellows like Russell came along and decided to relieve the thrifty workers of their war booty.

MOST of those wild catters have hit the tobaggon by now. That is, the companies are gone and so is the money that was seduced from the small fry. The big fellows have their own legitimate channels for swindling. Scott evolved many schemes to show the "people" how to get rich. Morgan was standing between them and wealth he said: Scott would build a bridge between them and prosperity. This he labelled the "Scott idea". Finally the bubble burst and Scott took to holding up people with a gat. Much the same kind of a sport but more risky.

THE idea of "getting rick quick" has a great fascination for Americans, even for the working class who have not yet realized that only one out of every hundred thousand who tries the game of legalised graft gets anywhere but within speaking distance of the flop house. Successful speculators play a big role in American society. Those who do not succeed are lucky if they don't land in jail. Barney Baruch, a successful gambler, was made chairman of the War Industries Board, by Woodrow Wilson. Barney's only means of making a living is playing with the ticker. He knows the game well and has made millions. He is now financing investigations into war profiteering. Barney made millions on one little leak that occurred during the war.

IN an effort to impress the jury with Russell Scott's high degrees of respectability in the past, his lawyers, who are clever men, tried to introduce testimony to show that the convicted slayer was once the head of a $30,000,000 corporation and planned to build a bridge between the United States and Canada. How could a

BERRY AND COPS FAIL TO STOP PRESS WALKOUT

Cuneo Plant Picketed by Local Pressmen

The pressmen who walked out when the Cuneo printing company tried to reduce the crews on the presses from four to three men, congregated in front of the plant at 22nd and Grove Sts., braving several flivver squads of police, and warned those looking for work to stay away. Meanwhile "Major" George L. Berry sent in members of the Internatoinal Printing Pressmen's and Assistants' Union to scab on members of Local No. 3.

Strikebreaker Berry, president of the International Union, ordered the local pressmen to accept the Cuneo company's terms, thus playing his usual role of aiding the open shop campaign of the printers. The pressmen, however, walked out from this plant and from the Cuneo buildings at Arthington and Spaulding Sts., and refused to take orders from the scabby Berry.

Cuneo Presses Crippled.

Berry is in Chicago now, and was to address a meeting of the pressmen last night at the People's Institute Hall, Van Buren and Levitt Sts.

The presses at both the Cuneo plants were crippled yesterday, altho several men sent in by Berry attempted to scab on the pressmen.

Young Workers League Bulletin.

The Young Workers League Nucleus of workers in the Cuneo plant issued a strike bulletin which was popular with the pressmen who had quit work.

The bulletin is given below:

All Workers Must Support Pressmen In Strike! Must Organize Helpers!

The pressmen in the two Cuneo plants are on strike. The bosses went to remove one pressman from each machine instead of hiring two pressmen and two helpers as in the past.

Those young workers at Cuneo's who are organized into the Cunea nucleus of the Young Workers League call upon all of the workers at Cuneo's (organized and unorganized) to support the pressmen at the present time. The fight which they are carrying on effects the interests of everyone of us whether we are organized or unorganized, helper or apprentice, whether we work in the bindery or in the pressrooms.

Threat of "Open Shop"

The bosses always want to reduce the number of organized workers and to increase the number of unorganized young workers since this brings them closer to the open shop conditions which mean bigger profits for them and lower wages for all of us. The company could never get away with this kind of stuff if the helpers and other assistants were organized. The Young Workers League continually fights for the organization of the unorganized young workers and calls upon the young workers at Cuneo's

Welsh Miners Face Troops As Baldwin Asks Subsidy

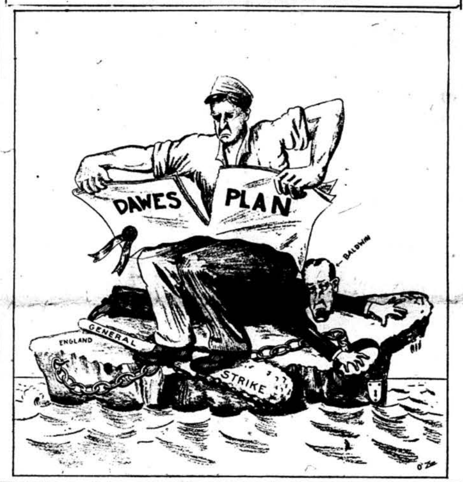
LONDON, Augus 6—The authorities at Ammanford, Wales, where matters have been going from bad to worse in the anthracite district ever since the differences between the operators and the miners became acute, today appealed to the government to send troops to the district to prevent further disturbances. There are 40,000 anthracite miners striking at Ammanford against discharge of active union men.

By a strange coincidence the receipt of this appeal for soldiers to put down the growing disorders among the starving miners in the Welsh coal fields was received just before Prime Minister Baldwin rose in the house of commons to defend his course last week in offering a subsidy to the coal operators as the price of an armistice in the wage struggle between operators and miners.

Probably not since he assumed office the second time has Baldwin faced a house so hostile to one of his proposals. This was apparent as his lengthy review of the coal situation proceeded.

There was no manifestation of enthusiasm among members as the premier told them that it was better to spend money for the subsidy than to suffer the economic loss which a coal strike would entail. He did not mention the political peril to capitalism of a national general strike.

NOT SO GOOD FOR BALDWIN RULE



Anthracite Strike Looms As Conference Breaks Up

(Special to The Daily Worker)

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., August 6.—"We're done now. There is nothing on the boards we can see," said a member of the scale committee of the anthracite Tri-District body of negotiators as the committee of 40 prepared to leave the scene of the conference with the operators after the collapse of negotiations Tuesday evening. The scale committee is, however, leaving the preparations for further action in the hands of a sub-committee of six, which is fully authorized to issue a strike call to 158,000 anthracite miners if the operators fail to sign an agreement by August 31. In the language of the scale committee, it shall "meet any emergency in accord with their judgment."

This sub-committee is also empowered to arrange with the operators for some union men to remain on the job as maintenance men to keep the mines in good order, prevent cave-ins

BIG LABOR DELEGATION NOW IN RUSSIA FOUND SOCIALIST ORGAN SPOKE NOT ONE WORD OF TRUTH

(By International Press Correspondence)

MOSCOW, July 20—(By Mail)—Upon Leaving Leningrad the German workers delegation to the Soviet Union issued two declarations. First, a letter to the Leningrad working class:

"We have spent five days in your town. We are convinced that that which you have achieved must cause a feeling of the deepest respect in each honest worker. We have visited factories of our own choice and everywhere we have found a systematic development and a firm will for the continuation of successful reconstruction.

Industry Is Developing.

"In Leningrad industry is developing successfully in socialist forms. The material situation of the workers is continuously improving.

"After we had seen your institutions as for instance, the workers sanatorium, we understood why the whole capitalist world hates you and, wishes to surround you with a ring of iron.

"We consider it to be our duty to struggle with all means against any attempt to bring the Russian people once more under the yoke of capitalism.

"We promise to point out to our comrades the necessity for preparedness in case of capitalist action against Soviet Russia."

The second statement is dedicated to the situation in the Putilov Works and reads:

Hit German Socialist Organ.

"The letter which was published in the Vorwaerts last Jan. 3, does not contain one true word. We declare emphatically: The workers of Russia have never possessed such far reaching political rights and such wide possibilities of making their political influence felt, as at present.

"No single menshevik, if such persons exist at all, has addressed himself to the German delegation, despite the fact that the delegation consists in a majority of social-democrats.

Spread the Truth.

"Some of us have spoken with a one-time menshevik who told us that in 1925 a meeting of the mensheviks of the Putilov Works decided on their own initiative to break up the menshevik organization. All this shows how necessary the journey of the delegation to the Soviet Union was in order finally to spread the real truth about your country."

Refugees Return to Armenia.

TEUT FASCISTS REVEAL PLOT ON SOVIET LEADERS

Police, Embassy, and Professors in Plot

(Special to The Daily Worker)

MOSCOW, U. S. S. R.—During the trial of the three members of the German fascist body, Organization Consul Dittmar, Wolscht and Kindermann, these spies admitted that the "scientific" expedition on which they embarked into Soviet Russia, was in reality a plot to kill Soviet leaders. The fascists admitted that the German police knew of their anti-Soviet plot, and had asked them to obtain information as to the German Communists who might be taking refuge in the Soviet Union.

Well known German monarchists and intellectuals were brought into the plans, which included the mapping of the Kremlin, finding connections between the Communist International and the German Communist Party, and spying on the Soviet leaders. The activities of student fascists in Germany against the workers were also exposed.

Dittmar made detailed statements upon the students' organization, which is nothing less than a secret nucleus of the fascist movement. The stu-

PREMIER BALDWIN'S settlement of the strike thru subsidizing the coal industry by money to be provided by tax has caused considerable dissatisfaction among other industrial magnates. The latest dodge, is to get the money by taxing every pint of beer consumed by the workers, one penny, shows that Baldwin has listened to the plutes. But he will probably hear from the workers too.

'BUILD THE TRADE UNIONS FOR STRUGGLE AGAINST CAPITALISM,' SAYS COMMUNIST INTERNATIONAL

(By International Press Correspondence.)

MOSCOW, U. S. S. R., July 17—(By Mail.)—On the occasion of the fifth anniversary of the formation of the Red International of Labor Unions, the executive committee of the Communist International published the following telegram:

"On the fifth anniversary of the Red International of Labor Unions, the Communist International sends its warmest greetings to the millions of fighters for the revolutionary trade union movement in the whole world.

"Despite the bloody terror of the bourgeoisie despite the lying and treachery of the leaders of social reformism, the growth of the revolutionary trade union movement in the whole world in the countries of the oppressors as well as in the countries of the awakening oppressed, continuous unceasingly.

"In the countries of the oppressors, where capital attempts to postpone the collapse of its economy by an increased exploitation of labor, and at the expense of the life and health of millions of workers, the working class must use all its forces to consolidate its mass struggle organizations, the trade unions.

Build Up The Trade Unions

"In the Orient the masses must now commense an organized and systematic struggle, above all they must build up and strengthen their trade unions. Everywhere the forces of the working class are concentrated, organised, and mobilized, this is done with the help of the trade unions.

"In the last five years the Red International of labor unions has carried on an heroic and self sacrificing mass struggle against capitalism, against the disruptive policy of its helpers who have the power in the reformist trade unions, against their attempts to split the forces of the proletariat and its trade union organisation.

R. I. L. U. Fight for Unity

The Red International of Labor Unions has not only won new sections of the working class for the idea of Communism and for the organization of the revolutionary movement, but it has also impressed the necessity for the Amalgamation of all the forces of the working class for the struggle against and the overthrow of capitalism into the masses which are still under the influence of the Amsterdam disrupters.

"The R. I. L. U. has carried slogan of trade union unity into the whole world, and it will bring this slogan to realization no matter what difficulties the reformist trade union leaders may put in the way. The Anglo-Russian unity committee and the workers congresses in France are the first real successes of the working class upon the way to unity.

"The workers' delegations to Soviet Russia are messengers from the broad masses of the working class for the consolidation of the fraternal fighting alliance between the proletariat of Soviet Russia and the rest of the world and they prove the power of the urge towards unity and the ever increasing number of masses following it.

Fight Against War

"The working class is already carrying on a struggle under the slogan of unity against the ever approaching danger of a new world-wide bloodbath, and against the preparations for it in the form of an attack upon Soviet Russia' and against the very strong economic attacks of the capitalist class upon the workers.

"'No force in the world,' said Lenin at the initial congress of the R. I. L. U. five years ago, 'can prevent the collapse of capitalism and the victory of the proletariat.'

"Long Live the Red International of Labor Unions!

"Long Live the unity of the working class in the struggle for Communism!

"Long Live the first fortress of the proletariat in this struggle, the union of Socialist Soviet Republics!

"Long Live the social revolution!"

RUSSIAN WORKERS TO BE HOST TO SWEDISH MIXED LABOR GROUP

MOSCOW, U. S. S. R., July 15.—(By Mail). The arrival of a Swedish workers delegation is expected in the next few days in Leningrad, consisting of Communists, social democratic and non-party workers of various branches of industry, amongst them also trade union officials. The journey of this delegation which was arranged by the Folkets Dagblad Politiken and by the Central committee of the Swedish Communist Party, has awakened the greatest interest amongst the Swedish working masses and three times the number of applications were received as it was possible to include in the delegation.

DEBS' MEETING FREEZE-OUT IN SAN FRANCISCO

German Radicals Don't Trouble to Attend

(Special to The Daily Worker)

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., Aug. 5.—Eugene V. Debs spoke to a greatly diminished audience here. About 700 Germans who in other years always attended Deb's meetings were this year enjoying an excursion upon the bay. They with other hundreds and thousands no longer feel enthusiasm for Debs since he has so manifestly abandoned the cause of the workers. Debs made not the slightest reference to Soviet Russia, in fact to no concrete present issue of the workers.

Although over half of the audience was evidently Communist, there was not a hiss or a groan. All sat respectfully and quietly through the ordeal. Whole blocks of the audience disdained to notice the collection boxes or to aid in any way the disgraceful proceedings. No singing of the International, no red flags, only some flowers brought by personal admirers.

It appears doubtful if Debs can now redeem himself if he would. How long can the personality of any man endure in face of a deserted task? It is doubtful if many wish to hear Debs again. This time they came to see if it were true. And it is true.

GERMAN WORKERS VISIT CHILDREN'S COLONY "PUSHKIN"

(Special to The Daily Worker)

MOSCOW, July 20. (By Mail).—Today the German workers delegation visited in the afternoon the children's colony "Pushkin", about 20 miles outside of Moscow. 7,000 children, the orphans of parents killed in the imperialist war, are brought up here. The delegates investigated the conditions and the educational methods in the colony and talked for several hours with the teachers and the children.

WORKERS PARTY HOLDS MEETINGS AMONG WEAVERS

Shelton Silk Shops Are Organizing

(Special to the Daily Worker.)

SHELTON, Conn., Aug. 6. — The Workers Party, Connecticut district, conducted a noon meeting Monday in front of the Shelton Looms (Sidney Blumenthal's) attended by 400 workers. The weaving department of this plant was on strike 2 months ago and won most of their demands. During the strike, the Workers' Party sent speakers to the strike meetings, whose speeches and practical advice were welcomed, Comrades Ida Rothstien and District Organizer William Simons being the speakers.

Since the strike, Simons was invited to attend a meeting of the Weavers' Social Club, where he urged the election of delegates to the Amalgamation Textile Conference in New York City on Sept. 6, 1925. This was done, the most active workers Frager, Dagle and Stockmal being elected. Great enthusiasm was displayed for the conference and its promise to put the Shelton workers in contact with textile workers in other cities.

Police Interference.

Several weeks ago, two New Haven comrades, R. S. Kling and Rose Markle were arrested for violation of a Shelton ordinance forbidding distribution of leaflets. They had distributed at the factory gate a mimeographed letter from the Connecticut TUEL to the Blumenthal workers summing up their strike experience and showing the necessity of getting all the workers of the plant into their organization, which as yet represented only a fourth of the workers employed.

The comrades were fined $2 and costs each, which made a patriotic total of $17.76 each. The Shelton Sentinel, the local paper, printed screaming articles, "exposing" the Communists for their agitation. Mr. Gerrity, secretary of the Manufacturers Association of the Lower Naugatuck Valley, paid the Shelton and Derby Board of Trade a special visit, denouncing the leaflet as tending to cause another strike, and pointed out that at the legislative hearings in Hartford in February and March, both Rothstien and Simons has declared themselves communists.

The Right to Street Speaking.

Upon inquiry, it was learned that there was no city ordinance regarding street speaking. This was admitted by the city clerk, the police chief and the mayor, each one passing the buck to the other. But the police chief took it upon himself to say that he would select the corner for us to speak from.

The Workers Party decided to ignore the chief, and Monday's meeting was the result, a meeting which met with the approval of the workers. Last time, when the two comrades distributed a leaflet, it took the company little time to summon the police and have the comrades arrested. What kept the police from interfering this time is not known. It is hoped that they realize that they have no constitutional right to interfere. But whatever their move, the Workers Party is proceeding with further meetings. A larger crowd is expected.

Believing that the ordinance against distribution is unconstitutional, a leaflet advertising the meeting was distributed at noon, just before the meeting, but no arrests were made.

The determination of the Workers Party, Connecticut district, to conduct educational meetings despite police threats has aroused the deep sympathy of the Shelton Loom wage slaves.

Dethroned Sultan of Turkey Goes on Trial for Murder

LONDON, Aug. 6.—The dethroned sultan of Turkey today was placed on trial in Angora, according to news dispatches from Constantinople. The former Sultan is charged with assassination of his personal physician, Rechad Pasha. It must be assumed that the dethroned Sultan of Turkey is to be placed on trial in Absentia. He lost his throne with the rise of power of Mustapha Kemal Pasha and the formation of the Angora republic and has since been an exile.

AMALGAMATED'S G. E. B. MEETS ON NON-UNION DRIVE

Numerous Strikes to Be Considered Here

The strike of the 800 employes of the International Tailoring company and the J. L. Taylor company will be one of the important matters discussed by the general executive board of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers' Union, which holds its annual meeting in Chicago beginning Monday. The board members will arrive today.

Effective picketing is being carried on by the strikers as the walkout nears the close of its sixth week. The employers are showing signs of weakening, and will soon be in a desperate situation, as the busiest season of the year begins in four weeks.

International Demoralized.

The fall rush begins about September 5 and continues thru December. The International is delivering no orders, and has lost many customers due to the strike. The pre-Christmas rush will find the company demoralized, and the strikers standing as solid as ever in their determination to maintain union conditions.

The general executive board is meeting at a time when the garment bosses thruout the country have made a drive to institute the "open shop" in their industry. The strikers to date have scored several important victories.

In New York, where the Amalgamated members are conducting an organization drive, the large firm of Rose Brothers has come to terms with the union, which has conducted a strike in the plant since July 14. Other settlements recently made in New York are with the Marks and Slaiman Co., Rabinowitz company and numerous smaller concerns, some of which had never before been unionized. The 500 employes of the International in New York have effectively stopped production despite the issuance of an injunction.

In St. Louis, the strike of the 800 employes of the Curlee Clothing company is in its tenth week. Numerous arrests have been made in this strike.

Must Fight "Open Shop" Drive.

The Rochester strike against the Silverman company has been won. Strikes are taking place in Philadelphia, where the employers of the Faufman company and Rosenberg company and others walked out several weeks ago.

The Amalgamated board members are expected to adopt strenuous measures to fight the "open shop" drive of the garment bosses.

Berry and the Cops Fail to Stop Cuneo Press Walkout

to demand support from the union men in the campaign for the organization of these young workers at the same time that we support them in their present strike.

100 per cent organization is the kind that counts! What about Cuneo's?

Big shops like W. F. Hall now operating completely as an open shop and Donnelly's which is practically an open shop did not change into open shops over night. They did so by hiring more and more young workers, firing union workers and continuing to ignore the union more and more. The Cuneo bosses would like to do the same and have the cheaper labor conditions that come with an open shop, and unless the unions put up a strong fight for 100 per cent organization at Cuneo's the open shop employers will be able to add another big open shop to their list.

Young workers at Cuneo's! Support the pressmen in their strike!

Demand right to join union (pressman's, binders' and Typographical)!

Wherever you work! Whatever you do! You want to be organized!

Mother Bloor Will Speak at Pittsburgh Mid-Summer Picnic

PITTSBURGH, Pa., Aug. 6.—Final arrangements have all been made for the Mid Summer District 5 Picnic at George Zaar's farm, 10 mile house, middle road. Mother Bloor is expected here to give one of her rousing speeches for the DAILY WORKER. Many additional surprises are in store for those attending the picnic.

Enough money is expected from the proceeds of the picnic to allow a liberal donation to the Negro Labor Congress and also to the International Labor Defense. Everybody should make sure to be present at this picnic and enjoy the whole day.

Brick Makers Strike.

MIDDLETON, Conn., August 6. —(FP)—The United Brick and Clay Workers' Union has shut down the Tuttle Brick Co. plants, largest brick plants in Connecticut, in a strike for union recognition. The local was organized this summer.

Farmers Are Told Fairy Tales in Effort to Quiet Their Growing Discontent

By J. LOUIS ENGDAHL.

TODAY, the farmers are fed with new promises to alleviate their woes by none other than Henry A. Wallace, editor of "Wallace's Farmer," of Iowa, and son of Coolidge's late secretary of agriculture.

Editor Wallace, who inherits some influence among the Iowa farmers, gravely tells the parasite savants gathered about the conference table at the Institute of Politics, at Williamstown, Mass., that the farmers will grow prosperous thru the increase in population. Here are his brave words:

> "By 1935 there will be 15,000,000 more mouths to feed and the farmers of the country will no longer suffer."

• • • •

But then he immediately allows a black cloud to float over his beautiful picture as follows:

> "By 1960 affairs will have reached such a pass that the nations of the world in their scramble for food and markets will find another universal blood letting the only solution for the problem."

Which, according to the theory of this editor-farmer, even admitting that it is in the least plausible, would bring the agricultural depression back again, since the mouths that needed to be fed, had had their lips sealed in death upon the battlefield, or as the consequence of war.

• • • •

Editor Wallace's speech indicates, however, that he was merely taking an amateur's fling at the Malthusian theory of over-population. Discussion of this theory in an eastern center of "kapitalist kultur" is not of vital interest to working farmers, east or west. They want to know how this year's crop is to be harvested, how this year's rent is to be paid, where the money is to come from to meet partial payments on machinery already broken down, where the interest money is coming from on mortgages and debts.

They know that with the increased use of farm machinery and thru more intensive cultivation the soil will produce crops in 1935 that will take care of much more than a 15,000,000 increase in the population.

They know at the same time, that it is a wildman's dream that puts off the next war 35 years until 1960, when both Spain and France even today have a big war on their hands in Africa, when the French are slaughtering the natives of Syria, and the British are equally active in Trans-Jordania, with greater troubles brewing in India and China, and the storm clouds lowering everywhere in the Pacific.

• • • •

While these wars result in temporary disorganization, as the world war, with the resulting civil wars and wars of intervention, laid waste Russian agriculture, yet reconstruction takes place rapidly, especially when the peoples are liberated from the capitalist rule of the landlords, bankers and other profiteers. The crops of the Soviet Union are greater this year than ever. Modern machinery is making over Russian agriculture on such a large scale that the increasing population offers no problem to the Soviet Republics.

• • • •

Coolidge thinks that agrarian relief will come thru an extensive program of rail consolidation. This will cheapen transportation, but without profit to the great substructure of the agrarian population, the two and a half million of agricultural workers, the two million tenant farmers and the million and a half mortgaged farmers. They will be exploited just as brutally as ever. The savings made will go into the pockets of the great profiteers, who not only run the government but own it.

Coolidge's conception of "economical transportation" is bigger dividends for the holders of railroad stocks. This is clearly shown when he demands that freight rates be not lowered by "weak" carriers, meaning that the loot of the profit takers must be assured. No relief for the plundered and penniless agrarian masses.

• • • •

The New York Times confesses that visitors to Swampscott, Mass., these days are telling "Silent Cal", that "the western farmers are not only absolutely united in his support but perfectly delighted with the great prosperity that pervades agriculture everywhere".

To which the Times adds that, "It is an old complaint of presidents that they have no one to tell them the truth."

Coolidge doesn't get the truth. He just gets his orders, and he obeys them. His orders carry not relief for the farming masses, just as they carry nothing but a more bitter life for the industrial workers.

Relief for agricultural workers comes only thru the overthrow of the profit system; that the Coolidge government is organized to defend. The farmers are learning this lesson in spite of the fairy tales told them by such as Editor Wallace, President Coolidge and all their kind.

Anthracite Strike Looms Bigger as Conference Breaks Up and man the pumps.

Concerning the very inadequate wage raise asked, of ten per cent on tonnage rates, Lewis said:

Unions' Business to Protect Miners.

"There is nothing unreasonable in such demands. And they must be granted."

Lewis said it was the business of the United Mine Workers of America "to protect the interests of the coal miners of this country and the union proposes to live up to this duty in this instance."

But He Worries About the "Public."

In conclusion, Lewis said:

"We happen to know that the rich anthracite coal companies can easily grant these demands out of their enormous profits without increasing the cost of coal to the consumer one single penny. We do not agree with the theory that the anthracite industry is here solely to make great profits for the coal companies. We hold that the miner and the public have rights that must be recognized and we intend that they shall be recognized."

ARMY TROOPS TO PROTECT KLAN PARADERS IN D. C.

Entire Police Force to Guard Kluxers

WASHINGTON, Aug. 6.—Regular army troops, as well as the entire police force of Washington, will be held in readiness to cope with any disorders that may arise in connection with the big ku klux klan parade down Pennsylvania avenue, scheduled for Saturday, it was learned this afternoon.

Troopers of the third cavalry at Fort Meyer will be "ready" to respond to any emergency call.

While officials do not "expect" trouble, the reported size of the parade has impressed them with the possibilities of the event.

Sheriff Jails Jailor

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Aug. 6. — Sheriff Schuler and 15 of his deputies today seized the city jail and locked up the jailor and twenty of his guards. Schuler took this action after he concluded that the jail came within the jurisdiction of his office. Jailor Leffmann refused to turn over the keys.

PROPOSE NEW AGREEMENT IN DIST. 26, U. M. W.

But New One Is Worse Than the Old One

(BULLETIN.)

HALIFAX, N. S., Aug. 6.—The miners of Nova Scotia, employed by the British Empire Steel Corporation agreed by a majority of 1,133 in a plebiscite today to return to work under the proposals of the provincial government. There were 6,693 votes polled.

(Special to The Daily Worker)

HALIFAX, Nova Scotia, Aug. 6.—The dispute between the miners of Nova Scotia District 26, U. M. W. of A. and the British Empire Steel Corporation, which began March 6th has not yet been settled. A new section of the capitalist class (Torries) were elected to office in Nova Scotia.

Since the dispute began they promised to settle the strike but have only succeeded in getting the District Officers to place before the miners on about Aug. 5th a worse agreement than the agreement of 1924.

It seems certain that the miners will vote against this proposition.

Bye elections are being held in a day or two for cabinet positions in the government and it is necessary for the safety of the government candidates that they keep up some appearance of anxiety to have this matter settled.

Strike Is Growing at Shanghai, China; Big Boycott Is On

are re-opened in September—will indicate how the strike movement is sticking.

Strike Against Bourgeois Treason.

There are, moreover, indications that the workers are becoming resentful of some Chinese capitalists who are trying to stop the strike because it hurts their business altho their own workers are not on strike. This is the cause of an extension of the strike yesterday to 6,000 silk mill workers, who walked out because their bosses are trying to get the general strike broken up.

The boycott, officially slated to begin on August 1, is beginning to have a serious effect on British and Japanese trade in many of the cities. Some students are not stopping with the British and Japanese. As the British-American Tobacco company has great stores of cigaretes in China, students have been busy burning them when found in stores. They go up in smoke but by way of bonfires.

Destroy Even Memory of Invaders.

In many cities where British and Japanese have been forced to leave, the Chinese are demonstrating their feelings by completely tearing down the houses these enemies occupied, to exterminate the memory of their residence there.

German Workers Pledge Selves to Fight Yoke of Capitalism

"WE consider it to be our duty to struggle with all means against any attempt to bring the Russian people once again under the yoke of capitalism."—From the Official Declaration of German Workers' Delegation upon leaving Leningrad for Moscow.

GERMAN SOCIALIST ORGAN FAILED IN EFFORT TO HALT WORKERS DELEGATION GOING TO RUSSIA

MOSCOW, July 19.—(By Mail.)—The whole Moscow press prints greetings in the German language to the German workers' delegation which will arrive tomorrow. An article in the Izvestia reads:

"Greetings to our German comrades!

"The delegates of the German workers who have come to the Soviet Union to study on the spot the work of socialist reconstruction, arrive tomorrow in the capital of the Soviet Union, in red Moscow.

"Moscow, this one word embraces the whole hatred of the international bourgeoisie and those leaders of the social-democracy who have brought the proletariat under the regime of Hindenburg.

"Moscow, they shout when the working class raises its head anywhere to protest against the exploitation and the machinations of its masters.

"Moscow, they shout when the suppressed peoples no longer wish to remain slaves.

"Moscow! that is for them the symbol of everything which directs itself against their rule, the rule of the exploiters and oppressors of the toilers, and therefore there is nothing which they hate and caluminate so much as Moscow.

See Moscow for Themselves.

"The representatives of our German comrades will see Moscow for themselves.

"Their previous impressions have certainly showed them how much of the campaign of lies which is presented to the workers in Germany as a picture of conditions in Soviet Russia, is true.

"They will already have seen what the purpose of the warnings and threats of the Vorwaerts was.

"The Vorwaerts hoped in the last hour to prevent their departure. The Russian workers have nothing to conceal from their brother workers. It is not necessary. They greet the representatives of the German working class in their middle.

"They hope that the journey will assist in spreading the truth about the Soviet state, about the first workers' state in the world, to the last workers' home in the other countries. The Russian workers are proud that they have been successfully surrounded by a ring of enemies, in laying the first stone of a new world order, that they have been successful in building up a new life without parasites and exploiters. They welcome their German comrades and fling wide the doors.

They call to their German brothers, tell our comrades abroad the whole truth that you have seen here, for this truth will carry the message and hope of a better future into those countries where capitalism is still dominant. The truth will be a weapon for the oppressed, the means for awakening new strength in millions of toilers. Your journey is a guarantee that the united front of proletarian solidarity in the struggle for the common cause of all toilers is fastening an ever stronger band from country to country."

Austrian Delegation Stopped.

The Pravda prints, also in the German language, the following article:

"Tomorrow we shall greet a German workers' delegation in Moscow. And the Swedish workers will follow the Germans. The Austrian delegation was prevented in its journey here by the capitalist government.

"Despite everything, sooner or later this shameful blockade, this refusal of elementary rights to the workers, will be broken.

"And a stream of fresh proletarian masses will pour into the Soviet Union. Already many foreign comrades have visited us.

"The delegation which is at present in our midst, represents the beginning of a new epoch in the development of our international relations, for these connections are not exhausted in the establishment of official connections with the capitalist states, with their diplomacy and their representatives.

"Beyond this there exists the international connection thru international solidarity, thru the bonds of fraternal and class interests. This connection helped us continually to hold out in the most terrible and strained fights which did not cease for one moment. Now, however, we are commencing a new phase of our life. It is no longer a question of immediately parrying the blows of our enemies with a sword reeking with our blood. It is also no longer necessary to collect coppers to assist the ranks of four heroic fighters decimated by hunger and disease. This gloomy time is behind us.

"We have become the masters of our sufferings, we have won a free road. Today the hammer blows of the proletariat sound joyfully in the smithy of our economic reconstruction. Today those workers who doubt our successes come to us from capitalist countries and ever more will come. They want to see the truth with their own eyes. They want to be certain about our economic situation. We must show them everything. We need have no shame for our homeless children, for our need and for our wounds. It is not possible for us to say that everything is better. That would be self-deception.

"Nevretheless our new friends must realize that we have terrible years behind us, that we have held out in a tremendous struggle and that from the moment in which we flung off the last army of the bloody intervention and of the white bandits, we have been continually growing. And truly, in this connection there are laready sufficient things to which we could point and about which we could boast, which we could show to the friendly eyes of the proletarians who come to us, and thru which we could earn the handshake of comrades whose proletarian pride and proletarian class honor still remain. If we had been left in peace by our enemies, if we had had the opportunity of working for years uninterruptedly, then our working class, our toiling masses, would certainly have produced wonders.

"Once again the mailed fist of capitalism has been clenched, once again the shouts of the bandits are sounding, once again it seems that an iron ring may close around our proletarian country. The question of the organization of proletarian defense against the activities of the millionaries who control the earth, once again presents itself to the working class.

"Who knows what will happen? Have not English machine guns already shot down Chinese workers who had joined the struggle for a beter existence and for freedom? Does not the Gallic cock already crow hoarsely from the coast of Africa? Does not the world tremble today from the tremendous tension of imperialist contradictions which threaten to cause a new world war, a more powerful and more destructive war than the first imperialist war?

"When the workers of Europe go thru our factories and shops, thru our recreation homes, our Soviet institutions, and children's homes, they should be conscious that all they see belongs to us and our common cause and that it should be defended and protected, for the world knows no stronger power than our Soviet Union!"

SWEDISH WORKERS VISIT THE WORKSHOPS IN RED LENINGRAD

MOSCOW, July 20. (By Mail.)—The Swedish workers delegation has visited several Leningrad shops. They divided themselves into groups according to their occupations in order to study the particular industry branches of interest to them in Leningrad. Metal works, paper works, printing works, railway works, etc., were visited by the delegation, the women members of the delegation visited children's homes and schools.

The delegation greeted the Leningrad workers. On Sunday a session of the German and Swedish workers delegation is to take place. On the 21st of July the Swedish delegation is expected in Moscow.

STATEMENT OF THE MINORITY IN THE SOUTH SLAVIC FEDERATION ON THE SITUATION IN THE FEDERATION AND IN THE PARTY

IN the South Slavic Federation of the Workers Party a sharp factional struggle has been going on for some time. This struggle originated in the fight against Cvetkov and Cvetkovism, and in the differences in the method of consolidating and upbuilding the federation on firm Communist foundations. Two definite groups were formed in this fight—a minority and majority.

The minority, led by Comrades Fisher, Loyen and Mikalachky, always stood for an aggressive fight against Cvetkov as long as he was in the party, and for a speedy liquidation of the remnants of his ideology in our movement after he left the party. Had it not been for the persistent and energetic fight against Cvetkov, led by this group, today our federation would be shattered and politically reduced to a zero, while Cvetkov would triumphantly rule over it, in the same manner that Lore rules, the German federation.

The minority group also conducted a correct Bolshevik line of policy in the fight against the whole Jugoslav reaction in the United States, as well as for the healthy growth and Communist consolidation of our movement.

The present majority of the bureau has always vasciliated in the fight against Cvetkov; its policies were indicisive and confused. At the most desperate moments in the fight against Cvetkov, when the very life of the federation was at stake, when firmness and decisiveness were required, the majority of the bureau wavered and gave in, while the whole burden of the fight was thrown on the shoulders of the minority, without even having the backing of the majority in this fight. The majority created a philosophy that our federation can be stabilized only if we take an attitude of conciliation toward Cvetkov, what is more, we must acquisce to their demands, while against the left, that drove Cvetkov out of the party, a merciless fight for extermination must be carried on.

This policy they began to put into effect by uniting their forces with the adherents of Cvetkov in the fight against the Bolshevik left. In the fight against the minority, the majority catered to the sentiment of Cvetkovism in our federation, which they mobilized, pressed into service, and in this manner perpetuated it. Otherwise, Cvetkovism as an ideology and political tendency in our federation would have been liquidated a long time ago.

The majority has also shown political weaknesses in other fields; especially in the conflict between our movement and the bureaucracy of the National Croatian Society, Novi Svijet, etc. It did not put this fight on a broad political basis, with a view of separating the masses politically from their fraudulent leaders, which has always been the policy of the minority, but reduced that fight to petty squabbles, which could in no way consolidate our movement and draw the masses closer to it.

The more aggressive the minority became in the fight against the enemies outside (Cvetkov, the bureaucracy of the N. C. S., etc.), the more energetically it demanded the liquidation of the remnants of the Cvetkov ideology in our ranks, and the more it demanded a determined Bolshevist policy in our party organizations for the purpose of creating a Communist influence in them, the more ruthless did the majority become in its unheard of policy of brutal suppression and systematic extermination of the minority. Not only was the minority excluded from the most important work in the federation, but they were rapidly removed from the positions they previously held and were replaced by incompetent comrades. At the same time the majority started a campaign thruout the federation to discredit and kill politically the most outstanding comrades of the minority. They did this by showing the work of the minority in a false light, by sending circulars to the branches denouncing the comrades from the minority; they were shown to the membership as splitters, dsirupters and saboteurs. In this respect the majority caused great harm to the federation and the party as a whole.

When the majority of the bureau overstepped all bounds in its campaign of brutal suppression of the minority, the latter was obliged to appeal the matter to the Central Executive Committee of the party The C. E. C. made several atempts to create unity, or at least soften down the acuteness of the struggle in the federation. The majority of the bureau answered to this by a more fierce campaign of suppression. The C. E. C. finally intervened with a decision to the effect that the minority must be given every opportunity to work in the federation. This decision of the Central Executive Committee of the party was sabotaged by the majority of the bureau for three weeks, and they finally decided not to carry out the decision of the C. E. C., but to evade it by asking for new investigations. The C. E. C. finally compelled the majority of the bureau to respect its decisions and to put them into effect. This was done in the form of a resolution, which was published in the DAILY WORKER and in Radnik, censuring at the same time the bureau for spurning the authority of the C. E. C.

Our Relation to the Party Fractions.

Inasmuch as the Central Executive Committee of the party made attempts to create unity and order in the South Slavic Federatoin, the minority in the party (Lovestone-Ruthenberg faction) gave direct aid and support to the majority of the bureau in violating the discipline of the party and sabotaging the decisions of the C. E. C. and suppressing the minority. The majority of the bureau would not have dared to sabotage the decision of the highest body in our party were they not backed and defended in this by the minority of the party. Such an attitude of comrades who occupy high positions of leadership in the party cannot be approved, but must be emphatically condemned. Instead of urging the majority of the bureau to respect the authority of the Central Executive Committee, they encouraged it in abusing it. Such an attitude is impermissable in a Communist Party. In all controversial questions between the minority and majority in the bureau, the minority in the party sided with the Novak-Zinich majority, thereby sanctioning the unjustified suppression of the minority by the majority, in spite of the fact that the minority in the federation has shown itself in the work of the party to be a sound Communist group. To support the majority of the bureau in its fight against the minority means strengthening the Cvetkov ideology in our federation, for the most outstanding figures and staunchest supporters of the Novak-Zinich faction even today in their work show clear marks of Cvetkovism, as for instance Vrkljan, who participated in the Cvetkov caucus during the 15th convention of the National Croatian Society, and then Mokrovich and Blazekovich, who voted for a scab printing shop in the executive committee of the N. C. S. Cvetkovism is a species of Loreism or opportunism, and both groups in the party should help the minority in the federation to combat this non-Communist tendency; this is in line with the decision of the C. I. on Loreism, which demands that both groups in the party unite in the struggle against Loreism.

The above mentioned, coupled with the decision of the Enlarged Executive Committee of the C. I. on the American question, especially on the Labor Party policy, which is "Not the rejection of the struggle for the Labor Party, but an adjustment and further development of our tactics in this struggle are called for, by the present situation in America.....The conditions for the successful formation are not ripe as long as there is not a firm mass basis of trade union support. The majority of the Central Committee was quite right in emphasizing this point. If the Workers Party were merely to be combined with the organizations sympathizing with it, no Labor Party could be formed from this combination" prompted many comrades from the federation minority, who previously supported the minority in the party, to change their position in favor of the majority. That they acted quite right in this can be seen from the fact that the basic policy of the party majority in regards to the Labor Party was that the Labor Party can only be formed when it has a solid basis of trade union support. In this respect we consider the decision of the International closer to the tactics of the majority on the Labor Party then of the minority. By this we do not mean in the least to gloss over the mistake of the majority when it temporarily dropped the slogan for a labor party last fall. Today it has corrected its error and is loyally carrying out the decision of the C. I. Today it is firmly engaged in the fight against Loreism in all its manifestations, especially in the trade unions, where Loreism is most harmful to our movement. The minority in the party erred in putting the question of the Labor Party on a too narrow basis, and even today trys to minimize its mistake by continuously reverting back to its erroneous policy which was not approved by the C. I.

The accusation of the party minority that the comrades who went over to the majority abandoned their political convictions, for which they voted last fall when they supported the minority thesis, has no validity as an argument, for today the political platform of the minority is not in effect in the party, both thesis, minority and majority, are liquidated, and the decision of the Communist International is in effect.

The minority in the South Slavic federation has no special factional interest of its own, but is a group for carrying on Communist work in the federation and for bringing the federation closer to the life of the party. It alligns itself with the party majority in emphasizing the necessity of the party entrenching itself in the strategic positions among the workers—in the shops, in the unions and wherever the workers live and work—so as to be able to successfully carry out all campaigns that the party undertakes.

Re-organization of the Party.

We greet with great enthusiasm the decision of the C. I. on re-organizing the party on the basis of shop nuclei and international branches. This re-organization is especially necessary to do away with the federation system of the party and the national isolation of the language groups. Welding all national groups into a homogeneous and centralized party is an absolute necessity for the healthy growth of our party. For that purpose, shop nuclei should be organized wherever possible, and an ideological campaign started for international branches should be commenced as soon as the ground is prepared for it.

All attempts to create or maintain federation autonomies, discentralization and to undermine the authority of the Central Executive Committee of the party, or to sabotage its decisions, as the majority of the South Slavic Bureau did, should be most emphatically condemned.

The Unity of the Party.

We maintain the view of the C. I. that for the successful execution of its role in the class struggle, the party must be a monolithic unit, hewen of one piece, which has no room for various factions and tendencies in its ranks, but must be united with but only one view, and that is the view of Bolshevism. Only on the firm foundations of the revolutionary teachings of Marx and Lenin, on the foundations of the theory and practice of Bolshevism, can the party successfully play its role in the class struggle.

We consider both groups in the party—majority and minority—sound Communist groups, while the Lore group is an opportunistic group, which must be combated. Loreism can be successfully liquidated only if both groups in the party united in the struggle for an ideological and organizational liquidation of Loreism.

Long live the unity of the party!

Long live the Communist International.

German Fascists Reveal Plot Against Soviet Leaders

dents' organization has an internal service with its quarters in Leipsig and a foreign service with its quarters in Berlin-Charlottenberg, Berliner Strasse, 13.

The task of the internal service is to carry on fascist agitation amongst the students, to issue the necessary pamphlets, films, etc., and to provide stipends for needy students, this latter, however, only applies to students who are "politically reliable" and never to students who are merely needy.

The economic departments of the universities are most intimately connected with the organiaztion consul. In 1923, the secret military training of the students through the reichswehr by the agency of the economic service took place. There is just as close a connection between the technische nothilfe (fascist strikebreaking organization) and the O. C., and the responsible leaders of the former are always present at the discussions of the latter organization.

Qualifies as Fascist.

Replying to the question of his defending counsel who asked him how it came about that he, not being of pure German blood, was accepted in the O. C., Dittmar pointed out that his genealogical table showed the purest of German blood and that further he was related to Freiherr Freitag von Loringhoven, which was amply sufficient.

Wolscht declares that he knows nothing about the secret organization and that he has not interested himself in it; as a German student he is convinced that it is purely a "welfare" institution. In Berlin Paul Eink was in charge of the connections between the economic department with the O. C. Replying to the prosecutor, Dittmar admits that his first meeting with Ehrhardt took place in the students' home, Friedrich Strasse, 107, in the presence of Tannenbaum and Rose.

Wolscht says that he knows nothing about that and that he would certainly have noticed the presence of Ehrhardt. As the prosecutor asked if the presence of Ehrhardt would have seemed compromising, Wolscht declared that each strange visitor would immediately have been noticed by the occupants of the students' home.

Send Spies into Russia.

Kindermann admits that he is a close friend of the member of the O. C., Johnson, who worked with Dittmar in Bremerhafen. Wolscht also.

Dittmar says that he made the acquaintance of Kindermann in the beginning of 1924 under the instructions of the O. C., and that he later learned that ex-Chancellor (prime minister) Michaelis was the chairman of the Berlin O. C. The Berlin organizaton received instructions from the Munich high command to send a terrorist group to Russia.

Michaelis is at the same time honorary chairman of the students' organization. Dittmar learned in the sessions of the Berlin district group of the O. C. that the tasks of the terrorist groups were part of the general aims. Upon the receipt of the instructions of the high command the Berlin district group was to send Kindermann and Wolscht to Russia.

Forge Communist Credentials.

To mask the expedition, Kindermann was to establish relations with Russian and German scientific circles and to spread reports publicly of his coming scientific expedition to Russia. Further, someone was to be sought for having connections with the Soviet power or who at least had a command of the Russian language. The Russian trade delegation and the Russian embassy in Berlin were to be informed of the expedition and requested to provide recommendations to Lunacharsky, Krupskaya, etc.

Arrangements were further made to provide false party credentials of the Communist Party of Germany. All communications for the expedition in Moscow from Germany were to go thru a confidential agent in the German embassy in Moscow.

High German Official a Spy.

Dittmar declares that he learned in Moscow that this work of maintaining connections was carried out by Legationsrat (high official in German embassy) Hilger.

In case of arrest an arranged telegram was to be sent to Berlin with the text: "How is Herr Gruenbaum?" Should the undertaking prove successful, the return journey was planned over China and America. In case their plans should be upset, the Junker company was to provide an aeroplane for a flight to Persia or to the west.

In the beginning Kindermann and Wolscht had no confidence in Dittmar and demanded complete particulars about him, whereupon Dittmar directed them to the O. C. in Munich. Kindermann however was of the opinion that it would be easier to go thru the institution at their disposal. On the next day Dittmar surprised in his room in the student home a stranger who was searching thru his pocketbook.

Meet in Professor's Home

After much questioning this latter laughingly presented Dittmar with a green credentials card of the Berlin police presidium and promised to bring a "search warrant." However he did not return. After this search by which the papers establishing Dittmars' membership of the O. C. could be established, he received at the end of August an invitation to a new session with Kindermann and Wolscht in the home of Professor Thysson, Kant Strasse, which was occupied by Kindermann in the absence of its owner.

Here Dittmar learnt from Kindermann that economic espionage in the interests of the German heavy industrialists in Russia was also one of the aims of the expedition. In his journey to South Germany Kindermann had established connections with the Baden Aniline Factory, with Gruetzner Lanz and with the Michael concern.

To preserve the scientific appearance of the expedition, Kindermann established relations with Professor Nansen, Oscar Spengler and Professor Einstein. In Darmstadt the well known Professor Oesterreicher whose wife is a Russian counter-revolutionary who was formerly acquainted with Trotsky, visited Kindermann. From her Kindermann was to receive a letter of recommendation to Trotsky. In this period Kindermann and Wolscht received honorarium advances from the Berliner Tageblatt which money Dittmar used to equip the expedition. Dittmar was entrusted with the procuring of the Russian visas, should he be successful he was to send a telegram to Kindermann in South Germany with the text: "Congratulations on the birth."

Planned to Kill Stalin.

After the return of Wolscht and Kindermann to Berlin a third session took place at the house of Wolscht, Michaelkirch Strasse 26, Berlin.

Here Kindermann explained the details of the expedition's plans to Russia and reported upon his connections in South Germany. Kindermann submitted the following plan for the terrorist activity in Soviet Russia:

1. Reliable reconoitering of the Kremlin and its internal organization.
2. Sounding of the financing of the Communist Party of Germany.
3. Sounding of the correspondence channels between the Comintern and the C. P. G. and the ascertainment of possible connections between the Comintern and the foreign political representations.
4. Ascertainment of the homes and methods of life of the leading Russian Communists.
5. After carrying out all preparations, then the carrying out of attempts upon Stalin and Trotsky and, if possible, later on Zinoviev and Djerjinsky.

Police Knew of Plot.

After the session a drinking party took place during which Wolscht and Kindermann informed Dittmar in confidence that the police presidium had approached the O. C. with the request that the expedition should find out in Russia if there were Communist fugitives there and under what names they lived.

After the receipt of the visas a quick start was prepared. The originally arranged time in July, 1924, was however postponed as Kindermann wanted to take the Indian professor Chariri who it is said was in Russia in 1922 and made the acquaintance of Lenin, with the expedition to disguise it still further. This postponed the start till the autumn as Chariri gave evasive answers. The last discussion before the departure took place at the end of September in the room of Dittmar in the students' home in the Borsig Strasse, Room 86. Here Kindermann informed Dittmar of his discussion with Michaelis, Ehrhardt and Rose.

Kindermann Admits Meetings.

Ehhrhardt had figured under the name, Ehrenburg. It was there decided that Dittmar should leave in three days. Kindermann and Wolscht wished to make a halt in Koenigsberg in order to discuss and negotiate with members of the O. C. there. The meeting place was arranged in Riga for the 13th of October. In consequence of the bad connections between the island of Oesel where Dittmar stayed and Riga, he arrived in Riga only on the 15th. Wolscht and Kindermann had however already travelled further as otherwise the visas would have expired.

Under cross-examination by the prosecutor, Kindermann admitted all the details of the first meeting given by Dittmar and also of the further connections with him. He persists however, in the statement that he has had nothing to do with the O. C. He gives the purpose of his journey as the "betterment of scientific connections" between Russia and Germany. (Loud laughter).

Kindermann declares that he presented himself to Dittmar as a Communist. He says verbally: "I had no desire to prostitute my Communist opinions, I could however, not present myself openly as a Communist as in this way I would have been unlucky with business people." Replying to the question of the prosecutor as to his present opinions Kindermann says, "Up to the time of my departure from Schlesische railway station I was a Communist." (Great amusement).

The chairman reminded Kindermann that the latter had said on the first day of the trial that he had no interest for politics. And that now he declares that formerly he had an active interest in politics. With an air of reflection Kindermann answers: "Very few people have political convictions the rest is only daily opinions."

The details which Kindermann then gave upon Communism called forth storms of laughter. In relation to the "scientific reason" for his journey to Russia, Kindermann declares that he wanted to learn the life of the polar inhabitants in Jakutsk. Originally he wanted to go to Greenland as he had good connections with Denmark. (amusement).

Kindermann attempted to evade the question of the prosecutor who asked him about his present political opinions. Finally to the question: "Are you a right German nationalist or not?" he answers after some hesitation: [illegible] a good German."

POLAND IN WAR MANEUVERS AIMS AT SOVIET UNION

England, France Watch Sign Balkan Pact

(Special to The Daily Worker)

MOSCOW—(By Mail)—The Moscow papers report that the Polish army plans big maneuvers in August in the Volhynia region. At these maneuvers there are to be present specially sent representatives of the military general staffs of England, France, Czecho-Slovakia, Rumania and the Baltic states.

It is expected that a political convention will be signed at the time of these maneuvers between Poland and Czecho-Slovakia determining the part and attitude to be played by either of the signatory parties in the event of the other being engaged in war with a third state—more especially, with the Union of S. S. Republics or Germany.

In the event of war between Germany and one of the two contracting parties, the other party is to automatically join the war on the side of the allied party.

Brickmakers Fight Open Shop.

BERLIN, Conn., Aug. 6—Stand pat for the open shop is the watchword of George F. Pickett of the American Brick Co., where the union is striking for recognition. Pickett says he expresses the feeling of 95 per cent of the brick manufacturers of Connecticut and Massachusetts but admits that some manufacturers have weakened and signed with the union. He talks of trying to import a thousand Negroes if the need arises.

SYNOPSIS—The serial publication of the official report of the British Trade Union Delegation to Soviet Russia continues today, after an absence of two days due to mechanical difficulties. The leading British trade unionists who visited agricultural regions and industrial centers in the Soviet Union, told in previous instalments of finances, transportation and industry. The last instalment took up the question of agricultural methods, population of the agricultural sections, the restoration of agriculture and the use of tractors. The report then dealt with the effect of the New Economic Policy upon agriculture. A discussion of the "scissors crisis," the rise in the prices of manufactures and the fall of the prices of foodstuffs was then begun. Today's instalment tells how the Soviet Union overcame this crisis.

(b) Cotton.—The area under cotton in 1924—446,974 dessiatines—was more than double that of last year, without counting the area under private cultivation, which is not included in the returns. This is divided as follows: Turkestan, 283,668 dessiatines, of which 117,965 are in the Fergana region; Bokhara, 45,601; Khoresm, 9,100; Azerbaijan, 89,269; Armenia, 16,500; Georgia, 2,836. The crop was much injured by bad weather and will be about the same as last year—5,330,000 poods. Irrigation and drainage works in the Amu-Darya region promise well, and will add in the first place by irrigation 540,000 hectares, and eventually by drainage some 1,200,000 hectares, mostly gained by lowering the level of the Sea of Aral 14 metres, at a total cost of about six million sterling. The average value of the crop is about £20 a hectare. Further, the construction of a railway from Aulieta to Pishpek in Turkestan has connected up the cotton area with the general system. This railway of 250 versts was built within a year, and will be continued to Kuldja on the Chinese frontier, making a Central Asian connection between Moscow and Shanghai. But the main object of the line is to bring in grain and take out cotton.

(c) Grain.—The failure of the 1924 harvest is only locally serious. The whole is 15 per cent. less than 1923, which was over average. Russian demand is said to be assured, and there will be, it is said, a surplus of several million tons of grain.

The following figures are official but subject to revision and reserves:—

	Area (dess.)	Population	Crop (poods)
Harvest bad	10 million	12 million	157 million
Harvest below average....	30 "	37 "	1,137 "
Harvest above average....	36 "	50 "	1,130 "

At the same time there is an ominous precaution in the estimates for 1924-5 of 48 million Soviet roubles for famine relief. But as the recent famine showed, owing to the great size of the country, it may be more economical to export from a surplus region and support a deficit region with the proceeds. Any decrease in buying power of the peasantry due to unsatisfactory crops will, it is hoped, be discounted by the following factors. The rise in the price of grain to more than double that of a year ago, the continued fall in prices of industrial products, the increased area under cultivation, and the final and full effects of the introduction of a stable currency.

The possibilities of agricultural development can be understood when it is realized that a large part of Russian arable land is the best soil in Europe and yet produces only one-third of what is got from the very inferior land of Belgium and Germany—while an increase of only one-tenth in the productivity would mean an annual addition of 500 million roubles to the national income and the possible export.

General Conclusion

Russian agriculture is recovering slowly but steadily. And the governmental help that is being given it seems energetic and efficient. The bad harvest of last summer and the damage done to crops during this winter may cause local famine, but adequate precautions seem to be in preparation.

CHAPTER V

Foreign Commerce

Organization

Foreign commerce has been, since the Revolution, a Government monopoly. But the New Economic Policy made—in foreign eyes a derogation from, in Russian eyes a development of—this principle, by delegating the conduct of foreign commerce in part to private enterprises and to private capital under Government control. Foreign commerce is now, under decree of October 16th, 1922, conducted through:—

1. Official Establishments, such as the Gostorg, the Commissariats, Syndicates and Trusts, and also such other official organs as get permits to trade.

2. The Co-operative Commercial Organizations, such as Centrosoyouz, Selskosoyouz.

3. The Mixed Companies which can again be subdivided into (1) combinations of official establishments for purposes of foreign trade; (2) companies in which private foreign capital participates; and (3) companies with private native capital.

4. Private companies and persons trading under license for a specified period and purpose. The present policy is to give such private licenses for a specified period mainly for export, and not to let the total turnover exceed 3 per cent of the total turnover of foreign commerce. In their case the Government does not participate in the capital but in the profits.

The operations of all these organizations must conform to the general program of the Minister of Foreign Commerce, which itself must conform to the national economic budget of the Supreme Economic Council. Within these limits the various official and semi-official organizations enjoy an economic autonomy and are responsible to their public and private shareholders for showing a profit in their turnover. Official, semi-official and private enterprises are supervised by a Director of Commercial Enterprises and Establishments, and the controlling authority is thus quite distinct from the conducting authority.

The Government organizations themselves operate in foreign markets through an official agency in each foreign capital (Torgpredstvo), such as Arcos in London. These agencies by displacing the foreign exporter and buying from the producer are intended to acquire the middleman's profits for the Government account.

It follows that private capital is only admitted to foreign trade in insignificant proportions and provisionally. Official opinion believes that in time, as the State technical trading organizations develop, foreign trade will again be wholly conducted and not merely wholly controlled by them. The present proportion is:—

	Export (per cent)	Import (per cent)	Total (per cent)
1. Government Establishments	54.2	73.7	64.1
2. Co-operatives	17.5	8.3	12.8
3. Mixed Companies	25.0	15.3	20.1
(a) of which latter, State Companies	(17.4)	(4.1)	(10.7)
4. Private Companies and Persons...	3.3	2.7	3.0

From this it is evident that the Government has directly in its hands still (64.1 plus 10.7) three-quarters of foreign trade. A further analysis shows:—

	Export (per cent)	Import (per cent)	Total (per cent)
Government Establishments:
Gostorg	36.5	15.8	26.0
Trusts and Syndicates...........	10.3	35.7	23.0
Co-operatives:
Centrosoyouz	25.0	15.3	20.1
Mixed Companies:
With Foreign Capital............	6.1	9.9	8.0
With Russian Capital............	1.5	1.3	1.4

From which it is clear that the Trusts and Syndicates, as well as the Mixed Foreign Companies, are more concerned with import, but Gostorg and the Co-operatives with export.

Foreign Trade With Russia

At present the tendency is still towards an increase in concessions to private enterprise from the Government monopoly. Thus, in 1923, the Mixed Companies increased in number. There are at present 15 Mixed Companies operating, of which four operate in transport and four in timber. Two more have just been licensed. Of these, six are German,* two Austrian, and the English, Dutch, Norwegian, Turkish, and Persian have each one. One is mixed Russian and foreign, and three are mixed English, German, and Dutch. Although the United States have no official relations as yet with the Union, a Mixed Company, "Amtorg," has been formed under American law, and trades direct with the Commissariat for Foreign Trade in cotton, rubber, tractors, etc., as against furs. The total trade of foreign firms in 1923-24 was 40,728,000 gold rouubles, of which 20,154,000 gold roubles was export, as against, in 1922-3, 13,599,000, of which 4,736,000 was export. The policy is to organize one such "Mixed Company" at least for each country in commercial relations with Russia, with the object of attracting foreign capital. But this has had little success so far. Another object, the attraction of experts, has also been disappointing, as it is found that the conditions in Russia are so novel that a trained expert takes longer in learning to work them than a novice. None the less a renewed effort is now being made through the agencies abroad to engage foreign trading and technical experts.

Foreign firms operate under a decree of April 12th, 1923, with a concession from the Concessions Committee. Their rights and responsibilities are defined under an instruction applying the decree above mentioned, a translation of which will be found in the "Russian Review" for December 6th, p. 361.

In this connection, it may be observed that the sending to Russia of agents except for purposes of inquiry and report may at present be a useless expenditure. Business can best be opened through the official agencies. But Mixed Companies serve as a useful liaison between the Russian producer, consumer, and foreign capital.

Statistics of Foreign Trade

In respect of the foreign trade statistics, it is even more difficult to report than in other regions owing to the complete novelty of the system, to the mass of material for investigation, and to the absence of convenient summaries; also to the discrepancies in the statistical data and the divergencies in the method of their compilation. Figures are given with all reserves.

Exports

The character of Russian exportation is as follows:—

Period—	Foodstuffs	Raw and semi-manufactured goods	Manufactures	Total
	Percentages of total value of exports
January-June, 1922......	5.3	89.3	5.2	100
July-December, 1922......	5.2	91.6	3.2	100
January-June, 1923......	50.4	48.1	1.5	100
July-December, 1923......	61.6	37.9	0.5	100
January-June, 1924......	56.2	43.6	0.2	100
July-December, 1924......	56.8	43.0	0.2	100

The main source of export is agriculture, about 80 per cent. of the total, which has now reached 75 per cent. of its pre-war value, with a total of 230,000,000 gold roubles. The program for this year contemplates a total of 500,000,000, or over double that of last year. The program includes butter, eggs, fowls, and game, all products which Great Britain used to export largely.

The fur trade is again developing its resources, having been enormously increased by a ten years' suspension, and this year it will reach 30,000,000 gold roubles. Timber accounts for about a fifth of the whole, and its resources are comparatively inexhaustible. Of the other main branches of trade, the oil export is at present hampered by the operations of the principal oil combines, but is developing rapidly, as also is flax export.

It is interesting to note that about 20,000,000 poods of grain were exported to Germany and to France, and only one million to Great Britain. On the other hand, Great Britain took more than half the timber exported.

Estimates of the Commissariat of Agriculture for the general economic programme anticipate the following development of exportation: that grain export will, within four years, reach two-thirds of pre-war—that is, that it will in 1924 reach 220,000,000 gold roubles and in 1928 reach a value of 400,000,000 gold roubles—that flax and such-like products should reach three-fourths of pre-war and a value of 150,000,000 gold roubles, while animal products should reach 200,000,000 gold roubles and par with pre-war.

Exportation caused a rise in prices, especially of grain, which was of great value in helping to "close the scissors" (see Industry), and it seems that prices have now been raised as high as further business allows. The authorities controlling foreign commerce are accordingly directing their attention to administrative economies, and expedients for lessening overhead expenses and quickening the turnover of capital.

Imports

Importation during 1922-23 was decreased very considerably. This decrease was almost entirely in the first half of the period and was due to economic policy.

The result was that an adverse trade balance was converted into a considerable surplus value of exports over imports:—

(In 1,000 roubles.)

1921-22 Import	1921-22 Export	1922-23 Import	1922-23 Export	1923-24 Import	1923-24 Export
269,799	81,621	144,056	206,811	208,000	340,000
minus 188,178		plus 61,762		plus 132,000

*In view of statements ("Morning Post," November 18th) that the important German concessions have failed, the following report of the Soviet mission in Berlin is given: "In answer to your inquiry relating to the German agricultural and timber concessions in Russia, I have to inform you that the concessions of Wirth and Haas (Mologa Gesellschaft) are working very successfully, all of them extending their operations and accumulating additional capital. Relations between the concessionaires and the Soviet Government departments are of the most favorable character. Krupps are working most satisfactorily on the Don. Rheinbaben expresses itself entirely satisfied with the concession in the German Volga region. The Zathaugesellschaft is rapidly and successfully developing its work in the Kuban. In short, the communication of the 'Morning Post' represents a sheer invention."

man who succeeded in fooling the public so well be a criminal? Surely such a financial genius would not hold up a drug clerk unless he was crazy? That a clever lawyer takes this tack in an effort to save aclient proves that a glamor surrounds those who are successful in amassing money no matter by what means. Tho even William Jennings Bryan once admitted that no man could honestly save one million dollars in a lifetime.

TALKING about a nation of gullible people. A doctor makes interesting comment on an advertisement inserted in a fake health magazine which claims that violet ray can cure anything from corns to consumption. Those sham health experts use much the same kind of an argument with their victims that Russell Scott and his kind use in jerking others loose from their savings. To the latter, Wall Street was the ogre the new benefactors would save them from. The health frauds used the "medical trust" as a horrible example.

A socialist who is working a sucker list in Chicago for the colony racket, which he is promoting in this vicinity, praised William Jennings Bryan, as the greatest man the United States ever produced, while speaking in "Bug House Square" recently. This socialist thought that followers of William Jennings Bryan would be just the addlepated tribe to fall for his scheme. After he fed the crowd up on a eulogy of the "Commoner" he got out his prospectus and took names. He got many names. This socialist is referred to fondly by the socialist party as the "great little giant" and recently put on a recruiting campaign for the socialist party of Chicago.

THE workers patronize the "get rich quick" artists, because, like the sick person, they are willing to try anything in a desperate effort to get away from their misery. The sick person wants to get well. He has tried the old line doctors without success. Th "get well quick" lads then get hold of him, and if he is a radical, they will promise to make a new man of him at reduced rates. One of those tomato, carrot and fig fakers was asked by a victim if he favored milk as an article of food. "Milk," he scowled, "do you mean cow's milk?" "Yes," came the rather shamefaced response. "Cow's milk," he declared with an air of wisdom, "was only meant for calves." He charged five bucks for that piece of information.

ANOTHER simple scheme of getting money has just been patented by a reformer named William H. Anderson, a former official of the Anti-Saloon League. William and some of his agents fell out over a division of the loot and the Saloon League got hold of the story. The upshot of the affair was that Anderson, who is a prominent ku kluxer landed in Sing Sing, convicted of forgery. Bookkeeping was his downfall, he concluded. That art is now listed as one of the devices of the devil to get good protestants into trouble. Anderson came out of Sing Sing an older but foxier man.

HE has a wonderful scheme, that beats co-operative colonies, health institutes, Scott ideas or any other trick yet conceived. He has founded an organization for the protection of protestantism. It is called the A. P. P. P. P. A. or in plain tho elongated language the American Prohibtion Protestant Patriot Protective Alliance. Among the taboos of this organization is bookkeeping. Anderson is captain, cook and bottlewasher. This is how William plans to keep out of Sing Sing: "I will have no 'members' or membership. 2. It will have no oath. 3. It will accept contributions only as outright gifts to William H. Anderson, its founder and general secretary, to be used in any way he sees fit."

IT is safe to predict that Anderson will be a millionaire inside of two years. Anyone who can resist turning over his money to Anderson is neither a good protestant nor a good moron. The plan is more intriguing than having a bald headed barber sell you an infallible hair restorer or watching a quack trying to pep up a sluggish liver by wringing your neck. This is a fine country for frauds, big and little. But while taking notice of those interesting things we should not lose sight of the fact, that the fraud we are chiefly concerned with, is the robbery of the working class of the product of their toil by the employing class. When that brand of pillage is ended, the Workers Government can proceed to take care of the other brands of quackery.

FRENCH FAIL IN EFFORT TO BUY PEACE OF KRIM

Offensive Is Impossible Without More Troops

PARIS, France, August 6.—Unable to make any headway in capturing the Riff Republic from Abd-el-Krim and his soldiers, the French and Spanish governments are attempting to buy Krim off with a huge sum of money, it is learned. The peace terms, given by Primo de Rivera to two envoys of Krim at Tetuan, while they offer peace only at the price of recognition of the Spanish protectorate over the Riff, offer to make Krim the "emir" of that state and hint that he can have a huge sum of money if he will allow the European imperialists to enter his country.

Krim, however, has already declared that he will accept no peace unless the independence of his country is acknowledged.

Painleve is anxious to make peace, as Marshall Petain, fresh from a trip thru Morocco, has told the premier that a large scale offensive against the Riffians is impossible unless more troops are sent from France.

This Painleve fears to do, as it would mean mobilization of the reservists, and would cause even greater dissatisfaction among the workers than now prevails.

Abd-el-Krim's forces, meanwhile, are active along a 200 mile front, and are threatening Ouezzan, and the main railway between Fez and Taza.

FARRINGTON ILLEGALLY REMOVED PROGRESSIVES WHOM AUDITORS DECLARED ELECTED TO OFFICE

By ALEX REID

(Secretary Progressive Miners' Committee.)

ARTICLE IX.

Thompson, Watt, and Parry have all thru this trouble demanded their constitutional rights be restored in a constitutional manner. They have challenged Farrington, Fishwick, or any of the machine to debate the issue between them at any time, at any place, but the cowards dared not meet any of these men before the Illinois miners and have the truth stated in front of them.

Farrington, in taking jurisdiction in his Kangaroo court of the Thompson and Watt case, setting up this court to deal with it, never did notify Thompson to that effect, and when Thompson appeared before the Kangaroo court, and asked to be permitted to testify in his own behalf, the Farrington tool (Walker) objected, his objection was sustained, and Thompson was refused even to talk on his own case in his own behalf.

Rotten as the capitalists courts of America are, they usually still allow a man the right to defend himself, but Farrington has taken that right away from the Illinois miners.

Auditors Statement.

Immediately following this episode in the court of Judas, there was issued a statement signed by John J. Watt, sub-district secretary-treasurer, and sent to the officers and members of all local unions in the sub-district:

"On account of false propaganda and enemies within the United Mine workers of America, who seem determined to wreck the organization within the bounderies of District No. 12, by a determined and desperate attack upon the duly elected officers of Sub-District No. 4, and upon the regularly constituted courts within Sub-District No. 4, it becomes my duty to officially notify you that the officers that have been elected and so declared elected by the only officers who have that right to do so, the Sub-District Tellers of election, in their report made to the membership on January 3, 1925, and later by a revised report made on March 21, are the officers who will serve you for the term commencing April 1, 1925, and continuing for two years, these officers are:

"President, Freeman Thompson.

"Vice President, Tom Parry.

"Secretary-treasurer, John J. Watt.

"Auditors, John Watkins, Thomas Davidson and Greener Smith.

"Sergeant at Arms, Paul Piffer.

"You will as in the past forward all matters pertaining to Local Union disputes and joint contract matters to the Sub-District office at 221¼ South Fourth street, and recognize as official only such official documents as bear the Sub-District Seal and signed by the above residential officers."

Walker's own local, No. 413, has renounced him, declaring him unfit to hold office.

George Montgomery, president of that local, today declared that the defeated opponent was nothing more "than a double crosser and an organization wrecker."

In all the foregoing, in connection with this case, it must be remembered that Thompson, Watt and Parry have done everything in their power to have Farrington and his snakes live up to the laws of the miners' union, but to no avail.

Enter the Egan Sewer Rate.

It was well known to the progressive miners at the election, that the Farrington machine agents were being supplied with money, but no trace could be found of its source at the time. A rat by name of John Egan was noticed to be well supplied with money, and he was very prominent at the election, working for the Farrington machine and against Freeman Thompson, Watt and Parry. Since the election "Egan has admitted he was paid $14.60 per day for his work at that election."

However, the election being over, crooks must be given appointments to keep them from squeeling and Egan is no exception to the rule, which I will show tomorrow.

Three Klansmen on Trial for Murder Within Few Weeks

NOBLESVILLE, Ind., August 6. — David C. Stephenson, former ku klux klan leader in Indian, and Earl Klinck and Earl Gentry, held without bail on a charge of slaying Miss Madge Oberholtzer, will go on trial for murder within the next few weeks, according to unexpected developments here.

Complying with a petition signed by the defendants and presented to him today, Judge Fred Hines in Hamilton county circuit court ordered a special session for next Monday at which motions will be heard and other preliminaries cleared away preparatory to opening the trial.

O'Donnell, president, Massachusetts Federation of Labor; Abraham Pearlstein, president, Boston Central Labor Union, and James M. Curdy, democratic mayor of Boston.

Economy at Cost of Workers.

BOSTON, Aug. 6.—Economy at the expense of city workers is the policy of Governor Alvin T. Fuller, whose state commission on administration and finance announces that applications for raises totalling $300,000, submitted by department heads, would be turned down and no wage increases granted this year. The 400 engineers in the employ of the state, receiving an average of $1,560 to $1,800 a year, were especially bitter at this announcement.

Tokio Plane Smash Fatal.

TOKIO, Aug. 6.—Two were killed and two more missing as the result of the accident over Tokbreawa aerdrome today when a military airplane crashed into a captive balloon during air maneuvers. The aviators aboard the airplane were killed. The balloon was liberated and with its two occupants drifted helplessly away. It has not been found at a late hour.

CHICAGO LABOR DEFENSE CALLS LOCAL CONFAB

Hard Work Nets Tidy Sum for Prisoners

The Chicago unit of International Labor Defense, formerly a branch of the Labor Defense Council issued a financial report for the month of July (since June 28th) that shows substantial progress in defense work. Returns on tickets, stamps, and pamphlets from twenty-five brancches of the Workers Party affiliated with the local Defense Council amounted to $108.51. Sixteen A. F. of L. loccal unions contributed $44.00. Three picnics at which tagging was done for defense, netted $44.13.

The biggest item in in the receipts for June was the collection and admission returns from the great mass meeting in Temple Hall on the 28th, which followed the National conference that organized International Labor Defense. The total was $487.54. The expenses of the meeting were $215.50.

Report shows $684.18 received altogether by the local Council. The local unit was therefore able to advance $425.50 to the National Office of International Labor Defense. This will be used in defending a number of cases that the I. L. D. is pressed with in various parts of the country and to aid in the building of the I. L. D.

Extensive preparations are being made for a large conference fully representative of all workers' organizations in the city on "Labor Defense Day", Sunday, Sept. 13th. This conference will officially launch the Chicago local of International Labor Defense. More than a dozen provisional branches have been formed already and these will be represented at the conference. This will be followed by a mass meeting in Temple Hall at which nationally prominent speakers will appear.

Arrangements have already been made for an early fall and winter defense affair. A dance will be given by the local Council in Temple Hall on October 24th and a big Defense Bazaar lasting for the four days of Dember 10th to 13th inclusive will be staged at Northwest Hall.

'MONKEY OR MAN' MIKE'S PLAY AT DEFENSE PICNIC

Everyone Will Get Into the Movies, Too

NEW YORK, Aug. 6.—The outing of the International Labor Defense, New York Section, will take place on August 23, at Pleasant Bay Park. This will be one of the finest affairs of the season.

In addition to the sporting events which will be supplied by the Workers Sport Alliance, such as athletic exhibitions, a baseball game, etc., there will be a performance of a play written by Michael Gold for the occasion. This play is a characterization of the struggle that is taking place between the Fundamentalists and the Modernists. It will show them both up.

The crown of the occasion will be a movie which will be taken of the affair and which will be shown in the big cities of the country and will be sent to Europe. The International Labor Defense has invited a number of organizations of different nationalities to participate in the outing in their national costumes, which will lend color to the affair and will show the workers of Europe what the workers of America can do in the matter of labor defense.

Tickets costs 35c, and every worker who is sympathetic to the cause of protecting the workers arrested for participation in the class struggle, and helping their families, should be present at the affair. You will enjoy yourself and you will be doing one of the best deeds in aid of the working class movement that you can.

Officer Admits Murder.

MANILA, Aug. 6.—Torn with jealousy and believing his second lieutenant's pay too meager to permit him to marry, Lieut. J. S. Thompson, in a signed confession produced today, said he shot his sweetheart, Audrey Burleigh, because he was afraid to let her go to America without him.

The trial of the army officer for the murder of the eighteen-year-old girl last April was continued to Sept. 1.

BUILDERS AT WORK

Why Can't Workers Do Two Jobs at One Time?

Let's Go!

By A FORD WORKER

It strikes me funny why some workers can only think of one thing at one time. I know that's the way it is with my shop-mate.

When he tries to get a sub for the DAILY WORKER it never creeps into his head that he can also sell the fellow a pamphlet on some subject.

The other day, during lunch, when he got a dollar out of one of our gang for a sub to the DAILY WORKER I pitched in and pointed out that for another dime he could get a book to read. I talked about Browder's "Unemployment" because this man just got his job after being without work for three months. I didn't have to argue any neither and sold him one.

I wish you would tip off other Builders to how easy this can be done. I'm sure we would be distributing thousands of pamphlets more if we would do it. I sold ten of them last week alone—and I know that's a darn good way to "make another Communist" as the DAILY WORKER slogan says. Tell others about it—let's go!

TAKE HIS ADVICE!

This letter sent in by a worker from the shop has the system that can make thousands of good propagandists in this country.

Today the DAILY WORKER is selling thousands of books and pamphlets every week—but if more workers acted as this Ford worker has done in his shop the Communist movement in this country would double its size within a few months.

Chicago Juniors Open Summer Camp

On Monday, July 27, the Chicago Juniors opened their summer camp, which is the first time in the history of the Juniors that such an undertaking has been tried. Everything is run strictly by the Juniors themselves. If a Junior does not like something which has happened during the day, he or she reports it at the Camp Soviet Council and the Juniors see what can be done about it. So far the camp has been running very smootly and we hope it keeps on that way. If you have a child send it to this camp. No child who is not a Junior is allowed in the camp, so make your child a Junior and it will be able to go to the camp.

Milwaukee Printers Expose Scab Work Used by Socialists

(Special to The Daily Worker)

MILWAUKEE, August 5.—A trump card in the campaign against union printers in Milwaukee is spiked by evidence that the open shoppers have been fraudulently substituting inferior paper on contract work let by the school board. The evidence was collected by officials of Typographical Union 23 and Milwaukee Allied Printing Trades Council and extends over a year.

The trade unionists became suspicious when they found that union shops could never bid low enough on the school board work to get the jobs. It was then discovered that Radtke Bros. & Kortsch, the successful bidders, habitually made up for the inferior speed and workmanship of their non-union employes by using cheaper paper than the specifications they had bid on called for. Contracts for the coming year are held up pending investigation by the school board.

The socialist administration has been letting work to scab concerns.

Soviet Taxation "Amnesty".

MOSCOW, Aug. 6.—A taxation "amnesty" to be passed by legislative organs of the state for private industrialists, who are somewhat overburdened by debts owing to the former high taxation-rate, is lively commented in private trading circles. Private tradesmen consider this measure most expedient for encouraging private capital to develop its work on a broader scale.

U. S. SAILOR INVADING CHINA KILLS CHINESE WORKER WITHOUT CAUSE

One-Man Carmen Out on Strike Demanding Wage Raise and Union

(By Worker Correspondent)

NEW YORK CITY, August 6. — Twenty five motormen, who drive the one man trolley cars in the Borough of Queens, for the New York and Queens Railroad company, went on strike Monday as a result of the demotion of a superintendent. Later in the day the men voted to continue the strike and draw up plans to be presented to the company receiver.

The men struck yesterday when they learned that Frederick Young, a worker, with thirty-four years employment with the company, and a superintendent, had been demoted to dispatcher. They also protest against the discharge of Peter Garvey. Garvey they say had worked all night Saturday and being tired and exhausted had refused the demand of the boss that he work Sunday afternoon.

The striking motormen are demanding the reinstatement of Young and Garvey, the recognition of the union that they are organizing, and an increase in wages of eighteen cents an hour. They also demand to be paid time and a half for evertime. Wages now paid are fifty-two cents an hour. The demand is for seventy cents.

On the picket line it was said that the company had already hired scabs from other open shop railroad companies.

Soviet Oil Production Mounts.

MOSCOW, Aug. 6.—The Azerbeidjan Petroleum Industry is planning an increase of oil output in the next year up to 5.7 million tons against 4.4 million tons obtained in this current year.

Just a Wee Little Girl Wrote—

THIS LETTER:

Dear Comrades:—

My father read in the Lithuanian Daily "Laisve" an appeal to buy a book for children.

He asked us, the children of the family, if we would like to read such a book. Of course we said yes, for we all like fairy tales. We thanked dad for the money which we received.

FAIRY TALES FOR WORKERS CHILDREN

by Herminia Zur Mühlen

Is the best book I have ever read because it tells about the poor peoples' struggle against the rich and it makes me think that some day they will succeed and become the leaders of the world. I also liked this book because it had poor people in it and not kings and queens which I think are very hard to imagine.

I liked the stories of "The Little Grey Dog", "The Rose Bush" and "The Sparrow". The story "Why?" is very interesting because I liked the courage of little Paul when he wanted to know why it was so very hard for the workers. How he found the little dryad who told him she would answer his questions when the workers would awaken from their sleep and become wise. She said that glorious day for the workers would come maybe eighty years from now or maybe tomorrow but it all depended on us, the workers.

Fairy tales for workers children is the best book I ever read.

Fraternally Yours,
Helen Viskocka.

Fairy Tales for Workers Children

Is also the best book that your children will enjoy. The translation by Ida Dailes and the beautiful color plates by LYDIA GIBSON add to the charm and beauty of the stories.

The Real Rulers

The national administration has failed in its effort to make anything out of the Volstead prohibition law except a farce. If anybody is worrying about prohibition it is not the bootlegger. If anybody who wants a drink of hootch goes without it, it is because he has not the price. Prohibition is now one of the most prosperous industries and the liquor dealers who once served spiritual cheer over the counter are now doing better and doing it just as cheerfully on the prohibition enforcement staffs. Short changing a drunk was a short road to a limousine and a respectable cottage in the suburbs. But the sacramental wine dispensations mean castles in Switzerland and trips around the world.

The administration has failed to prohibit the manufacture and sale of liquor. Whether this is the case because the administration does not take Volstead seriously or not, big business does not care particularly. Big business took advantage of the war hysteria to shove prohibition thru. It figured on more efficiency on the part of its wage slaves in a dry nation. The rich could bathe their poodle dogs in champagne or in the milk of she asses as usual. They could also lubricate their livers with the best vintage of France. Prohibition would not bother the rich.

But big business reckoned without the bootlegger. And the expected efficiency resulting from non-consumption of liquor has not materialized, because the "non" before consumption does not belong there.

Now, Gary and Rockefeller, representing the two biggest combinations of capital in the United States have taken steps to run the prohibition racket as efficiently as they run their own business. Those two leading plutes have organized a committee of 1,000 which is to provide the treasury department with a fund of $300,000 with which to secure the services of super-executives each with a salary of $50,000 yearly. Those men will be above politics and above graft. So we are told. Congress would not provide money to pay those large salaries, because there are still some former liquor dealers who have not fitted into the new scheme of things, and a job at five or six thousand a year would suit them nicely, as an excuse for making three or four times that sum on the side. It is not the salary the average prohibition director is after; it's the commission. This is how the game works in a capitalist country.

Perhaps the significance of the Gary-Rockefeller move will be lost on millions of workers. Here are two men who have no more official connection with the government than the Sultan of Swat and the Poo Bah of Basutoland, yet when they speak, the administration, from little "Cal" to the White House doorkeeper get out their ear phones. If a couple of trade union leaders (this is a wild imaginary flight) not satisfied with the way some law that throws a little protection around labor was being enforced, raised a fund and offered a few of their best organizers to enforce the law, every capitalist paper in the country would holler about the "dictatorship of the proletariat." But it is tacitly understood that Gary and Rockefeller, Morgan and Ford own this government, and that they have a perfect right to butt in and run things whenever they see fit.

Where did those plutes get the money to pay prohibition directors $50,000 salaries? They got it out of the blood and sweat of their exploited slaves. The workers should be happy in having such thoughtful masters!

Playing Shuttlecock

Thousands of German and Polish workers and their families are now experiencing a fate similar to that pictured by the poet Longfellow when the peaceful inhabitants of a Canadian French settlement were evicted by the British, and scattered all over the United States. Only in this case the brutal incident immortalized by Longfellow is magnified a thousand fold.

When the "war for democracy" ended, the Allied powers, in order to weaken Germany turned over a large part of that country to Poland. Since then Poland and Germany have been at loggerheads. The toothless league of nations, which was intended as a sort of arbitration board for the big capitalist robbers has failed to solve the differences between the two countries.

Now Poland has expelled 50,000 Germans, many of whom have lived in Poland for several years and had brot up families there. The German government is hunting all over Germany for Poles and evicting them in retaliation. Thus misfortune is brot to the homes of thousands of workers in addition to the ever present misery they suffer under capitalism. Families are torn from their homes and forced to start anew in another country. This is only a small part of the harvest reaped from the seed planted in the iniquitous treaty of Versailles, which the notorious mountebank Woodrow Wilson helped to write, while mouthing fine phrases about humanity and freedom.

The workers who are being shuffled over the frontiers have nothing to say in the matter. Self-determination is not for them. The Polish and German bourgeoisie will not suffer the consequences of the failure of the governments of Poland and Germany to come to terms. The only class that will suffer is the working class.

These boundary disputes will continue so long as capitalist rule exists and the workers are divided along national lines. The workers of Germany and Poland have no country. The countries in which they live belong to the ruling classes. The only country in the world which is owned by its producing classes is the Soviet Union. When the workers in Germany and Poland get rid of capitalist rule, they will scratch out the frontiers and unite under the red banner of Communism which aims at the world republic of labor where workers of all races and colors will live in peace and plenty.

LOS ANGELES BUNK NOW DRUG ON THE MARKET

Brisbane's Boom City Becoming a Morgue

By FRAPIESA.
(Worker Correspondent)

LOS ANGELES, August 6. — Records of bankruptcy during the past week surpassed all previous ones. Businesses involved were hotels, restaurants, bakeries, miscellaneous small stores, etc.

Indications are that a continued sharp decline in trade will follow. The bottom has dropped out of the boom and there must ensue a general evacuation of the vehicle, resulting in what somebody described as a vacuum. Prospects are that the city of Los Angeles will be more pronouncedly vacant from an industrial standpoint in the future than in the past.

Chamber of Commerce Bluff.

Placards bearing the legend "Business is good" are being given by the Chamber of Commerce to commercial houses for display. This is part of the policy of the boomsters to whistle to keep up their courage. The commercial people know only too well that business is so far from good that it might properly be branded as putrefying.

Salesmen of real estate agents are instructed to never use the word "slum" and it is very probable that the Realty Board originated the idea, which is suggestive of Coueism. But the slump refuses to be ignored, nevertheless.

Bunk Discounted.

Building operations continue to be active. Why? Because lots are being sold at reduced prices. But this makes an artificial boom in construction of office structures, hotels, apartment houses, etc. As vacancies are increasing in such buildings, the builders will slow up suddenly at an early date.

No factories are being built. For a long time the Chamber of Commerce and allied boomsters have been unable to induce Eastern manufacturers to establish plants here. The reason: Several years ago the boosters led Easterners to erect great factories but the lack of water restricts operation. It will be five or ten years before the water supply will be increased and until then no more factories will be established.

Boom is a Leak.

The gas is escaping from the Los Angeles boom. Those Easterners who have been victimized by the exaggerated advertisements are now advertising "the cheapest labor market in the United States" to its disadvantage. The usual adjustments are being made. Depreciation of Los Angeles bunk is bringing that questionable commodity down to its face value.

Thru the DAILY WORKER Eastern workers are being disillusioned and investors are also benefited. This paper is in the unique position of furnishing the public with the facts as to California. It gives the news that deflates the advertising baloons that are blown up by the gassy mountebanks of this boom burg.

Incidents of Slum.

During the past week suicides ranged from three to five per day. The police use the term "epidemic of suicides" to describe the peculiar condition. If the "Examiner" and "Times" should comment on this they would cautiously remark "Strange, passing strange" without attempting to explain.

Nine out of ten of the suicides are due to destitution, nothing more or less. That should not be hard to understand when the fact is considered that one child dies every week of starvation in this city year in and year out. For the overlords of the place that fact is comforting because it shows just how cheap humanity is.

Uniformly the stories of suicides are all on this line: Men, who have dependents, come here in search of employment, fail to get it and kill themselves in desperation when they see their loved ones starving. In this time of slump the suicides increase rapidly.

Alarming Symptoms.

Easterners are not coming to Los Angeles. Passenger trains arriving here are 75 per cent empty.

Along the ten blocks on Broadway, from 1st to 11th street, which is about all the metropolitan city there is to this town, the effect of the slump is marked. It is a significant fact that most merchants' rents due in that section for the month past remain in arrear.

Continuance of this condition will not cause banks to break, because those institutions flourish on bankruptcy of others, but it will cause panic among those who have mortgaged real estate, small stores, etc. Hence, workers must understand that "the cheapest labor market in the United States" is becoming cheaper and the best thing they can do is to give this town a wide berth or, if already here, join the Workers Party.

BANK CLERK STRIKE IN FRANCE SPREADS, 15,000 ARE NOW OUT IN PARIS

PARIS, France, August 6. — The strike of bank clerks has assumed formidable proportions. Strikers in Paris now number about 15,000 and the movement is spreading to many towns. The bank clerks are now on a general strike in Nates, Bordeaux and other cities as well as Paris.

BANKERS BEHIND TWIN CITY CO-OP MILK PLANT

Deal Exposes Selling Out of Farmers

By JOHN GABRIEL SOLTIS.
Worker Correspondent.

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., August 6.—The Twin City Milk Producers' association, a million dollar cooperative affair with a membership of 6,300 scattred within a radius of 40 miles of Minneapolis, has just completed a deal here whereby it shall build a wholesale milk plant, on a site worth $75,000.

Only a few years ago, this association was started on a shoe string, by a few enterprising farm promoters.

When, recently, the site was handed over to the officers of the association, E. W. Decker of the Northwestern National Bank, and other big capitalists, participated in the dedication ceremony. As a matter of fact, thru the connections that Decker has established with the officers of the Twin City Milk Producers' association, the site is a virtual gift on the part of the Minneapolis capitalists, to the association. Moreover, these capitalists constitute a sort of advisory board to the association, in their capacity as "leading citizens".

There is certainly something very rotten in Denmark, and the farmers ought to get busy and get at the bottom of this deal.

Decker Has a Record.

Every farmer knows that E. W. Decker was one of the principal financiers of all the anti-farmer crusades in the Northwest. He financed wars against the late Loftus, who was the father of the cooperative grain elevators. He fought Loftus bitterly, in his position as a financer-capitalist. He also waged a very sharp and long fight against the farmers' non-partisan league, when that organization meant something to the farmers.

His bank, moreover, has wrecked thousands of Northwestern farmers. It still continues to do so, and his cooperation with the Twin City Producers' association, cannot mean that the association is cooperative in the best sence of the word.

Birds of Ill Omen.

From nothing the association has grown to a large institution. It behooves the rank and file members to keep a sharp lookout, lest this association of theirs goes the way of the dispicable "Daily Star", and other fake cooperative schemes. The class collaborationist policy, as indicated by the cooperation of E. W. Decker of the Northwestern National Bank, and other finance-capitalists, is only too manifest. For they are birds of ill omen to the farmers and workers of the Northwest.

Pronounced Dearth of Water in Los Angeles

LOS ANGELES, August 6. — Water famine threatens this city. For more than a year the supply has been decreasing. Thruout the month of July the scarcity was such as to constitute a danger. No relief is in sight and a crisis will be reached in the near future.

All the water available in the Owens river valley is being supplied to this city but even at that there is hardly enuf to meet requirements. Such is the drain on the resource that what is used for domestic purposes is hardly fit for human consumption. This water tastes of sewage. It is probable that it is not filtered because, if it were, there would be nothing left to it.

As it will take five or ten years to obtain water from the Colorado river, it is easily to be foreseen that Los Angeles will not have any industrial inducements to offer Easterners who plan to come here. Workers will do well to keep away. Factories can not operate when there is such a dearth of water as exists here.

Soviet Expedition to Yakutin.

MOSCOW.—A big expedition with a scheme of work reckoned for five years will leave for Yakutin in the nearest future. The expedition is to investigate life and customs of the Yakuts, their anthropologic type, the causes of spread of trachoma, leprosy and of a peculiar mental disease among the Yakuts, as well as the causes of the high death rate among the Yakut women.

PAINTERS' UNION INDORSES A. C. W. GARMENT STRIKE

Chicago Local Scores A. F. of L. Scabbery

A resolution supporting the strike of the members of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers employed by the International Tailoring company, denouncing the scabbery of the United Garment Workers, the A. F. of L. union which is supplying the concern with strikebreakers, and demanding that the American Federation of Labor executive council admit the Amalgamated, was unanimously passed by Painters Union Local 275.

The local union, comprising 1100 members, unanimously passed the resolution, and ordered it sent to the Brotherhood of Painters, Paperhangers and Decorators of America convention for action.

Rickert Supplies Scabs

"WHEREAS, a strike is taking place between the Amalgamated Clothing Workers and the International Tailoring company and the John Taylor company; and

"WHEREAS, these companies have had union agreements with the Amalgamated Clothing Workers for many years and constitute the only two companies in the men's clothing industry in the city of Chicago that refuse to renew their agreement; and

"WHEREAS, Tom Rickert, international president of the United Garment Workers, and the local official, George C. Slater, have agreed with these two concerns to furnish strike breakers; and

"WHEREAS, Tom Rickert has for many years violated all the principles upon which trade unionism is based and is even now selling union labels to the manufacturers employing only non-union men and women; and

"WHEREAS, the Amalgamated Clothing Workers have repeatedly made application for affiliation to the American Federation of Labor; therefore, be it

Drive on Science in California as Scopes Case Echo

SAN FRANCISCO—(FP)—After a vigorous fight on the part of the Science League of America, the state board of education finally listed all science text-books whose elimination was sought by the fundamentalists.

The board has, however, held to its ruling that evolution must be taught "as a theory, not as a fact," and local school boards are enforcing this rule "even in private conversation between pupil and teacher." Both an initiative measure and a bill in the legislature are planned by the fundamentalist forces.

Soviets Explore Arctic.

MOSCOW.—An expedition for hydrographic work headed by Matussevich, the well-known arctic explorer, will shortly leave for Arkhangelsk, sent to the Arctic Ocean by the Chief Hydrographic Burea of U. S. S. R.

The expedition will take up exact descriptive work suspended in 1914 at the Murmansk coast and will explore the Northern part of Novaia-Zemla with a view to choosing a suitable place for the new wireless station to be erected there.

Pay Law Hits Clerks.

SAN FRANCISCO—(FP)—A newly passed bill puts teeth into the twice monthly salary law of California, but state employes have no benefits under it. Private employers must pay their helpers twice a month, but the office and other workers for the state itself get their pay checks only once a month at considerable inconvenience.

JAPANESE BUSINESS TURNS TO SOVIET UNION FOR TRADE

MOSCOW (By Mail).—The signing of concession contracts with the "Lena Goldfields Corp." and "Ayan Corporation Co." has evoked in Japanese industrial circles the greatest interest to concessions in the U. S. S. R.

Representatives of the Japanese gold mining industry daily arrive at Habarovsk with the purpose of negotiating concessions. Among offers of great interest, one made by Taiata Iotaro with regard to gold mining in the Ohotsk region deserves attention.

Some of the Japanese offers refer to concessions concerning buying off the furs all along the coast of the Maritime Province.

POLICE HOLD UP TAXI DRIVERS IN NEW YORK

Yellow Cab Company Enjoys Rich Graft

(From a Worker Correspondent)

NEW YORK CITY, Aug. 5.—Taxicab drivers last night were stopped by uniformed policemen and ordered to show their hack and Chauffeurs licenses. Traffic on all of the bridges were tied up while the police, forced these taxicab drivers to go thru this humiliating treatment at their hands. This is only one of the tricks of the police department to give the people the impression that all the taxicab drivers are criminals. The crusade last night was to find out if there are any drivers operating without a license. There are taxi drivers in this city who have criminal records and why does not the police department weed them out? No person can get hacking license unless he goes thru a rigid examination, such as being photographed and fingerprinted and the police department is the agency that does all of the investigation and if criminals are operating taxicabs in this city, then how did they get the license?

It was not very long since Dennis Kenny, of Brooklyn, was shot and killed by a taxi driver. This driver was operating a taxi despite the fact that he had a long criminal record.

Give Yellows Monopoly

The shooting of Kenny, was followed by the mayor, sponsoring the famous "police taxi bill." This law gives the police department the power to license and supervise taxicabs and taxicab drivers. The appelate division, recently decided that the law was unconstitutional, but the police department still insists on supervising and licensing taxicabs and drivers. The law according to taxi owners and drivers who are in on the KNOW, was passed so the open shop Yellow Taxi corporation could get full control of the license department, public hack stands and the streets in general. Carrol Sinnot, brother of secretary to the mayor, is one of the traffic managers of the Yellows.

Suspending and revoking drivers' licenses seems to be one of the favorite pastimes of the officials in control of the licensing of taxi drivers. Many shameful and sad stories are told by drivers, with families dependent on them for support, who have had their licenses revoked or suspended.

Had License Revoked

Abraham Turetsky, a taxi driver, had his license suspended last week. He had heard that Mayor Hylan had requested that all citizens who did not think they were getting proper treatment at the hands of public officials should complain direct to him. Turetsky then wrote a letter to his honor, and explained that his wife was sick in a hospital and that his license was suspended. The reply from the mayor suggested that Turetsky seek work at the city employment office and that his letter was referred to the deputy police commissioners' office. Turetsky went back the commissioners office and was told that his license had been revoked. For what reason? He did not have the right to protest to the (peoples) mayor. That is the treatment given to citizens who try to raise their voices in protest against the Hylan administration. "The Sinnotts must live."

British Co-Ops. Study Soviets.

MOSCOW.—The British co-operative movement has lately been taking a keen interest in the Soviet co-operative movement. In a special article appearing in the Co-operative News, the organ of the "Wholesale Co-operative Society" (England), the director of this society views the activities of the "Centrosoyuz" (All-Russian Central Union of Co-operative Societies), dwelling approvingly on the methods as well as the volume of transactions.

WORLD POWERS UNITE IN PLOT AGAINST SOVIET

Moscow Daily Charges Secret Understanding

(Special to The Daily Worker)

MOSCOW (By Mail.)—The Izvestia and other Moscow papers are noting the growth in the international situation of interventionist tendencies against the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics.

Dwelling, in particular, upon Chamberlain's statement that when Lord Birkenhead spoke of severing diplomatic relations with the Union he did so in full consciousness of his obligations and responsibility to the cabinet, the Izvestia stresses the fact that the entire British cabinet has thus assumed the responsibility for this statement of Birkenhead.

Secret Agreement.

Further, Briand's equivocal reply in the French chamber regarding the question of international measures to fight Communist propaganda also tends to confirm the existence of secret international negotiations on this matter.

Then, a fact like the recommendation made by the Berliner Tageblatt in reference to the verdict passed by the Moscow Supreme Court on the German terrorists, who plotted against several Soviet leaders, to break off diplomatic relations with the U. S. S. R., indicates the growth of hostile feelings among certain circles in Germany, while the fact that circles represented by the said Berlin paper are following in the trail of British conservatives once more proves that they lack political independence.

Dosser Framed Up.

Referring to the fact of the case of Dosser, representative of the Soviet Oil Syndicate, having been brought up before the so-called mixed court by the British authorities and the producing of a document allegedly belonging to Dosser but which in fact is an absurd counterfeit—the Izvestia remarks that this is in itself sufficient evidence of the endeavors of British authorities by any means, however incongruous, to provoke new aggressive steps against the Union of Soviet Republics.

While ostensibly denying its intention to create a united anti-Soviet front, the British diplomacy is everywhere working against the U. S. S. R. However, declares the Moscow official organ—a repetition, of Curzon's ultimatum would find the Soviet Republics in a different position now than two years ago.

Do Not Fear Blockade.

With every year, the Union is acquiring more and more possibilities of self-sufficient existence during a certain period in case of emergency: "To-day, we can quietly envisage interventionist designs which failed even in times incomparably harder for us. After outliving a sever blockade, during which we were deprived of petroleum, coal, bread and actually possessing the innumerable resources of a vast country, we can remain perfectly calm before any threat of economic and financial blockade; we are not in the least afraid of them."

Communists' Battle with Fascists Gives London a Dizzy Time

LONDON, July 30.—(Delayed)—A fierce battle between fascists and Communists the second in two days occurred tonight. Nearly 2,000 persons eventually became involved in the fight, which turned the whole Marble Arch and neighborhood into a wild turmoil of omnibuses stopped, private cars wrecked and scores of people more or less seriously injured.

The trouble began at the close of a fascist demonstration in Hyde Park when demonstrators joined issue with a Communist gathering a few yards away.

In a few moments several thousand people, shouting madly surrounded the belligerents.

The melee only ceased when the police commandeered motor busses and, standing on the footboards, escorted the fascists back to headquarters after the most serious row of its kind which has taken place in London.

Twelve Hurt in Klan Riot

WESTWOOD, Mass., Aug. 5.—Injury to more than a dozen persons, the wrecking of a farmhouse, and the arrest of three klansmen for carrying concealed weapons, were the aftermaths of a ku klux klan attempt to hold a meeting. The state police had refused to guard klan meetings, and this was the first gathering since the guards were withdrawn.

KLAN PARADES IN KAPITAL TODAY

AMALGAMATED STRIKER BRUTALLY SLUGGED BY COPS, BOSSES USE A. F. OF L. NAME, SEEK NEW WRIT

The members of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers of America who have been on strike for six weeks demanding a renewal of the union agreement, saw victory just ahead yesterday as their employers, the International Tailoring Company, showed by inserting new advertisements in the newspapers, and by instigating the most brutal police violence, that they are playing their last cards.

Peter Korak, a striker, was badly beaten by half a dozen policemen, following which he was taken to the bureau of investigation and fingerprinted. Korak was talking to a fellow-striker when picked up by the police at Ogden and Randolph streets.

The International and J. L. Taylor companies, the latter owned by the same employers, inserted advertisements in all capitalist newspapers, again using the name of the United Garment Workers and the American Federation of Labor to shield the fact that they have tried to install open shop conditions in their plants here and in New York.

The J. L. Taylor company, which is legally a separate corporation has announced its intention of filing a bill applying for an injunction to prevent picketing. The garment bosses hope to secure a friendly judge who will give them a beter injunction than the one issued the International Tailoring company by Judge Pam.

The advertisement in the capitalist papers stated:

A. F. of L. Union Herds Scabs.

It will be noticed that the American Federation of Labor union has opened its office as a scab herding agency, and is seeking scabs, under the protection of William Green, A. F. of L. president who supports the scabbery, to break the Amalgamated strike. It will also be noted that union wages are not offered unconditionally. "$47.00 per week, IF YOU ARE WORTH IT," says the ad.

The American Federation of Labor officials continue to allow the use of their name by this scab firm, whose

SEVERAL American aviators recently volunteered to serve with the French in killing the Riffian tribesmen in northern Africa who are committing the crime of fighting for the freedom of their country from foreign rule. Judging by the publicity given those super-scabs, one would imagine they had offered themselves for some noble service that would benefit the human race. We often hear the expression: "like father like son." This seems to apply particularly to Charles Sweeney, on of those aviators.

THIS morning, a worker from Spokane, Washington, walked into the office and informed me that Sweeney's father was the principal scabherder in the great Cour d' Alene strike, in Idaho, in 1902, during which the workers were given an object lesson in capitalist government by having to face the guns of the federal troops. This star fink's progeny is in every way as degenerate as his father. We are not wishing him any ill luck, but if a Riffian bullet should pierce his filthy carcass, we would not envy the bullet that had to do the dirty work.

IT is not surprising that the American capitalist press should glorify those wasters and worthy sons of degenerate sires who join in a ruthless campaign to keep a gallant people in slavery. Did not one of the favorite pedagogues of American imperialism, former President Eliot of Harvard University say that the "scab is the finest type of American citizen?" Thus the mantle of respectability is thrown around the shoulders of the most contemptible kind of a person. Whether breaking strikes of industrial workers or breaking the struggles of small nationalities, the American scab will always find generous space and honor in the capitalist press.

TESTIFYING before the interstate commerce commission last week, H. M. Griggs of Cleveland, formerly coal and ore traffic official of the New York Central, said that the railroads gave special rates to non-union coal operators thus discriminating against union mines. When union operators give the higher wages paid to union coal miners as the reason for the alleged reduction in earning capacity of those mines, they are careful not to mention the part played by railroad rates. As a matter of fact, many of the rail owners also own big mining properties, and make double profits.

TALK about interlocking directorships! The railroads are fine examples of this system. In a recent list of railroad earnings given out by the Federated Press, some roads are shown as making big profits while others do not show such good returns. But it develops that most of the roads belong to the same group or different groups of financiers. It appears that the New York Central recently made an alliance with the Baltimore and Ohio by which they gained control of the Reading railroad. The Pennsylvania and the Del-

SHIP DEPARTS, SHANGHAIED RIFF FODDER IN HOLD

Cubans in Irons Get Choice of War or Jail

(Special to The Daily Worker)

NEW YORK, Aug. 7—Five out of 135 sailors on the Spanish Royal Mail liner Antonio Lopez were chained hand and foot on the deck under a broiling sun while a New York attorney attempted to arrest the ship's captain and obtain their release. The rest of the men on board are in mutiny as the ship sails. The five attempted to escape but were caught.

They claim that they were all shanghaied from Havana and forced to enlist as Spanish soldiers for the Riffian war. One of the men said that they were all down on the beach in Havana when they were forced to enlist or go to jail. The food is terrible on board, he said, and the men would die if they did not get ashore.

The lawyer aroused by the sight of the men in irons in the sun failed to get quick enuf action in the courts and the captain made good his departure with the ship and men. The Cuban consul would not discuss the matter.

BOSTON CENTRAL LABOR UNION DEFENDS CHINESE IN RESOLUTION

BOSTON, August 7.—Boston union workers are pledged to do all in their power to draw attention to the problems and aspirations of the Chinese by a resolution passed in the Cental Labor Union.

The resolution, presented by the president of the body, declares that "the fundamental cause for present disturbances in China is due to the special privileges given foreign nations in treaty pacts and the abolition of extra-territorial rights of foreigners is necessary to China's administrative integrity and sovereignty."

Pressmen in War on Berry

BLOODY IMPERIALISM WILL CONTINUE IN SO. AMERICA, KELLOGG SAYS

WASHINGTON, D. C., Aug. 5.—Frank B. Gellogg, secretary of state, made a statement with respect to imperialism. According to him there will be "no more exploiting of Latin-American countries with the armed forces of the United States, but rather peaceful penetration."

In other words the secretary of state approves the proposed treaty clause suggested by the American Institute of International law, that will be submitted to the Pan-American congress next winter.

That clause says that no nation shall, for any reason whatsoever, occupy even temporarily any portion of an American republic, even with the consent of the republic. Nevertheless, Mr. Kellogg points out that American troops must continue to run the government of Haiti.

DEMAND OUSTING OF SCABS FROM THE CUNEO SHOP

Say Agreement Must Be Signed with Union

Over five hundred pressmen, members of the International Printing Pressmen's and Assistants' Union of North America, Local Number 3, unanimously passed a resolution at their meeting, demanding that "Strikebreaker" George L. Berry, international president, remove the pressmen he has placed in the Cuneo printing plant, and declaring that the Cuneo pressmen will not go back to work until a union agreement is signed.

"Major" Berry, who has tried to break the solidarity of the walkout by ordering the men to go back to work at the company's terms, did not dare show his face in the meeting hall, and it is said he is not now in Chicago.

Berry sent instead two of his vice-presidents, Samuel Marks and William McHugh, but every time these two "open shop" advocates tried to speak they were howled down by the union men. Neither of the class collaborators were able to say a word. There was a riot every time they tried to speak.

Berry Aids "Open Shop."

The meeting of Local Number 3, held at the People's Institute Hall, Van Buren and Leavitt Sts., was called especially to consider the situation in the Cuneo plant. Strikebreaker Berry had ordered the executive board of Local Number 3 to send the pressmen working in the Cuneo Printing company plants at Arthington and Spaulding Sts., and 22nd and Grove Sts., back to work. The pressmen walked out this week, however, when the Cuneo company tried to reduce the press crews from four to three men.

"Major" Berry took the part of the Cuneo company, which is attempting to establish the "open shop," and ordered the pressmen to accept the company's terms. Berry sent International men into the Cuneo plant to act as strikebreakers after the walkout.

The pressmen at their meeting, spurned Berry's scab maneuvers, and demanded that Berry immediately remove the International men he had placed in the plant to take their jobs from them.

Stick to Limit.

"Stick to the Limit" was the slogan of the meeting, and the motion to stay out until the Cuneo company signed an agreement identical to the agreements of other union shops in Chicago was unanimously carried.

Federal Court Mocked Soldiers' Civil Rights

HONOLULU, Hawaii, August 7.—Paul Crouch and Walter Trumbull, army privates sentenced to prison at hard labor for being Communists, will be deported to the mainland on the transport Cambrai, sailing August 8, army authorities announced.

The two soldiers were at first sentenced to forty and 26 years respectively by a military court martial, but their sentences were cut after a world wide protest.

The federal courts denied the Communist soldiers their constitutional rights, and refused to review the case, altho the sentence was illegal and the records of the "trial" were forged by army officials. The courts denied to issue writs of habeaus corpus.

The International Labor Defense is handling the case in the civil courts.

ORLANDO QUITS POLITICS OVER FASCIST REIGN

Former Mussolini Aid Now Benito's Foe

(Special to The Daily Worker)

ROME, Aug. 7—Former Premier Orlando, leader on the anti-fascist party and Premier Mussolini's most formidable antagonist in the chamber of deputies caused a sensation in Italian politics today by dramatically resigning. In a letter of resignation to the speaker he declared with bitterness that there was no place for him under the Mussolini regime.

"The recent election at Palermo," wrote Sig. Orlando, "not because of the apparent result, but because of the manner in which the election was conducted, convinced me that in Italian public life as it is at present, there is no longer any place for me, for my party or for my faith."

See Rallying of Opposition.

"I have been convinced of this heretofore, but urgent appeals were addressed to me appealing to my patriotism. Now, however, after this last experience I believe that to attempt service to my country would be worse than an illusion. It would be a false pretense; so I resign my deputy's seat."

Publication of the letter caused an immediate sensation. This latest protest against Premier Mussolini is expected to have the effect of rallying the opposition to the fascisti to even

FOUGHT KU KLUX KLAN WITH LEAFLETS AND IS ARRESTED ON STREETS OF WASHINGTON, D. C.

(Special to The Daily Worker)

WASHINGTON, D. C., August 7.—Thomas L. Avaunt, an avowed opponent of the ku klux klan, was arrested at Ninth St. and Pennsylvania Ave. today while distributing bills urging Washingtonians to oppose the klan parade, planned for Saturday. One of his helpers also was arrested.

No charge was placed against him immediately, altho the authorities were talking of placing a charge of "inciting to riot" against him. Avaunt demanded he immediately be charged with something and tried. After being held for more than two hours, Avaunt was released, and no charge was placed against him. The circulars he was distributing, however, were turned over to the corporation counsel's office for investigation.

The Klansmen Arrive.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 7.—Tomorrow they'll spell it with a K—the national Kapital.

Dusty looking automobiles from as far west as Ohio, as far south as Georgia, and as far north as New York, creaked into Washington today bringing the advance guard of the thousands who will participate in the first national convention and parade of the ku klux klan. Tourists' camps filled up rapidly, and attaches at the klan's local headquarters were busy giving directions to new arrivals.

The atmosphere of mystery surrounding the whole klan demonstration was only partly cleared up today. The number of arrivals in automobiles seemed to belie the claim of klan leaders that "not more than 5,000 or 6,000" will be present, inasmuch as most of the klansmen and their families are expected to come tomorrow morning on the forty-odd special trains which railroad officials assert have been engaged to haul the visitors.

Parade Down Pennsylvania Avenue.

The high light of the konclave is expected to come at 3 o'clock tomorrow afternoon with the parade of klansmen down Pennsylvania avenue, from the capitol to the treasury. They will be turned off into B street and just miss the White House. It will be one of the strangest parades that historic old Pennsylvania avenue, which has echoed to all sorts of processions, has ever witnessed, and indications were today that a capacity crowd will be on hand to see the show.

Beneath the normal convention attitude of city officials toward the event, there is a distinct feeling of uneasiness and alarm.

"There may be trouble and there may not," apparently was their attitude. "Let's not take any chances."

Mobilize Police Force.

The entire police force of the capital, with all reserves, will be mobilized along the line of March to prevent any "untoward events." And in addition, troopers of the third cavalry at Fort Meyer and nearby marines have been quietly notified to hold themselves in readiness for "emergencies." Army authorities decline to discuss the matter, but it is known that city officials have been conferring with them.

The capital has one of the largest colored populations of any city in the country. Not many years ago it was the scene of a bloody race riot. Satur-

CIGARMAKERS CONVENTION TO FACE DWINDLING MEMBERSHIP, UNSKILLED MACHINE WORKER MUST BE REACHED

Headquarters of the Cigarmakers International union in Chicago expects 225 delegates to attend the 25th convention opening in Boston August 10. The principal issue is the failure to strengthen the membership in view of the inroads of machine production of cigars and of the open shop.

Except for the wartime peak of 41,600 members in 1917 the union has each year recorded a lower membership than its 1914 figure of 40,000. It paid per capita on 27,000 members to the American Federation of Labor in 1924.

While the 1923 biennial convention threw open the doors to all workers engaged in the the industry the union has remained largely an organization of skilled handworking cigarmakers. One grrop in the convention will urge the acceptance of the cigarmaking machine as inevitable and demand that all energy be devoted to organizing the machine tender. The other groop will place more emphasis on the superiority of the hand made product and try to consentrate convention action on that branch.

COAL BARON'S LETTER SEEN AS PEACE MOVE

Coolidge Fears Strike May Hurt G. O. P.

ATLANTIC CITY, Aug. 7—Probability of a resumption of relations between the anthracite operators and the representatives of the Miners' Union was seen in the phraseology of a letter received yesterday by John L. Lewis from Samuel D. Warriner, leading figure among the hard coal barons.

Warriner made the significant statement that "in spite of the terms of your letter and the breaking off of negotiations, I am hopeful that means will be found to compose the differences between us and avoid a suspension of production."

The coal barons also denied that there was any truth in the report that the "operators' negotiating committee is under instructions to refuse any concessions, regardless of the logic or merit of any of the mine workers' wage demands."

Changed Their Plans.

After the contents of the letter were made public, federal officers who were watching the negotiations for the department of justice changed their plans already made for leaving town over the week end.

Despite this indication that a resumption of negotiations will take place, Coolidge is keeping a close watch on developments and his lieutenants are authorised to get the governmental machinery ready for intervention on the side of the operators, under the camouflage of "protecting the interests of the public."

Attorney General Sargent was expected to arrive at White Court today and Secretary of Commerce Hoover is expected tomorrow.

Calvin Fears Injunction.

President Coolidge is by no means as anxious for cutting a figure in this strike as he was to claim credit for breaking the policemen's strike in Boston in 1919. A strike might unmake him as a strike has made, to parody the language of the poet.

Considerable speculation is indulged in as to what part the department of justice will play if there is a stoppage. Coolidge is giving careful consideration to the suggestion, made by a prominent republican, that an injunction be gotten out prohibiting the union from declaring a strike. While Coolidge favors this plan in principible he is enough of a politician to forsee its political consequences. He is said to be of the opinion that it was Daugherty's use of the injunction in the railroad strike that led to that worthy's political downfall rather than to the flurry over the Teapot Dome steal.

Coolidge's position is that the coal operators will be expected to make a reasonable sacrifice to the political necessities of the republican party, and it is also believed that it is on this straw that Lewis relies for success rather than on a strike.

Hoover's Clever Ruse.

It is quite possible that Secretary of Commerce Hoover may be the administration's "good man Friday" in case of a strike. Hoover has already taken steps to place himself in a favorable position for intervention by his clever ruse in proposing a reorganisation of the bureau of mines, on which he has placed Philip Murray, vice-president of the United Miners and a coal operator by the name of Bradley. Thus the bureau of mines would be a convenient cloak for carrying on unofficial negotiations between the miners and the operators.

Several politicians who have an eye on the White House are preparing themselves for the spotlight. Among the number are Hoover and Pinchot of Pennsylvania.

The miners for their part have given their officers full power to proceed with preparations for a strike. It is believed that the success of of the British miners in forcing the government to surrender will favorably affect the situation for the American coal diggers.

GARVEY IN COWARDLY APPEAL TO CAL FOR PARDON PRAISES KLAN

ATLANTA, Ga., August 7.—Marcus Garvey has sent a 80-page letter to the president appealing for an executive pardon. Garvey states that if pardoned, he will leave the country as soon as he can get his business straight. He also said in his letter that he thought the ku klux klan was a body of upright christian gentlemen. He claims that because he agrees with the ku klux klan, the judge and jury that tried his case were prejudiced against him. He also stated that had the judge and jury not been mostly Jews and Catholics, they would have cleared him.

Garvey claims to represent the Negro peoples of the world. We wonder if Garvey is a knave or a fool to think that Negro people will ever believe like ku klux klan in white supremacy, lynching, Jim Crowism, segregation, or other forms of race hatred? Garvey claims to be suffering from bronchial asthma. We think it must have reached his brain.

Apply For Writ Monday.

The J. L. Taylor company is expected to apply for an injunction Monday morning, altho it has not yet been announced what judge will hear the new application.

To Close Offices.

It is reported to the DAILY WORKER from authoritative sources that the J. L. Taylor company will next week lay off its office force and close down its shops. The company has been unable to secure scabs, even when given permission to use the A. F. of L. name, and the doors will be locked in the near future. An attempt will be made to keep the International Tailoring company's doors open.

Rock Island Move Exploded.

That the securing of a six-months' lease on the bankrupt plant of the Boone woolen mills at Rock Island was an empty gesture aimed to bluff the Amalgamated is shown by the advertisement inserted in the newspapers. If the company seriously planned to move to Rock Island, there would be no need to call on the United Garment Workers to supply scabs.

Second Picket Jailed.

Shortly after Korak was arrested and badly slugged yesterday, John Wheeler, another striker, was jailed while walking the picket line.

Schlossberg Speaks.

At the strike meeting Joseph Schlossberg, secretary of the Amalgamated, again spoke. He declared that the Amalgamated will follow the International to Rock Island or any other city if necessary.

Schlossberg told the DAILY WORKER he has just come from the strike of the Curlee employes in St. Louis, where an injunction limiting the number of pickets to one at each entrance has bene in effect for some weeks. He declared that the strike is in splendid shape there.

The general executive board meeting scheduled to take place in Chicago Monday is not a special meeting, Schlossberg told the DAILY WORKER, but is a regular board meeting which will discuss "routine matters."

However, the C. E. B. has not been able to hold its meetings every three months as in the past due to the strike situation, and the numerous strikes will be the chief matter discussed.

Strike In Rochester.

Another strike has been declared by the Amalgamated in Rochester against the S. S. Bloom and company concern. The concern had not previously been organized.

C. and the B. and O. got busy and grabbed a majority. Now the big fellows in Wall Street are going to scrap over the spoils. The bankers will make the final decision and the smaller systems are going to be parcelled out among the big giants as the bankers see fit. This is the way railroads are juggled under the capitalist system. They change hands over night, but the manipulations are carried out unknown to the slaves who make the profits for the jugglers.

YOU may often notice when a prominent capitalist passes away, that he is an officer in a great number of corporations. He may be a president, vice-president or director. Those fellows pay themselves whatever salary they see fit. They may be drawing salaries from twenty different corporations and dividends from their investments in those companies. The salaries of those officers, not to speak of dividends they draw, constitute a tremendous train on industry. Yet those are the very men who make much of the wages that workers in the building trades are able to force out of the employers when they are able to secure employment.

DURING the reorganization of the Missouri, Kansas and Texas railroad, two firms of Wall Street bankers put in a claim amounting to $2,364,249.79 for compensation for services rendered in shuffling the stock and putting the business in shape again. The lawyers demanded $750,000. The interstate commerce commission was quite generous. It allowed $600,000 to the lawyers and $900,000 to the bankers. The wage slaves on the "Katy" will sweat many gallons before that much is sucked out of their bodies in profits.

ONE of the commissioners made the following comment on the exorbitant demand of the lawyers: "It was testified in this case that the services of one of the lawyers were worth $500 per day. Men receiving such compensation usually entertain a righteous conviction that it corresponds with intrinsic worth, altho, at the same time, they may be incensed that painters or carpenters should assume to demand and be able to exact $15 per day for their services." Not only must the workers support the parasites who have their money invested in industry, but also hordes of others from lawyers to stoolpigeons.

THE Washington correspondent of the Federated Press, commenting on the recent declaration of the executive council of the A. F. of L. with reference to the traditional non-partisan political policy trade-marked by Gompers, naively says: "Old party leaders will be prepared, therefore, to begin bidding in October for A. F. of L. support for their senatorial and congressional candidates for next year. President Coolidge will remember that organized labor exists, and so will his rivals in both parties." Suffering catfish! This only means that the labor leaders are polishing up their signs which read "For Sale As Usual."

BRITISH TORIES ANGRY OVER THE MINERS' VICTORY

Baldwin Saves His Face by Defying Labor

LONDON, Aug. 7—In order to placate the die-hard wing of the tory party, which fumed over the government's surrender to the trade union threat of a general strike over the miner's demands, Stanley Baldwin yesterday warned labor that the government would not be stampeded by threats of force. The speech was delivered during the discussion on the bill for a $50,000,000 subsidy to the coal industry which enabled Baldwin to ward off a strike.

Baldwin declared the new alliance was a grave menace to the country, meaning thereby the capitalist class. This alliance could inflict irreparable damage he declared. It is universally believed that but for the ability of the labor forces to cause irreparable damage to the structure of capitalism, the government would have called out the troops instead of surrendering as they did.

Ramsay MacDonald defended the trade union forces very feebly to the great dissatisfaction of the trade union leaders who felt that strong speech would be a fitting reply to Baldwin.

Baltimore's Newly Organized English Branch Meets Sunday

BALTIMORE, Md., Aug. 7.—On Sunday, August 9, at 6 p. m., a meeting of the newly organized Young Workers League English branch will be held at the headquarters of the Finnish branch of the party, at 615 S. 15th street, Highlandtown. Every young worker is invited to become a charter member of this branch.

STEEL STRIKE ORGANIZER IS AT LAST FREE

Theodore Vind Framed Up by C. of C.

Theodore J. Vind, former president of the South Chicago Trades and Labor Council, and five other men associated with him were freed from the prospect of prison today by commutation of sentence. Vind was convicted in 1922 and sentenced to Joliet for receiving a bribe to settle a strike, but was not yet imprisoned.

"The charges upon which Vind and his associates were convicted grew out of labor conditions in Chicago and Cook county during the latter part of the year 1921 and the early part of 1922," said a statement from the governor's office at Springfield and continued:

Governor Says Chamber of Commerce Framed Vind.

"It is now conclusively shown that the money was accepted by the persons convicted upon the recommendation and insistence of the local chamber of commerce of South Chicago, to whom the whole matter was presented before any payment was made."

William Z. Foster, secretary of the Trade Union Educational League and leader of the great steel strike of 1919, when interviewed yesterday said. "Theodore Vind was an active organizer in the strike of the steel workers, and because of that he was later framed up on false charges of bribery by the capitalist class and sentenced to prison."

Foster Glad to Hear Vind Freed

"We are glad to see him released, as his only 'crime' was his loyalty to organized labor. Capitalism is making a prison sentence a badge of honor in the labor movement, and it is to the credit of the Chicago unions that they supported the fight for Vind's release with a big campaign, in which leading left wingers in the Chicago Federation actively participated."

Fought Ku Klux Klan in Washington, D. C.; Is Arrested Quickly

day afternoon, when the parade will take place, is a half-holiday.

Circulate Attack on Klan.

Last night, printed handbills made their appearance all over the city, inveighing against the klan parade.

"Washingtonians! Arise and stop this farce in a legal war!" was one of the admonitions contained in the circular.

The klansmen will march without masks and without the usual fiery crosses, but in their robes and conical headpieces.

A detachment of marines will guard the treasury and do police duty in the parks thruout the show, which will continue over Sunday, with the burning of crosses across the Potomac in nearby Virginia. This, it was casually explained by city officials, is "usual in the case of big conventions." Many parades have been staged down Pennsylvania avenue, however, with no marines near than those who do clerical duty in the navy department.

"This event must be regarded as any other convention," explained one district officer.

"Still," he added, meditatively, "the situation has its possibilities."

more determined efforts to oust them.

No Other Course Open.

There was an unfortunate reaction here last week when Orlando was attacked while campaigning in the Palermo election. It was his Palermo experience, as his letter to the speaker emphasized, which finally convinced Orlando that there was no course open to him except to resign his seat as a protest.

Wool Mills Cut Wages.

PROVIDENCE, R. I.—Twenty thousand woolen and worsted workers of Rhode Island are cut 10 per cent, making a total of 60,000 workers in this branch of the textile industry similarly reduced since the American Woolen Co. set the pace at Lawrence. The Rhode Island workers are in mills in Providence, and Pawtucket, Woonsocket and other towns in the Blackstone Valley.

At the same time 4,000 thread workers are cut 10 per cent by the J. & P. Coats, Rhode Island, Inc., firm, with mills in Pawtucket. The cut parallels the reduction the American Thread Co. is seeking to enforce in Willimantic, Conn., where 2,500 workers are on strike.

FRENZIED MOB LYNCHES NEGRO IN EXCELSIOR SPRINGS, STORMING JAIL AFTER CHARGE OF A CHILD

EXCELSIOR SPRINGS, Mo., August 7.—A mob estimated at 500 stormed the county jail here and lynched Miller Mitchell, Negro laborer, charged by an 18-year-old girl of attacking her. Earlier reports said that the mob had been cowed by "riot" guns in the hands of county prosecutor Raymond Cummings and special deputies.

Wall Streets Bankers Are Decorated by the Polish Hangmen's Rule

By J. LOUIS ENGDAHL.

TODAY, two international bankers of Wall Street boast of decorations they have just received from the white terror government of Poland. The bestowal of these decorations, in conjunction with a speech at India House, in the heart of the New York financial district, constituted the farewell to the money lords of this country by Count Alexander Skrzynski, the Polish minister of foreign affairs.

In his farewell speech the Polish minister made no mention of American labor. He knows it is hostile to him and to the bloody reign of terror for which he speaks. He knew as he spoke that the demonstration against his coming to Chicago, for instance, was broken up by the police. Skrzynski had only words for the money kings, at whose feet he and his government grovels in the hope of raising new loans out of the wealth in the hands of the American capitalists, stolen from American labor.

• • • •

The decorations went to Clarence Dillon and Robert O. Hayward, heads of the banking firm of Dillon, Read & Co., that recently reaped a great harvest of millions by securing financial control of the Dodge Motor Co., in Detroit, while the barest betterment of their lives is denied to the exploited automobile workers.

Dillon, Read & Co., ranks with the House of Morgan in making loans to foreign governments tottering under the attacks of the awakening working masses. Like J. Pierpont Morgan, Clarence Dillon also takes an extensive trip each year to Europe, both ambassadors of Wall Street, to see where new debts can be profitably placed upon the backs of European workers still staggering under capitalism, and how best to collect the interest on those debts, under the Dawes Plan, and other schemes.

• • • •

The Grand Cross of the Order of Polonia Restituta, as it is called, may rest easily upon the inflated chests of the international bankers, Dillon and Hayward, but it is a heavy cross laid upon the backs of the workers of both Poland and the United States. It is with the wealth wrung from agonizing American labor, in the cities and on the land, that the Wall Street bandits go forth to spread the might of the imperialist dollar in other lands. It is this robber's rule that the American workers and poor farmers acquiesced in when they supported the world war; when they later permitted the Wall Street oligarchy to send American soldiers into European Russia and into Siberia in Asia in an effort to overthrow the Workers' Republics.

• • • •

If it had not been for the aid given the Polish hangmen of workers and peasants, by the imperialist allies of the Versailles peace, supported by the United States, the Soviet flag of a proletarian dictatorship would today be waving over a liberated Poland. In spite of the fact that thousands of workers and peasants have been martyred, other tens of thousands sent to prison and into exile, the struggle toward that goal still continues, and will go on until victory is achieved.

• • • •

In the first flush of success following the triumph of the American revolutionary war more than a century ago, it was even written into the law of the land that Americans must not accept decorations from foreign governments. But this has now become a dead letter, in fact and in spirit. It is not difficult for bankers, industrialists and their prostituted editors and college professors to travel to Europe these days and bring home a trunkful of baubles, that may glitter beautifully today, but which will rapidly tarnish just as soon as American labor rallies by the millions for the class struggle that leads to victory. The Grand Cross of the Order of Polonia Restituta is a military decoration; possible only because there are still enslaved workers willing to fight their master's battles. But labor, in Poland as in the United States, will build its own military power, its Red Army, and by the sign of the Red Star it will conquer.

CHICAGO WORKERS PROTEST AGAINST NEW ATTEMPT OF POLISH TERROR TO RAILROAD LANZUTSKY TO PRISON

A new "trial" against Stanislas Lantzutsky, Communist deputy in the Polish Sejm (parliament), and a leader of the working class of Poland, began in Warsaw on August 4. The bloody Polish government this time has framed up the "trial", before a single judge, bound only by the dictates of the Polish white terror. They are sure that this time they will send the leader of the Polish workers to prison for many years.

During the first trial of Lantzutsky in Presemysl, when the prosecutor demanded death for Lantzutsky on behalf of the PPolish terror, the workers of Chicago held a demonstration before the Polish consulate demanding his release. International action of the workers at that time saved Comrade Lantzutsky. Workers of Chicago once more must stand in defense of Lantzutsky.

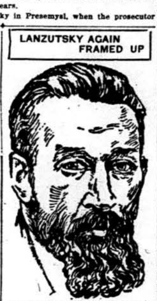
The International Labor Defense, and its Polish section, the Conference to aid Political Prisoners in Poland, is calling upon all the workers to come to the Lantzutsky demonstration which will be held Sunday, August 9, at Polonia Grove.

There will be a picnic and demonstration. The committee has arranged for good music and entertainment.

This demonstration will be addressed by James P. Cannon, secretary of the International Labor Defense and B. K. Gebert, who will speak in Polish.

How to get there—Take any car going north to Lawrence Ave., then take the Lawrence Avenue car west to the end of the line, then walk north two blocks.

LANZUTSKY AGAIN FRAMED UP



Stanislaus Lantzutsky, Communist member of the Polish parliament, who faces prison at the hands of the white terror. Comrade Lantzutsky was saved from the gallows by the world wide protest of the workers.

SYNDICALIST LAW VICTIM RELEASED; SERVED 4 YEARS

McLaughlin, I. W. W., to Come Out Sunday

(By California Branch, General Defense Committee, I. W. W.)

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 7—On Aug. 9, fellow worker, James McLaughlin, now known as number 13067, will be released from Folsom prison, at Represa, with his sentence served. He will be the first victim of the criminal syndicalism law to have his sentence served in that institution of repression.

Twelve other innocent fellow workers will still be incarcerated there when he leaves. Ten of these are also victims of the C. S. law, and the other two, Ford and Suhr, are serving life imprisonment over the notorious frame-up arising from the riots at Wheatland, California, of August, 1914.

Six In Same Case.

McLaughlin was arrested with six other fellow workers in a police raid on a mass meeting in Oakland, June 26, 1921. They were first charged with vagrancy, but this was dismissed and six of the seven men arrested were charged and indicted with violation of the state criminal syndicalism law.

The indictment was known as "Welton et al." and named Pat Casey, M. J. Dunn, John Hannon, James McLauglin, George Ryan, and Howard Welton as defendants.

Been Serving Since December, 1921.

The trial of the these six fellow workers began in Oakland before Judge George Samuels, October 7, 1921, and ended October 27th. They were charged and indicted on five counts, and they were found guilty by the jury after a deliberation of twenty-two hours of violation of the fifth and last count of the indictment, which was that of circulating literature.

They were all sentenced to the usual one to fourteen years in prison and began serving their sentences in San Quentin on December 9, 1921. McLaughlin was transferred to Folsom about a month later; probably due to the overcrowded condition at San Quentin. Welton received a three-year sentence from the prison board and the others all received five years.

Others Lost "Good Time."

We welcome fellow worker McLaughlin back into the divided ranks of the labor movement of this country and know full well that he will again do his utmost to create solidarity and build up organization, by, for, and of the workers.

Due to the numerous strikes staged by the organisation in San Quentin, which they have participated in, as a protest against the intolerable conditions there, the other fellow workers in this case have lost nearlyl all their "credits" and will not be released until Jan. 9, 1926.

KEEP TERMS OF BRYAN'S WILL A DEEP SECRET

Probate Held Up, He Forgot Executors

(Special to The Daily Worker)

MIAMI, Fla., Aug. 7—Filing of the last will and testament of the late William Jennings Bryan for probate is being held up by a curious oversight of the politician in failing to name the executors.

This became known when members of the Bryan family today prepared to ask the probate court to remedy the oversight.

As a result of Bryan's oversight, funds regularly maintained and supported by him and institutions to which he habitually contributed must await the legal measures being taken for the administration of the estate. No member of the Bryan family can issue checks against the commoner's bank account until the ommission has been rectified.

"It is thot likely that the probate court may name Mrs. Bryan administratrix of the will. Meanwhile, the terms of the testament are a closely guarded secret.

Pressmen Demand Ousting of Scabs from Cuneo Shop

Roebuck mail order catalogues, and work on these is now effectively tied up by the walkout.

The workers who had walked out stayed around the plant yesterday, and they are determined to actively protect their jobs, now that the local has decided to fight to the end.

The entire plant was closed down today; two thousand workers being laid off because the presses were not running and there was no stock with which to work. The night force was laid off Friday night, and the company announced that there would be no work for the day shift on Saturday.

If the Cuneo plant does not make a settlement before Monday it is expected the lockout will be in effect until a union agreement is signed with the pressmen.

BELGIUM MUST PAY HER DEBTS, SAYS A. MELLON

May Receive Barrel of Booze as Rebate

WASHINGTON, Aug. 7. — Several summers have passed by since the maudlin emotions of bourgeois dominated American workers were turning out sympathy for "poor little Belgium," the helpless victim of the German military machine. The invasion of Belgium, no matter how necessary it was to the schemes of the German general staff was as useful to the allies in arousing sentiment against Germany as was the sinking of the Lusitania later on.

But those happy days are gone by and when Belgium reminds her former allies of the kindly sentiments they expressed towards her during the war, there is a cynical smile as much as to say: "what a political kiddy you are dear?"

These observations are brought forth by the efforts on the part of the United States to make "poor little Belgium" come across with the money the United States lent her with which to purchase guns and shells during the war. Belgium reminds the United States that the guns and shells were purchased to defeat Germany and why should Belgium have to pay for winning the war for the United States. Did she not provide the allies with a place to fight the war on? Did she not also supply them with men to fire the shots at the Germans? Why collect for service rendered to the collector?

Woodrow Wilson's Pal.

Former premier Theunis of Belgium has been selected by the Belgian government to drive the bargain with the United States. Theunis was an intimate of Woodrow Wilson when the latter thot he was running the world from Paris in 1919. Wilson told Theunis that on his return to the United States he would ask congress to cancel Belgium's indebtedness. He did not. He had his hands full with other matters. The senate turned down his treaty and his league of nations and sent him to the junk pile. So Belgium is now sucking her thumbs.

When Belgium reminds Secretary Mellon, the whiskey magnate, of Wilson's promises, Mellon takes down a decanter and politely asks the Belgian what he thinks of pre-Volstead liquor, mellowed in wood. This means that Belgium must come across. A debt is a handy thing in the hands of a wily and powerful creditor.

HONEST CHECK WEIGHMAN THROWN OUT BY FARRINGTON FOR MAKING A FIGHT FOR MINERS' INTERESTS

By ALEX REID.

(Secretary of the Progressive Miners' Committee.)

ARTICLE X.

Joe Loda, a check weighman at one of the mines in Springfield was elected check weighman without opposition. Check weighing is one of the most important local positions in the union and is a job requiring men of courage and principle. It is necessary many times to check the company weigh boss during the day's work, about the weight of the cars of coal of the miners. The scales may go wrong at any time, and it then becomes the duty of the check weighman to see that they are fixed to weigh properly.

The miners know what that means to them. They can look back to the days when no check weighman was in the tipple, when they were robbed right and left by crooked weigh bosses and had no recourse.

Even today it is hard to get a miner with all the qualifications necessary to make a good check weighman. When the miners do get a good one, they feel themselves fortunate indeed, and do their utmost to keep him on the job. Joe Loda is one of the good ones, and a very progressive miner.)

Fights Boss for Miners.

Joe caught the company weight boss stealing coal from the miners (short weighing them) and instantly jumped to the coal diggers' defense, and a fight ensued between them on the mine top.

The miners were jubilant as they had a right to be at Loda catching the thief and showed their appreciation in many ways.

Did Farrington feel glad that our check weighman was successful in catching the thief? Did he congratulate him? Hell, no!

Farrington's drunken henchman, Joker Young, went out to the mine with Dan Clark, the company commissioner, and discharged Loda for fighting. And who do you think was appointed in his place? No other than Farrington's friend, the sewer rat Egan.

No Peace Without Victory!

Is it any wonder that the Progressive Miners' Committee claim there can never be peace in our union as long as such fakers hold office in our district? Thompson, Watt and Parry, ably supported by such fighters for our union as Loda, are the victims for the moment of the rattlers, and when we consider the rising tide of revolt spreading over the district and the desperation of the fakers, we are justified in stating that victory for the progressives is in our reach.

In view of the last district election steals, I ask you miners if an investigation of the last district election is necessary? Are you aware that thruout the whole of the state the machine has duplicated the Thompson, Watt and Parry deal?

Call for Progressive Leaders.

Is it any wonder the miners are requesting Thompson, Watt and Parry to visit the locals and expose the machine? Farrington says we cannot do it, we are "dual" to his machine. Yes, but we were not dual a short time ago as progressive miners, when Farrington thought he could use us for his special benefit prior to the time he betrayed Alex Howat.

I well remember that Frank wrote to the secretary of Local Union No. 52 located at Centralia, Illinois, stating that the Progressive Miners were not dual. Farrington stated a few days ago that to collect miners' donations to expose rottenness in the union, was an attempt to bleed the union. If it is, why the following telegram of Farrington?

Copy of Telegram.

"Springfield, Ill., Dec. 21, 1921. "Michael Halapy, Monongahela House, Pittsburgh, Pa.

"Friends in this district who favor clean elections in the miners' union have agreed to donate $750.00 to prosecute investigations of alleged corruption in Pittsburgh district. I will mail you draft for that amount next Tuesday. Am writing Harlan and Howat to do their part in this connection."

(Signed) Frank Farrington.

WILLIAM GREEN LINES UP WITH CAL AGAINST FOREIGN BORN WORKER

WASHINGTON, Aug. 7.—The executive counsel of the American Federation of Labor has gone on record in favor of the Japanese exclusion amendment to the immigration act.

"Labor would like to have a more stringent immigration law," said William Green, president. Green thus lined up with Coolidge against the foreign born workers, although they are the backbone of the basic industries of the United States.

TEACHERS WANT PAY INCREASE AND COUNCILS

Sixteen Demands Are Issued by Union

A national fight for the 16 points of its 1925-26 program is launched by the American Federation of Teachers in a statement to the press by Secretary F. G. Stocker at the Chicago headquarters.

Higher wages to teachers, adequate buildings and the full 5-hour school day for each child, are among the demands. Automatic wage increases are asked from a minimum of $2,000 a year, with allowance for additional training and other qualifications. Old age pensions of three fourths of the pay at retirement after 30 years of employment; pay during illness and quarantine or absence due to death in the family, and absence with pay to permit further training are also demanded.

Wants Teachers' Councils.

On the matter of teacher discipline the union wants recognition of bona-fide teacher councils, not company unions, to help determine educational policy; academic freedom especially in social and natural science classes; trial boards with teacher representation; job security; elected school boards; abolition of the secret grading of teachers by principals and superintendents.

Not more than 1,500 children in one school and not more than 30 in one class are desired. Safe, sanitary and comfortable school buildings in which modern methods developed by experimental education prevail are requested to help carry out the ideal of "equal educational opportunity for all persons, without discrimination on account of race, religion or social status."

Only 24 Voters.

"The American of today gives more attention to individual pleasures and amusements than to the institutions molding the future of his children," Stecker says. As proof may be cited Ravinia, a Chicago suburb inhabited chiefly by college graduates and their families. Tho 400 voters signed the petition for a special election for a new school building to replace the over-crowded antiquated structure, only 24 turned up to vote, of whom 20 had no children of school age. But the bond issue carried, 21 to 3. Locals will agitate for the program in their cities and the federation will support them, Stecker promises.

State Convicts Build California Highways for 40 Cents a Day

MIDDLETON, Conn., August 7. — 3 work is to be prosecuted on the new automobile highway from Crescent City north. California state convicts will furnish the man power. The highway commission has decided that prison labor is the most economical that can be employed.

California overlords have always looked at convict labor as a juicy morsel. Their greedy desires have been thwarted in the past by opposition of labor unions. But now, with Governor Friend W. Richardson in power, they are getting what they order.

Richardson favors economy to save the taxpayers money. His thrift is for the sole benefit of the taxpayers. The working class is not considered as part of his economic system excepting for the purpose of exploitation.

After becoming governor, Richardson insisted that the cost of maintaining convicts be reduced. That cost has been cut down so that it ranges between 35 and 40 cents per day per convict.

Now he is determined that the convict 40-cent-a-day labor will build the highways, displacing free labor at $4.00 a day, minimum. With an $80,000,000 highway program on hand, the economy to be accomplished by convict labor will be immense and extremely gratifying to the taxpayers.

Supply of labor from the prisons affords subject for thought by the California aristocrats. There are not prisoners enough to build the highways without employing free labor as well. But that difficulty can be eliminated in time. With the displacement of free labor by convict more prisoners will be available.

Eventually California may have just two classes socially, namely, aristocrats, moving only in automobiles when they have to move and convict workers serving them.

ACCOUNTANTS GO AFTER MORE JOBS ON SCHOOL BOARD

Business Officials Say We Got Here First

The school board's rush building program is doomed to go on the rocks unless the business and architectural departments adopt more efficient management. This is a warning note sent in a report by the Griffenhagen Accountants, officially to the school board trustees, unofficially to incite the taxpayers.

The report brands these two departments as wasteful and inefficient and warns that the schools needed to relieve the congestion this fall will not be forthcoming. To save money and to speed up work they recommend the employment of more of their expert engineers and directors.

This little battle between the accountants and the board holds its lesson to the workers of Chicago. Each one is fighting for a bigger share in the tax pie that the workers have handed them. The accountants stay awake nights thinking up more jobs for themselves—the business offices want to hoard the spoils for themselves.

I am at present on the "jump" but when I get settled me for a sub to the WORKER. Let me congratulate you for publishing "Russia Today." Who knows how much it has done to help the English workers razz their "bloody" capitalists? And it won't make the army of labor fakirs in this country feel any better when its message reaches their dupes, aided by the strong arm of the DAILY WORKER.

I was interested in the article on the failure of the I. W. W. and Laurence just now is an example of their folly, excitement and nothing lasting accomplished. As long as we fail to educate the workers as to why and how they are workers, the labor fakir will fool and mislead them, but educate the worker and the fakir will run from him as from a pestilence.

More power to you in your battle with the labor fakirs.

The Railroads and the Mines

The London correspondent of "Labor," organ of the railroad unions, in a cabled story of the eleventh hour settlement of the threatened coal strike, lays great stress on the important role played by the British rail unions in the controversy, and in forcing the government to knuckle down to the miners.

Up until the last moment Baldwin had informed the owners that they would receive no subsidy. He also told the miners that they must accept a reduction in wages. But he suddenly changed his mind.

And Labor's correspondent declares that the order of the railroad union officials to the membership, instructing them not to handle any coal for either factories or homes was an important factor in Baldwin's final decision. This looked like business.

It remains to be seen whether the American rail unions will take similar action in the event of a miners' strike after September 1st. With nonunion mines hoisting soft coal in addition to the large supplies on the sidings, and with trainmen to haul it to the theaters of consumption, the coal operators could laugh in the faces of the striking mine workers.

On the other hand should the railroad workers refuse to move any coal on land and the marine and transport workers refuse to touch any coal coming over water, not only would the miners be able to win the strike but they would also be able to unionize every scab pit in the United States, provided they get the right kind of leadership.

Unfortunately they are handicapped in this respect. Lewis has played with the operators until he has almost wrecked the once powerful union. He has spent the money of the organization, supplementing the stoolpigeons of the department of justice in hounding the radicals and progressives, the backbone of the union. He has expelled some of the best and most loyal men in the organization because of their loyalty to the workers. He is more concerned with teaching the operators how to make profits so that they may be able to make enuf money to satisfy Lewis's conception of a proper wage for a miner than with strengthening the union and forcing the coal barons to disgorge some of their swollen profits. Lewis, instead of being concerned about organizing the non-union miners wants to drive a few hundred thousand miners out of the industry. The operators don't want this of course. The more nonunion miners there are floating around the better for them.

Lewis' policy of collaboration with the operators has proven a failure. He is now compelled to make a show of fighting after repudiating a strike policy. But will he make a fight? That is the burning question.

If he means to fight in earnest, he will invite the railroad unions into a conference as A. J. Cook, secretary of the British Miners' Federation did. Now that Warren S. Stone has passed away, it is possible that the present chief of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, might be more amenable to an alliance. The rank and file of the railroad workers are certain to take to the idea.

The victory won by the British miners thru the united front policy is a lesson to the workers of all countries. With labor united it can win. What are the American miners and railroad workers going to do about it?

Two Years of Coolidge

The Boston police strike of 1919 made Calvin Coolidge vice-president and Warren Harding's addiction to heavy meals sent "Silent Cal" to the White House. The strikebreaking president ran into some squalls shortly after his inauguration to fill out Harding's unexpired term. But tho badly drenched he weathered the Teapot Dome scandal and found time to send his clothes to the cleaner before the K. K. K. broke the democratic donkey's back and smoothed the path of the canny Vermont politician, who has proven a very useful man to big business.

It is now two years since Coolidge took the oath of office from his father in a farmhouse in Plymouth, Vermont. What has he accomplished since then? His main accomplishment, and his main boast has been the reduction of taxes on the rich. Not once by word or act has he given any indication that he considers any other class, but the capitalist class, worthy of consideration.

The ten per cent wage reduction in the textile industry does not interfere with the calm of the strikebreaking president. Does not his manager, Senator William Butler, own many textile mills? The only matter of concern to President Coolidge is how he can best serve his masters, the exploiters who own him with his consent and who control the lives of the workers without their consent. When the latter realize their power, the exploiters and the Coolidges will go.

Berry on the Job—Again

George L. Berry, international president of the Printing Pressmen's and Assistants' Union, is in Chicago. He is here in his role of strikebreaker.

Five hundred members of the union walked out of the Cuneo plant when the company decided to reduce the crew of the presses by one-half. Berry ordered the pressmen to accept the company's decision. They refused. Therefore there was nothing else for "Major" Berry to do, but come in town and prove once more that he is one of the country's most efficient strikebreakers.

Berry likes to wear the title of "Major." But he was never nearer the firing line than "General" Dawes. In fact he got the title for services at the rear instead of at the front. The only military title Berry is entitled to is that of "Major Strikebreaker."

Chicago now has the unenvious distinction of harboring the officialdom of two unions affiliated with the American Federation of Labor, playing the role of strikebreakers. The other union is the United Garment Workers.

Berry maintains his hold on the union by creating sky blue locals, which have sufficient representaion at national conventions to keep the scab herder in power. Only when the pressmen organize their forces on a national scale will they be able to get rid of Berry and the perversion of trades unionism that he stands for.

BRITISH HOLD UP CHINESE CABLES; HERE THEY ARE

Kuomintang Grateful to Daily Worker

ality, cruelty, and bloodthirstiness of the Shanghai British police to murder openly, with revolvers and rifles, the Chinese students, and laborers, who did not carry even a single stick when lecturing in Nanking Road, in the last few days.

We are fully sympathetic with the dead, and still more sympathetic with the defenseless fellow citizens, and at the same time, can not help to consider that the personal liberty of the Chinese is infringed and our own lives are endangered in such a lawless, unjust, and bloodstained period.

So, we, the Chinese Seamen, are compelled to adopt a nonresistant measure by striking until the British and Japanese are convinced that they have wronged us, and surrender themselves to law and justice and accept the demands made by the General Union of Labor, Commerce, and Education.

THE BLOODTHIRSTY CAREER OF SEAMEN, Shanghai, June 8, 1925.

It is not surprising that the British would look coldly on this:

THE BLOODSTAINED CAREER OF CHINA THE MOST SAVAGE AND CRUEL SLAUGHTER EVER RECORDED IN THE HISTORY OF MANKIND.

Under direction of the foreign imperialistic capitalists, the Shanghai British police cowardly fired upon unarmed Chinese lecturing students, laborers, and onlookers on May 30, 1925.

Indiscriminate, and bloodthirsty shooting continued for several days, resulting in 41 killed and over 120 wounded; but none of the police was even injured.

Another but similar case occurred at Hankow on June 11th where 15 died and over 60 were wounded.

Whole nation is indignant, yet no aggressive resistance was adopted only a peaceful nation-wide strike has been instituted. But such a passive measure failed to wake up the imperialistic capitalists out of their dreams

And again another murderous shooting is reported from Shameen, Canton, on June 23rd, fire being opened with rifles, and followed with machine guns and 3-inch callibre guns by the British and other foreign soldiers and gunboats.

Over 80 died instantly, among which there were 14 girl students and 6 children, and over 400 were wounded.

We are now compelled to take the only course left to us to pay them back in their own coins. We are against neither the British people as a nation nor any European or Japanese as such, but we are against the imperialists who exercised a high-handed and brutal oppression over our race.

They are not only the enemy of us, working class, but also of any decent class and in any nation. They are the scourge of mankind! We are preparing for the last sacrifice for the emancipation of mankind.

Arise! Arise! Fellow-crusaders of all nations! We must struggle for the salvation of mankind, and suppress the imperialism. Your co-operation to achieve this end is earnestly requested.

THE WHOLE BODY OF CHINESE SEAMEN with 500,000 Striking General Laborers.

Here is another proclamation:

Thru the press of all countries of the world to the Seamen associations of all countries, labor organizations, labor movement promoters, and all who are interested.

After three times of bloodshed on unarmed Chinese students, laborers, and parading girls and boys in Shanghai, Hankow, and Shameen, Canton; and four raids of college; and dozens of times of assaulting, beating, and severe physical injuries applied to Chinese citizens, the Shanghai Branch of the Chinese Seamen's Union now ranks among the list of victims of the foreign haughty, greedy, and barbarous imperialists at Shanghai.

The said office was raided, without any reason, nor any official notice at 5:40 p. m., July 3rd, 1925, by fully armed police and detectives. Officers and members of the union were driven out without time to take any personal effects, and the office was immediately locked and sealed up.

What right has the foreign municipal council to do this? The Chinese seamen have rendered good service to all countries of the world—that is to mankind. And now we, together with our race, are suffering from such a vexatious and inhuman torture! Can you bear to hold aloft, without giving your immediate and needed help to suppress imperialism, and to efface the shame of mankind?

Our enemy is your enemy! Our defeat is your defeat!

Give us your helping hand without delay for the sake of civilization! and the future mankind! Else, you and all of us will ever fall!

THE WHOLE BODY OF CHINESE SEAMEN, WHARF AND TUG WORKERS, Shanghai, June 4, 1925.

The Kuomintang Party is very grateful to the DAILY WORKER for its generous publicity on the Chinese struggle for freedom.

UPHOLSTERERS STRIKE TO AID FIRED WORKER

Unfair Discharge of One Brings Labor Together

By JOHN GABRIEL SOLTIS.
(Worker Correspondent.)

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., Aug. 7.—Forty upholsterers walked out of the Brooks Parlor Furniture Company, 1115 East Hennipin in protest against the discharge of their fellow worker Bok. He was fired because the boss maintained that he was not an efficient slave, although the workers in the shop regarded Bok as a first-class mechanic.

The strike is remarkable in that there is no organization among the men.

The workers in this shop are suffering from several greviances. In the first place they are rebelling against the intense speed-up system, known as time work. Under this system their wages are being constantly reduced, and production continuously increased, so that the more they produce, the lower their schedule becomes.

When, recently, the Brooks Parlor Furniture Company entered the Chicago market with several suites of furniture, their prices were so low that Karpen Bros. of Chicago remarked that the goods must have been stolen to be sold so cheaply. The conditions of the workers in the Brooks shop, explain the prices.

The strikers are making the following demands:

(a) Reinstatement of Bok. (b) Abolition of speed-up system. (c) A fixed rate of wages.

A shop committee has been organized to negotiate with the boss on the basis of these demands. Mass picketing of the shop is in force. Meetings of the strikers will be held daily.

SWEDEN: Unemployment.—Thruout May, 1925, unemployment in Sweden was steadily declining, with the metal and machine industry accounting for the majority of unemployed.

BETTER PAY IS SLOGAN OF N. Y. SCHOOL TEACHERS

Elementary Grades Get Lowest Salaries

NEW YORK, Aug. 7.—Teachers of kindergarten up to 6B grade in New York public schools are conducting a campaign for a single salary schedule for elementary grades teachers which would bring this group into the better paid ranks. Minimum of $1,800 and maximum of $3,600 is the range of their proposed schedule. These teachers now make about $28 a week, less than many stenographers, and that after six years' preparation.

After 11 years' work they may now get $55 a week. Their time is much more taken up by personal details required by parents of the smaller children and they are not able to supplement their earnings as teachers by outside work as many New York taechers are now doing because of low wages. The elementary grade teachers deal with all of the children in the public schools while upper grade teachers have only those who continue their schooling longer.

Because of their greater numbers the elementary school teachers are usually given the smallest wage increases, when any are given. Mary R. Noonan, president of their group, has filed a brief for the single salary schedule with the board of education.

'SECURITY' PACT AGAINST RUSSIA PROMPTED BY U.S.

Houghton "Suggested" Plan to Stresemann

WILLIAMSTOWN, Mass., Aug. 7.—America, through Alanson B. Houghton, recently ambassador at Berlin, and now at London was the "spiritual author," of the proposed "security" pact by which England and America hope to attack Soviet Russia in alliance with Germany, it was stated here by Prof. B. E. Schmitt of the University of Chicago.

Schmitt told the institute of politics meeting here, that he was well informed while in Europe that Houghton "suggested" the idea to foreign minister Stresemann at Berlin.

"If one asks in well informed circles," said Schmitt, "one is told that the present ambassador in London is spiritual author of the negotiations now proceeding between Great Britain, France, and Germany."

JARDINE'S BEDTIME STORIES TO FARMERS IS DIAGNOSED BY FARMER IN PLEA FOR CLASS ORGANIZATION

By FRANCES M. DICKEY.
(Farmer Correspondent.)

LANGLADE COUNTY, Wis., Aug. 7.—Surely some magic wand has touched the farmers of Iowa if we are to accept the words of W. M. Jardine, Secretary of Agriculture. But the miracle turns into a fairy tale as soon as one surveys the economic standards of neighboring states.

Having lived in Langlade County, Wis., some thirty years, I can say with authority and prove that things have gone from better to worse.

For example: My neighbor, Mr. W. 30 years ago bought 70 acres of land, improved it, paid for it and kept a family of ten. They all worked hard to make a little place for themselves. In 1918 when the war broke out he was comfortably fixed. Today finds him and his wife (who were thrifty and hard working), workworn and struggling under the burden of taxes and mortgages which they can never hope to meet while they live.

A Farmers' Wish.

Talking to a farmer the other day brought this: He told me his hope was that some day he would by dint of hard labor reach the stage where he and his family could afford to permit themselves the luxury of consuming all the milk and cream they need and fresh eggs once in a while. These products the farmer produces but does not consume as he is forced to sell them to meet taxes, interest loans, and mortgages.

Everyone familiar with farming knows what an 80 acre apple orchard should produce in a year. Yet, Mr. S., who with his family improved an 80 acre tract, which is now producing splendid crops yearly, and which was unemcumbered prior to 1918 today struggles under the weight of a $9,000 debt.

One might continue to point out similar cases indefinitely as the cases cited are no exceptions to the rule.

All Farms Mortgaged.

In the states of Washington and Oregan and thruout the entire west, the farmers are mortgaged for every dollar their land is worth.

The farmer works long hours and he works hard. His whole family works with him. He takes no holidays and even works on Sundays. Yet, it is no exaggeration that a man who began farming 30 years ago on 60 or 80 acres can sell today and the value represented in his property which he actually receives would amount to less than twenty-five cents a day in wages for 30 years. All of these golden blessings the farmer enjoys for the sole privilege of kidding himself about owning property.

The farmer thinks he owns a farm. Does he? He owns a farm in the same sense that a wage worker owns his job. If he cannot find a market for his products he losses his sacred private property in defense of which he sends his sons to capitalist wars starves his family and hates the laborer.

The time has come when the farmer will have to use his head for something besides a hat rack. By leaps and bounds the farmer is being forced into the renters' harness—then it is only one step to wage labor. With lighting speed capital is centralizing and piling up millions of farmers and workers in an army of unemployed.

They Belong with Working Class.

We farmers will have to fight or starve. And we cannot combat the exploiting class who is our enemy single handed. We must organize! We belong with the party composed of wage workers and farmers whose interests are identical to ours. We must train ourselves to think with our class. To this end there is no greater helpmate than the DAILY WORKER. When we learn to think as a class we will realize that the Workers (Communist) Party is the only party thru which we can ever hope to free ourselves.

SOVIET UNION SIGNS CONTRACT WITH TWO JAPANESE SHIP FIRMS

MOSCOW (By Mail.)—Owing to the scarcity of Soviet commercial vessels in the Pacific a contract has been concluded with two Japanese shipping companies concerning their activity with "Dobroflot" (the Volunteer Fleet) and the Ussury Railway in maintaining coastwise trade with Kamchatka and with foreign countries as well.

Y. W. L. STUDY CLASS OPENS IN CHICAGO MONDAY

Elementary Economics Is First Subject Taught

Local Chicago, Young Workers' League, is earnestly undertaking the task of Communist education within its ranks.

At the last meeting of the City Central Committee, the recommendation of the City Educational Director that a two-session class for new members of the league be started, was accepted. Attendance in this class is compulsory to all applicants for admission into the Y. W. L. before they may be considered bona fide members of the league.

The class will open Monday, Aug. 10th, at 8 p. m. at 2613 Hirsch Blvd., and will close with its final session on Aug. 17th. The class will be renewed as often as new members appear in the league. The first session will deal with elementary Marxian economics and will be conducted by Rebecca Sacharow, City Educational Director. The second session will deal with the character of the Young Workers League and will be conducted by John Harvey, City Industrial Organizer. Then the students will be required to write a short article on the nature of the Young Workers League. The best article received will be published in the Young Worker.

Students to Conduct Discussion.

The method to be used in this class will be the question method. A list of questions on the two subjects dealt with will be prepared and used in the class. Each question will then be put to the comrades and wherever possible they will supply the answers, the instructor supplementing them and answering those questions which the comrades are unable to answer. For instance, at the first session such questions as: "What are wages?" and "How is profit made?" will be put to the students. This question method was used in the League here some time ago and the comrades liked it very much. It is often difficult for a newcomer into the revolutionary movement to learn much from one long lecture, but if a limited number of concrete questions are asked and answered in a two hour session, much will be gained.

All comrades who have joined the League since January, 1925 to the present date, will attend the two sessions opening August 10th. The subsequent classes, however, will be comprised only of members who join at the time. The secretary of each branch will therefore notify those of its members who joined the League since January, 1925, to be present at the class Monday. Each secretary should see to it that there is a one hundred percent attendance at this class from his or her branch.

Another Class in Fall.

This class in itself is of course not sufficient to give our members a comprehensive understanding of Marxism. Plans are being made to open an extensive class for beginners in the early fall. This two-session class for applicants will simply serve as an introduction to this beginners class. A class for advanced comrades will also be organized this winter. In this way we will raise the theoretical level of our membership to a point where it will serve each one of us as an effective weapon in our fight to emancipate the working class from the yoke of capitalist exploitation.

Foreign Exchange.

HARRIMAN TRUST BEGINS WORK ON SOVIET LEASE

Manganese Concession Already Occupied

MOSCOW,—(By Mail)—The president of the board of directors of "Chemo" (the Chiaturi Manganese Exporting Society) has informed a representative of the press that in connection with the signing of concession agreement with Harriman preparations are going on for turning over to the concessionnaire of property belonging to the government in Chiaturi and in Poti.

All property will be turned over in the course of two months. It is possible that the stock of ore will be sold or given to the concessionnaire of property belonging to the government in Chiaturi and in Poti.

All property will be turned over in the course of two months. It is possible that the stock of ore in store will be sold or given to the concessionnaires on sale or return.

Organize Technical Staff.

When the property is turned over and the "Chemo" liquidated, the concessionnaire will organize his office and technical staff in Tiflis, Poti and Chiaturi, where the head office is to be opened.

The arrival of Engineer Rascovich, Harriman's representative, is shortly expected in Tiflis. Rascovich is one of the most prominent experts of the world's manganese industry. He has been in Africa and other parts of the world, where large manganese mines are worked. He also visited Chiaturi last year at the beginning of the concession negotiations. It is supposed that Rascovich will direct the whole enterprise.

Together with Engineer Rascovich there arrives at Tiflis, Mr. Shellings, former director of the Ionic Bank in Constantinople, who will take charge of directing the financial part of the concession.

Kameneff Makes Statement.

Touching upon the big Chiatursk manganese concession, Kameneff, acting president of the Council of People's Commissaries and chairman of the Council of Labor and Defense concurrently, remarked that if the government of the Union gave this concession in the face of the fact that the Union having the monopoly of manganese output could practically control the entire European production of steel, it only means that the Soviet government sincerely wishes to attract foreign capital, of course being at the same time mindful of really guaranteed advantages accruing to the country from any given deal.

Foreign capital, which wishes in good faith to co-operate with the Union, can thus be assured that the Soviet government is willing to enter upon any mutually advantageous business transactions.

To Transform Railroad.

Economically, the most important point about the contract is the obligation undertaken by the concessionnaires to transform the local narrow guage railway Skatcherry-Chiatury-Poti into a normal guage line, to mechanize the production of manganese and loading appliances and to build a ferro-manganese mill.

The running of the concession is bound to supply work to many a thousand Georgian workers, this work to be done with strict observance of the Soviet labor laws.

File Bill Against Anti-Evolution Law

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., Aug. 7.—A petition filed with a federal injunction by John R. Neal, senior counsel in the defense of John T. Scopes, declares that the theory of evolution is in direct conflict with the story of creation as told in the bible, it was announced here.

The bill charges that the Tennessee anti-evolution law is in conflict with the constitution of the United States, as it deprives the plaintiff of liberty to teach the truth.

Trotsky Trounces Eastman

By LEON TROTSKY.

Readers of the DAILY WORKER will remember the controversy aroused by the publication of Max Eastman's book "Since Lenin Died."

The DAILY WORKER was able to smash the campaign of the capitalist press (which was using Eastman's book as part of their propaganda for war against the Soviet Union) by securing a telegraphic refutation direct from Trotsky himself.

In the article below Trotsky follows his telegram with a detailed and crushing refutation of Eastman's book. We print it in full, notwithstanding heavy demands upon our space, because it gives an object lesson in the worthlessness of ninety-nine per cent of the assertions made by the capitalist press—and its dupes—about the Workers' Republic of Russia.

This is the more urgent since the war-propaganda against Russia—altho suspended—may be resumed at any moment.

• • • •

About Eastman's Book, "Since Lenin Died"

SOON after my return from Sukhum to Moscow, I learned from a telegram from Comrade Jackson, of the SUNDAY WORKER, about the publication of a book by Eastman under the title "Since Lenin Died," which was being made use of by the capitalist press for attacks upon our Party and the Soviet Government.

Altho my reply to Comrade Jackson was published in due course in the paper, I nevertheless think it useful to reproduce here its first part: "Eastman's book, about which you write, is quite unknown to me. The bourgeois papers which quoted it have not reached me. It goes without saying that I repudiate in advance and most categorically all comments directed against the Russian Communist Party." Further on in the telegram I repudiated the absurb insinuations as to my alleged change in favor of bourgeois democracy and freedom of trade.

SUBSEQUENT I received Eastman's book from Comrade Inkpin, secretary of the British Communist Party, who wrote me a letter similar to Comrade Jackson's telegram.

I had no intention of reading and still less of replying to Eastman's book being of the opinion that my telegram to Comrade Jackson, which in the meantime had appeared in the British and general foreign press, would be sufficient.

Nevertheless, some of my Party comrades who had read the pamphlet expressed their opinion that, in view of the references in the pamphlet to conversations with me, my silence might indirectly assist it in damaging our Party.

This has induced me to pay more attention to Eastman's production, and to acquaint myself in detail with its contents.

ON the strength of well-known incidents in our Party life, of the discussion of the methods of Party democracy, of State regulation of economic life, etc., Eastman arrives at conclusions which are unreservedly and entirely directed against the Party and may, if accepted on their face value, bring discredit on the Party and the Soviet Government.

I shall dwell first of all upon one item which is not only of historical but also of the most actual and vital importance—i. e., the Red Army.

About the Red Army.

EASTMAN makes it appear as if the Army, thru the change in the personnel of leadership, had broken up and lost its effectiveness, etc. It is a mystery how and whence Eastman derived this notion. Its absurdity is quite patent. At any rate, we should not recommend imperialist governments to base their schemes upon Eastman's revelations.

Eastman, by the way, does not seem to notice that by characterizing the Red Army thus he supports the thoroly rotten Menshevik legend about Bonapartism and Praetorianism—since it is clear that an army, apt to be broken up on account of a personal change in leadership, would not be a Communist or proletarian, but precisely a Bonapartist and Praetorian army.

The author quotes in his booklet a large number of documents, and mentions many incidents not infrequently second, third and fourth hand. There is in this little booklet a not inconsiderable number of obviously fallacious and mendacious assertions, from which we need only select a few of the more important.

Lenin's Letters.

IN several places Eastman alleges that the Central Committee has "hidden away" from the Party a number of most important documents written by Lenin in the last period of his life—such as the letters on the national question, the so-called "will," etc. This cannot be called by any other name than a slander against the Central Committee of our Party.

Eastman's words lead one to imagine that Lenin had intended these letters for the press. This is absolutely untrue.

In the course of his illness Lenin more than once addressed proposals, letters, etc., to the leading organs of the Party and its congresses. All these letters and proposals were, of course, invariably delivered to the quarters to which they were addressed, were brought under the notice of the delegates at the 12th and 13th Party Congresses, and never failed to have due effect upon the decisions of the Party.

Lenin's "Will".

IF all the letters have not been published this is because the author did not intend them for publication.

As for the famous "will," Lenin never left one, and the very nature of his relations with the Party as well as the nature of the Party itself made such a "will" absolutely impossible.

In the guise of a "will" the emigre and foreign bourgeois and menshevik press have all along been quoting one of Lenin's letters (completely mutilated) which contained a number of advices on questions of organization. The 13th Party Congress studied this letter most attentively, and drew conclusions in accordance with the conditions of the moment.

All talk about a secreted or infringed "will' is so much mischievous invention directed against the real will of Lenin, and of the interests of the Party created by him.

No Suppression.

NOT less mendacious is Eastman's statement that the Central Committee had wanted to suppress Lenin's article about the Workers' and Peasants' Inspection. The dissensions, if one may at all speak here of dissensions, which arose in this connection on the Central Committee were of quite secondary moment, having reference only to the question whether the publication of Lenin's article should, or should not be, accompanied by a statement of the Central Committee that there were grounds for fear of a split. But even this question was settled unanimously at the same sitting, and all the members of the Politibureau and the Orgbureau present signed an address to the party's organizations saying, inter alia: "Without entering, in this parely informative letter, into a discussion of possible historical dangers, of which the question has been rightly raised by Comrade Lenin in his article, the members of the Orgbureau and the Politibureau deem it necessary, with a view to avoiding possible misunderstandings, to declare with complete unanimity that there are in the internal work of the Central Committee absolutely no data which could in any way suggest the danger of a split."

This document, not only has, with ten others, my signature, but its very text was written by myself on January 27, 1923.

As this letter, expressing the unanimous attitude of the Central Committee towards Lenin's proposal about the Workers' and Peasants' Inspection, also has at bottom the signature of Comrade Kuibyshev, another mendacious statement of Eastman's is ipso facto refuted, viz., that at the head of the Inspection was placed Comrade Kuibyshev as an opponent of Lenin's scheme of organization.

Another Falsehood.

EQUALLY false and based obviously upon fantastical rumors is the statement by Eastman that the Central Committee had confiscated or kept back in one way or another my pamphlets or articles in 1923 or in 1924 or at any other time.

It is equally false to assert as Eastman does that Lenin offered me the post of President of the Council's Commissars and the Council of Labor and Defence.

I learn this piece of news for the first time from Eastman's pamphlet.

ONE could not doubt, when attentively reading the pamphlet, point out a number of other mistaken statements or preversions and distortions. One hardly, however, needs doing this. When making use of Eastman's "information" and quoting his statements, the capitlaist and, more particularly, the menshevist press have invariably underlined his near relations to me as the author of my biography, his alleged "friendship" with me—thus trying in an indirect way to lend his arguments a weight which in themselves they have not and cannot have. I am, therefore, obligd to speak also on this subject.

Trotsky's Relations with Eastman.

PERHAPS the nature of my real relations with Eastman will best be seen from a business letter which I wrote at the time when there was as yet no thought about his book "Since Lenin Died."

At the time of my stay at Sukhum, I received from one of my other comrades in Moscow, who had to do with the publication of my books, a manuscript by Eastman under the title, "Leo Trotsky: A Portrait of His Youth."

The accompanying letter from my comrade informed me that the manuscript which had been sent by the author to our State Publishing House, for publication in the Russian language, was making a strange and, to us, unfamiliar impression by its sentimental tone.

I replied to this letter by one dated April 3, 1925: "Even without reading Eastman's manuscript I entirely agree with you that it would be a mistake to publish it. Tho you have kindly sent the manuscript to me, I have neither appetite nor desire to read it. I willingly take your word that the manuscript is quite unappetizing, especially to us Russian Communists."

"Eastman for a long time had persistently tried to convince me that it was very difficult to interest Americans in Communism, but that they could be made interested in Communists. His argument did not lack plausibility, and it was this which prompted me to render him some assistance of a very limited nature: the limits were shown in my letter to him.*

"Of course I did not know at the time that he was going to publish this book in Russian. I should probably have advised the State Publications House not to print it.

"Naturally, I am unable to prevent his publishing the book abroad. He is a 'free' writer, has lived in Russia, has collected materials, and is at present in France, if not in America.

"Should I ask him not to print this book as a personal favor to me? I am not sufficiently intimate with him for that. And altogether, it would hardly be proper to do so."

I repeat, the question was about a perfectly harmless booklet relating to my youth, up to 1902, but the tone of my letter leaves no room for doubt that my relations with Eastman differed in nothing from my relations with a number of other Communists or foreign "sympathizers" who have asked my assistance in studying the October Revolution, our Party, and the Soviet State—not more than that.

'Quixotic!"

WITH a vulgar self-assurance, Eastman writes sarcastically about my nearest comrades of the Central Committee, whom, according to him, I spoke of in a friendly manner, at the moment of the "acrimonious" discussion. Evidently, Eastman regards himself as being called upon to correct my "mistake" and endows the leading personnel of our Party with such traits as could not be branded otherwise than by the word slander.

We have seen above on what a rotten foundation Eastman is trying to erect his building. He exploits single incidents of the Party discussion in order to blacken our Party and to undermine all confidence by perverting the meaning of facts and distorting all and every proportion. I should think, however, that any serious and reflective reader need not even take the trouble to verify Eastman's references and "documents" (which moreover would not be accessible to everybody), but would find it sufficiently simple to ask himself if the derogatory characteristics given by Eastman to the leading personnel of our Party had been true, how could this Party have gone thru the long years of underground struggle, have made the greatest revolution in the world, have been able to lead the millions, and to assist the formation of revolutionary parties in other countries?

No honest workers will ever believe the sort of picture drawn by Eastman.

It contains its own refutation. It is immaterial what were Eastman's intentions. His booklet can only render service to the worst enemies of Communism and revolution. It therefore objectively constitutes a weapon of counter-revolution.

July 1, 1925.

* On May 22, 1923, I replied to the reiterated requests of Eastman as follows: "I shall try to render you assistance in respect of bona fide information, but I cannot agree to read your manuscript, since it would make me responsible, as it were, not only for the facts, but also for the characteristics and appreciations. It is quite obvious that I cannot do this. I am prepared to bear some limited responsibility for the facts which I shall give you at your request. The responsibility for the rest will have to be borne entirely by you." This work of his only reaches the events of 1902.

Are the Finns Social-Democrats?

By Henry Askeli

Just now, there circulates an ugly rumor among the party members, to the effect that we Finns are social-democrats and supporters of the Two-and-a-half-International tendencies. This character assassination has gone so far that I think it proper to say in a few words just what we are, what we have accomplished and what we are fighting for.

We Finns are too modest. We do not like to praise ourselves, and our work. We believe that our work speaks louder than words. We simply go ahead, doing the best we can today, tomorrow a little better, without asking any glory, honor or fame.

In this respect I may say that our policy has been unwise. This modesty and humbleness on our part has resulted in a condition, where the party membership does not know much about us and now may "lend the ear" to the groundless rumors peddled about us by low minded plotters. Some honest comrades may believe that we truly are right-wingers, reactionaries and what not.

Brief History.

To place this matter properly before the jury of our party members I must relate a bit of history to prove that we have not "just started." We have been on the job when many of our slanderers were drying the back of their ears and learning their A. B. C.

Finns began to do socialist propaganda in the United States about 1899. During and after that year a number of isolated Finnish branches were organized. In 1904 the first convention was held in Cleveland, Ohio. This convention, however, did not succeed in forming a permanent socialist organization, because these branches were imbued with idealistic, theosophistic, philosophistic and many other istic thoughts, altho there was a strong left wing in that convention. Our comrades deemed it wiser, not to split, but to stay in those branches, because the ranks were there and therefore they were the proper place to do the work for socialism.

Their labors were in vain. Two years later another convention was held at Hibbing, Minn., where our federation was formed and affiliation with the socialist party decided almost unanimously.

Then started a rapid growth of the Finnish socialist federation. Its membership rose up to 12,651 in 1913. Then on account of a split, which occurred next year (1914) the membership declined to about 10,000. I will later relate about the ideological grounds of this split. Our present membership is about 8,000 which is a very good percentage, when we consider that there are about 170,000 Finns in this country. We are, therefore, about five per cent politically organized. This is a far greater percentage than any other nationality in the United States.

Altho the Finnish Federation is not numerically the strongest Finnish organization in this country (two religious organizations have more members) we are the most influential. Our influence is felt in every walk of life among the Finnish immigrants. Our three daily papers, which own their buildings and plants, have the combined readers of about 50,000 daily and are very effective factors in forming the opinion of the Finnish reading public. We have built numerous meeting halls and labor temples, where now, not only our own meetings, but also the Workers Party meetings and socials are held. Our dramatic, athletic, musical, debating and other social activities are drawing the workers, young and old, into our meetings and socials, under our influence and propaganda. It was thru our tireless efforts that the Finnish co-operative movement was established and is now the most effective section of the American Co-operative movement.

But we did not stop at merely getting members into our organization. Then started the most thoro educational work. The success thus far achieved by our federation is due to the elaborate educational work we have done and are doing at the present time. Six and eight week training courses are held every year in the east, central and western states, with elaborate theoretical and practical curriculum. We realize that the unity, enthusiasm and devotion of the labor organization rests upon intelligence and education. Beside these courses, we have one and two week lecture courses, which are held almost in every branch of the federation every year. We also have propagandists and speakers who are touring our branches continually.

Our federation has considered the education of the children and our youth as one of our most important tasks. We realize that they are the ones who inherit our results and continue our work, when we have gone. Of late this has been one of our main functions. The results of this work are beginning to show now. The youth of the Finnish immigrant workers are gradually taking the place of the older ones. It follows naturally from such a training. I may mention as a practical culmination of this work the young workers' summer school just held at Waino, Wis., which has stirred up the American bourgeoisie more than anything else done by our party in the last few years. Education of the workers' youth will attack the very roots of the stronghold of capitalism. It undermines the ideological foundation on which it is established. While our accusers are busy scheming just how they could acquire the leadership of the party, we, besides our other work, were busy making this first Communistic summer school of youth a success.

Our Sunday school work is very extensive. Generally they continue to work the year around and besides these we have summer schools for smaller children.

We do a large publishing business. We have had an opportunity to study Marx, Engels, Plehanov, Lenin, Trotsky, Pannecock and many other internationall known authorities on revolutionary socialism and Communism long before their works were translated to English. Large editions of these works has been sold. There are more books by Lenin, Zinoviev, Trotsky, Bucharin, Radek, Tjumenev and others translated in Finnish, than there are English. Our collective efforts have made this possibte.

I can safely say that about 50,000 Finnish immigrants are under our influence and support our work. And they are the most advanced section of our people.

Where Have We Stood?

But all of the above does not disprove the claim that we are "the most reactionary section of the Workers Party." It only shows that we are practical people and good organizers. But how about the principles? Where do these Finns stand anyway? I will try to answer this phase of the question.

Again a little bit of history is required.

Our federation has always been on the left. This is not a meaningless claim. I have a lot of historical data to prove it.

At the close of the last century there was an ideological controversy in the social-democratic party in Finland. The left wing grew very rapidly as a natural reaction to the ruthless oppression of czaristic Russia and the treachery of the Finnish bouregoisie. The control of the party was in the hands of the petty bourgeois minded leaders. Finally the left wing got control of the party, and its program and tactics were changed accordingly. Czaristic oppression and economic exploitation compelled a large number of Finns to emigrate to the United States. Previously the Finnish immigrants had been almost exclusively agrarian workers, but now industrial workers were compelled to leave their homes. This industrial proletariat was mostly socialistic. Arriving here, they continued their socialistic propaganda. Some of the half-baked socialists had organized the workers' associations, which affiliated with the Imatra League, an idealistic organization, masquerading under the name of a workers' organization. In these branches the left wing socialist established their socialist nuclei and started to work to revolutionize them. As I have already stated, in 1906, at the Hibbing convention they finally won their fight. A new organization, our federation was formed there.

That was our first fight on principles of revolutionary socialism. In this controversy we fought for revolutionary socialism and against the petty bourgeois and their ideology and right wingers of all kinds.

In 1912 and 1913 a new controversy arose in our federation. Then we had the Workers' College at Smithville, Minn., maintained by our federation. Around that institution developed a strong anarcho-syndicalistic group, led by Leo Laukki. He and his followers wanted to make our federation a syndicalist organization and lead us away from revolutionary socialism. They were determined and had well organized their forces. Their weapons against us were the opportunistic tendencies of the socialist party of which our federation was a part of. We admitted that there were undesirable features about the socialist party, but still that was just then, with all its weaknesses, the only political party with some membership, which, with patient work could be trained to revolutionary ways of thinking. At least in theory it advocated the class struggle and an uncompromising fight against the capitalist class. Our syndicalistic comrades attacked the principle of political action and wanted direct action, industrial action and complete abandonment of all political activity. We claimed that the political action is needed in the class struggle and that we must work with the politically organized workers in America. This group of radicals, Laukki and others, told us that they were revoltuionary, that only they were genuine Marxians, that they were scientific socialists and all that kind of talk. They were everything in their opinion and we, our federation, was nothing but incapable and inefficient politicians. They wanted to lead our federation out of bondage to the pastures of peace and plenty thru direct short cuts.

We refused to believe that. We saw that they had syndicalistic tendencies and the leadership fever of a very high degree. And finally in 1914 another split occurred. About 3,000 members were expelled and withdrawn from the federation.

Radicals grouped themselves independently and started to fight among themselves on the issue: "Who is the greatest among us." Now this group is almost completely wiped out. Honest workers have come back to our federation and the others, the remnants are now fighting the Comintern, and Profintern.

Again, in this second controversy our federation upheld the banner of revolutionary socialism. Anarchists, syndicalists, leftists, the left Commounist who were stricken with infantile sickness, left us and we continued our work as usual. During this controversy the most thoro discussion on principles and tactics of revolutionary socalism was held. Our critics in some extent put up intelligent arguments and we profited much by them. Of course we made many mistakes, which every progressive labor organization will do, but they were corrected at once.

The socialist party was not satisfactory to us, but we tried to revolutionize it and we hoped that with the aid of other revolutionary comrades we would finally succeed. However, other comrades chose to go a different way. They organized themselves into a left wing organization, thereby giving the reactionary leaders of the socialist party enough cause to expell them in 1919. Altho we were on the left, we had different tactics. We did not want to leave the organization in which we had worked so long. It is an easy matter to get out of an organization, but it is a big task to organize one. We realized that and tried to urge our left wing comrades to stay in and come back into the socialist party and then expell the reactionaries. We did not agree with the policy of the party leadership, but the socialist party had an organization, prestige and propaganda facilities, which were worth something. With a little tactic they could be captured and made to serve revolutionary socialism. It was a sad sight to see ten per cent expel ninety per cent; this was the tactic selected by our left wing comrades. They were about ninety per cent of the party. Still they let ten per cent reactionaries expel them.

When the left wing socialists were expelled from the socialist party, they organized themselves, wrote their programs and declarations of principles, which were decidedly leftist documents, so much so that later the Comintern had to correct them in several instances.

Of course we could not then withdraw from the socialist party. We knew that it was not an easy matter to sever such old political ties, with which we were tied to the socialist party. Many of our members were still faithful to the socialist party, and we had to start a strong campaign of education in the federation against the socialist party, and its reactionary leadership, and in favor of withdrawing from it. This took some time, but we could not help it. We wanted to take the entire federation with us when we were ready to withdraw.

Then we were severely criticized. Our left wing comrades criticized us as right wingers and opportunists; and the Socialist party leaders and their supporters, criticized us as Communists, impossiblists, etc. Many unjust criticisms were thrown upon us. We were between two fires and I must confess that it was not an easy matter then to correctly analyze the conditions and find a correct policy to pursue. Had we followed the instructions and orders from our left wing comrades and withdrawn from the socialist party then we would have wrecked our organization. So we decided to stay until our federation, as a whole, willingly withdrew from it. However, there were other forces working, not always wholesome ones, and we were compelled to withdraw from the socialist party prematurely, resulting in the loss of about 2,500 members, many halls and one daily newspaper. We pointed this to our well meaning left wing comrades, but they refused to believe it. They had the leftist tendencies to very marked degree and our maneuvers were foolish to them. Now every honest "after the battle" observer admits that we were correct in our contention, that our policy had been the better one. However, we could do no better than leave the socialist party to a handful of reactionaries and bureaucrats, when all other left wing comrades were expelled, or withdrawn.

In this controversy we got rid of the right wing element, social-democrats and the supporters of the Two-and-a-Half International. "Principles of social-democracy" and its entire ideology was condemned by our membership.

I do not need to say much about our stand in the Workers Party and the role we played in its organization. Everyone who has been with the party since its organization, knows that we have worked to our utmost to make the Workers Party an efficient instrument in the fight for the workers' rights. We are strong for organization and education. Maneuvers do not, in our opinion, make the Workers Party. We must build the Workers Party first; make it into something, so that it must be recognized when American workers begin to organize politically. As long as we are weak, small and inefficient, we will not be considered as an important social factor in the coming struggles of the American workers. Therefore our main task is to build the Workers Party. Finns are behind this one hundred per cent.

Present Controversy.

Our federation was against the La Follette and that kind of a farmer-labor policy and all the maneuvers of that sort. We considered them as futile short cuts, which, in a final analysis are menshevikl tactics pure and simple, more simple than pure. We fought against that policy, but when our party decided in favor of such an adventure, like good Communists we obeyed. And then when several unsuccesful attempts were made and the party with the aid of the Comintern finally rejected such a policy, we were delighted. And we hoped that at last our party has gotten over its menshevism and leftism and begins to work earnestly for Communism.

But our joy was short lived. Our party executive was split. A majority and a minority began functioning and theses after theses were given out! declaration on principles and policies, statements and "facts for workers" were given out, even personal attacks appeared in our party organ. And the only given reason for all of that was: "shall we continue our (menshevikl) policy of advocating the farmer-labor party" when historical and purely American objective factors are against that kind of policy. Ninety-nine per cent of our membership is against that kind of policy. "Let's be something first. Then talk about maneuvering and federating with the other groups." This is what our federation rank-and-filers say. Our membership does not want the high sounding phrases and useless talk about the absolute and correct Communistic policies. We know that the correctness of all the policies of the labor movement is only relatively true and correct. Then when some group of members talk that they are suitable material for the party leadership, because they are true Marxians, and scientific analysists of the conditions, honest, sincere, and characterize themselves with all kinds of adjectives, it reminds us of the controversy we had in 1913 and 14, when we also had such big headed members, who were badly stricken with infantile sickness and the leadership bug.

The amusing feature about this controversy is that the minority of the party is so deadly against us, and denounces us with very bitter terms. They have been busy colletcing evidence that we are supporters of "Loreism." Of course they are doomed to fall in their efforts. We have no opportunistic tendencies, but neither have we any leftist tendencies, which are just as bad. Some of the minority comrades descended so low as to peddle lies about us. And these slanderers and character assassinators have been converted only recently to a Communistic way of thinking. Now they are usurping the authority to denounce us, who have worked faithfully the last twenty-five years for revoltuionary socaliism and Communism.

What do We Want Now?

I feel confident that I speak for every one of our federation members when I say that we want:

1. Immediate cessation of factionalism. Organized groups which are eating the life out of the party, must be liquidated. And we pledge ourselves to see that machines are liquidated and machinists disciplined, or expelled

2. Only one executive committee, not two, like we have now. We must get over the idea of having a group or factional representation in our executive committee.

We also want an executive committee with nerve, and a sense of responsibility, and Communistic understanding, so that they can settle questions, without foolishly appealing to higher party bodies on every little question. Hesitation, indecision and a vacilation policy is destructive and must be done away with.

3. We want the shop nuclei form of organization, not so much that it is practical, tried and true, but because theoretically it appears practical and true and this must be shown.

4. We do not want the language federations in the party. All language federation must remain Communistic propaganda organizations, working independently under the ideological leadership of the Workers Party.

In conclusion, I want to say that our slanderers have no patent or copyrights on Communism. They have no exclusive rights on Communistic understanding. They, as well as all of us, make errors. I do not wish to leave the impression that our federation has not made any errors. We have made numbers of errors, but we have also done something. Those pure and good "Marxians" that do not do anything may remain free from any human errors, but in my estimation they are bum Communists.

Cannon Replies to Henry Askeli

By JAMES P. CANNON.

Comrade Askeli's article follows the two statements published by the Finnish Branch of Superior and is directly related to them. The Central Executive Committee has declared that these statements contained a non-Communist tendency and represented the beginning of an ideological preparation for a split in the Party. Comrade Askeli's article is another manifestation of this sentiment. It shows the same tendency in a clearer form and forces us to draw the conclusion that it amounts to an attempt to substitute a program of his own for the program of the Party and the Communist International. At the moment when the serious Communist workers are striving to unify their ranks on the platform of the Communist International, Comrade Askeli comes forward with an attack on the Communist International. Such propaganda tends to discredit the Communist International before the membership.

Comrade Askeli has presented a platform without one sound Communist plank in it. No one can accept this platform without first throwing away the platform of the Party and the Communist International. The loyal followers of the Communist International in the party, and especially those in the Finnish Federation, have no choice but to take up at once the most resolute struggle against the political platform of Comrade Askeli. The unity and integrity of the Party demand such a struggle.

Incitement Against the C. I.

The Communist International is the most priceless acquisition of the revolutionary proletariat of the world. The authority of the Communist International is the surest guarantee that the unity of our party will be preserved and strengthened, that disintegrating opportunism will not be allowed to get a string foothold, that mistakes will be corrected and that faltering leadership will be assisted, strengthened and equipped for its tasks. To make a breach between the party and the Comintern is the aim of those elements in all countries who shrink from the implications of a policy of determined revolutionary struggle. Comrade Askeli is following a policy which leads in this direction. His attack is directed first of all and above all at the authority of the Communist International. He opposes in a more or less direct way all the propositions put before the Party by the Communist International in its recent decisions. He then unites his opposition to the various specific proposals of the Communist International into a complete and systematic opposition with the declaration that he wants a Central Executive Committee with sufficient "nerve" and "responsibility" to "settle questions without foolishly appealing to higher bodies on every little question:" The practice of the Central Executive Committee in turning to the Communist International for advice and guidance and for the solution of disputed questions apparently does not commend itself to Comrade Askeli. He regards it as "Hesitation, indecision and a vacillating policy", which, he says, is "destructive and must be done away with."

What is such talk but incitement against the Communist International? And what could be its effect but to lead to a break between the Party and the Communist Internation? To let the Party become the prey of disintegrating tendencies and render it powerless?

Loreism.

With such an attitude of general opposition to the Communist International, it is quite logical for Comrade Askeli to find himself out of line with its specific decisions on the situation in our Party. The Comintern has put before the Party as one of its most important tasks the liquidation of the opportunist ideology of Loreism. Comrade Askeli has nothing to say on this question, except to deny the accusations of sympathy with Loreism. The open statement and direct attack on Loreism which all leading comrades should make without hesitation or evasion is lacking. On the contrary the article makes many concessions to Loreism.

Comrade Askeli says the Finnish Federation got rid of the right wing elements and the ideology of the two and one-half international at the time of the split with the Socialist Party. We are confident that the overwhelming majority of the membership of the Finnish Federation will demonstrate that they have broken so decisevly with this ideology that no one will be able to lead them back to it. But in the light of this article we cannot be so confident of Comrade Askeli. A remnant of this ideology has found its way into his article.

The Labor Party.

Our most important political question is the question of the Labor Party. The future growth and development of our Party is indissolubly bound up with the solution of this problem. The first decisive steps of the American workers in constituting themselves as a class, and entering the political arena as such, will be taken thru the medium of a Labor Party. The solution of the Labor party problem is therefore of incalculable importance. It is in fact the key to the American Labor movement. Every member of the Party must understand this.

The Enlarged Executive Committee of the Communist International has solved the Labor Party problem, correcting the past mistakes of all groups in the Party and laying down a clear political line for the immediate future. It is of the utmost importance that every leading comrade take a clear and unequivocal stand on this question. Mistaken conceptions of the past must be openly acknowldeged and resolutely put aside. The whole Party, as one man, must consciously swing its energy into the Labor Party movement according to the policy of the Communist International. In order to make this possible all leading comrades in the Party and in the Federations must have a unified point of view. A negative or half-hearted attitude is not permissable.

Comrade Askeli confines his remarks on this question to a couple of sentences that only serve to confuse the issue. He speaks of the questions of the Third Party Alliance, the Farmer-Labor Party and the present Labor Party policy of the Party, making no distinction between them. He throws them all into one pot, labels them all "maneuvers" to be avoided and then concludes with the assertion that "99 per cent of our membership is against that kind of policy." Such a method of presenting the question can only confuse the comrades.

"Maneuvers."

Political adventurism, maneuvers that are not based on a true analysis of all the factors in the given situation, are very dangerous for a party. But to proceed from this premise to a rejection of all maneuvers is to falsify and distort the Leninist standpoint. One of the most incorrect and harmful aspects of Loreism is its opposition to maneuvers and its undialectic conception which arbitrarily separates organization and propaganda from action and maneuvers. Askeli makes this error when he says, "We are strong for organization and education. Maneuvers do not, in our opinion make the Workers Party." This conception is wrong. A fighting Communist Party cannot be built upon it.

Organization and propaganda, actions and maneuvers, must be united in an organic whole. Without ability to maneuver there is no capacity for action and no real Communist Party. The paralyzing dogma of "no maneuvers" must be eleminated from our conception at all costs. The great leaders and teachers of Leninism are constantly pressing this idea as a life and death struggle to the Communist Parties. Only recently, the Executive Committee of the Communist International was obliged to adopt a special resolution against the doctrine of "no maneuvers" which was threatening to paralyze the Communist Party of Germany and which had already lead it to the most serious errors in connection with the question of the monarchy. "The Communist Party of Germany must learn how to maneuver," said the resolution of the Communist International. Our Party must also learn and in order to do so it must reject the standpoint which is presented by the article of Comrade Askeli.

Shop Nuclei.

The Bolshevization of the Party implies reorganization on the basis of shop nuclei. Our Party is confronted with collossal difficulties in this respect on account of its small membership and many national divisions. The success of our campaign to construct the Party on the shop-nuclei basis requires the active, conscious and whole-hearted support of the leading comrades of the various federations. Comrade Askeli does not give such support. He gives the shop nuclei form of organization only a negative endorsement and attempts to discredit it in advance with the statement that he favors it, "not so much that it is practical, tried and true, but because theoretically it appears practical and true and this must be shown." The transformation of our Party from the sociali-democratic form of organization to the Communist form of organization, built in the work-shops, will never be accomplished by such a skeptical attitude. The position of Comrade Askeli amounts to opposition to shop nuclei, under the flag of lip-service to it. The Party must oppose and reject this standpoint.

The Federation Question.

The Communist International and the Central Executive Committee of our Party have come to the definite conclusion that the existance of separate language federations must be done away with. The language federations must be fused into a single centralized party. The organization letter of the Communist International gives detailed and specific instructions on this question; and the resolution of the Party commission takes a clear and definite stand for the complete centralization of the Party and the complete abolition of the present federation form of the organization. The energetic carrying out of these resolutions is an indespensible part of the process of Bolshevizing the Party.

On this vital question as well as on all the others raised in his article, Comrade Askeli takes a wrong stand. The letter of the Communist International and the resolution of the parity commission, provide for the reconstruction of the present language branches as non-partisan workers' clubs. The proposal of Comrade Askeli to maintain the federations on SYNOPSIS.—The structure and activities of the Soviet Union are keenly analized in the official report of the British Trade Union Delegation to Soviet Russia, which is being printed serially in the DAILY WORKER. The trade union leaders exhaustively record the achievements of the Soviet government in finances, and in the form of their government. Transportation, industry and agriculture were then taken up, the trade union leaders showing that production is steadily increasing. The study of agriculture showed that the Soviet Union is manufacturing and importing tractors and other farm machinery. The relation of the New Economic Policy to agriculture was then explained. "Russian agriculture is recovering slowly but steadily" was the conclusion of the British trade unionists. The important subject of the Union's foreign trade was discussed in yesterday's installment.

Regulation of Trade

(a) Customs Tariff.—In view of the complete control and partial conduct of foreign commerce by the Government, the customs tariff has lost much of its importance as a measure of protection for home industry and much of its use for revenue purposes. Because protection can be given to any extent to any enterprises by manipulation of the economic programme (Gosplan). And when more than three-fourths of the profits of commerce go to Government account, there is little profit in taxing them.

Thus in the latest tariff, there is a very considerable departure from all-round protection in the interests of an increase of production and of consumption. For example, agricultural manures and machinery especially, and generally all raw materials and machinery required for industry, are lightly taxed. There has also been a reduction of duties on articles whose importation seems to be in the public interests, such as tea, on which duty has been lowered 40 per cent.

(b) Commercial Program.—It is obvious that not only this policy of controlling foreign commerce in the national interest, but even the whole principle of conducting foreign commerce through official organs depends for its success on establishing the Program of Foreign Commerce for the whole nion Union on an economic basis that represents realities. This requires a structure of statistical information at home and abroad and of systematic investigation of every requirement of the vast and complicated inter-ramifications and inter-relationships of commerce that will take years to complete. And it will always be dependent for its actuality on the General Economic Program which is itself only in process of organization. So far, though progress is remarkably rapid, there is general recognition that until a year ago the general Commercial Plan was largely guess work. There was even some question whether a general plan was possible at all, or whether a general policy, for example, of encouraging exports and restricting imports, was not the most that could be attempted. And the first plans under the New Economic Policy seemed to confirm this skepticism. Thus, that for 1920-1 was entirely re-cast at least three times in the course of the year.

But already the results of 1922-23 suggested that a plan on broad lines was possible. For example, the plan estimated an export of 228 million gold roubles and the actual exportation was 210.6 million gold roubles. When, however, its details are examined, the difficulties due to insufficient data and incalculable factors, such as abnormal political strain and economic stress, are expressed in wide divergences between the planned allotments and the actualities. Taking the last figures we find as to exports:—

In Million Gold Roubles.

Grain	12.7	31.3	plus 18.6
Down	12.0	33.5	plus 21.5
Oil products	27.0	19.5	minus 7.5
Flax	30.0	13.2	minus 16.8
Raw hides	7.5	2.9	minus 4.6
Total exports	228.0	206.6	minus 21.4

These divergences were due to want of statistical information in the central administration. The local authorities being incapable of supplying it, an attempt was made to use the semi-official organizations, trusts, etc., for this purpose. This has given better results, and it looks as though the plan for 1923-24 will be more accurately realized in its details.

The general policy of the plan is to assess exports with reference to the general economic plan and to assess imports with reference to exports. It is assumed that there is no immediate prospect of exporting manufactured goods. Timber and oil products can be increased at will, while grain export will increase steadily and rapidly. Increase in the export of foodstuffs, such as butter, of which the pre-war export was 70 million roubles, and eggs, 90 million roubles, will depend on bringing the foreign demand to the door of the peasant producer, which again depends on the introduction of foreign capital.

Raw materials imported accounted for one-third in 1922-3; manufactures for two-thirds; while in 1923-4 raw materials and semi-manufactures were over half the imports. Imports, such as coffee, tea, rice, stationery, etc., were only 2½ per cent. From which it is evident that imports are pretty severely restricted to what is essential for the equipment and supply of industry. Further, the manufactures imported (1922-23) were in proportion of metal work, 22 per cent.; machinery, 48 per cent.; textiles, 11 per cent.; chemicals, 6 per cent.; fuel, 1-3 per cent.; luxuries, such as are not prohibited, less than 1 per cent.

Contraband

But the contraband trade especially in luxuries of which the importation is prohibited, has reached considerable dimensions with the growing demand, as private fortunes increase. The value of the total contraband importation was estimated at 100 million roubles in 1923. Of this a large proportion was contraband "Polish" tea, smuggled in defiance of the State Tea Administration. This business has been developed by a refugee merchant in Warsaw, V———, whose "Polish" tea is to be got all over Russia. The campaign against contraband is one of the main responsibilities of the Police (G.P.U.), which has a frontier gendarmerie for the purpose. But the long land frontier and the immense profits of the business will make it some time before contraband is mastered.

Financing of Trade

The Government was, in the first years of N.E.P., unable to finance its organizations for foreign trade, with working capital, and consequently merely assigned them funds in the form of goods and raw materials. These, thanks to favorable conditions for export, have now been largely converted abroad into financial valuta. As the operations of foreign commerce came to be put on a business basis by the establishment of Trusts, Mixed Companies, etc., direct financing by the Treasury was replaced by the opening of credits through the State Banks (Gosbank, Prombank). The banks found advantageous such credits to foreign commerce; as they thereby ensured the resources thus loaned from loss by the currency depreciation are eloquent of the enormous extravagence of the system in then still in progress.

This process is illustrated by the following figures:—

	Total of Foreign trade.	Directly financed by Government.
	In Millions of Gold Roubles.
1920	30.5	252
1921	230.2	303
1922	355.4	128
1922-3	350.0	87
1923-4	548.0	2

The figures of the years 1920-21 under War Communism are eloquent of the enormous extravagance of the system in this respect. Allowing for the fact that in 1922-23, of the 87 million gold roubles financed, 53 million was given in the form of credits, and in view of the figures for this last year, we can conclude that foreign trade is now financing itself on a business basis.

If the value of imports abroad for 1922-23 was as stated, 144 millions, and the exports, 206.8 millions, then to the former must be added for the cost of transport about 25 millions, and to the latter the exporters' profit—say 25 millions. The total to be financed became then about 400 millions, which had to be provided by the trusts and companies, or by the Treasury, or by bank credits, or by the credits of foreign agencies such as ...

In the absence of any later information, the financing of foreign trade in 1922-23 during transition to a banking basis may be of interest:—

Indirect Financing:

		Millions
The Commissariat of Foreign Commerce of R.S.F.S.R. and the Ukraine and special Ukraine organizations	about	80
Mixed Companies with Foreign and Russian Capital	"	10
Cooperatives, Centrosoyouz, Selskosoyouz, etc.	"	15
National Trusts, Syndicates, etc.	"	30
Organizations for raw materials (Gosribprom, Centrokishprdo, Khlebprod, etc.	"	15
Total	"	150

Direct Financing Under Budget.

Direct deals in Imports	"	33
Credit Loans for Imports	"	30
Financing of Grain Exportation	"	24
Total	"	87

Russian Credits and Overdrafts:	Export Credits	Import Credits
National Bank (Gosbank)	68	51
Industrial Bank (Prombank)	12	6
Russian National Bank (Rosskombank)	4	4
	84	61
Totals		145

Note: Of this 61 millions for Imports, 78 per cent was for financing textiles.

Foreign Credits:

		Millions
Foreign official agencies (Torgpredstva)	about	30
Foreign agency in London (Arcos)	"	46
Total	"	76

Note: Of the above 46 millions, 30 millions were financial credits from foreign banks, the remainder commercial credits.

Grand total ......458 millions

The excess of about 50 millions in this total over that of the total value of trade is explained by the financing of operations in the following year. This being the first year of the system there was no corresponding carry-over from previous years.

Trade Turnover

The term of Russian credits is mostly for six months, but export credits run up to eleven, and overdrafts are generally for three months; foreign credits are mostly for four months. On this basis we can calculate the respective capital employed in foreign commerce:—

	Gold roubles
Working capital about	150,000,000
National capital about	87,000,000
Banks, Russian and Foreign	115,000,000
Total	352,000,000

And from this again we can calculate that the capital engaged is turned over only every ten months. This at first sight compares badly with an average turnover three times a year pre-war. But here again changed conditions allow of no true comparison. Pre-war turnover was purely commercial and mostly in goods ready for export and re-sold at once on importation. Present conditions cover in most cases the whole transit from producer to consumer.

Foreign Bank Credits

The rapidity of progress depends on the rapidity with which foreign capital, especially in London, realizes that the financing of Russian trade is good business. There is some indication that this realization is spreading. Thus Russian banks have been able for some time to discount drafts of the Russian economic organizations with foreign banks, and are now beginning to be able to discount their bills. Arcos, Centrosoyouz, and other trading organizations are now having no difficulty in this respect.

British and German Trade with Moscow

One reason why it is to be hoped that British finance will not neglect good business with Russia is the probability that if it does, Russian trade will be taken by Germany. Germany is at present negotiating a commercial treaty, and has begun to dispute our supremacy in Russian commerce.

TRADE WITH GREAT BRITAIN AND GERMANY

(In percentage of total trade)

Great Britain		Per cent	Germany		Per cent

Imports	51.6	25.0	Imports	41.5	22.0

	Per cent of total
Great Britain	23.9
Germany	18.2

Of the 80.6 millions worth of purchases by the Russian foreign Government agencies in 1922-23, 34 millions, or 42 per cent., were bought in Germany and 30.9 millions, or 38.4 per cent., were bought in England.

Legal Status of Foreigners

Soviet legislation in respect of foreigners is inspired by two contrary principles, neither of which has entered into the foundations of ordinary international law. One is recognition of the international solidarity of all workers, which would bring in foreigners on an equal footing. The other is the determination—the result of bitter experience—not to admit foreigners to a position and power prejudicial to the Soviet system and national independence. On the whole, however, the present position of foreigners is immensely superior to that under Tsarism and even to that in certain Continental countries.

In the first place, a foreigner is defined as a citizen of a State not organized on a Soviet System. (Constitution of Union, 30-XII—1922.) Foreign workers have all rights of citizenship, and political refugees cannot be extradited. Extradition of criminals and the usual diplomatic immunities are provided for.

(a) Entry

The entry of foreigners is subject to the usual consular visa (which is at present, except in special cases, only given after reference to Moscow). Entry without a visa renders liable to a fine of 500 gold roubles (p. 98, Criminal Code). The Customs regulations are liberal, except one (p. 8), subjecting literature to inspection and possible confiscation by the police (G. P. U.). Money in excess of 500 gold roubles in value is put to the owner's account in the State Bank; jewelry, furs, etc., are allowed in reasonable amount.

(b) Residence

Foreigners must register within two months. They are not given labor cards. Exit from Russia is also subject to the usual permit. The Government reserves the right to deport as a police measure any foreigner whose life is not reconcilable with the conditions of a Socialist society; but time must be allowed him to settle his affairs (par. 73). Any foreigner may obtain citizenship; and wives do not take their husband's nationality unless they so desire. Foreigners' rights may be administratively restricted unless otherwise provided in commercial treaties.

The main restrictions at present are that they must get a permit to travel from one Republic of the Union to another. They may not fish in the White Sea nor the Northern Ocean. They may not wear foreign uniforms.

They enjoy equality before the Courts. They may be prosecuted for action against the Soviet State even outside Russia (par. 314, Crim. Code), but convictions must be communicated to the Foreign Office. (Par. 160 Code, Crim. Procedure.) Judgments in matters of divorce, etc., will be given, apparently, according to Russian law, not as is usual, according to the law of the domicile.

In all other respects—rights of property, profession, occupation, inheritance, they are equal with Soviet citizens. They are liable in principle to labor conscription, but in practice this is now only applicable in cases of national emergency. They are not liable for military service.

(c) Concessions

The legal rights of foreigners can be almost indefinitely extended by concessions, which all have the force of law and can be concluded with foreigners irrespective of whether their country is in contractual relations with Russia. Such concessions may contravene existing legislation and may give the concessionaire a privileged position as respects Russians. The property of a concessionaire may only be expropriated in so far as provided in the concession. Concessions are granted by the Central Committee on Concessions (Decree of March 8th, 1923), and negotiated through the concessions commissions of the Foreign Agencies (Torgpredstva). (For the commercial aspect of such concessions see the chapter on Industry.)

Concessions may also be granted within the limits of law by Provincial Governments for public services, such as gas, tramways, etc.

Foreign Companies

Foreign limited companies can be admitted, by permit, to the rights of judicial persons (par. 8, Decree of November 23rd, 1922). Foreign firms may operate in Russia through establishments, agencies, etc., under a decree of the Executive Committee of April 12th, 1923, provided they obtain a permit from the Chief Committee on Concessions with approval of the Executive Committee on Internal Commerce within a month. Russians in Government employ may not undertake such agencies. The conditions under which foreign companies apply for permits are regulated by decree of May 12th, 1923, which limits such permits to periods from one to three years which can be renewed.

General Conclusion

The information acquired by the Delegation both in the official data, some of which has been reproduced above, and in conversations, has convinced it that, although the centralized control of foreign commerce and its restriction to official and semi-official organizations causes considerable difficulty and delay in opening up commercial connections with foreign countries, yet that the present channels are quite workable with goodwill on both sides. It further believes that the desire for full and friendly commercial relations on the Russian side is such that when foreign traders can show that a minor relaxation of restrictions would be reasonable, the demand might be met. Finally, that great harm is being done to British interests in general and great hardship frequently inflicted on British citizens by the absence of full diplomatic and consular representation in the U.S.S.R. Such representation could be far better spared in countries where the political and economic system is on familiar lines than in States such as those of the Union where immense possibilities of international intercourse are developing under quite novel conditions.

Cannon Replies to Henry Askeli

a national scale, "working independently under the ideological leadership of the Workers' Party," would tend, in our opinion to separate still more the federations from the Party and reduce the control of the Party over them to a fiction.

Factionalism.

There exists in the Party a sentiment against factionalism and factional groupings. Comrade Askeli appears to be attempting to play upon this sentiment and to exploit it for his own factional purpose. The decision of the Comintern demands the liquidation of factionalism and calls for the unity of the Party on the basis of the political platform of the Communist International. Comrade Askeli would make it impossible to accomplish this result. Under cover of acceptance of the first half of this provision, his article reads like an attempt to prevent the unification of the Party and to create a new faction of his own on a non-Communist platform. The members of the Finnish Federation who are against factionalism must be on their guard and not allow anyone to maneuver them into a faction against the Party and the Comintern.

"History."

We would like to find some part of Comrade Askeli's platform which we could agree but this is impossible. The platform is wrong from start to finish. Even the "history" which Comrade Askeli recites is presented in a false light. He attempts to throw aspersions upon the glorious past of our Party and to take credit to himself for remaining in the Socialist Party after the split. It is quite true that the left wing made a tactical error in allowing the reactionary leaders of the Socialist Party to force the split too quickly. And it can also be admitted that the first programs of our Party contained some leftist mistakes. But in spite of all, the fundamental line of division at the time of the split, which completely over-shadowed all minor, tactical questions, was between revolutionary Communists and reformist social-democrats; and it is no credit to anyone who, at the decisive moment, remained in the ranks of the Socialist Party. In such a situation, one who has a clear Communist position always unites with the Communists, even tho he disagrees with their tactics. This is a fundamental principle.

We do not mean by these remarks to bring up the past in such a way as to cast any reflection on the comrades now in our ranks who took the wrong position in the historical days when the revolutionary vanguard in America was first organizing itself into a party. We know very well that many who remained in the Socialist Party at the time of the split and who later joined our ranks, have done and are doing good work for Communism. The error of the past has been made good many times over and now has only historical significance. It is quite unnecessary to refer to it again, and we would be among the last to do so. But when the history of the Party is considered, one should relate the past events in their true perspective. Comrade Askeli fails to do this.

The Federation Split of 1914.

We take issue with another part of Comrade Askeli's "History"—the part dealing with the split in the Finnish Federation in 1914. Moreover, we are of the opinion that the narrow attitude manifested by Comrade Askeli, may explain to a certain degree, the reason we have not had greater success in healing the effects of that split and in winning over to Communism the Finnish workers who have fallen under the influence of anarcho-syndicalism.

The platform of the syndicalist group in 1914 was politically incorrect, but so was the platform of the socialists. A true explanation of the emergence of syndicalism and anarcho-syndicalism as a phenomenon in the labor movement is impossible unless one understands and clearly states that pre-war syndicalism represented an extreme re-action against reformist, parliamentary socialism. Reformist socialism is the father of syndicalism. This is the way to explain the split of 1914 and to show to the syndicalist workers that the Communist Party and the Communist conception of political action have nothing in common with the Socialist Party and the socialist conception of political action against which they made a justifiable revolt, which led them to extreme and unsound doctrines.

The Communist Party and its Finnish section ought to represent, at least to a certain extent, a union of the best proletarian elements from the Socialist Party and the syndicalist movement. The Communist International was of this opinion when it invited the I. W. W. as well as the left wing of the Socialist Party to send delegates to its first Congress. The Communist International declared many times that the progress of the Communist Parties would be measured in a large degree, by their success in winning over the syndicalist workers to the platform of Communism.

Many of the best revolutionary syndicalists responded to the Communist International and are in its ranks today. They are fully entitled to be placed on an equal footing with the revolutionary workers who came from the Socialist Party, without recriminations with regard to the past being brought up against them. Comrade Askeli has no right to give such a one-sided account of the old fight and to ridicule and attack them in such a bureaucratic and intolerant manner.

Anarcho-syndacalism still finds too much support among the Finnish workers in America. It is one of the most urgent tasks of the Finnish section of our Party to win over the Finnish syndicalist workers to the platform of Communism and to draw the best of them into the Party. This task can be carried out successfully only on the condition that we adopt the correct Communist policy on this question and reject the policy of Comrade Askeli.

Fight for the Party

The great constructive work performed by the comrades in the Finnish Federation is known and appreciated by the Party. The organizing genius of the Finnish Comrades is responsible for many achivements from which the Party has much to learn. We know that many of the greatest undertakings of the Party, such as, for example, the establishment and maintainance of the DAILY WORKER would hardly have been possible without the loyal support and generous sacrifice of the Finnish Comrades. These facts are so well known as to need no special mention.

Comrade Askeli allows himself to present even these facts in the wrong way. In some of his language he creates the impression of an attempt to arouse among the Finnish comrades a Federation patriotism as against a Party patriotism, and to set them against the Party on nationalistic grounds. The sharp criticism which the party directs against such non-Communistic policies as those put up by Comrade Askeli are twisted around him and made to appear as attacks against the Finnish Federation and against the Finnish comrades as such. The Finnish Communists are bound to repulse such methods.

Any attempt to make a breach between the Party and the Communist International and to lay the basis for a split must be fought against by every Communist. The whole party must mobilize itself for quick and resolute action to defeat such designs, which, if allowed to gain headway, would endanger all the achievements of the past six years.

The efforts of Comrade Askeli to put himself up as the spokesman of the Finnish members of the Party and to identify them with his program does not by any means signify that this is really the case. We are absolutely confident that the overwhelming majority of the members of the Finnish Federation will reject the program of Askeli without hesitation and in such a decisive manner that Askeli and those disposed to support him will be compelled to abandon their plans. The Bureau of the Finnish Federation has set an example to the whole membership by its resolute and determined stand in support of the Party. The interests of Communism demand that the Finnish branches of the Party follow the example of the Bureau and repudiate the policies of Comrade Askeli and those who share his views. We are confident this will be done.

Our Struggle Against Loreism Must Be Concrete

By ALEXANDER BITTELMAN.

IT is always good to begin with a definition of Loreism. It is also necessary to show the historic background of Loreism, how it originated and developed in our party. But one must not stop at that. To expose Loreism effectively, to prove to our membership conclusively the opportunistic nature of Loreism, one must bring forword practical examples of its manifestations in recent party life. One must be able to show, by the everyday manifestations of Loreism, its right wing opportunistic nature. This is what I mean by proposing that our struggle against Loreism must be concrete.

A Few Samples of Loreism.

THERE are at the disposal of the party several significant samples of Loreism that are of very recent date. For instance, Loreism in the Communist fractions in the needle trades. This is a manifestation of Loreism, very much marked, very definite, which the C. E. C. was quite successful in combatting. There is a definite manifestation of Loreism in certain sections of our Finnish Federation. We refer here particularly to the statements of the Finnish branch of Superior, Wis. The C. E. C. and the Bureau of the Finnish Federation have taken up very energetically the ideological struggle against this manifestation of Loreism. But there is also a distinct Loreistic grouping in another section of the party which thus far has received very little attention in the general party press. We refer here to the very definite, very militant, and aggressive Loreistic tendency and group in the Jewish section of the party. It is to this particular group that the present article will be devoted.

The Loreistic Wing in the Jewish Federation.

IT is perhaps best to study Loreism on the development and present activities of the Jewish section of our party. The reasons for that are manifold. First, because the Jewish section of our party, altho small in numbers comparatively speaking (only about 2,000 members), yet it is a very militant and active section in the party. It is connected organically and intimately with the broad mass movements of the Jewish speaking working masses of the country and is exerting considerable influence upon the everyday struggles of these workers. It is for this reason that the opportunistic tendencies within the Jewish section have quite naturally made themselves manifest concretely in the political, tactical, and organizational policies of our party among the Jewish workers.

Secondly, the present Jewish section of our party is a result of a merger of two formerly distinct groups—a merger which took place when the Workers Party was formed. One of these groups was the Jewish section of the Communist Party of America, affiliated with the C. I. since 1919, the other group was the section of the Jewish socialist federation which split from the S. P. after its Detroit convention. It was this second group (which became a part of our party at the formation of the Workers Party) that brought with it not only a considerable membership, not only much experience in organization work, not only a number of influential mass leaders among the Jewish workers, but also a heavy burden of social-democratic traditions and prejudices. It is these social-democratic and Two-and-a-Half International tendencies that the Jewish section of our party had to struggle with during recent years. And it is in the struggle to outlive and discard these traditions and prejudices that our Jewish section has grown into its maturity and influence upon the masses.

The history of our Jewish section since 1919 and particularly since the formation of the Workers Party was in the truest sense of the word a history of struggle, ideological and organizational, against Loreism. It began when the Communist International was the central issue of the struggle. The question was, "Shall we join the Communist International unreservedly or with reservations?" It was an intense and bitter struggle which finally resulted in the almost complete victory of the adherents of the Communist International who stood for affiliation without reservations.

It then continued over the question of the now famous 21 points. This struggle lasted for quite a while. The result was the same, the complete triumph of the strategy of the C. I. incorporated in those 21 points.

The struggle against social-democratic traditions in our Jewish section then began to develop over the question of the role of the underground party. The social-democratic and Two-and-a-Half International tendencies in the Jewish section assumed the initiative and became the leaders in a life and death struggle for the abolition of the underground party. The main feature of their struggle was opposition on principle to the underground existence of a Communist Party and to combining legal with illegal work. The result of this struggle again saw the complete triumph of the Communist International. The underground party was liquidated because conditions had made it possible for the Communist Party to function openly. But, at the same time, it was deeply impressed upon the minds of our membership, and particularly upon the minds of many of those who were still deeply submerged in social-democratic traditions that there is nothing more fundamental in the organization principles of the C. I. than the combination of legal with illegal work.

The Bolshevization of the Jewish Section.

IN the process of this struggle between the Communists and the centrists in the Jewish Federation, four important things happened. Let us enumerate them.

1. Large numbers of the proletarian and basically revolutionary elements of the so-called original Jewish socialist federation group freed themselves of their social-democratic traditions and prejudices and became assimilated with the Communist group in the Jewish section.

2. Several very influential and capable comrades, formerly leaders of the Jewish socialist federation, broke completely with their former centrist attitude in the party and identified themselves fully and wholeheartedly with the Communist International and with the body of Communists in the Party. To realize what that meant for the Jewish section and for the party as a whole, it will suffice to mention the fact that among those comrades we find the names of such men as Olgin and Yuditch.

3. While assimilating and identifying with itself the best proletarian elements and the best leadership of the original Jewish socialist federation group, the Communist International and the party have succeeded in geting rid of and discarding a number of individuals who were also very influential and very powerful in the Jewish movement, but who were incapable of and unwilling to accept the Communist International and its policies. We refer here to such individuals as Salutzky, B. Hoffman, and several of their followers.

4. Having won over to the policies and tactics of the Communist International the overwhelming majority of the Jewish section of our party, having brot to complete identification with the C. I. the best and most sincere leaders of the original Jewish socialist federation group, and having gotten rid of the Salutzky-Hoffmann influence, the tremendously increased body of Communists in our Jewish section proceeded to build Communist influence among the Jewish speaking masses. In this work they were very successful. The wide influence of the party among the nonpartisan mass organizations of the Jewish workers and the powerful development of the party's Jewish daily organ, the Freiheit, is a standing monument to the successful struggle of Communism against Loreism in the Jewish Federation.

The Lingering Remnants of Loreism in the Jewish Section.

THERE is, however, yet, in the Jewish Federation, what could be designated as lingering remnants of Loreism. These remnants can be found in nearly every Jewish branch of the party. The comrades of this tendency are easily recognized by a peculiar attitude which is best described as veiled hostility to the Communist leadership in the Jewish section which at times becomes open opposition.

In common with Loreism in the party as a whole, these remnants of Loreism in the Jewish section are opposed to what they term maneuvers, and boast of the fact that they are "very strong" on organization and propaganda. The same as Loreism and opportunism elsewhere, the Loreites in the Jewish Federation sabotage and oppose strict party control over the activities of Communists in non-partisan organizations. Thru the whole of the activities of the remnants of Loreism in the Jewish Federation, there runs a thread of sullen anger and disappointment in the defeat of the Salutzky-Hoffman influence and mistrust in the present Communist leadership in our Jewish section.

The following is a telling illustration of this peculiar mood of the remnants of Loreism in the Jewish section. Comrades Olgin and Yuditch, and several more comrades of less prominence, are being attacked by these Loreites as traitors. Why? Because these comrades have definitely, sincerely, and wholeheartedly outlived their centrist inclination and have identified themselves with the Communist International and with the party.

These lingering remnants of Loreism refuse to make peace with Communist leadership in the Jewish section. Some of them have already reached the point of accepting Communist leadership in the party as a whole but they will not agree to the Jewish Federation being led by the present majority in the Jewish bureau, which is made up of comrades who have led in the formation of the Communist Party in 1919, plus those like Comrades Olgin and Yuditch who came from the original socialist federation group and have completely identified themselves with the Communist International. The liquidation of Loreism in the party as a whole means for our Jewish section the complete liquidation of these lingering remdants of Loreism.

In this final effort to liquidate social-democratic traditions in our Jewish section, the Jewish comrades must continue to follow the old Communist strategy which has proven so successful thru all these years. This strategy is not to surrender and give away a single working man or truly revolutionary intellectual to the Loreistic tendency in the Jewish Federation. It was this strategy that enables us to assimilate hundreds of workers from the camp of the original socialist-federation group. It was this strategy that enabled us to win for the C. I. men like Olgin, Yuditch, etc. Consequently this strategy must be continued in order to liquidate completely what is now only a small group in the Jewish Federation.

Know-Notihng-ism as the Most Modern Manifestation of Loreism.

CONFRONTED with the determined campaign of the party to liquiliate Loreism, quite a number of Loreites in the Jewish section have adopted the policy of either denying the existence of such tendency, or denying personal knowledge of the existence of such a tendency. It is a modern expression of the philosophy of know-nothing. This innocent-looking maneuver must not fool the membership of the Jewish section, because it is nothing else but a clumsy attempt to evade the issue, this issue being the liquidation of Loreism.

Why? Why do we call this philosophy of know-nothing an attempt to evade the decision of the C. I. and of the party to liquidate Loreism? Because the existence of this Loreistic tendency is so well known (it functions and finds its leading expression in the London-Salzman-Siegel group in the Jewish bureau), its manifestations in our daily work are so concrete and persistent that no one in our Jewish section can claim ignorance of these facts without exposing himself to the serious charge of either attempting to evade the issue, which is the same as giving support to Loreism, or of being so politically immature as not to be fit for any leading role in our movement.

The way to combat this philosophy of know-nothing is to present the issue in the most concrete form. Not only must we refer to Loreism in the party as a whole, not only must we refer to Loreism in the past, but we must also point our fingers at Loreism in the Jewish section and to its recent manifestations. We must analyze and expose the opposition of the Loreites to strict party control over the activities of our comrades in the unions, the Workmen's Circle and in similar organizations. We must analyze and show the true value of the anti-party spirit of sabotage and opposition manifested by the Loreites in the Jewish section to the policies of the majority in the Jewish bureau. We must also take up the experiences of each city and each branch and show the presence of anti-party tendencies of a Loreistic nature. It is only in this manner that we will succeed in liquidating completely these Loreistic tendencies.

"There Is No More Communism Here"

By Y. ANVELT.

A FEW days ago in the town of Yurieff, Esthonia, another attack of vengeance commenced against the class conscious Esthonian workers, agricultural laborers and soldiers accused of having "prepared an armed rising and espionage in favor of the Union of Socialist Soviet Russia.

Comrade Heidemann, whose name the Esthonian bourgeoisie used for the whole "case of the 77" is a former independent socialist who broke away in 1921 from his former comrades (who had now merged into one "socialist" party with the rest of the Esthonian menshevik debris).

He was leader of the local organization adhering to the Comintern, of the labor party and trade unions of Yurieff. When all the workers' organizations were smashed up by the secret police in 1924, and all the most prominent workers were arrested (as a result of the trial of the "149.") Comrade Heidemann went into hiding. In September of last year he was arrested at a conspirative flat, in connection with which the secret police asserted that they had found the traces of an organization of fighting troops among workers and soldiers of the Yurieff district.

AFTER this the White Guards, who had become thoroly frightened, began to track down all and sundry known workers and agricultural laborers still outside prison walls, and also arrested soldiers in the army who were suspected of Bolshevism. After the December rising all the proletarians arrested in Yurieff were heaped together in one bunch and the big "case" was staged which of course will now result in sentences of penal servitude and perhaps of death.

The Reval lackeys informed the newspapers of their London masters after the suppression of the December rising, that "there is no more Communism here" and the next day printed this in Reval for home consumption as being the "opinion of the British press." But the inexerable facts hardly confirmed this. The blood bath prepared by the Esthonian bourgeoisie, after December 1st and continuing up to the present time, is more or less powerless to suppress the struggle of the workers and the peasants on behalf of the Soviet power so popular among the toilers of Esthonia.

The tiniest of the Baltic Lilliputians continue to slide into the economic abyss without slackening its speed, and it is not surprising that such an "independent state" is not agreeable to the toilers.

There is no need to talk of the heavy industry which was considerably developed in pre-war days; nothing remains of this but utter ruin in the full sense of the word. A section of agriculture—the farms of the colonists on the former lands of the landowners—is experiencing a serious and long drawn out crisis, since the holders are in the overwhelming majority of cases assessed with high lease payments and are incapable of standing on their feet.

NOW, in addition to this a law has been passed according to which land will be sold to the lease holders as sacred property for the incredibly high price of 90 rubles per dessiatin (without buildings).

There is a complete stoppage in trade since the purchasing power of the masses who are becoming more and more impoverished is negligible, and at the same time imports exceed exports by 25 per cent.

All the quests for rich foreign uncles who are prepared to throw a "loan" into the hands of the Esthonian speculators and embezzlers—even if it be only a million pounds sterling—have proved fruitless up to the present. It is not surprising that the unemployed, whom the menshevik papers recently estimated at 60,000 (out of a population of just over a million) and the village poor, condemned to die of starvation, have been compelled to carry on a struggle for the right of existence.

The weakest elements who have become desperate after the defeats suffered, are emigrating to Brazil and Canada; another section more energetic, but not very disciplined, is trying to slip thru into the U. S. S. R. in spite of the barbed wire entanglements and the frontier troops, and it will be well understood, that the majority of these remain behind, and that the bourgeoisie carry on a life and death struggle against them. From the very commencement of "independence" the ideal of a section of the Esthonian bourgeoisie has been to transfer the country into a petty-bourgeois Denmark, without heavy industry and its inevitable political appendage—the proletariat; economic disorganization has brot the country to this impasse.

ALL that has to be done now is to settle up with the declared proletariat and—unemployed, and the petty-bourgeois idyll will have been realized. The secret police and the court martial must put an end to the most advanced elements, who still have some work or other, while want and poverty must push the rest over the frontiers of Esthonia, or simply send them to the cemetery. Thus the "independent" court works untiringly.

The old absurd cases are hashed up again, obviously nonsensical accusations are invented, and the proletarians sentenced one by one or in groups to long periods of imprisonment, if not to death. Here the "independent" court does not bother as other bourgeois courts do, about the question as to whether the occused are, in their opinion, members of a "secret society" or simply guilty of possessing or distributing literature, or carrying on agitation against the existing order, etc.

ONCE a worker is discovered, for instance, distributing illegal literature, that alone brands him as a member of the Communist Party, and he receives a heavy sentence. Already since last autumn responsible editors of legal labor newspapers (appearing before the rising) have been sentenced to penal servitude up to ten years. The following is an example of how the courtmartials are carried out. A few days ago in Reval the worker of the "Dobroflot" Tondi was accused of participation in the armed rising. When it was made clear to the court that in reality this worker was ill on December 1st, the court decided: participation in the rising not proved, but since Tondi was a worker of "Dobroflot" where only Communists are accepted, and since he was a member of the legal organization—the Local Transport Union and the Sports Society—in which Communists participate, his membership of an illegal organization is proved, and he is sentenced to imprisonment in a house of correction for three years.

THAT is how the "evil spirit"—sympathy for the Soviet power—is being knocked out of the Esthonian proletarians; but the end of these highly cultured operations is not yet in sight. Searches and arrests still continue, those who cannot be brot to trial under any pretext whatever remain under the surveillance of the police or are deported to the U. S. S. R.

But nevertheless the bourgeoisie and the kulaks are trembling, sensitive to the fact that horny hands are waiting for the moment to clutch them by the throat. On May 1 the entire bourgeoisie of Esthonia were armed to the teeth and with shaking knees read the quite ordinary May 1st manifesto of the Communist Pary and awaited a repetition of December 1st which now haunts them in their nightly dreams. Their hearts are only tranquil on the days when some foreign fleet or other hovers near Reval, when the British, Italian, Danish, Dutch and American fleets come there, and even the mighty fleet of their neighbor Latvia, in the form of its solitary armed barge—in order to show their teeth at Soviet Russia.

NO, miserable pygmies, you will not be able to uproot from among the workers and peasants the ideas they have inherited from the great October. Continue to imitate the biggest workshops of the White Terror, but your court martial will not exclude the possibility of a return of the revolutionary tribunals of 1917, but on the contrary they will only hasten it.

Dynamite on the Boulevard.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Aug. 7.—Four persons were injured slightly and the fashionable Armour boulevard apartments section were thrown into a panic by a dynamite explosion in an apartment house here. Windows were blown out of the Sheridan apartment next door. Mr. and Mrs. H. J. Stephenson, the 23-month-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Morris and Phillipi Morris, 2 years old, were cut by flying glass.

British Used Forged Document Against Soviet

NOTE—The following is a verbatim report of a part of the "trial" of representative of the Soviet Oil Syndicate in China, Dosser, who was arrested charged with "hostile acts against foreign nations." Dosser was illegally tried in a "mixed court," the British authorities refusing to bring his case before a mixed court.

Because of the exposure of obviously forged documents by Dosser's defense, all charges except "creating propaganda" were dropped but Dosser was expelled from the Shanghai foreign settlement. The case was prosecuted by the British representatives. When Dosser was arrested three Russian white guards were present.

The report of the "trial" shows to what lengths the British are going to create ill-feeling between China and the Soviet Union.

AFTER their arrest at Shanghai, Comrade and Mrs. Dosser were charged under Article 221 of Chinese Provisional Criminal Code, which article provides for the offence of being in possession of literature liable to cause persons to commit a breach of peace."

Threatened With Death.

The second charge was that the accused were "undesirables"—which offence, however, is not provided for either in any article of the Chinese Criminal Code or any land regulation or Shanghai Municipal bye-law.

Then, after the forged document appeared on the scene, Dosser was charged, under Article 127, 128, 129, and 130, of the Chinese Criminal Code, which provide for the punishment of persons "having committed a hostile act against a foreign state" or "having broken the neutrality of China during war between foreign states:" an offender convicted under these articles is liable to be sentenced to a term of ten years' jail or even capital punishment.

The Mixed Court sat in the persons of Mr. Zau, a Chinese magistrate appointed by the Shanghai Consular Body, and British Junior Assessor Whitamore, the latter naturally playing first fiddle in the whole scandalous frame-up and British-made travesty of justice. The prosecutor was no less worthy a gentleman, a Britisher, Maitland, who prosecuted on behalf of the municipal police.

Questions Right of Court.

The hearing was opened by this Maitland producing a document clumsily forged by his worthy Anglo-Russian white associates and submitting his contention that "the accused made preparations, namely by obtaining a certificate from the Communist Party; he made preparations to create strike committees and also for further preparations the accused went to Hongkong. The strike is a hostile act against foreign States with the exception of Russia."

Dr. Fischer, counsel for the defence, raised the question of jurisdiction, which Assessor Whitamore tried to dodge by declaring that as he "might say, the mixed court has definite instructions from the consular body The right of this court"—further asserts Whitamore—"cannot be questioned: it is an old established procedure."

Speaks For Capitalist Nations.

Replying to Dr. Fischer, who asks the police to specify the foreign states against which the "hostile acts" have been committed, Maitland enumerates: "Britain, Japan, Italy and every other state except Russia."

Dr. Fischer: "If Maitland is entitled to make a charge on behalf of these other nations, I ask that they be put on the charge list. I wish to know which nations the municipal police is trying to protect."

"Maitland: "I act on behalf of the municipal police. The treaty rights have put the settlement in the hands of the municipal council; and I act on behalf of the police."

Dr. Fischer: "The police might want to protect nations which do not wish to be protected by this court."

The court further agrees to hear Dr. Fischer on the question of jurisdiction, limiting, however, his time to five minutes.

Whitamore: "We have our instructions and we are not remanding the case."

Dr. Fischer: "Then I ask a remand on the ground that negotiations are going on at Peking between the Chinese and Soviet authorities interested in this case."

Whitamore: "That is likewise overruled. We might consider an application at the conclusion of the case for the postponement of the judgment. You have had over your time......The magistrate and I have agreed that it is important to proceed with the case now."

With a similar spirit of fairness and world-renowned British official honesty, Whitamore over-ruled all the other applications of the counsel for the defence, including Dr. Fischer's suggestion that the accused was arrested aboard an English ship, while the Mixed Court has no jurisdiction over rivers, as well as his statement that the defendant was not in possession of all the documents and generally all the details of the charges.

Forgery Exposed.

After all those preliminary arguments were closed, detective Sergeant-inspector Yorke gave evidence, of which the following details may deserve attention:

The warrant was issued when the Dossers were being deported from Hongkong back to Shanghai, which they had previously left. It was signed by the Senior British Assessor on behalf of the Senior Consul. The Soviet Consul was not informed of the arrest. "Between Hongkong and Shanghai the accused were not arrested, they occupied a two-berth cabin, and so had two clear days and ample chance to destroy all dangerous documents." Having, however, had to make this statement, Yorke—to explain why the accused had not destroyed an incriminating piece of evidence—volunteered the following clever explanation regarding the "silk certificate" allegedly found in Mr. Dosser's book: "I think the document was for identification purposes; therefore, if the accused came back, he would return it to those who gave it to him, as it was not easy to obtain."

This last remark at least of sergeant-inspector Yorke about the document" being "not easy to obtain" appears to be truthful, since it took the British officials and their white associates nearly six days to prepare that grossly and clumsily forged "document."

In the course of his evidence, Yorke stated that Dosser's passport had been twice vised by the British Consulate at Shanghai for going to Hongkong.

Search Revealed Nothing.

Cross-examined by Dr. Fischer about the search and the alleged discovery of the said "certificate," Sergeant-Inspector Yorke said:

"I was accompanied to the ship by three Russian police officers, Bebenin, Kedrolivansky and Boulanin, and a female warddress from the mixed court. The accused were arrested on board the steamer Mantua. The cabin was searched; the luggage was not searched in the cabin, but was tied and taken to the police station. The luggage was searched in the presence of the defendants under my own supervision. Nothing attracted attention except a code book, which I believe to be a commercial code. When first found, this book was roughly examined: I ran through it with my fingers and Bebenin did the same thing, too, but we only found Dosser's business card. This book was left in a rattan basket at the police station. That is all I myself found. The documents found in the attached case have been brought into the court."

"Find" Certificate.

"During the morning search," continues Mr. Yorke, "three Russian police officers were present, and I handed the documents to these Russian detectives to see if there was anything important. Then the prisoners were taken into court, and the baggage was left unlocked in the detectives' room between nine o'clock a. m. and half past two.

"Personally I was not in the room when the 'certificate' was found, as I left the main detective office at about twenty minutes to three, leaving the three Russians alone in the building. At about a quarter to four, Bebenin brought me the 'certificate' with a rough translation of it. He told me the 'document' had been found in the code-book; Kedrolivansky said—he found the 'document' and showed how he noticed it between the binding of books; he opened the book and the document dropped out. The accused was locked up and was not present at the afternoon search, it was not really a search, because if it had been I would have been present myself."

Dominick Venturato Must Be Freed

By Max Salzman

FOR three years Dominick Venturato has been suffering in the penitentiary at Columbus, Ohio, where he is serving a life sentence. The facts in the case of this working class fighter were given in an article that appeared some time ago in the DAILY WORKER. Being framed up on a charge of murder, because of his activities in the 1922 strike, Dominick Venturato is waiting for the time when he will be released from prison so he can again become active in the affairs of the miners' union.

The dastardly frame-up of Venturato has been kept from the masses of workers in this country. The newspapers have given it little publicity and the American Federation of Labor has done nothing to expose this contemptible frame-up.

Here is a man with a record of activity in the trade unions that any one could be proud of. A man who had courage, who was fearless and who understood the struggles of the workers. Here was a worker imbued with class consciousness, and who carried the message of working class freedom down to the rank and file of the United Mine Workers, the union to which he belonged.

Not a strike has taken place in the time that Dominick Venturato was in the union, but that he was on the picket line, leading the militant membership of the miners' union, encouraging the disheartened ones, and imbuing a spirit of fight and struggle that to a large extent was responsible for the successful termination of the strike.

AND now the United Mine Workers Union is beginning to lose its power in the state of Ohio. The operators are trying to separate mines in various sections of the state under the 1917 scale, and Dominick Venturato, who has helped to gain for the miners their increases in wages and the betterment of their working conditions, must rot in jail while his revolutionary spirit wants to be free to go to the mines again to help them in their struggle, to try to retain the conditions which they have won through years of sacrifices.

Dominick Venturato must be freed. The workers in the coal mines of Ohio need him. The miners demand him and yet Governor Donahey lets him rot in jail.

Governor Donahey, a man who claims to be a liberal, a man who has claimed to be friendly to labor; it is he who is responsible for Dominick Venturato remaining in jail. Almost every day one reads in the capitalist dailies of Ohio that Donahey has pardoned this person and that.

Here he pardons a person convicted of murder, there he pardons a person convicted of robbery and every other crime on the calendar. And yet Dominick Venturato, whom Donahey knows is in jail on a framed up charge because of his activities in the miners' union, rots in jail and Donahey—a "friend of labor" does not even lift a finger to have him freed.

There has been a rumor spreading through Ohio. That rumor is that during the last election Vic Donahey, who was also governor of Ohio at that time, promised to release Dominick Venturato. Every miner in Ohio will tell you that. Every miner will say that Donahey said he would set Venturato free. Had not Donahey pardoned Dan Agosti a co-defendant of Venturato? To them it was a matter of time as to when this "liberal," this "friend of labor," this man who was elected to office only because of the support the organized labor movement gave—would free Dominick Venturato.

THE workers say that Dominick Venturato is not guilty. No more guilty than is every other member of the United Mine Workers of America. No more guilty than is every other worker in this country.

Dominick Venturato is guilty of only one crime in the eyes of the capitalists. He is guilty of unswerving loyalty and devotion to his class; the working class. For that and that alone is Dominick Venturato lying in jail.

And you, Vic Donahey, governor of Ohio, "friend of labor" liberal. You are keeping Venturato in jail. You refuse to set him free. All you do is make promises, which you do not intend to fulfil, because you want the support of organized labor.

We say to you Vic Donahey, to hell with your promises. We want Dominick Venturato freed. We will not depend on you and your "promises." We will bring the case of Dominick Venturato to every local union in the state of Ohio.

We will bring it to the attention of every man and woman in the state of Ohio.

We will bring it to the attention of every worker in the United States.

We will see that this case is brought to the attention of the worker in every part of the world.

WE do not beg for the freedom of Dominick Venturato. We demand it. We insist on it. And we will have all the workers join in this demand till we compel the capitalists in the state of Ohio and their spokesman, Vic Donahey, to open up the gates of prison and let Dominick Venturato again take the militant, active part in the struggles of the American workers that he did before.

ONE of the principal industries in Berlin, is the manufacture of forged documents. This industry is booming since the British government began seriously to plot for armed intervention against Soviet Russia. Germany is now the tool of British diplomacy and is taking its cue from the hated foe of four years ago. Irish republicans who hailed the election of Hindenburg with joy on the assumption that he was anti-British have caused to ponder over the new turn of events.

MOSTLY every respectable European capital has by now unearthed a "Soviet plot" to assassinate somebody. Bulgaria made a "plot" of this kind the excuse for the wholesale slaughter of prominent leaders of the working class and the peasantry. Now the Checho-Slovakian government has its turn. Fake instructions from Moscow to kill President Masaryk came to light and immediately prominent members of the Communist Party were arrested. It has been proven that every one of the alleged Moscow "plots" so far discovered were fakes, including the famous Zihoviev letter that helped the tories get into office.

GREAT Britain has leased from Esthonia the two Baltic islands of Dago and Oesel which are commonly called the "keys to the Gulf of Finland." This transaction has been under consideration for a long time. It is further proof that Britain is planning war with the Soviet Union. But that is a game two can play at and the situation in China, in India and in other colonial possessions of John Bull, are none too comfortable to the rulers of hitherto "tight little isle."

THE Turkish government has placed the former Sultan on trial for murder. The Sultan is at a safe distance so he will be tried in abstentia. This is a significant sign of Turkish progress. Even tho the regrettable absence of the Sultan may rob him of the pleasure of having his neck osteopathized by a hempen rope, the fact that the republican government dares fly in the face of Allah by prosecuting his alleged lieutenant shows that Mohammedanism is meeting with the same rebuffs that seems to be the lot of all forms of religion nowadays. A good way to test the power of any particular deity is to take liberties with one of his ordained and see what he is going to do about it.

THE Mexican state of San Luis Potosi, is a hot bed of "pernicious" Communist propaganda, according to a letter addressed to the Mexican secretary of the interior by a lawyer who is secretary of the league of property owners. The letter reminds the secretary of the interior that he stated that he would not allow any Commun-

YOUNG WORKER EXPELLED FROM SOLDIER CAMP

Officers Fight Negro, Unions and Soviet

(Special to The Daily Worker)

CAMP CUSTER, Mich., Aug. 9.—Joseph Plotkin, charged with being a member of the Young Workers (Communist) League, was expelled from Camp Custer by the officers in charge for being "against capitalism," after a "trial" presided over by Major Andrews and a colonel, with Lieutenants Evans and Krutheur acting as prosecutors.

Plotkin was discharged from the camp "for the convenience of the government." The suspicions of the officers that Plotkin 'would not make a good soldier' were aroused when he spoke in favor of evolution, declared he professed no religion, and replied to some attacks on Soviet Russia.

Officers Defend Profit System.

The two tentmates of Plotkin were called as witnesses against the League member, and Walter E. Kaczynski, one of them, declared that he thot "Plotkin is a pacifist and does not believe in capitalism, and wants to overthrow the United States army." Plotkin, of course, explained that he was not a pacifist, but believed in a workers' government.

"We think you are a Bolshevik," said Lieutenant Krutheur to Plotkin. "I am sorry you don't believe in capitalism." Krutheur then told him what a splendid country the United States is and said: "You have a chance to become a millionaire. Aren't you afraid the Bolsheviks would take your money away from you?" Plotkin replied that there is slim chance for a worker to become a millionaire under the profit system.

Told to Get "Young Worker."

Lieutenant Evans told the court he believed in the constitution, but that "free speech is going too far." Major Andrews was anxious to find out if there were any more with similar ideas in Camp Custer, and was told that there were probably many more. He told Plotkin he would "not tell on you if you give us the names of the leaders of your organization." Andrews was told if he were curious about the league he should subscribe to the Young Worker.

A report of the "trial" was then made to Brigadier General Stacey, commander of the 6th corps area, and Plotkin was discharged from the camp.

Search Baggage, Take Letter.

Before the trial Plotkin's baggage was searched and one of his letters confiscated. At the trial the officers confined themselves to telling how good capitalist society is and how wonderfully off the workers are.

Lieutenant Evans is in charge of the course in "citizenship." Some of the things he tried to teach Plotkin and the other students were: "The Negroes are no good. If the legislatures do not pass laws to get them out of the country, there will be riots and they will be shipped out or killed off. This may not be constitutional, but I am in favor of it." (Evans is a

GERMAN FASCISTS TELL OF PLOT TO CONDUCT "ECONOMIC ESPIONAGE" AND MURDER IN SOVIET REPUBLIC

MOSCW, U. S. S. R.—The examination of the German fascist Kindermann, who with Dittmar and Wolscht, came to Soviet Russia to engage in terroristic acts, gave proof to the Soviet court trying him that Kindermann was guilty beyond a doubt.

Kindermann was caught to numerous lies. He admitted that his repudiation of his confession was untrue, and that the Soviet authorities did not force him to confess. Kindermann admitted that not even "psychic pressure" was used upon him.

The letter written by Kindermann to Djerjinsky, asking for mercy, was read to the court. In this letter, Kindermann openly confessed his crimes against the workers' republic, and said he came to Soviet Russia to atetmpt to kill Stalin and Trotsky, and carry on "economic espionage," in order to injure the relations between Germany and the Soviet Union.

Admits There Was No Pressure.

The prosecutor read the letter of Kindermann to the Comintern and asked the latter if he were aware that the letter represented a fraud. The accused answered evasively, declared at the same time that the letter was dated one day back. He remembered this because on that day he had arranged a celebration of the kaiser's

COLUMBUS, Ind., Aug. 9—Johnson Trembly, 60, was fatally injured today while working on his farm when a pitchfork punctured his chest and severed a blood vessel.

LEWIS DROPS MASK, GETS FRIENDLY WITH HARD COAL BARONS

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Aug. 9.—John L. Lewis, international president of the United Mine Workers, declared he is giving "very careful consideration" to his reply to the letter of Samuel D. Warriner, chairman of the anthracite coal operators' committee. Lewis strongly intimated that he expected his reply to result in a renewal of the conferences between the operators' and miners' committees.

"I noted the friendly attitude of Mr. Warriner's letter," Lewis stated, "and I am giving my reply very careful consideration. That is the reason for my delay in replying to it."

MINERS WIN WELSH HARD COAL STRIKE

Desperate Miners War with All Weapons

CARDIFF, Wales, August 9.—At a meeting yesterday of representatives of the anthracite mine owners and the miners' union, the owners granted the demands of the union which were that the companies cease violation of the agreement in cutting wages and discharging active union men. Resumption of work is expected Monday.

This strike is independent of the dispute between the Miners' Federation and the British mine owners which found a temporary truce in the granting of a government subsidy to the mine owners on July 31.

Bitter Class War.

The strike in Wales involves the anthracite mines, and has been going on for several weeks with extreme bitterness, arising from the fact that the miners are miserably paid, getting only from $10 to $15 a week for the hardest and most dangerous labor, living in shacks among incredible hardships, while the Duke of Northumberland, who owns most of the anthracite region, is one of England's richest nobles.

Driven to desperation, the miners have fought with all weapons, not hesitating to force the withdrawal of maintenance men from the mines.

Thursday 106 miners and 12 policemen were injured in rioting at Ammanford and the war office appealed to for troops to protect the Northumberland properties.

Nearly a thousand strikers attempted to drive out the scab maintenance men in the power house, which was protected by barricades of wires charged with high voltage of electricity. A hand-to-hand struggle with police who tried to disperse them resulted in a pitched battle, with the strikers using stones and sticks, singing and shouting, as they charged. The colliery offices were completely destroyed.

HAWAII STIRRED BY I. L. D. FIGHT TO FREE CROUCH

(Special to The Daily Worker)

HONOLULU, T. H., Aug. 9.—Honolulu newspapers continue to feature arguments being made before the Federal District Court here for the release of Crouch and Trumbull, Communist soldiers convicted by courts-martial of "revolutionary activity in the army."

"It's not the fault of the Schofield Barracks court-martial that Crouch didn't go to jail for forty years," thundered Fred Patterson, attorney for the soldiers in Judge Rawlins court room, referring to the original sentence which has since been cut to three years.

"Any man's mind that was so warped that he was willing to sentence Crouch to jail for forty years was not fit to sit in any court where the life and liberty of another individual was in jeopardy." Patterson said. Analyzing the charges and specifications against the prisoners, Patterson showed that in not a single instance did they show violation of any law.

The local papers are commenting editorially on the fact that a mainland organization, International Labor Defense, with headquarters in Chicago, is financing the court fight for Crouch and Trumbull.

JOINT BOARD FAKERS LOSE EVERYWHERE

Members Fling Defi in Sigman's Teeth

(Special to The Daily Worker)

NEW YORK CITY, Aug. 9.—Enthusiastic support of the Joint Committee of Action was voiced at a meeting of Local 35, the pressers, in Webster hall Thursday night. Outside, the police and a delegation from the joint board's strongarm squad guarded the hall, and inside the union machine's steam roller was operating, but the sentiment in favor of Locals 2, 9 and 22 could not be crushed.

Several members of the local, including George Garchitz and M. Kreitzer, spoke in favor of the Joint Action Committee and they were heartly applauded. President Morris Sigman came to address the members about the critical situation in the International, and when he rose to speak he was greeted with boos and his talk was repeatedly interrupted [illegible] of his pleas for a hearing.

Breslau Says, "Ayes Are Adjourned."

When it came to a vote of confidence to the joint board and the international officials, Breslau said: "All those in favor will please rise—the meeting is dismissed," and there was no call for the "no" vote, and no chance for objection. Evidently because they realized the vote was actually against the union officials, no actual count was taken.

A meeting of shop chairmen was also held Thursday night, called by the joint board in the auditorium of the Rand school. Hochman opened the meeting, and then introduced Secretary Baroff, and as soon as he began to sneak the audience began to walk out. There were about 200 present at the beginning of the meeting and most of them had left by the end of Baroff's speech and had come to the headquarters of the Joint Committee of Action to tell what had happened.

Joint Board Somewhat Punctured.

Shop chairmen meetings from various sections are being held every day at the headquarters of the joint committee. Plans are discussed and formulated for carrying on the campaign against the joint board, and for collecting the defense fund necesary to continue th work.

On of the hop meetings of shops on 17th street was called Thursday and the joint board hearing of it called a meeting of the same shops. About 175 workers came to the Joint Committee of Action and about 40 went to the joint board meeting. This latter meeting finally broke up in a quarrel and the members came around to the meeting at joint committee headquarters.

Organization Committee of 1,000.

The Joint Committee of Action is now forming an organization committee of 1,000 active workers who want to help carry on the organization work. Members can register for this committee at headquarters.

On Wednesday evening over 200 members of Locals 48 and 89, the Italian locals, held a meeting and pledged their support to the work of the Joint Action Committee.

GARMENT BOSSES ASK COURT FOR NEW WRIT TODAY

The J. L. Taylor company was to apply for an injunction in the superior court of Chicago today, to prevent the striking employes of the firm from picketing. Judge Hugo Pam has already ruled that the striking employes of the International Tailoring company, owned by the same interests, may picket "peacefully."

The general executive board of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers' Union, whose members are conducting the strike, begins its regular meeting in Chicago today. The strike will be discussed.

Today, beginning the seventh week of the walkout of the 800 garment workers, strike benefits of $12.00 and $8.00 were to be paid to married and single strikers respectively.

MANUFACTURERS ANGRY AT PARDON OF VIND, WHO TAKES VACATION

While the Illinois Manufacturers' Association was drafting a protest to Governor Small of the pardon of the five men and one woman convicted of conspiracy and extortion, Theodore J. Vind, the leader of the sextet, was en route to a summer resort "to recuperate from the trials of the last four years."

"It has been terrible, this suspense and worry," said Vind, who is president of the South Chicago Trades and Labor Assembly. "For years the burden of this thing has been upon me, and only yesterday it ended."

LAWRENCE MILL WORKERS STRIKE AFTER PAY CUTS

General Reduction in Textile Field Soon

By ESTHER LOWELL,
(Federated Press)

NEW YORK, Aug. 9—Over half a million dollars profit for the first six months of 1925 is shown by the big Pacific Mills of Lawrence, Mass., at this time when wage cuts are to be enforced in the woolen and worsted departments. Already workers in the print works, color mixers and helpers in the bleach room, are striking against the 10 per cent cut. More workers in this and other New England woolen and worsted mills where similar cuts are scheduled may follow.

Wages in the cotton departments were cut at Pacific Mills last fall in the general reduction thruout New England and work of all departments speeded up. Weavers now attend 72 looms instead of half or a third that number as formerly in the cotton departments. Dissatisfaction in the fall among the workers did not crystallize into a strike.

Hold Mass Meeting.

Lawrence Dyers' and Finishers' Union is sending a representative to William Green, president American Federation of Labor, to lay before him the serious situation of wage cuts in the woolen and worsted industry. Daniel J. Kelleher is the union's delegate to Green. Nothing can be expected from Green, however.

The united front committee, consisting of representatives of various unions, is holding a mass meeting to consider the problem raised by the wholesale reduction of wages following the announcement of such action by the American Woolen Co. The Massachusetts state federation of labor, convening in Lowell, may take action in reference to the textile situation.

A General Reduction.

Not all New England woolen mills are reducing wages yet but most of them are expected to. The 10 mills in Berkshire county, Mass., employing about 4,000 workers have cut wages 10 per cent. The number of workers affected by cuts thruout Massachusetts, Rhode Island and Maine is between 20,000 and 30,000 or more.

COOLIDGE APES MINE OWNERS IN PUBLICITY AGAINST COAL MINERS

SWAMPSCOTT, Mass., Aug. 9.—Cal Coolidge uses the same arguments against a strike of anthracite miners scheduled for Sept. 1, if new negotiations are not successful, as the arguments of the mine owners.

Codlidge and the operators agree on the story put out to the capitalist press that "it doesn't make any difference" if the anthracite miners do strike; "the public is getting used to oil, bituminous coal and other fuel substitutes."

This view is somewhat contradicted by the fact that there is a great deal of flurry and worry stirring the cabinet about the strike, tho Coolidge claims to have been informed that "the public can break the coal strike because of a surplus of anthracite ample to carry the country for three or four months."

Secretary of Commerce Hoover takes the same position and says that "it is the president's view that industry should settle its own labor relations."

TROOPS ATTACK DEMONSTRATIONS IN LEMBERG AND WARSAW, MURDER 12, WOUND 18, ARREST COMMUNIST

(By Jewish Press Agency.)

PRAGUE, Czecho-Slovakia, August 2.—(Delayed by censorship.)—On August 1, in Lemberg, Galicia, Poland, in a clash between unemployed workers and the Polish police troops, 12 workers were killed and 18 seriously wounded.

The unemployed gathered in a great demonstration in the center of the city, to exhibit by their numbers the widespread suffering among the workers in Poland under the white guard government.

Mounted police armed with sabers charged the crowds. Here and there were 18 unemployed workers, among them some women, slashed with police sabers, some of whom are critically and perhaps mortally wounded.

In another part of Lemberg on the same day a crowd of unemployed gathered at a protest meeting in the street to voice the demand that the Polish government relieve their hunger and misery, were fired upon the Polish police and 12 unemployed workers fell dead from repeated volleys, many more receiving bullet wounds.

Communist Deputy Arrested.

At Warsaw, the capital city of Poland, troops and police combined in an atack upon a demonstration of unemployed workers, breaking it up and arresting a Communist deputy in the Polish parliament, Prystupa, who was brutally beaten up by the police after the arrest. Further details are lacking because of the Polish consership. Prystupa was leading the demonstration.

SYRIAN REVOLT ACUTE; FRENCH TROOPS CRUSHED

Republic Is Proclaimed; Forces Combined

(Special to The Daily Worker)

PARIS, France, Aug. 9.—The revolt of the Syrian natives against French imperialism has grown into an acute menace to the French, it is admitted in official circles here. The Bedouins and the Druses have joined forces and announced that they are fighting for the independence of the whole of Syria. The combined forces have raised the banner of the Syrian union. They hold the entire state of Drug.

The French forces in Syria, weakened by the withdrawal of troops for the Moroccan front, have suffered several crushing defeats, and General Sarrail, their commander in chief, has sent an urgent wire for reinforcements.

French Severely Defeated.

Two French columns sent to the relief of the garrison in the citadel of Duedia have been severely defeated, with casualties of at least 1,000.

Sarrail, who has only two infantry and several cavalry units at his command, admits that his Syrian soldiers are "unreliable," as they sympathise with the revolt.

Syrians Win Battles.

The French fear the menace of the Turks in the region of Aleppo, Antioch and Alexandretta, and have requested Painleve to send troops to this section.

The French newspapers are calling the Syrian rebels "brigands" and have characterized Nassib Bey Atrash as "a brigand leader whose only purpose is looting." However, Abd-el-Krim was called such names, and now the French are asking him for peace negotiations on an equal footing.

The revolt was caused by the oppressive measures taken against the

GERMAN WORKERS FIND DAWES PLAN MEANS NO WORK AND WAGE CUTS

(Special to The Daily Worker)

BERLIN, Aug. 9—Germany under the Dawes plan is no heaven for the working class, as may be seen by the estimate of the labor ministry that by October 1, there will be 700,000 registered unemployed in Germany. The number is growing every week.

At present there are 600,000 unemployed, while still another 600,000 are working two days a week, which is nearly the same result as far as income is concerned.

Notices issued today to 40,000 textile workers at Munchen-Gladbach that they must accept heavy wage cuts beginning on Aug. 25, or be discharged entirely. Because of the policy of the reformist union leaders in expelling the Communists and left wing workers from the union, the mills are organized weekly and the union is in poor condition to fight the wage reduction.

Employers claim that banking interests charge such exorbitant interest for financing production that profits are made impossible. So they seek to pass it all on to workers.

PROSECUTOR OF COMMUNISTS AT BRIDGEMAN RANTS TO EMPLOYERS OF "PLOT," SHOWS TRIAL RECORD

MOLINE, Iowa, August 9.—The manufacturers' association here had as its guest of honor O. L. Smith, assistant attorney general of Michigan who prosecuted the Communists at Bridgeman, Mich. Smith's speech showed that the prosecution is directly obeying the will of the employers.

Smith showed the manufacturers exhibits used in the Michigan trials of C. E. Ruthenberg and Wm. Z. Foster, and declared them proofs of numerous "Moscow plots" engineered by American Communists.

Smith Displays His Ignorance.

"Prior to the prosecution of the Michigan syndicalist trials," said Smith, who spoke to the second annual outing of the Tri-City Manufacturers' Association at the Shot Hills country club, "I had always conceived of a Communist as being a long whiskered, long haired Russian peasant type.

"I was very much surprised to find that out of 78 defendants who were apprehended at the raid in Bridgeman, representing sixteen different nationalities, 22 of these were American-born.

More "Moscow Plots"

"Communists are pacifists," said Smith, showing he knows nothing of Communism. "They oppose the American Legion, calling them 'The flotsam and jetsam of the war.'"

A Mr. Duffy, Smith said, had engaged in one of the Moscow plots to which he referred, trying to get Russian school children to America to give entertainments.

UNITED STATES HANGS POOR, RICH ESCAPE, NOT SO IN SOVIET UNION

"With our murder and homicide record of 233 this year in this (Cook) county two men have been hanged, two Negroes, both poor and without friends. It is the experience of this county that a murderer with money will not be hanged."—Chicago Tribune editorial, Aug. 8, 1925.

"As to the impartiality of these (soviet people's) courts, there is a general agreement that they 'weight the balance' in favor of the worker as against the well-to-do; and this is defended on the ground that it corresponds to the weighting of the other scale elsewhere. As to their incorruptibility, information is on the whole remarkably satisfactory."—British Trades Union Delegation report on Russia, 1924-5, page 93.

KING'S AMNESTY A RUSE TO FREE FASCIST KILLERS

Pope Is "Surprised" at Mussolini's Murders

(Special to The Daily Worker)

ROME, Italy, August 9.—The amnesty decree granted by King Victor Emanuel and praised by Mussolini's minister of Justice Rocco, is not expected to release the thousands of Italian workers, including many Communists, from the prison hell-holes into which the fascists have thrust them. The fascist party has the power to release whom it pleases, and only fascists jailed for murder and other crimes will be freed, it is expected.

The entire country is focusing its attention on Palermo, where the municipal elections are expected to show how many votes the fascist violence can secure.

The vatican has issued a statement in the official catholic paper, Osservatore Romano, denouncing fascist violence against catholics. As long as the murders were directed against Communists, the pope had no objection, but now that the priest Don Minzoni of Argenta, near Ferrara, has been slain by the fascists, and many other attacks on catholics have occured, the pope "expresses surprise at the sudden anti-christian move" of Mussolini.

The catholic editorial blames the speeches of Farinacci, secretary of the fascist party who openly advocates violence, and of Mussolini, who in a recent speech advocated murder, "on moral grounds," for the attack on the catholics.

HE cites a rent law as evidence of the subversiveness of the administration of Governor Manrique. This law provides for the occupation of property without payment of more rent than taxes and only paying those taxes because the governor cannot avoid it. The governor is quoted as having said: "What I would like to see is that all inhabitants of San Luis should live in their own homes without paying rent, but as the tax on rent is federal, I cannot remove it. I cannot at present deny the owners of houses the right to collect rents, but with the idea that it will benefit the proletariat and make possible common use of all urban property by all the people I have already started to enact a new law that will benefit the proletariat."

THE idea of a governor aiming to help the producing classes sounded positively fiendish in the ears of this shyster lawyer. As further evidence of the diabolical convictions held by Manrique, the lawyer informed the secretary of the interior that when Lenin died, the official paper issued by the governor was in mourning, the national flag was at half mast and in the governor's palace mouring rites were observed. And as additional proof that the governor did not change his mind, he stated that on the anniversary of Lenin's death, the official paper of the state again appeared in mourning and reminded the people of the death of the great leader of the workers and peasants of all lands.

KATE Richards O'Hare, once prominent in the socialist party, but always a free lancer is now on the payroll of the National Garment Manufacturers' Association and also in the employ of the United Garment Workers' Union. The latter is a fake union which sells its label to any manufacturer regardless of the conditions under which the workers employed by that manufacturer labor. The former is an association of garment manufacturers one of the objects of which is to fight the efforts of garment workers to secure a higher wage and better working conditions.

IT is not surprising that Mrs. O'Hare is on the payroll of those scabby organizations. Any proposition with money attached to it that an ex-socialist will turn down, should be made the subject of an investigation. What Mrs. O'Hare is out to abolish is prison contract labor. But what she is out to replenish is her own treasury. Nothing strange about that. The American workers are accustomed to seeing their "martyrs" wend their way towards easy street, but what we would like to know is, how long will honest trade unionists stand for such bogus reformers?

NEW CRISIS FOR FRENCH AS RIFFS TROOPS ADVANCE

PARIS, France, Aug. 31.—The situation in the region of Ouezzan is characterised as "alarming" by the French war communique. The Riffians have set up strong fortifications East of Fez and have surrounded the city of El Araish.

According to the French communique the "situation is growing worse."

Premier Painleve presided at a banquet tendered the American aviators who are departing for Morocco to bomb innnocent villagers. Painleve said that "in the name of France I thank you for your offer to aid us in carrying the white man's burden."

The "white man's burden" consists of sending Senegalese troops and French workers against natives to be slaughtered in order to secure phosphate beds and other Moroccan riches for the French bankers.

18 Chinese Students Deported from France Go Home Via Moscow

MOSCOW, July 16.—(By Mail) — Eighteen Chinese students who were deported from France for participating in demonstrations of solidarity in favor of the national revolutionary movement in China's have arrived in Moscow on their way to China. They addressed a letter of greeting to the Russian students in which they thanked the latter for their solidarity with the struggle for freedom of the Chinese people.

Darrow Declines to Debate

Clarence Darrow makes no claim to being an authority on evolution. He is merely a student of science. Darrow, who defended John Thomas Scopes in the Dayton trial, said so himself in commenting on the challence to debate evolution issued by Rev. John R. Stratton, pastor of the Calvary Baptist church of New York.

"I know nothing about Dr. Stratton's challence except what I read in the newspapers," said darrow. "I've never challenged anybody to debate the subject and do not care to. I think Dr. Stratton should send his challence to the American Association for the Advancement of Science.

southerner, and bears all the earmarks of a member of the ku klux klan.)

Against Trade Unions.

"Good citizens should be against the trade unions. None of them are any good. It is your duty to combat the menace of unionism."

"If you are to be good soldiers, you must not think in action. It is your duty to obey, to do what you are told quickly, and not to think."

"The Soviet government is a menace to civilization. Money is sent to the United States by the Bolsheviks for propaganda purposes. Soviet Russia has an army of four and one-half million just waiting for a chance to attack the civilized countries."

The principal charges against Plotkin were that he tried to combat these lies. He was given a ticket back to Chicago, for which the officer in charge of transportation took seven dollars. The ticket to Chicago only cost five dollars. The disposition of the other two dollars is known only to the officer.

A move is now on among the officers to change the color of the red flags used in rifle practice.

Arrest Four in Philadelphia.

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 9.—Four members of the Young Workers League were arrested for distributing anti-C. M. T. C. circulars advertising the mass meeting at which Sam Miller, a Young Worker who was expelled from Camp Meade for reading "The Young Worker," was the principal speaker.

Elizabeth Pearlman, aged 16; Sam Finkelstein, aged 20; Joseph Duga, aged 19, and Dave Engel, aged 20, all members of the newly organized Rosa Luxemberg branch of the Y. W. L., were arrested.

The special Fairmount Park guards were greatly elated when they discovered a copy of "The A B C of Communism" on Comrade Engel. They were sure they had just averted an armed insurrection by arresting these Young Workers. They were told that the mass meeting would be stopped and dire results would follow their unpatriotic acts of criticising the citizens' military training camps.

Charges of distributing seditious literature were immediately placed against them but later changed to breach of the peace.

The Young Workers were finally released and at the hearing placed under $300 bail each for further hearing.

Twenty Police at Meeting.

The mass meeting was decorated with twenty policemen who came to prevent the overthrow of the C. M. T. C.

H. M. Wicks, representing the Workers Party; M. Yusem, representing the Y. W. L., and S. Miller were the speakers at the mass meeting.

The Provisional Committee for International Labor Defense is handling their cases.

Y. W. L. to Start Study Class for Chicago Recruits

The Y. W. L. of Chicago is starting a class for all new applicants for membership in the League. This class is compulsory for all new members before they are considered good standing members of the League. The class oftens Monday, Aug. 10th, at 2613 Hirsch boulevard, at 8 p. m.

The class will run for two consecutive Monday evenings, closing with a session on Aug. 17th. The session that opens Monday will deal with elementary Marxian economics and will be conducted by Comrade Sacharow. The closing session on the 17th will be conducted by Comrade Harvey and will deal with the character of the Young Workers League.

It was decided by the C. C. C. that the first term of this class which opens today, shall be attended by all members who joined the League since January, 1925. Let's make the attendance 100 per cent.

Gary, Fake Leader of Drys, Laps Up Booze at His Home

WASHINGTON, Aug. 9.—Judge Elbert H. Gary's interest in enforcing prohibition, as exemplified by his offer to "lend" the government some of the highly paid executives from his great steel corporation, drew fire from the Association Opposed to the Prohibition Amendment.

In a statement put out by the association it was said:

"Is Judge Gary personally a prohibitionist?

"It may be said that neither he nor members of his family are professing or practicing prohibitionists in their private life. They habitually serve cocktails to their guests at luncheons and dinners.

"So far as we know, Judge Gary's is now the only great house where champagne is habitually served at lunch.

AMERICANS LEAVE TO AID PAINLEVE MURDER CAMPAIGN IN MOROCCO

PARIS, France, August 5—The American aviators, who have enlisted in the services of French imperialism, departed in seven airplanes to fly to Morocco to aid the French bankers in their invasion of the Riff country. Charles Sweeney was in command.

The departure of the Lafayette Escadrille was marked by a ceremony of champagne drinking before a battery of movie cameras.

The French invaders are suffering acutely from the terrific heat, the temperature at times reaching 110 degrees. Because of the weathr, activity on the front is light.

natives by the French military dictatorship.

Arabs Threaten French.

The first battle was a serious defeat for the French. A small post in the Deraa district was wiped out by the Syrians, who captured or killed the entire garrison. The Syrians then advanced toward Suiedah, in the Jebel Drus region, and wiped out a squadron of French cavalry.

When the news of these defeats reached Sarrail he sent a battalion to chastise the natives, but at the Jekel Drus gorges the Syrians halted the French, and inflicted a severe defeat on them.

The 300,000 Arabs in eastern and northern Syria are also alarming the French bankers. The Arabs of Aleppo and Damascus districts are threatening to attack the French.

Riffians Defeat Spaniards.

PARIS, France, Aug. 9.—A violent Riffian attack on the Melilla zone has driven the Spaniards across the Kurt river and threatens to reach the great Spanish base of Melilla and drive the Spanish soldiers into the sea. In Madrid there are rumors that a great Spanish disaster has occurred in this zone.

Abd-el-Krim occupies the famous Djebel Sarsar peak, which has an altitude of 2,500 feet and dominates the populous Sarsar and Masmouda hill territory. By means of this occupation, the Riffians have been able to cut communications westward of Ouezzan on the road connecting Ouezzan with the main Tangier Rabat route.

BRIAND IN LONDON TODAY TO CONFER ON ATTITUDE TO SOVIET

PARIS, France, Aug. 9. — Aristide

PARIS, France, Aug. 9.—Aristide Briand's trip to London today to confer with England's foreign minister, Austen Chamberlain, will decide whether France is to conclude a trade agreement with th Soviet Union, to counter-balance the British-German alliance against the Soviet, or whether England unites with France against Germany, it is predicted here.

U. S. Property Transfer Probed.

WASHINGTON, August 9.—An official inquiry into the action of Thomas W. Miller, former alien propert custodian, in returning assets of the American Metal Company, valued at several million dollars, has been started by the the Department of Justice, it was stated today.

Iowa Mines Still Closed.

To the DAILY WORKER: The conditions here are the same as I described them in my first letter, unemployment, starvation, misery. The three big companies have bought up all the small mines in this town, 40 to 50 in all. The miners are holding out against the reduction in wages and waiting to see what the operators are planning to spring next. Rumors are being circulated that a road about 94 miles long will be built from Mystic to Des Moines to ship coal from here. This is the fifth month since the mines have closed down.—Tony Stanfl, Mystic, Iowa.

Italian Fascist Coming to United States as the Ally of the Boss Class

By J. LOUIS ENGDAHL.

TODAY, Italian fascism is making great preparations to send its foreign envoy to the United States, to propagate the growth of fascism in this country.

America's workers must not mistake the meaning of this move. It is a thrust at their power in this country, approved by the "strikebreaker" government at Washington.

The immigration authorities at Ellis Island, New York, will not attempt to stop this envoy of the Italian anti-labor terror, the Fascist Deputy, Bastianini, the secretary and head of fascist organizations abroad. He will be welcomed with open arms by the American open shoppers. They will greet as a valuable ally his propaganda of hate against militant workers.

The United States deported Ludwig Martens, the representative in this country of the Soviet Republics. It refused admission to this country to Mrs. Michael Kalinin, wife of the president of the Union of Soviet Republics. Comrade Martens was merely seeking to develop trade between the United States and Soviet Russia, that would have given jobs to workers here and aided Russian reconstruction. Comrade Kalinin merely wanted to acquaint American workers with the conditions of Russian children immediately following the revolution and to raise funds for their care. But that was "giving aid and comfort to the enemy republic of Russian workers and peasants," the enemy of American capitalism. These were not permitted to cross the American threshold.

• • • •

Capitalism breeds fascism.

Fascism makes war on labor's interests.

Fascism outlaws workers' organizations; not only the Communist Party, but the trade unions and co-operatives as well.

Fascism's own army, in Italy even stronger than the regular army, which is also under the command of the fascist dictator, Mussolini, murders workers who dare resist its power. Thousands have been slain in Italy. Tens of thousands have been imprisoned. Tens of thousands exiled.

Fascism has swept Italy with the torch, destroying with fire hundreds of workers' buildings, chambers of labor, libraries, clubs, co-operatives and labor's newspaper offices, with their printing equipment.

Fascism has done this thing in Italy. It has repeated it in Spain, Hungary, Greece and every other nation where it has come to power. Its mission is the same in the United States; to keep labor enslaved to the boss class.

• • • •

America throws open its doors to receive Bastianini, the international spokesman of this fascism, because American capitalism seeks every method for the suppression of the discontented American worker and farmer masses.

Bastianini comes to study the activity of the fascist organizations in the United States; against which American workers have already waged many and brilliant battles. To be sure Bastianini comes under the camouflage of being a member of the Italian Parliamentary Mission, that will participate in the so-called annual Interparliamentary Union, that gathers in the nation's capital, Washington, D. C., next month. But Bastianini's purpose in coming here is known. It is the purpose of all other Italian fascists who come to these shores; to aid in the war against American labor.

• • • •

All workers must join in offering energetic resistance. They cannot remain silent as the fascist menace grows. If the bureaucracy of the American Federation of Labor refuses to act, then the membership must speak thru the local unions. American labor must hurl the challenge into the teeth of American capitalism, that Bastianini, the Italian fascist, comes here only as the ally of capitalism, as the enemy of the workers.

STAGE HANDS AND MOVIE MEN STRIKE THEATRE IN R. I. CITY

PAWTUCKET, R. I., August 9.—The stage hands and movie operators at the Music Hall theatre here have been on strike now for seven weeks against the discharge of a union man and are still sticking with the picket line to fight the open shop theatre owners.

Tuesday there will be a hearing on an injunction to prevent picketing. Some inefficient scabs have been imported from Boston, who, queerly enough, pose as members of the "Knights of Labor"—a disgrace upon the honored name of the organization which once led the American labor movement.

BOSTON I. L. G. W. LOCALS DEFEAT SIGMAN MOTION

Repudiate Action of Joint Board

By TOM BELL.

(Special to The Daily Worker)

BOSTON, Mass., Aug. 9—Locals 56 and 39 of the International Ladies' Garment Workers' Union have taken a stand against the Sigman machine by rejecting the resolution passed by the Joint Board in support of the Sigman attack on Locals 2, 9, and 22 of New York.

The resolution of the Joint Board was passed on July 30, the same evening as the workers were listening to representatives of the Joint Committee of Action reporting on the New York situation. The resolution supporting Sigman and denouncing the left wing was passed by the macihne gang to offset the successful meeting organized by the Joint Committee of Action.

At Local 56 Vice President Zeidman of the International was present to see to it that the local accepted the Joint Board resolution favoring Sigman and his thugs. Zeidman spoke for an hour during which he bitterly attacked the left wing and the Communists as "union disrupters." He pleaded with the members to support the Joint Board in pledging support to Sigman in his attack on Locals 2, 9 and 22. When the vote was taken only 5 voted with Zeidman.

Local 39 unanimously rejected the Joint Board resolution.

These actions of Locals 56 and 39 answer the lies of the Forward which has, as usual, been lying about the Joint Committee of Action meeting of July 30. In its desperate efforts to discredit the left wing the Forward declared that the chairman of the meeting was the "wife of a sick businessman." The truth of the matter is that the chair was occupied by Anna Goldberg who is one of the founders of the Boston waistmakers' local and is a member in good standing at the present time. Her husband is a journeyman printer and a member of Boston Typographical Union. But facts mean nothing to the yellow Forward in its atempt to discredit the militants in the union.

The local fakers at the head of the I. L. G. W. U. have shown their contempt for the rank and file by appointing as business agent a rank reactionary, Posen, who was defeated twice in its attempt to discredit the militants. Posen is a good tool of the Sigman gang they are anxious to get him in as business agent in spite of rank and file opposition.

This action has brot protests from the membership. The executive committee of Local 46 at its meeting Tuesday rejected the appointment of Posen and demanded that the position be filled by a referendum vote of the membership.

The membership of the I. L. G. W. U. in Boston is beginning to stir against the reactionary Sigman machine. They will respond to the struggle of the New York Joint Committee of Action to rid the union of the corrupt Sigman clique. This is also shown by the way in which the workers are donating their dollars for the support of the Joint Committee of Action.

SUNDAY PRESS OF MOSCOW IN BROADSIDE OF WELCOME TO THE GERMAN WORKERS DELEGATION

(By International Press Correspondence.)

MOSCOW, July 20.—(By Mail.)—The whole Sunday press of Moscow appeared with greetings to the German workers' delegation printed in German.

The Moscow Committees of the Russian Communist Party declared in its greetings, that it hoped that the fact that the delegation would learn to know workers Moscow in reality and learn the real truth about the political and economic life in the Soviet Union, would assist the cause of working class solidarity, international unity, and the victory of the workers and of socialism in the whole world.

The Moscow trade union council greeted the delegation in the same spirit and in the name of a million organized proletarians in Moscow. Greetings were also made by the Presidium of the Moscow Soviet and many other organisations.

Russians Learned from Germans.

Comrade Krupskaya, Lenin's widow, writes in the Pravada:

"Thirty years ago when the Russian working class movement was making its first steps, we learnt eagerly from the German social democracy, and not only the names of Marx and Engels were dear to us, but also those of Wilhelm Liebknecht and Bebel.

"We studied every word of the leaders of the German social democracy and therefore our revolution, our Soviet power, is not only the result of your and our earlier leaders' teaching, but it is directly your child. We recognise this openly.

"History has taken such a course that it is in backward Russia that the working class seized the state power earlier than in the other countries, and now it is using it to build up a new life.

"Without a far developed working class movement this could never have been possible under any circumstances. It would have been impossible without the ideology of the proletariat clearly formulated by Marx and Engels and by your other old leaders.

"The present leaders of the German social-democracy reject their child, all the worse for them. The working class of Germany feels its blood relationship with the working class of the Soviet Union. It will use our revolutionary experience, our achievements and even our mistakes in order to strengthen its own forces in the coming and unavoidable struggle with the capitalist world.

Comrade Trotsky writes in the Pravda, official organ of the Russian Communist Party:

"Have we any interest in presenting our work, and our life to our foreign guests from the working class in a better light than actuality? In no way.

"The cause which we are carrying on is so great, so historically victorious that the revolutionary effect of our work will be all the greater when our guests see the difficulties, deficiencies and weaknesses of our situation.

"It is in our interest that the foreign comrades see the internal and external dangers in their complete extent.

"One thing we can show our guests, that the Kautsky's, Bauer's and Adler's have lied to them when the former said that we had betrayed the October revolution to the capitalists.

"These people wish only that we had, for then they could find some justification for their own treachery. They accuse us of making concessions to the bourgeoisie, and in the same breath they declare that these concessions are not enuf. In reality we have only made such concessions to private capitalism as seemed necessary for the development of socialism. For this is the exact purpose and necessity of the proletarian dictatorship, to determine the extent of the necessary concessions."

Trotsky closes: "Dear friends, take us as we are, without illusions, we are not so bad as the phantasy of our enemies would paint us, but also by far not so beautiful as our own will sees us in the future."

Greetings from Lunacharsky.

Comrade Lunacharsky writes also in the Pravda:

"Our proletarian brothers are our most cherished guests. The most honest wish we can express towards them is: when you part from us, may you feel yourself still stronger bound to us than you felt upon your arrival."

DICTATOR RIVERA AND SPANISH COUNT FIGHT OVER MOROCCO INSULT

PARIS, Aug. 9.—Friction between General Primo de Rivera, head of the Spanish directory, and count Romanones, the last premier before the military regime, may lead to serious consequences, dispatches from San Sebastian indicate.

Romanones who is living in Vichy, France, challenged the general to a duel because certain Spanish newspapers published articles regarding the death of the count's son in Morocco which the count considered unjustified. Young Romanones was a lieutenant in the Spanish colonial forces.

General de Rivera replied to the challenge with a letter published in the newspapers, treating the whole matter in a humorous vein.

Count Romanones was reported incensed with the reply.

Conn. Labor Behind Strike

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Aug. 9.—Patrick O'Meara, president, Connecticut Federation of Labor, denounced brick manufacturers who are denying the workers the right to organize and attacked the company housing scheme that is in use.

Soldiers on March in the Balkans

The murderous Zankov government of Bulgaria halted a moment in its gory orgy, when Greece threatened to invade that country in retaliation for the assassination of a Greek merchant. It is believed one of Zankov's assassins mistook the merchant for a worker.

German Workers Delegation Arrives in Moscow

MOSCOW, July 20. (By Mail).—Today the German workers delegation arrived in Moscow. The square in front of the station was filled with huge masses, consisting of delegations from the shops, the workers' organizations, sport organizations, etc. The square was dotted with innumerable flags and slogans of greeting in German and Russian. After the arrival, a member of the Presidum of the Central Trade Union Council of the Soviet Union, Figatner, delivered a speech of welcome in which he expressed the conviction that the German comrades would be able to get a correct idea of the real situation in the Soviet Union and that their visit would tighten the bonds of friendship between the working classes of Germany and of Soviet Russia. The thousands of workers assembled in the square gave an immense cheer for the international unity of the proletariat. Offenhagen (Krupp Works) thanked the proletariens of Moscow for their fraternal greetings and welcome and declared:

"Your good fortune is our good fortune. Your misfortune is our misfortune. Let the imperialists understand that the workers of all Europe will ward off the attacks upon the land of the workers. If the bourgeoisie puts arms into our hands to fight against Soviet Russia, then we will use those arms against our own bourgeoisie."

A 87-lear-old worker of the "Octoberbahn" repair works, Ivanov shook the hand of one of the German guests and declared with tears in his eyes that this moment was the best in his life for he could see that the unity of the working class was no dream but a reality.

The sport association of the metal workers' union formed cordons thru which the delegates walked under thunderous cheers from the masses.

In the afternoon the whole delegation visited the Central Council of the trade unions of the Soviet Union where Freiberger in the name of the delegation requested the secretary Dogadov to thank the Russian working class for the fraternal reception and their friendly readiness to assist. Dogadov made a speech in which he declared: "Comrades, we are convinced that in your investigation of our conditions you will allow yourself to be led only by your proletarian conscience and that you will recognize the achievements and the deficiencies without prejudices. The bourgeois press contends that the previous workers' delegations here were influenced and that they made incorrect reports upon the situation in the Soviet Union. You have now the reports upon the situation in the Soviet Union. You have now the possibility of forming your own opinions and of examining everything which interests you and the German working class."

The delegation thereupon put various questions upon the organization of the Russian trade unions and the structure of the central trade union council and received exhaustive replies.

SILK WORKERS MAY STRIKE IN 45 N. J. SHOPS

(Special to The Daily Worker)

PATERSON, N. J., Aug. 9.—There will be a strike of 1,500 ribbon weavers in 45 silk mills if manufacturers do not confer with workers on demands for increased wages this week. The Associated Silk Workers' ribbon and hatband department and Local 380 of United Textile Workers are cooperating on demands and announce jointly the intention to strike. Hatband workers ask a $36 weekly minimum wage, 44-hour week continued, and return to the "blue book" price list.

GIBSON SPRING CO. INSTALLS MACHINES, HIRES GIRLS CHEAP

The lockout by the Gibson Spring Co. of union machinists who refused to agree to a nine-hour day has been loaded against the workers by installation of automatic power machinery that displaces skilled experienced workers with unorganized, unskilled girls.

The concern, which for the past ten years padi the highest wages in the spring making industry in Chicago, is now lined up with the open-shop forces in the National Metal Trades Association.

Soviet Union Makes Gold Coins.

MOSCOW.—Speaking at an All-Union Delegate Conference of institutions of the People's Commissariat of Finance, Sokolnikoff, the Commissary of Finance of the U. S. S. R., mentioned, among other things, that the gold "Chervontzy" (10-roubles coins) actually being coined were designed for the needs of the U. S. S. R. commercial transactions with China, Persia and Afghanistan.

Soviet Union Builds Ships.

MOSCOW.—The central government of the U. S. S. R. has ratified a ship-building program for the coming three years, according to which two hundred and seven vessels, for a total sum of 191,762,000 roubles, are to be constructed in the ship-building works of the U. S. S. R., only an insignificant part to be ordered abroad. The work will begin within this current year.

GERMAN WORKERS BEGIN TO SAY WHAT THEY THINK OF SITUATION OF WORKERS UNDER SOVIET RULE

MOSCOW, July 19.—(By Mail.)—The Leningrad Pravda publishes an article of the member of the German delegation, Ansbach, in which, amongst other things, he writes:

"We have only been three days in Leningrad, but already we are able to say that what we have seen has exceeded our expectations. The German press, with the Vorwaerts at the head, published lying reports as tho we had no freedom of movement and could not examine that which interested us.

"However, we have the fullest freedom and have met with the greatest readiness on the part of the Russian workers and we have seen that Russia has become a land of the workers, and that in a few years Russia will be able to compete with the capitalist countries economically with the greatest success."

Prejudiced Socialist Admits "New World Created"

The social democratic delegate Theodor Oberhegen writes:

"Despite a certain amount of prejudice with which I came here, and despite the fact that I have not yet formed a definite opinion upon that which I have seen, I can already say that in Soviet Russia the basis of a new world has been created, a world in which all people can be happy.

"The consciousness of the masses has given the Russian workers the possibility of bearing material want. I am astounded at the sacrificing love devoted by Communist Russia to its social order. Long Live the revolutionary will of the Russian workers!"

In his capacity as a member of the political commission of the German workers' delegation, Oberhagen declared to representatives of the press:

Very Critical—But Confesses Working Class Triumph

"As a social-democrat I approach everything in a more critical spirit than the others. Perhaps this will not be pleasurable to everyone. I shall put many questions in connection with the scepticism which to a certain extent exists abroad in relation to Soviet Russia. I shall hold it to be my duty to defend in Germany with all means what I recognize to be the truth.

"I must confess that the picture which I have seen here of the triumph of the power of the working class has made a great impression upon me. Despite a few deficiencies which I have already noticed, I can see how a new world is coming into being here and how great the achievements of the Russian working class really are."

A member of the industrial commission of the German workers delegation, the metal worker Schaudt of Nuernberg declared to press representatives:

Real Co-Operation Between Administration and Workers

"Our commission is composed of representatives from various branches of industry. We want to study Soviet industry with all its positive and negative sides in order to be able to make an objective report upon the efforts of the Leningrad working class when we return.

"Our visits to the Putilov Workers gave us the impression that the relations between the workers and the administration, between the shop councils, the administration and the workers were relations of real co-operation.

Directors Not of Snobby "Better Class"

"Here in Russia in contradistinction to Germany, the factory directors and engineers are not people of a 'better class,' they do not consider themselves above the workers. Here in Russia everything is concentrated upon one aim: Work, work to build up the new economy.

"For this reason work in the Soviet Union is a pleasure and we are glad to have been able to see such work. Nothing could be more desirable then the establishment of such conditions of labor in our own country."

The trade union commission of the German workers delegation first examined the shop councils of the Putilov Works. All three members of this commission, Freiberger, Brotog and Zaim signed the following report:

Trade Union Commission Signs Statement

"After having studied the situation of the shop councils in the Putilov Works, we have come to the conclusion that the rights of the Russian shop councils are tremendously much greater thon those of the German. Before our departure we were told that in the Soviet Union there were no shop councils at all. In actuality, however, exactly the opposite is the case. The significance and the power of the Russian shop councils are tremendous and unshakable."

WORKERS' DRAMATIC LEAGUE MOURNS LOSS OF COMRADE LASSEN

NEW YORK, August 9.—The Workers' Dramatic League of the Workers' Party wishes to express its feeling of great loss in the death of our Comrade John Lassen, who was a member of the executive committee. Comrade Lassen brot new life into our work, stimulating us by his enthusiasm, his readiness to work and his knowledge, and by his own dramatic productions. He had already written a pageant for us and was ready to start other work when his young life was cut short.

Inspired by his example and interest we will endeavor to make of our League a living thing in the Communist movement.

EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE.

Forcible "Arbitration" Board.

WASHINGTON, August 9.—(FP)—The federal arbitration act that makes the awards of arbitrators enforceable by the federal courts, goes into effect Jan. 1, 1926. Many business concerns are already putting arbitration clauses into their contracts. The law in brief provides that a written agreement in a contract to submit a controversy to arbitration is valid, irrevocable and enforceable in the federal courts.

If such an agreement exists, then the parties must arbitrate. Parties to the dispute may choose their own arbitrators, but if they refuse, or fail to agree, the court will appoint them. The court can review arbitration awards for fraud or misconduct. Of course the court invariably decides for the employers.

German Fascists Tell of Spy Plots Against Workers' Soviet Republic

birthday with his fellow-prisoners. The reason for this Kindermann said was that then he was no longer a Communist. (laughter).

Thereupon the letter to the dean of the Friederich-Wilhelm University in Berlin was read in which Kindermann attempted to present himself as Communist and his two fellow prisoners as members of the organization consul. This was two days before the dispatch of the letter to the Comintern. Kindermann then declared that he had simulated. To the question of the chairman, what sort of a simulation it had been, that of a madman, a doctor of philosophy or merely a fool, Kindermann replied that he could no longer remember what the simulation was. Someone had advised him to simulate, but he could no longer remember who this "someone" was. The accused lied so obviously that he was himself compelled to laugh at his statements. The prosecutor then questioned him upon various paragraphs in the letter to the dean.

Procecutor: "How was the sentence upon your dissertation written?"

Kindermann admitted that this part of the letter was written by him. The rest, however, was written under pressure. To the question of the prosecutor, of what nature was the pressure, the accused answered, that it was of a psychic nature. The examining Judge Rosenfeld had, it was true, not compelled him with force but he had shown himself as a provocative instrument of Baumann.

The chairman declared that whilst the accused was in examination arrest, no compulsion of any sort had been used against him. The prosecutor asked the accused when this pressure had begun.

Kindermann: "At the end of January, it lasted several days."

Prosecutor: "That is, on the 12th of May, your condition was once again normal?"

Kindermann replied in the affirmitative, whereupon the prosecutor read a declaration of Kindermann to the examining judge on the 12th of May in which the accused writes that he has nothing to add to his previous statements. Kindermann declares that in the same protocol he had written that he was reversing further statements for the court itself.

Kindermann Betrayed Companions.

The prosecutor proved from the protocol of the 12th of May that the statement of Kindermann was false, and that he had been prevented from recording further statements in the protocol was a lie. The chairman declared that Kindermann had been granted all his legal rights. Kindermann had compalined that he had been separated from Baumann. The prosecutor read a note which Kindermann had sent to Wolscht during the examination arrest. In the note is: "Everything is going well, be cheerful, we are together. Odysseus will work. Courage!"

In order to mislead the examining judge, Kindermann had written it in French. The chairman pointed out that this note to Wolscht was written at the same time as the letter to the dean of the university in which Kindermann cast off his companions. It can therefore be taken as proved that he wished to betray his comrades.

The prosecutor requests to compare the protocol of the 17th of June with that of the 12th of May. In the later protocol which is signed by the examining Judge Sosnovsky, Kindermann also declares that he has nothing to add to his previous statements. The prosecutor requests the invitation of the examining Judge Rosenfeld and read the statements of Kindermann on the 8th of February.

During the reading of the protocol, the accused Dittmar became extremely excited. From Kindermann's attitude it was clearly to be seen that he had realized that his attempt to betray first of all his comrades and then to deceive the court was finally exposed.

Guilt is Proved.

Hereupon followed the reading of the request for mercy written by Kindermann to Djerjinsky, and a further request written to Kalinin. These requests, as well as the protocol of the 12th of January, contain the full confession of the terroristic intentions. Kindermann was then compelled to admit what a few minutes previously he had energetically denied. The prosecutor requested the court to take official note of the fact that the actual circumstances of the journey and the intentions of Kindermann, Dittmar and Wolscht were now clearly proved and that there was complete accord between the results of the examining protocols and the previous results of the trial itself with regard to the preparations for the journey, the obtaining of the documents and the camouflage of the expedition.

The prosecutor then asked Kindermann if the composition of the parts upon the aims of the journey were also written under the same extraordinary pressure. Kindermann maintained an embarrassed silence. To the further question of the prosecutor, did he think it possible that the examining judge had prompted him also in the writing of those sentences referring to Professor Saposchnikov and the bruited journey of Kindermann from Norway to Calcutta. Kindermann said that he did not believe this. The prosecutor then asked how it was possible that the examining judge knew all the details of Kindermann's childhood and was able to tell them to Kindermann.

Accused: "That is a riddle to me also."

Prosecutor: "Perhaps you exercised a peculiar pressure upon the examining judge also." (laughter).

"How could the examining Judge Rosenfeld himself think out such a sentence as 'We took a hundred marks from the money for the journey and bought ourselves field glasses?'

Accused: "This sentence comes word for word from me."

The prosecutor put further questions to the accused which clearly proved that all the statements of Kindermann about the making of the protocol were lies and bluff.

The prosecutor then turned to the letter to Djerjinsky and asked the accused if this letter had been written under any pressure, the accused answered: "In no way." He had written the letter completely upon his own initiative.

Kindermann's Request to Djerjinsky.

(True Copy.)

"I request support for the enclosed appeal for mercy to the president of the Soviet Union, Kalinin. I, the undersigned, Karl Kindermann, born on the 15th of February, 1902 in Aachen, German citizen, have, after four months arrest during examination under charges of espionage and the organization of terroristic acts against the leaders of the Soviet Union, made the following open confession.

"The organization consul, founded for the purpose of carrying out terrorist acts against all persons objectionable to the reaction and opposed to the naitonal idea of active reactionary circles, decided about a year ago to carry out terrorist acts against the leaders of the Soviet Union. For this purpose a scientific students expedition was to be conducted to the Soviet Union and to the Far East to carry out and cover these intentions. The plan for the carrying out of the terrorist acts was made at the end of 1923.

"I, the undersigned, in accordance with concrete instructions received in December, 1923, began to make the following preparations:

"(1) In order to obtain the permission to enter the Soviet Union and in order to obtain the confidence of decisive persons, I, the undersigned, joined the Communist Party of Germany.

"(2) By interesting various cultural, economic and educational institutions in the Soviet Union systematically, that is by correspondence, I succeeded in obtaining written invitations from these institutions to this commission of study.

Plotted Economic Espionage.

"(3) By connections with various circles of heavy industry and finance in German (Baden, Aniline and Soda Concern, Michael Concern, etc.) these were interested in the financing of the expedition for the work of economic espionage to be carried out by this students' expedition.

"In July, 1924, the organization consul commenced the practical carrying out of the plan. The group chosen for the execution of the plan was chosen as follows: (1) Wolscht, (2) The undersigned Dr. Karl Kindermann, born on Feb. 15, 1903 in Aachen, studied in 1922 and 23, practical and theoretical criminology, attended lectures upon the subject at the Berlin University, entered further for practical activity the service of a Berlin-Charlottenburg Detective Agency, connected with various officials of the Berlin police presidium.

"(4) Dittmar, Maxin Napoleonovitch German from Esthonia, Esthonian citizen, in close relations with the Esthonian embassy and also with Russian White guardist circles in Germany and Esthonia, went to Esthonia as a courier, participated in the carrying out of various terrorist acts by the organization consul.

"Concrete tasks for the carrying out of terrorist acts were put to us in secret sessions in July and August, 1924, and the plans of the expedition were discussed with us.

Planned to Kill Stalin, Trotsky.

"Our intention was to come into contact with Trotsky and Stalin thru the recommendations in the meantime received to Lunarcharsky and Krupskaya and to carry out attempts against Stalin and Trotsky. In order to win still more the confidence of the Soviet leaders, we interested liberal and Soviet-friendly politicians in the purely scientific side of the expedition. So, for instance, we received the support of Theodor Liebknecht and Oskar Cohn and also instructions or scientific correspondence for the Berliner Tageblatt thru its chief editor Herr Wolff.

"I the undersigned Karl Kindermann, journeyed with Wolscht, with German passes, and with (count Dittmar) with an Esthonian diplomatic pass, which the latter destroyed upon our arrival in Moscow and gave out in order to mislead, that it had been stolen from him in the tramway. After our arrival in Moscow we commenced by working out the topographical details of our plan, reconoitering the offices and homes of the various Soviet authorities, and the homes of the various well-known personalities, and the Kremlin.

Kindermann Feared Publicity.

"It was decided that I, the undersigned Karl Kindermann, should organize the connections and lead the group whilst Wolscht and Dittmar should carry out the terrorist acts. For this purpose, Ditmar and Wolscht had brot strong poisons and two pistols with them. The carrying out of our plans was prevented by our arrest.

"I, the undersigned Karl Kindermann, make this open confession with the conscious wish that these dark acts, which might have destroyed the good relations existing between two peoples, may not occur again.

"I regret my acts honestly and am prepared to make good my errors by working to obtain that the the circles of the organization cease from such undertakings wihch can interfere with good relations.

"I declare that it is in consequence of my youth that I have been led by the organization consul to my actions. I beg that having regard to my youth my freedom be given to me so that I may make good by mistakes.

"Apart from this I request that the fact that my father was a member of the party and that he is an idealistic Communist for the good of the people, be taken into consideration. quest for mercy with the further request that this matter be not made

"I present here once again my republic as publicity would give a weapon into the hands of the common foe of both peoples, the entente.

FOREIGN CONCERNS HAVE INVESTED THIRTY TWO MILLION RUBLES IN CONCESSIONS IN SOVIET UNION

(Special to The Daily Worker)

MOSCOW.—(By Mail.)—Of the total number of foreigners who have applied for concessions, 34.6 per cent are German, 11.9 per cent Englishmen, about 10 per cent Americans, 8.1 per cent French, 3 per cent Italians and 2.6 per cent Dutchmen, etc. 1,286 concesssion proposals have been registered since 1921 up to this time, of which 607 refer to the year 1923, when the so-called new economic policy was developing.

The total amount of concessions so far agreed upon is 72, of which 8 pertain to mining enterprises, 14 to manufacturing industry, 6 to exploitation of forests, 6 concern the rural industry, 7—trade, 19—transportation and 12 are miscellaneous. About 25 per cent of these concessions belong to German, 17.5 per cent to English and 19.1 per cent to American owners.

Receive 14 Million in Year.

The Total capital which was to be invested by concessionaires' in the concessions already granted amounts to 55 million rubles, of which 32 millions have so far been invested. About 70 per cent of this sum has been invested into trade and exploitation of forestries, which shows the foreign concessionnaires are apt to prefer enterprises affording a quick circulation of capital.

For the past operation year, the government has received from the concessions a net income of 14 million rubles (10 millions of this total was derived from mixed trading companies). About 20,000 workmen are employed in the concession enterprises.

The mixed trading companies, as well as the industrial and transportation concessions, which are yielding the largest profits, have apparently proved to be the more advantageous for the foreign capitalists.

Steady Flow of Capital.

There is a steady flow of private capital noticeable into the commercial business, the last reports concerning the transactions of Goods Exchanges thruout the Union indicating the growing role of private capital in trade. Thus, the private purchases reached, in May 13.5 per cent of the total volume of buying transactions of the exchanges as against 9.6 per cent of the total in April, while private sellings constituted 5 per cent of the total, against 4.6 per cent in April.

CHINESE GOVERNMENT TO CALL CUSTOM MEET AT PEKING, OCTOBER 15

(Special to The Daily Worker)

PEKING, August 9.—The Chinese government today decided to call the custom conference of the Washington treaty powers in Peking October 15, it was learned here this evening. Invitations are being prepared.

An especially rapid increase of private trading is being registered in Moscow. According to the records of the Moscow Goods Exchange, transactions of private trade have grown from 23.8 million rubles (in April) to 29.7 million rubles (in May), i.e., 20.7 per cent. Private purchases have grown 29 per cent, namely 16.4 million rubles to 21.3 million rubles.

SYNOPSIS.—The British trade union leaders' report on Soviet Russia, which is running serially in the DAILY WORKER, Saturday took up the subject of foreign trade in the Soviet Union. Transportation, industry and agriculture have already been described in the official report. The union leaders concluded that foreign trade and agriculture is steadily improving, and told how the finances of the Union have been placed on a stable basis. The New Economic Policy in relation to agriculture was explained. The industries are increasing production, the report stated. The last instalment of the report dealt in detail with the relation of the Union with foreign countries. The regulation of trade, financing, foreign bank credits, dealt with. The instalment concludes that foreign trade is workable, and statistics of foreign trade, status of foreigners, were some of the subjects that harm is being done Britain by the absence of full diplomatic relations.

CHAPTER VI

The Red Army

The necessity for a "Red Guard," a "Red Army," was apparent to the Bolshevik minority from the earliest days of the March, 1917, Revolution, in order to effect the organization and armament of the proletariat and bring it into the closest relations with the Revolutionary Army.

Rise of the Red Army

The Bolshevik Party, consequently, at once began intensive work in this direction and to fight the opportunist "defensive" policy of the Mensheviks. They concentrated upon the workers and soldiery in order to arm the proletariat, and develop its strength in readiness for the next stage of the Revolution—that struggle for the Dictatorship of the town workers and poorer peasantry which the Bolshevik Party knew must shortly come.

The work of organizing the Red Guard began in March, 1917. District Staffs were formed, and by June the Red Guard already was several thousand strong. In July of that year these District Staffs were proclaimed illegal by the Kerensky Government and were forced to go "underground." But the work did not suffer by this, and the Red Guard General Staff came into being.

The Kornilov attempt in August brought the Red Guard again to the surface. The Provisional Government authorities found themselves forced to allow the workers to arm, and after the Kornilov affair had been cleaned up the workers began openly to form their own regiments.

In Leningrad at this time drilling was carried out at 79 works and factories, and Factory Committees were setting up their own system of compulsory military training. The workers at several undertakings enlisted as one body in the Red Guard, so that the Bolshevik military organization could hardly provide enough military instructors.

By the time of the November (Bolshevik) Revolution the Red Guard in Petrograd amounted to 13,000 men, with machine guns and armored cars. Similar work had gone on in Moscow, where more than 3,000 workers were armed before the November Revolution. Organization of the same kind simultaneously proceeded in the Donetz mining area, in the Ural mineral region, at Odessa, and other centers. But, while building up the Red Guard in these places, the Bolshevik Party was also busy inside the Army. It began in February, 1917, but there was no real development here until April, after the formation of the Party's "Military Organization."

In June, 1917, took place the Party's first "All-Russian Military Conference," to which came representatives from 60 army "organizations" (43 of these were "Front-Line" bodies), elected by 30,000 Bolshevik soldiers.

By these means considerable armed force already existed in October in the shape of a Red Guard numbering a good many thousands. When the decisive moment came, at the most important point (Leningrad), 13,000 armed Red Guards were available in addition to sympathizers from the Army and Fleet. Besides these, the greater number of soldiers on the nearer fronts were now on the side of the Bolsheviks. At the elections to the Constituent Assembly almost all the 120,000 men of the Baltic Fleet voted for them. Out of 770,000 on the Northern Front 480,000 votes went to Bolsheviks, and on the Western Front 653,000 out of 976,000. Including the Moscow and Leningrad garrisons, out of a total of 1,800,000 men 1,200,000 voted for the Bolsheviks.

This explains the success of the November Revolution. By December the Red Guards in Leningrad numbered 60,000. From these, and from those in Moscow and elsewhere, divisions were formed which took part in the fighting against Petlyura, Kaledin, Alekseyev, Kornilov, Denikin, and other counter-revolutionary military leaders.

Red Army Becomes a Regular Force

Waging war with these improvised forces soon showed the necessity for a regular military establishment. The old army had broken up along the lines of its natural class distinctions. It was plain that until the mass of the peasantry convinced itself that the land had been taken away from the landowners, thus becoming conscious of the necessity for defending the Revolution, the working class, in the shape of the Red Guard, helped by those peasants who had joined the Red Guard from the ranks of the old army, must bear the weight of the struggle against the Revolution's enemies.

The Government, forced by hard necessity, had decided on February 22nd, 1918, to accept the Brest-Litovsk Peace Treaty with Germany, which imposed upon Russia demobilization of her old army. But Lenin, foreseeing the need of armed defense of the Revolution, the same day signed a decree (whose details had already been worked out a month earlier) for raising a Red Army. The preamble to this decree ran thus: "The Workers and Peasants' Red Army will be formed from the more conscious and organized elements of the working class. This new army will be a pattern for the replacement of standing armies in the near future by popular armaments, which will defend the coming European social revolution."

Intensive work at once began, and on March 20th a Committee was set up in Moscow to determine the strength of the various formations, the organization of the cadres, and to make arrangements for the provision of officers and commanders. This Committee, anxious to get the benefit of the best and most recent experience, sought advice from the foreign military missions then in Russia. It is interesting now to remember that British, French, and Servian Colonels took part in the committee meeting that determined the number of men for a new Russian Division, and that the very people who later had to be fought, and beaten out of the limits of the Soviet Union, actually assisted at the birth of the Peasants and Workers' Red Army.

In February, 1918, in order to supply the want of trustworthy officers, regular schools of military instruction were instituted in various large centers; six in Leningrad, four in Moscow, one each in Oranienbaum, Tver, and Kazan, to which none was admitted unless of peasant or worker origin. By 1921 the number of these schools had risen to 200 but since then it has been reduced and now is sensibly smaller.

Even while the new leadership was being trained, and an army being formed upon modern lines strong enough to repel a powerful enemy, the freshly raised volunteer levies were called upon to defend the frontiers and fight the internal enemies of the peasants and workers. These levies bravely struggled against the Don counter-revolutionary movement. They broke the forces of General Kaledin, who then shot himself, and drove Dutov south of the Urals. But their experiences showed up a want of trained professional leaders, in which the counter-revolutionists greatly excelled.

Already, on April 22nd, 1918, Trotsky had reported to the Central Executive Committee that it was imperative at once to find military leaders of similar quality to those of their enemies, and had procured assent to his proposal to make use of old regime officers willing to serve the new Government. As the counter-revolutionary attack, now openly helped by France, Britain, America, Servia and Czecho-Slovakia, became fiercer during 1918, requiring great and constantly increasing numbers of men to be raised and rapidly trained, the voluntary system was altered to that of obligatory service in the autumn of that year. On the 2nd September the Revolutionary Military Council of the Republic was formed to take over the conduct of the war and co-ordinate the activities of the different fronts; at the same time the Peasants' and Workers' Council of National Defense was set up.

The struggle rapidly became a bitter, savage, Civil War, fomented and supported by foreign Imperialism, which sent its soldiers to invade Russia in the North and on the East. The German Revolution stopped German help to Krasnov and Denikin in the South, but the German soldiers streaming thence home to their own country after the November, 1918, Armistice, were quickly replaced by British troops in Geogia and Transcaucasia, and by British ships of war in Russia's Black Sea ports.

Numbers and Casualities

The Red Army was now rapidly growing. By the end of April, 1918, 106,000 volunteers had joined. In the following four months the strength rose to 392,000; at the end of December the figure was 790,000. A year later, on April 1st, 1920, the army had swollen to 3,660,000, with 74,000 officers. At its maximum in January, 1921, towards the close of the Civil War, the final total reached 5,300,000.

The casualty figures per 1,000 per year during these years of Civil War were 15 killed, 47 wounded, 391 sick. The corresponding figures for the Tsar's Army during the European War were: killed, 25; wounded, 122; sick, 135.

Of the officers and leaders, statistics show that in October, 1920, 13 per cent. had had no previous military education, 13 per cent. had served as non-commissioned officers in the old army, 10 per cent. had been through the Red Army officers' training schools, 22 per cent. were officers made during the war, 6 per cent had served in the military administrative services, 6 per cent. were old-time regular officers. Taking them from another point of view, one-third came from the former educated classes, two-thirds were of more proletarian origin. There were not a few instances of treachery amongst these former army officers, especially on the Archangel front against the British; but, on the other hand, they also provided many examples of devoted loyalty to the new Government. There is the well-known case of General Nikolaev, taken prisoner during Yudenich's advance on Leningrad, with British support, in 1919. Yudenich hanged him for being true to the cause of the people and faithful in defense of the Soviet Government.

Present Organization

Revolutionary Russia's great military instrument was thus forged into workable shape by hard necessity during three years of constant attack from all sides, aided by British naval and military forces in the North and North-West, by Poles, French, Germans, Greeks, Serbs, Finns, Esthonians, Letts, Italians, Roumanians on the West and South-West; by British again in the South, by British, French, Americans, Czecho-Slovaks, Japanese from the East. These experiences gave Russia tried and competent leaders, led to a simplified and improved Army administration, settled the question of training in military schools, courses of instruction, and staff colleges; and in general welded the Red Army into an efficient organism. Since the close of the Civil War it has naturally been much reduced in strength. Now, according to recently published figures, the total of all arms of the standing defense forces (Army, Navy, Air Service) is no more than 563,000 men, and the money (£40,000,000) provided for defense by the 1924-25 estimates seems to confirm the substantial accuracy of this figure. The Soviet military organization makes possible, however, a rapid expansion from this peace footing. A system of "Territorial National Service" has been adopted. The annual contingent gets six weeks' training, and serves for four years in "Territorial" formations. These formations are "national" in the actual sense of the word. Divisions are formed wholly composed of separate nationalities, which are trained and serve in their respective national territories, and words of command are given in the corresponding language. Moreover, in order to provide "national" officers and leaders, certain of the military training schools are also on a national basis.

Education and Discipline

Training Schools for Officers are divided into three classes—Ordinary (a three years' course; for the technical services the course is four years), Special Instruction Schools, and Staff Colleges. Battalion Commanders must pass the second class or Special Instruction Schools; Staff Officers must go through the three years' course of the Staff College.

Besides technical education of officers, great attention is paid to the general and political education of the lower ranks. In this direction every effort is exerted to make the Red Army soldier conscious that he is a defender of the rights and revolutionary gains of his fellows as workers, as well as a bulwark of the nation against attack from outside. Discipline is strict while on duty, but off duty all ranks, high and low, freely mix on an easy and equal footing. There is, in fact, no trace whatever of that social gulf separating officer from man that is a so carefully cultivated characteristic of some other European armies.

In consequence, the difference of bearing of the Red Army man from that of his Western equivalent is most marked. One can see at once that pains have been taken during his training to stimulate intelligence, to develop consciousness of his rights as a human being, and to bring out individuality. All this in sharp contrast to the practice nearer home, and for an exactly contrary reason; in order, namely, to create a force consciously ready and eager to defend the workers, its own fellows, against either outside or inside attack.

The members of the Delegation visited various Red Army barracks and clubs. The most noticeable feature was the excellent provision made for education—political, professional and general. In each barrack, there is a room known as the "Lenin Corner." On the walls are the usual "wallpaper" contributions of the soldiers themselves. Rooms are provided for reading, education, recreation, and lectures, all of which are organized by the men themselves. The social atmosphere in these clubs seems thoroughly healthy—the young soldiers and their girl friends freely using them for games, dancing and co-education. Red Army education is the most powerful instrument for combating illiteracy and the insanitary ways of Russian village life.

The education given in the Red Army is, of course, entirely Communist in character, but there appears to be more freedom for political discussion than is usually considered compatible with Army discipline. For example "wallpaper" artists have no hesitation in producing humorous drawings of incidents in connection with Army regulations. The soldiers run their own dramatic societies and arrange their own entertainments. They may entertain their friends in barracks.

Soldiers get two hours a day general education and one hour political. Technical training is not provided, but soldiers can visit factories for instruction.

Soldiers are under no restrictions as to taking part in political and social life.

The pay is one rouble, 30 kopecks per month, as compared with the Tsarist pay of 50 kopecks per month in peace time and 75 kopecks per month in war. Accommodation in barracks is not so good as that provided in the British Army, but relatively better allowing for Russian standards of comfort.

General Conclusion

The preceding shows that the present Red Army is not only a very different institution from the old Tsarist Army, but has also developed into something very different from the revolutionary army of the civil wars. It is now composed of young recruits who, during their whole service, are put through an intensive course of education in their civil responsibilities. The emotional appeal is to proletarian solidarity, not to patriotic sentiment, and it seems even more effective in stimulating their military enthusiasm and efficiency.

It is evident to the Delegation that in the Red Army a soldier is not only a citizen, but that his soldiering is utilized to instruct him in citizenship, and that discipline does not seem to suffer thereby.

CHAPTER VII

The Judiciary

Early Revolutionary Judicature

One of the first acts of the October Revolution was to establish a judicial system by a decree of November 24th, 1917. It abolished all the existing judiciary with one exception, that of the Justices of the Peace. The motive for this was the general conviction, justified by experience, that the Tsarist Judiciary were instruments of the previous ruling class. The Justices of the Peace were a concession to the people, granted under the reforming regime of Alexander the Liberator, that had managed to survive the subsequent reaction. They had, however, been restricted to civil cases, not exceeding £25 in value, and to criminal cases up to six months' imprisonment.

THE LAND OF PROMISE LIES BEYOND JORDAN!

Room for "Laborers and Their Betters"

By ALEX REID.

We are in receipt of a sheet issued by the chamber of commerce of Petersburg, Va., incorporated, of date July 8, 1925, from which we have discovered that Petersburg is the center of blissful peace. All ye 100 per centers turn your eyes towards Virginia, the land of promise and peace, the land without labor trouble! Indeed, here at last is the land of rest and sublimity.

On page one we find that "labor troubles are unknown in our city and all our citizens live a happy life," and from this statement we are supposed to believe the workers in that happy community receive comparatively high wages and are happy indeed. Then we turn to the wage scale as shown in page seven of the same document and we find the following reason for their happiness:

"Carpenters, 40 cents per hour.
"Painters, 35 cents per hour.
"Hod Carriers, 35 cents per hour.
"Stonemasons, 50 cents per hour.
"Labor both white and black, 25 to 30 cents per hour."

No need for comment.

Under "Housing" heading, we find the following gem: "A number of houses are vacant and for rent. (These are available for the better and the labor class.)"

Laborers and Their "Betters" Quite Distinct.

It is not mentioned who are the better class, but knowing the tribe that are generally members of the chambers of commerce, we know they don't mean the workers by any means. Indeed, the C. of C.'s statement makes clear that workers and their "betters" are different species. It will be interesting to the ku kluxers and babbittry to know that there are Lions clubs and rotary clubs where they may sport themselves.

Under the head of "Labor Laws," there is a blank. Nuf sed. A good supply of slaves are guaranteed to the business inclined, but this will not give much comfort to the hundreds of unemployed that are running around the country looking for work. They state that they have "a good supply of labor with a surplus of male and female, white and colored."

Another gem. Under the heading of "Unions and Labor Trouble," "Petersburg is an open shop town."

When anyone reads the wage scale it is unnessary to tell them it is open shop, another name for the American plan, the great plan of our American babbitts that guarantees to the slaves an equal opportunity to starve. Workers! why don't you indorse such an advantageous plan?

A few open shop mines are somewhere around the hillsides, but they don't quote wages. Anyone interested in the soft coal mines may find the information he wants by writing to the county poor farm or bughouse near Petersburg.

Very Congenial.

"Social and living conditions are congenial for industrial workers." If there are any doubting Thomases, lead them to the wage scale.

All those looking for peace and happiness will climb on board. We are bound for the south, but not for Petersburg!

Organize Pa., Silk Mills.

ALLENTOWN, Pa., Aug. 9.—An intensive drive to organize Allentown silk mills with the intention of bringing the 8-hour day in all Pennsylvania silk mills is being conducted by the Associated Silk Workers' Union. The local of the associated has mostly ribbon weavers organized at present. Allentown mills are busy, many working at night as well as day, and 50 hours per week prevailing.

In double-shift mills women work from 6 a. m. to 2 p. m., or from 2 p. m. to 10 p. m. The law does not permit women to work after 10 p. m. More uniform wage scales will be sought later and organization work extended to Easton, Phillipsburg and other Pennsylvania towns.

USE GAS BOMBS BLACKJACKS AND GUNS ON PICKETS

Arrest 12-Year-Old Girl in West Virginia

By Worker Correspondent S. W. S.

SHINNSTON, W. Va., August 9.—Theresa Lasko, Maggie Kerowleski, and little 12 year old Caroline Serento were arrested on the picket line at Jamison No. 9. They were arrested by State Policeman O. E. Banks and taken before Erwin Jenkins, justice of the peace. Then our constable, Mr. Minor, was called from his work at Jamison No. 8 to lock them up in the city jail.

Kept Without Water.

They were arrested at 6:45 in the morning. They demanded breakfast but none came. Later in the day they were given some sandwiches and coffee. All day they were kept there without a drink of water in a musty, filthy old cell. The three of them were in a tiny room with hardly space to turn around. In the evening they got no supper.

The bond was offered for the prisoners, the constable, Mr. Minor, said he couldn't be bothered as he had to sleep all day—he worked that night at Jamison No. 8.

The next day they were released on bail and were on the picket line again. Returning home they passed the company store. A Chevrolet car was parked about 10 feet from the county road. In it were two mine guards, one Joseph Golden and Downey. Another O. R. Ruth was on the county road. They shot gas bombs in the faces of all the women and little children.

When one of the pickets said he would have them arrested for that the chief guard called his guards together and armed with rifles, revolvers and black jacks followed us up the road using profane language before women and little children. That is lawful treatment of workers under capitalism.

Clark Dobbie claims he made an investigation. How could Dobbie know anything about the gas bombs when he was at home in bed? One women, Mrs. Julie Senento, is sick in bed and under doctor's care, from the affects of the gas. If Dobbie doesn't believe it and wants proof, he can have it.

Hush Up Scandal of Liquor Toting Perry, He's a Millionaire

If L. Newton Perry, Chicago Millionaire, stays away from Porter County, Ind., it isn't likely he'll hear any more about those charges of transporting liquor filed against him when his automobile was stopped by Joseph Allie, federal prohibition agent, and he was found to have a few pints he was taking along to a country club.

Federal charges were dismissed but the state charges are still pending. However, Indiana officials announced, no move to extradite Perry will be made.

FARRINGTON URGES PA. MINERS TO GIVE FUNDS FOR LEFT WING BUT EXPELLS ILL. MINERS FOR IT

By ALEX REID

(Secretary of the Progressive Miners' Committee.)

ARTICLE XI.

The $750 that Farrington sent to Halapy was supposed to be for the purpose of cleaning out some of the rottenness in the Pennsylvania miners' union, and was sent in answer to a request from Halapy for aid. We know that Farrington did not send the money to clean up the rottenness, but did send it for the purpose of trying to get the progressive miners' support and to aid him in his ambition to reach a certain high international position in the miners' union.

"He, Farrington, stated that Thompson, Watt, and Parry, have no right to accept donations from the miners in Illinois to expose the rottenness in District No. 12."

This statement is very interesting in view of the following correspondenc between Halapy and Farrington.

(Copy of Letter.)

January 11, 1921.

"Mr. Frank Farrington,
"District 12, U. M. W. of A.
"Springfield, Ill.
"Dear Sir and Brother:

"We are appealing thru you to the members of District No. 12, for support, both moral and financial. Every principle of the U. M. W. of A. has, and is being flagrantly violated, in this district. Facts and affidavits now on file are beyond dispute to prove the above assertion, and we sincerely believe that if our committee receives the financial aid that they will be able to purge the U. M. W. of A. of the many thieves and corruptionists from longer conducting their nefarious work. The U. M. W. A. cannot endure and thrive under the practices now in vogue in this district, and can only result if continued, in making the men, women and children of the mine workers practically slaves.

"We are compelled to appeal to you by reason of the fact that the powers that be in this district have threatened the membership with expulsion if any contributions are made to this cause. We therefore ask you to issue a circular for financial aid from your office by endorsing this letter and sending it to all your locals. Very respectfully yours,"

MICHAEL HALAPY, President."

This letter asked Farrington to do the very same thing that Joe Tumulty asked the Illinois miners to do and for the same purpose exactly, the only difference being that in this case, the rottenness was in Illinois instead of Pennsylvania. It will be seen that Frank held it to be illegal in the Illinois case but legal in Pennsylvania.

Now Read Farrington's Answer.

"Mr. Michael Halapy,
"Pittsburgh, Pa.
"Dear Sir and Brother:

"Answering your letter of Jan 11 concerning matter of raising funds to purge our organization of the corruption in the Pittsburgh District I advise that my judgment is that it is not necessary to issue a circular appeal for that purpose.

"Surely to God there are enuf honest mine workers in the Pittsburgh District who would be willing to contribute enuf money to purify their organization. I note what you have to say about the officers having prohibited the members in the Pittsburgh District from making contributions, for that purpose, even tho that be true, that does not prevent individuals from personally contributing their own money.

"I do not feel that I am conversant enuf with the affairs in the Pittsburgh District to warrant my issuing a circular appeal in District No. 12. If any circular is to be issued I think it should be prepared and signed by your committee and aissued from Pittsburgh. I am satisfied that if you should issue such a circular that quite a number of our local unions will respond to such an appeal, but by all means I think the circular should be prepared by your committee, and be issued from Pittsburgh, and it should not only be sent into Illinois but into every other district in our organization. Yours truly,

FRANK FARRINGTON."

It will be noticed that Farrington urges the same thing be done in Pennsylvania, that Thompson, Watt, Parry and Tumulty urges in order to clean up the rottenness in Illinois.

Fundamental Reaction to Hold Pow-Wow Over Scopes at Knoxville

DAYTON, Tenn., Aug. 9.—A gigantic meeting of fundamentalists, to be held in Knoxville, Tenn., on the date set by the Supreme Court for oral arguments in the John T. Scopes evolution case appeal, was being arranged today by the local committee.

As soon as the Supreme Court sets a date for oral argument in the Scopes case, the committee plans to get in touch with the president of the Fundamentalists Association and arrange to invite the leading fundamentalists of the country to Knoxville for the gathering.

Home for Feeble Minded in Cal. Is Disease Breeder

OAKLAND, Cal.—Something wrong in the management of the State Home for the Feeble Minded at Sonoma, Calif., is indicated by the return to his parents in Oakland of 14-year-old Billy Fisher, dying of tuberculosis. Billy was perfectly healthy physically when the authorities sent him to Sonoma after he had confessed to firing a number of houses.

Now the doctors say he cannot live much longer, and that he contracted the disease either from lack of fresh air or from lack of sufficient vitamines in his food at Sonoma.

Machinists' Sentence Revised.

NEW HAVEN, Conn.—Anarchy does not necessarily mean overthrow of the government by force or other unlawful means ruled Chief Justice George W. Wheeler in reversing the five-year sentence imposed by Judge Newell Jennings on Ernest Schleifer, organier of the International Machinists' Union who was originally convicted for the inciting striking New Haven shopmen during the 1920 railway shopcrafts strike.

TYPOS REPORT BAD CONDITIONS IN PROOF ROOMS

Capitalist Papers' Proofreaders Kick

NEW YORK, August 9—(FP)—Proof room conditions in newspaper plants have been getting progressively worse, finds the committee on proof room survey of Typographical Union No. 6 and the young men in the printing business are turning away from this sub craft of the trade.

Speed, rather than accuracy, is becoming the newspaper practice and with the fall in standards pay has fallen so that it is the exception where the reader gets more than the scale, as used to be the case. For much of the work the reader has to "horse" copy, that is read it without an assistant—a double edged grievance, the reader's job becoming harder and the assistant's job disappearing.

And to cap the climax the proof reader has been taken out of his separate office and shunted into the composing room, amidst the clatter of machinery and the fumes of lead and gasoline.

Herald-Tribune Slave Pen.

Worst conditions are found on the Herald-Tribune, that reactionary descendent of Horace Greeley's journal. The committee on proof room survey is transmitting to President Lynch of the international union a formal, written complaint of the Herald-Tribune's readers.

Their proofroom, they say, is not a proofroom but a corral, a tiny space wedged between the machines, the ad-galley, the copy cutter's desk, the dump and correction galleys and the proof presses, with the makeup tables and the molding room of the stereotypers near by.

With no room for proper arrangement of his files and the tools of his trade the proof reader rushes his work, "horsing" his copy and scanning page proofs for mere errors of makeup, letting minor errors go by. The effect on the worker's health is described as follows, in the sufferer's complaint:

Getting Workers' Health.

"Another unfortunate result of this procedure on the part of scientific management experts has been a steady breaking down of the readers nerves, increased irritation under the handicaps which have been imposed upon them and an almost complete destruction of the morale that rendered their work so effective in the past.

"It is a fact that there has been more absence from work as the result of sickness among the readers of this paper during the occupancy of the new building than at any time during the last five years. We ascribe this directly to the increased nervous strain under which we have been laboring.

BUILDERS AT WORK

Maybe You Still Haven't Got One?

THIS IS FOR EVERY READER!

So many thousands of them have been sent to workers thruout the country, which partly accounts for the great avalanche of orders for books and pamphlets coming in every week.

But it is possible that here and there may be stray worker—perhaps even a reader of the DAILY WORKER—who hasn't yet received a full descriptive catalogue of all books and pamphlets from "The Source of All Communist Literature."

If this is the case with any worker you know, by all means send us his name and address so we can send him this catalogue. These are sent without charge and if you haven't got one yet be sure to send for it.

In it are all the classics of Communist literature (and other working class books!) and pamphlets on every subject of interest to a worker—from the Communist viewpoint.

If you feel you want to read up on any subject—you will find the book you need here. If you want to give a book of some kind to your shop mate to read—you will find it in this catalogue.

Not only for your own use—but for general propaganda purposes the catalogue is of great value. If you did not get one—send for it. If you have one already—give it to your shop mate and send for another. Or send us another workers' name and address and we'll send him one.

Under any circumstances—don't go without a full catalogue of all Communist literature—and don't let another worker you know go without it! A post card request will bring it to you by return mail.

Vegetable Canneries Give Work with Low Pay to 1,000 in Ill.

HOOPESTOWN, Ill., Aug. 9.—PPartial operations in the canneries here, Milford and Rossville, Ill., got underway today giving employment to approximately 700 men and women. Full operations are expected to start Monday with the employment of about 1,000 workers. Wages here as in all such canneries are very low, mostly women and children being employed.

Estimates of the corn pack here this year are between 20 and 25 million cans. At Milford, canning officials said the pack would total 14 million cans corn and at Rossville 10 million.

Workers Lose 5-Day Week.

BOSTON, August 9.—(FP)—Shoe workers in seven Lynn firms signed with the Boot and Shoe Workers' Union, lost the five-day week and are ordered to work 48 hours thruout the summer, by the decision of the state board of arbitration.

Union representatives argued that conditions under state board agreement expiring April 20 should continue, providing full Saturday holiday during July, August and September. Employers asked for work Saturday mornings during these months.

FORD AIRPLANES CAN BE USED FOR WAR PURPOSES

Henry Buys Stout Co., for Big Production

DETROIT, Aug. 9.—Henry Ford entered the ranks of the airplane manufacturers today after less than four months operation of his own private inter-plant air freight service. Outright-purchase of the plant and assets of the Stout Metal Airplane Co., was announced by Henry and Edsel Ford.

The price paid was par, plus 25 per cent, it is understood. William B. Stout, president, alone remains out of the 50 original stockholders, with an interest in the new company formed as a division of the Ford Motor Co. The total consideration is said not to be more than $1,000,000.

Ford's plane will be easily convertible to war use.

Protest Suppressions in Industry and Schools.

NEW YORK, Aug. 9.—Strong protest against suppression of freedom in industry and school were voiced by the American Civil Liberties Union in a mass meeting at the Park Palace. Elizabeth Gurley Flynn denounced the persecutions in California where nearly a hundred members of the Industrial Workers of the World are confined in San Quentin and Folsom penitentiaries. Louise and Alice Kimball spoke on the denial of free speech in Paterson silk strikes, a topical subject in view of the likelihood of another Paterson strike in August. Both girls were arrested in the strike last fall. Arthur Garfield Hays, associate defense counsel in the evolution trial, dealt with the Scopes' case.

Just a Wee Little Girl Wrote—
THIS LETTER:

Dear Comrades:—

My father read in the Lithuanian Daily "Laisve" an appeal to buy a book for children.

He asked us, the children of the family, if we would like to read such a book. Of course we said yes, for we all like fairy tales. We thanked dad for the money which we received.

FAIRY TALES FOR WORKERS CHILDREN
by Herminia Zur Mühlen

Is the best book I have ever read because it tells about the poor peoples' struggle against the rich and it makes me think that some day they will succeed and become the leaders of the world. I also liked this book because it had poor people in it and not kings and queens which I think are very hard to imagine.

I liked the stories of "The Little Grey Dog", "The Rose Bush" and "The Sparrow". The story "Why?" is very interesting because I liked the courage of little Paul when he wanted to know why it was so very hard for the workers. How he found the little dryad who told him she would answer his questions when the workers would awaken from their sleep and become wise. She said that glorious day for the workers would come maybe eighty years from now or maybe tomorrow but it all depended on us, the workers.

Fairy tales for workers children is the best book I ever read.

Fraternally Yours,
Helen Viskocka.

Fairy Tales for Workers Children

Is also the best book that your children will enjoy. The translation by Ida Dailes and the beautiful color plates by LYDIA GIBSON add to the charm and beauty of the stories.

It Makes a Difference

Campbell McCarthy, a Negro, was sentenced to be hanged on the 16th of Octobre next for the murder of a Pinkerton detective. It was a case of self-defense according to the condemned man. The presiding judge refused the Negro a new trial. According to the testimony of the Negro—and it was not refuted—both men drew their guns at the same time. McCarthy was quicker on the draw.

There was no money raised to defend the Negro, and unless a miracle happens he will forfeit his life on the gallows.

It is a significant commentary on the anti-Negro prejudice prevailing in this city, that out of the many people condemned to suffer the death penalty in Chicago during this year only two Negroes swung at the end of a rope in Cook county jail. Yet the capitalists tell us that all are equal under the law.

Contrast the cases of the convicted Negroes with that of Russel Scott who was declared legally insane by a jury last week. Scott would be hanged by now but for the money raised by wealthy people to save his life. Clever counsel was retained and an old law exhumed which gave a condemned man the right to a sanity trial before being executed. The plan worked, and Scott goes to an insane asylum instead of to the gallows.

Poor people and particularly poor colored people are not equal under capitalist law. It will take considerable searching of the criminal records to find a case where a wealthy man has paid the death penalty for murder. Thousands of Negroes thruout the country are executed every year without arousing the sympathies of the bourgeoisie.

Communists have no desire to pose as defenders of murderers or other criminals of that type. We claim that crime is the product of a society that is based on injustice. We hold that no successful attempt can be made to abolish crime in a society that is dominated by the greatest criminal class in history: the capitalist class. We state that the taking of one life or two lives by the gunmen is only a drop in the bucket compared to the wholesale murder by slow methods of young workers employed in the slave hells of the nation, under health destroying conditions. Only when capitalism is abolished will the evils flowing from it be eliminated. Of those evils not the least is race and color discrimination.

Famine in Ireland

According to late dispatches a terrible condition of distress, brought on by famine exists in Ireland. The destitution is no longer confined to the west coast which was ravaged by hunger for over one year due to the failure of the crops, the peat supply and the fishing industry. The midlands are now stricken.

Children have died of hunger in the largest town in Tipperary, one of the most fertile spots in Ireland. But evidently the fertility of the land means nothing to the children of the working class. The land is not theirs. Neither does the fact that Ireland is now governed by the Irish capitalists and not directly by English bring any relief to the enslaved Irish workers.

The mayor of Clonmel said: "It is terrible to listen to the tales of woe. Children have died of starvation and others are dying of illness caused by the prevalent lack of food."

These tales of suffering appeared in the capitalist press and the conditions of workers must be very bad indeed, when the placemen who run the Free State government allow the news to get abroad.

The petty robbers that rule the Irish Free State have attempted to keep the facts of the situation from the outside world. The efforts of Comunists and progressives in the United States to relieve the famine stricken on the west coast of Ireland were assailed by Irish nationalist elements. The clergy did not relish having to admit that their prayers and supplications to their deity did not bring plenty to the catholic people of Ireland, tho those same clergy had thundered from their altars during the days of the Russsian famine that god was punishing the wicked Bolsheviks for denying his existence.

While want is bringing death to the doors of the working class we find in an Irish paper carrying a quarter page advertisement soliciting funds to enable the catholic church to send one hundred strapping young Irishmen to China, not to help the Chinese free their country from the imperialsits, but to convert the Chinese to the catholic religion.

Here is a sample of the hokum that is peddled out to the starving Irish workers: "Those young students are preparing for the priesthood for China. Please help them. They need your help. By helping our missionaries you share in their sacrifices and in their reward. Their converts will be your converts too. We need prayers. We need funds." And then in return for the cash the following renumeration is offered: "We celebrate 2,500 masses every year for our benefactors living and deceased."

Is it any wonder that famine and want dogs the footsteps of a people who are not only cursed with capitalism but with the most cynical and coldly efficient religious opium joint in the world? This institution thrives on ignorance and misery. Side by side with the work of relieving the destitution of the starving Irish workers must go a propaganda that will also relieve their congested brains of the superstition which helps to make them tools of bigotry and oppression.

Amalgamation

While reactionary labor officials are invoking all their tricks to block the movement for amalgamation of the craft unions into industrial unions, the capitalists are proceeding to merge their industries, in the interests of more efficiency and larger profits.

The latest outstanding proof of this development in big business is the amalgamation of seven independent steel companies in Gary and eastern districts. Those plants have a total value of $20,000,000. Instead of the competition which formerly existed between those companies there will be unity of direction and underbidding will cease. This makes for more dollars in the pockets of the owners.

When will the workers of the United States take a lesson in the value of amalgamation from their masters? The capitalists do not care where an idea comes from, whether it be Moscow or Atlanta, Georgia, provided it sounds feasible to them. The superiority of the industrial form of organization to the craft form is obvious to everybody. The day of craft unionism is over

Loreism and Maneuvers - -

By Wm. Z. Foster

THE breath of life of every Communist Party is a policy of struggle, of maneuvering against the capitalist class. In the Communist sense maneuvering means fighting, it means to attack the enemy, a Communist Party must grow by fighting. Thru the actual struggle it establishes its leadership over the masses, consolidates its own ranks, develops its spirit of discipline, and links its intellectual life closely to the actualities of the class struggle. Without this policy of struggle, of maneuvering, no party can be a Communist Party in the real sense of the word.

It is an unfailing characteristic of the right-wing in every Communist Party to shrink from the Communist policy of unrelenting struggle. The Lore tendency in our party sharply manifests this characteristic, thereby demonstrating clearly that it is opportunistic and menshevistic. On all sides the comrades following Lore express their opposition to party maneuvers. Lore himself has stated this opposition many times. Now comes Comrade Askeli in his article and says the same thing. But the point of view of these comrades regarding maneuvers was perhaps best stated by Scott Nearing in his letter a year ago dealing with the policies of our party. He proposed the following program, as against our policy of "maneuvering":

1. Realize that its (the Workers Party's) available clientile together is small, no thought of leadership of the masses, and highly localized, and rendered in part ineffective by its foreign admixtures.

2. Aim to hold this clientile together at all hazards; to preserve its morale and efficiency; to train it in effective and cooperative activities; to teach it to trust itself; to try it and discipline it until it becomes a really effective working force; and during all this time to avoid decisive struggle which will almost surely wreck the organization.

3. Husband the resources of the organization carefully; admit members only after long probation and after careful scrutiny; making each move with the idea that the struggle is being waged against immense odds, in a hostile territory, and against skilled generalship.

4. Expand the organization and its work slowly; taking no step that will unnecessarily expose it to destruction; making no move that will enable the enemy to deal a crushing blow.

SUCH a program, whch is a true expression of Loreism, has nothing of Communism in it. It is based upon a great underestimation of the power of our party and the fighting spirit of the working masses. It betrays a complete lack of faith in the revolutionary movement. To put it into effect would be to condemn our party to isolation from the masses and to a life of sterile sectarianism. Opposition to party maneuvers, that is to party struggle, is the sign manual of menshevism. It is the high road to class collaboration and the eventual repudiation of the revolution.

But the comrades of the Lore tendency hasten to assure us that their opposition to maneuvering by the party relates only to this epoch when our party is young and weak. This is a sophistry. The fact is the further we go along the greater their opposition will become to the party participating in the struggle. Our immediate tasks will constantly become greater courage and more Communist daring will be required to fulfill them. The opposition of the right wing will become keener and keener, and it will culminate in its utmost bitterness at the supreme "maneuver" of the revolution. These comrades say our party is not strong enough and well enough disciplined to make a real fight at present. And if we leave it to them to decide it never will be strong enough. Their policy will alway be as it is now, so long as they remain Loreites, to shrink from the struggle.

ABUNDANT revolutionary experience demonstrates this fact. In the Russian movement before the revolution of 1905, the mensheviks opposed every effort of the Bolsheviks to really put the party at the head of the growing revolutionary upheaval, and arguments were always essentilly the same as those of the Loreites now, that the party was too weak, that the workers were unprepared for a struggle. They stabbed in the back the men who made the heroic uprising in Moscow. In 1917 their policy was the same. They did not hesitate to take up arms against the Bolsheviks who were determined upon a real struggle against the capitalists. With their constant policy of underestimating the strength of party and of the working class as a whole, they maintained, and their position was that of the whole Second International, that a proletarian revolution was impossible in Russia. In Germany, Brandler, again undestimating the forces making for the revolution, shrank from the struggle and brought the whole movement to a disastrous debacle. In Italy in 1920, when the workers, during the time of the metal workers' strike, were ready to deliver a final blow at capitalism, D'Aragona and the other menshevik leaders were on hand to tell them that they were not yet well enough organized and educated to take over society, and that if they attempted to do so their effort would be drowned in blood. Then these mensheviks, in the name of more complete organization, better discipline, and more thorough education of the working class, betrayed the revolution by demoralizing the masses in the struggle. The present opposition in our party to a policy of maneuvers and struggle is only a faint forecast of the tremendously increased opposition of the same character that will come from the mensheviks in the period of the revolution.

THE Loreite right wing in our party covers up its fear of struggle by the use of many high sounding revolutionary phrases. This is also an orthodox tactic of the right wing. In 1905, in Russia, when the question of the organization of a provisional revolutionary government stood before the party, Lenin advocated participation of the party in this government. The mensheviks, on the other hand, animated by their fear of the workers assuming leadership in the desperate struggle, bitterly opposed such participation. And characteristically they did it under the cover of revolutionary phrases. They denounced Lenin as a opportunist and condemned his policy as in opposition to that formerly enunciated by the Second International, which discountenanced the participation of socialists in bourgeois governments. They pretended not to see any difference between participation in a bourgeois government during the pre-war period, and participation in a revolutionary democratic government engaged in a death struggle with Czarism. Their real aim was not to preserve holy the principles of the Party, but to avoid the struggle. Their cries of "opportunist" at Lenin were merely a cloak for their own timidity and lack of faith in the Party and the working class.

IN our party we have had a classical illustration of the same tactics by the right wing. This was in the case of the proposed third party alliance. The Loreites denounced this in all keys. The burden of their song was that we who advocated this alliance were the opportunists and that they who opposed it were the real Communists. The facts of the matter were these: The Loreites opposed the third party alliance not because they were too good Communists, but because they were not good enough. The basis of their opposition was to be found in their opposition to maneuvers in general. Their revolutionary phrases were so much camouflage. Their position was not sustained by the Comintern. They opposed the alliance because of opposition to maneuvers in principle. The Comintern opposed it because it was the wrong kind of a maneuver.. Between these two points of view there is a broad ocean of difference, the difference between menshevism and Bolshevism.

We must defeat the Loreistic tendency in our party which opposes maneuvers and our general policy of struggle. Our party is a fighting organization. It must live and grow in the battles of the working class. This does not mean that we shall have a reckless policy of maneuvering. On the contrary, the greatest skill will be necessary to steer our party between the left Scylla and putchism and the righ Charybdis of opportunism. But fight and struggle we must to the best of our ability. Our party cannot postpone its active participation in the class struggle to some far off day when, by a policy of careful education and organization, as the Loreites propose, it might have assembled sufficient strength to make a showing in the struggle. Communist parties are not built that way. That is the way to build menshevik parties. Our party must fight today, tomorrow, and every day. That is the only way it can become in fact as in name the vanguard of the proletariat.

How Not to Accept a Communist International Decision

By JAY LOVESTONE.

IN making the report on the American question before the last Plenum of the Executive Commitee of the Communist International, Comrade Kuusinen declared as follows:

"The question upon which the conflict arose in the American party was whether the party should fght in the immediate future for a labor porty or not. As you know, the majority of the Central Committee of the party opposed it and the minority supported it. In the opinion of the commission, the majority based its policy in this respect too much on superficial temporary phenomena. The minority is absolutely right in its confidence of the vitality of the labor party movement." (Our emphasis.)

Here we have stated concretely and tersely what has been the major political issue before the membership of our party until the C. I. made the above declaration endorsing the stand taken by the minority of the Central Executive Committee.

The Limits of Mere Acceptance.

All but an insignificant handful in our party have declared their acceptance of this decision of the Communist International. But, since this decision was made by the plenum, some of our leading comrades have taken it upon themselves to interpret this decision as a repudiation of the labor party policy pursued by the Ruthenberg group. If our party is to carry out this Comintern decision wholeheartedly and effectively such misinterpretation must stop. The comrades must remember that a mere declaration of acceptance of a C. I. decision does not give them a license to continue a policy of misinterpreting to the membership the fundamental meaning of so basic a policy as the labor party declaration of the last plenum.

This article is written in order to help secure the conditions for effective execution of the C. I. decision—a proper understanding of this decision. Some leading comrades have, perhaps unconsciously, perhaps unwillingly, perhaps even without full understanding, accused the Ruthenberg group of standing for "fake" labor parties. In view of the fact that this charge is hurled against those comrades who have always stood for a vigorous labor party policy, the accusation tends to have an effect of discrediting our whole labor party campaign. It must be remembered that now, more than ever before, is it necessary to imbue our membership with an understanding of, rather than a sceptical attitude towards the need for a labor party campaign by our party. No one can deny that the months of insistent propaganda waged a short ago in our ranks against a labor party have borne harmful effects which still have to be counteracted ideologically.

Any comrade who spreads such unfounded accusations, as that of "fake" labor party, is making a serious mistake. This is true despite the fact that many comrades insist that the only requisite to being a Bolshevik is to make mistakes and then say: "Well, we admit our mistakes." However, admission of mistakes is no license to repetition of mistakes. Let us look the facts squarely in the face. How unwarrantable and dangerous such tactics are in a party discussion is to be seen from the following irrefutable facts:

From January, 1924, when the present C. E. C. asumed the direction of party affairs and policies, until the C. E. C. majority, in October 1924, threw overboard our labor party policy, the Ruthenberg and Foster groups practically voted together and had a common policy in applying the labor party program.

We hereby show in tabular form an analysis of the voting record of the C. E. C. on the labor party policy from Janaury to October 1924:

Table Showing Number of Occasions on Which the Ruthenberg and Foster Groups Agreed on the Application of the Labor Party Policy. (January to October 1924—till the C. E. C. Majority dropped the Labor Party Policy completely.)

The date, authors of proposals and the proposals follow:

Louder Than Words.

This record is very plain. This record speaks louder than the loudest words of misrepresentation hurled by the C. E. C. Majority supporters. This record shows clearly that from January, 1924, until the C. E. C. Majority repudiated the Labor Party policy and campaign the two groups participated in voting on Labor Party policies on 53 occasions, involving a minimum of 146 motions. This record shows that on 43 occasions involving a minimum of 130 motions dealing with the application of the party's Labor Party policy the Ruthenberg and Foster groups reached unaninmity. On only ten occasions involving 16 motions dealing with our Labor Party policy did any differences manifest themselves while the party was pursuing the Comintern policy towards the Labor Party campaign.

The writer has made no effort to defend the position of the C. E. C. Minority against the attacks of the Majority of the C. E. C. First of all, these attacks are of a non-serious nature. Secondly, the best defense and criticism of the Labor Party position taken by the Minority is already to be found in the decision of the Communist International. The Minority of the C. E. C. has fought for this decision before the Comintern while the Majority of the C. E. C. was fighting against it. The Minority of the C. E. C. has forced the Majority of the C. E. C. to consult the Comintern on the Labor Party tactics before a convention and thus spared the party the possible overruling of its convention by the Communist International.

"Fakes" and Fakes.

If there is anything at all in the "fake" Labor Party accusation hurled at the Minority of the C. E. C. by the C. E. C. Majority group, the Foster group shares this blame equally with the Ruthenberg group. The two groups have made jointly nearly all the Labor Party policy mistakes which were made by the party during this period. The two groups have voted the overwhelming number of times unanimously on the application of the Labor Party policy while the C. E. C. Majority permitted the party to have a Communist pro-Labor Party policy and not a sectarian anti-Labor Party policy.

If the C. E. C. Majority insists that its application of the Labor Party policies cannot be characterized as "fake," then, in the face of the above analysis, the application of the Labor Party policy by the Minority equally cannot be characterized as fake.

A Dangerous Practice.

We fear that the pernicious slogan of "fake" Labor Party thrown in by the C. E. C. Majority only tends to discredit the Labor Party policy adopted by the party thru the advice of the Comintern. What more effective weapon could the C. E. C. Majority employ against the Labor Party policy than to brand the most consistent and politically honest supporters of this policy as advocates of "fake" labor parties? In effect this campaign of the C. E. C. Majority only tends to strengthen the already existing anti-Labor Party tendencies in our ranks, tendencies for which their months of energetic propaganda are largely responsible.

Consequently, the membership of our party must, in the most decisive terms, declare themselves that after the last Communist International decision on the Labor Party policy, the Workers (Communist) Party of America will brook no further opposition to a Communist Labor Party policy, and will tolerate no further hostility to a vigorous Labor Party campaign regardless of the form in which this hostility may manifest itself.

The present economic and political situation calls for the united efforts of all the Communist elements in our party for an unhesitating and vigorous Labor Party campaign.

SOVIET CAPITAL RECEIVES VISITORS

SIGMAN GANG [illegible] UNEMPLOYED INSURANCE AGAINST MEMBERSHIP; HYMAN FILES VIGOROUS PROTEST

NEW YORK CITY, August 10.—In reply to complaints from the Joint Committee of Action that members of the International Ladies' Garment Workers' Union who are entitled to unemployment insurance are forced to go to the offices of the Joint Board for insurance blanks, when they no longer recognize the authority of the Joint Board, and that they are also forced by the Joint Board officers to pay their dues to date before their insurance claims will be considered, Chairman Arthur D. Wolff of the unemployment insurance fund of the cloak, suit and skirt industry of New York, has announced that "he has instructed that these complaint blanks be freely and readily issued without discrimination to all applying for them at all offices of the union locals."

Louis Hyman, chairman of the Joint Committee of Action, stated today that the committee is not satisfied that this will correct the evils which have been reported to him by the workers.

Hyman Wants No Gangster Control.

"With the best intentions in the world," said Mr. Hyman, "Mr. Wolff cannot supervise the distribution of these insurance blanks if they are given out by the various offices of the Joint Board. We want some central unemployment insurance office, not attached to any office of the union, where workers can apply for blanks whenever they are entitled to them.

"Our workers are refusing to go to the Joint Board offices, and it is not fair that they should be forced to go there to get unemployment blanks. We know that, no matter what Mr. Wolff's intention is, the Joint Board, if it is allowed to handle these blanks, will continue to discriminate against our members as it has been doing for some time. If the trustees of the unemployment insurance fund want to avoid all possibility of such discrimination, it can be assured only by giving us blanks to issue to our members, or by opening an office of their own.

Use Insurance to Fight Membership.

"If this is not done, we cannot be satisfied that the insurance fund will not be used to help the Joint Board officials in their fight against the membership—to compel the workers to recognize their authority and pay them dues. This practice cannot be allowed to continue, and unless it is remedied, we shall be compelled to instruct our members to refuse to make any more payments to the unemployment insurance fund."

AS WE SEE IT

By T. J. O'FLAHERTY

NAVY DAY will be celebrated on October 27, which happens to be the anniversary of the birth of Theodore Roosevelt. On that day thousands of orators will explain the purpose of the navy. We rise to ask if there is anybody in America, outside the K. K. K. who is so ignorant of things in general as not to know what the navy is in existence for. Acting secretary of the navy, Robinson, is good enough to tell us that the navy is for the purpose of preventing war. Good for you, Robinson, the Annanias club will have a warm welcome for you.

H. L. MENCHEN, self-styled wise man and highly paid literary tickler has some fun at the expense of free speech in America. Menchen comes to the conclusion that there is no such animal nowadays and that there is only one person in the United States who is seriously in favor of free speech, and that person is Roger Baldwin, of the Civil Liberties Union. A person not half as clever as Menchen, would know that neither free speech nor any other kind of freedom that may jeopardize the power of the ruling class is possible, so long as one class dominates another. Theoretically free speech is constitutional, but those in power have the right to interpret what kind of speech is entitled to this freedom.

COMMUNISTS have proved time and again that there is no free speech in the United States, despite the constitutional provision to that effect. There is no freedom of speech for the workers, because what they have to say, is liable to cause the capitalists trouble, now or in the future. There is no record of a capitalist being persecuted for violent speech in a capitalist country, but it is quite likely, that he would be subjected to inconvenience if he expressed himself after the fashion of Vauclain or Gary, in the Red Square at Moscow.

THE bad feature of capitalism is the fact that it robs the workers of the product of their labor, and in order to maintain itself as a minority living on plunder, it may have armies and navies, courts, police and all kinds of devices to hold power. So long as the workers are meek and humble and don't kick, they can talk all they want, about Santa Claus, William Jennings and the newest murder case. But let them talk about the advisability of putting an end to capitalism, and watch the capitalist get excited. He will say that he believes in free speech but not in lincense.

ROGER BALDWIN thinks it positively terrible that Russia should disappoint her liberal friends—who by the way never did a damn thing for the revolution—by doing much the same as the capitalists are doing to their political enemies, but for an entirely different purpose. But it is the

KLUXERS DODGE RESPONSIBILITY FOR LYNCHING

County Prosecutor May Stage Fake Inquiry

(Special to The Daily Worker)

EXCELSIOR SPRINGS, Mo., Aug. 10.—With city and county officials issuing statements, each throwing on the other the burden of action for prosecution of the leaders of the mob which last Friday hanged Walter Mitchell, Negro, this city was awaiting today the possible arrival of an assistant attorney general from Jefferson City. No arrests had been made.

County Prosecutor Raymond Cummins, who, after stating Saturday morning that citizens felt justice had been done and it would be impossible to get prosecuting witnesses, suddenly announced later that he would urge the calling of a grand jury. He said today he was working with Chief of Police John F. Craven. This the chief denied, declaring the entire action is in the hands of the county authorities.

Judge Ralph Hughes wired from his vacation resort in Minnesota late yesterday that he assumed the prosecutor was making the necessary investigation.

JULY SAW NEW INCREASE IN COST OF LIVING IN 22 CITIES

WASHINGTON, Aug. 10.—The cost of lving is on the rise again. The retail cost of food in 22 representative cities rose from 1 to 7 per cent during July, the department of labor announced today in its regular survey. The increases ranged from 1 per cent in Louisville, Ky., to 7 per cent in Boston.

Other cities reporting increases in the retail included: Milwaukee, 6 per cent; Indianapolis, 4 per cent; Chicago, 3 per cent.

For the year period ended July 15, increases were reported as follows: Louisville, 15 per cent; Chicago, Milwaukee, 11 per cent; Indianapolis, 10 per cent.

Green, A. F. of L. Head, in Attack on Negro Workers

(Special to The Daily Worker)

WASHINGTON, August 10.—The baptist deacon and mental kluxer, William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, placed the American Negro Labor Congress which is scheduled to be held in Chicago, Oct. 15, on the index expurgatoris of the bureaucracy of the American Federation of Labor.

Green was dead, dumb and blind while scores of Negroes have been hanged thruout the country by lynching mobs, but the spectacle of seeing the Negro workers organizing themselves for defense against their persecutors and to secure better wages and working conditions was too much for this hypocritical Negro hater.

Besides belonging to a church that is notoriously susceptible to klanism, it is also pointed out that at the Indianapolis convention of the United Mine Workers of America, Green did not fight the pro-klan resolution introduced there.

It was reported at the convention that the Indiana delegation which sponsored the resolution had assurances that Green would give it benevolent support, without endangering his office.

Several well known klansmen among the delegates, spoke glibly of Green and expressed the opinion that he would become a prominent citizen of the "invisible empire" some day. At a klan meeting held in Indianapoliss during the convention a representative of grand dragon, Stephenson of the realm of Indiana, now on trial for rape and murder, declared that the United Mine Workers would soon join the klan.

Congress' Success Stirs Green.

The success attending the organizing efforts of the American Negro Labor Congress to reach the Negro workers in the labor unions and the unorganized got under the yellow hide of William Green, leading capitalist tool among the labor fakers.

It was pointed out here by leading Negroes that the American Federation of Labor never took any steps to organize the Negroes, and that the present blast from Green's office is merely a futile effort to block the work in that direction that is being accomplished by radical Negroes.

"A number of unions composed of colored men have been deceived into sending delegates," said Green. "They have been led to believe they will attend a convention of union Negroes."

Will Not Be Deceived.

This is the usual rant of the labor faker. All those who try to improve the condition of the workers, be they black or white, are trying to "deceive" them. But the colored workers will not be deceived by the Green attack. They have found very little aid or comfort from the Gomperses, the Greens, or the Fitzpatricks when their race was being gibbetted, burned at the stake and outraged in every conceivable way in this so-called land of the free. The Negroes are learning that the Communists are their friends and Green nor his stoolpigeons will not be able to make them believe otherwise.

Where Green Got His Idea.

It is believed that the tirade delivered against the radical Negroes by John Fitzpatrick and his detective bureau expert, Edward N. Nockels, gave Green the idea of breaking into print with another anti-Communist outburst and justify his reported expense account with the United States chamber of commerce. Fitzpatrick and Nockels were against the Gompers machine until that wily politician withdrew some of the pork chops. Then Fitz and Nockels took the next train to Washington and from then on their speed toward the right was dazzling.

"Skinnay" Madden's ex-pal seems to be the most vicious red baiter of the two. Fitzpatrick sometimes takes a stand in favor of progressive principles, as when he flayed the United Garment Workers. Nockels, with the mentality of a thug, draws no distinctions, as when he justified the scabbery of Tom Rickert, saying that he would do the same thing himself, if he were in Rickerts position. Nockels also was willing to be used as a tool by "B. & O. Bill" Johnston in seeking evidence to enable Johnston to expel McMahon and other prominent from the machinists' union.

The Unholy Alliance.

The Daily News, owned by the millionaire Victor Lawson, was quick to interview the local lieutenants of Green and the two playboys managed to get their names in the paper again. They were not so popular with the Daily News and the Tribune, when

PRESSMEN TIE UP CUNEO CO.; PICKET PLANT

Local Unions Work for Amalgamation

The 500 striking members of the International Printing Pressmen's and Assistannts' Union, Locals Nos. 3 and 4, who walked out of the Cuneo Printing Company to force the concern to accept a union agreement, were on the picket line yesterday, and the business of the plant was at a standstill. The mailers were laid off yesterday because of the tieup, and the entire force of over 2,000 had nothing to do.

Local No. 3 and Local No. 4 of the union, comprising the pressmen and the assistants, each formed committees to work to bring about amalgamation of the two unions.

Pay Strike Benefits:

The executive boards of the unions have held joint meetings, and it was decided that strike benefits of $20 a week shall be paid.

Strikebreaker George L. Berry, president of the International, has refused to remove the few pressmen he could secure to enter the plant for strikebreaking duty. Berry ordered the pressmen to accept the "open shop" terms of the Cuneo company, the largest printing establishment in the country, when the company tried to reduce the crews from four to three men per press.

Fund of Hundred Thousand.

Local No. 3 has a $100,000 fund and is willing to use every cent of the money to win union conditions for the pressmen and helpers.

Berry's policy proves in this case, as in the past, to be to help the employer to establish the "open shop," while he lives in luxury off the per capita tax collected by the International. Instead of advocating a shorter work day and more pay, Berry collaborates with the bosses and imposes nonunion conditions by attempting to eliminate as many men as possible from the press crews, and calling his scabbery "readjustments."

Shoe Workers Hold Mass Meetings on Unsatisfactory Pact

HAVERHILL, Mass., Aug. 10. — Mass meetings of members of the Shoe Workers' Protective Union are being held to discuss the pact between Haverhill shoe manufacturers and the union, preliminary to deciding whether or not the working agreement shall be continued. Considerable dissatisfaction has been noted among the workers on the operation of this peace arrangement which established a shoe board of employers and workers and employed an "impartial" chairman whose decisions were binding on both sides.

Unless 90 days' notice is given by either party the pact continues automatically for three years after January 1, 1926.

SCRANTON LABOR UNIONS SUPPORT COAL MINERS, AID SILK STRIKERS

SCRANTON, Pa., Aug 10.—(FP)—Scranton's Central Labor Union is already on record with its pledge of moral and financial support to the United Mine Workers of America in case a strike in anthracite fields is undertaken. Scranton is in the heart of the anthracite region. The central body is sending $50 to the striking thread workers of Willimantic thru Cecilia St. John, who presented the strikers' case.

I. W. W. MEMBERS ARRESTED IN NORTH DAKOTA

Taken Off Freight by Armed Capitalist Tools

FARGO, N. D., Aug. 10.—Twenty-two members of the I. W. W., organizers and job delegates of agricultural union 110, were arrested by the city officials of Fargo aided by the county prosecutor, a notorious labor hater

The I. W. W.'s were riding a freight going towards the harvest fields to the number of seven hundred. They were ordered off the train but they refused, whereupon a posse of fifty was organized by the city officials and 22 of the wobblies arrested.

Held On Boss Laws.

They are held under two state laws, one which forbids riding on freight trains and another law against trespassing on private property.

The Chamber of Commerce suggested the raid. The county commissioners who represent the progressive elements along the small farmers are opposed to the prosecution which is being pushed by the Chamber of Commerce tool the county attorney's office.

Protested Raids.

In 1922 the commissioners protested against raids on the I. W. W. A defense committee is organized with headquarters at 110 Front Street, Fargo. The arrested workers plan no legal defense and will use no lawyers. Instead they propose to institute a boycott of Fargo. Thousands of agricultural workers are streaming into the Dakotos for the September harvest and this case may bring a labor shortage unless the Chamber of Commerce gang release the prisoners.

MODERNISTS OUT TO GIVE JEHOVAH A GOOD SHAVE

Tho Bryan Is Dead He Is Still a Nuisance

(Special to The Daily Worker)

DAYTON, Tenn., Aug. 10.—To counteract the efforts of fundamentalists who are raising money to establish a Bryan memorial university and other schools where fundamentalists' views will be propounded, a movement is now on foot among the leading modernists of the country for the establishment of eleven schools of modernism in various parts of the United States.

This was revealed by Dr. George W. Rappleyea, originator of the Scopes evolution trial, when it was learned today that he is negotiating for the purchase of the Grandview Normal Institute property at Grandview, Tenn., twenty miles north of Dayton.

Dr. Rappleyea would not disclose the organization that he was representing nor the details of the plan, but he said that it was planned to convert Grandview Normal into the first of eleven modernist schools to be established thruout the country. He said the organization had "plenty of financial backing."

AMERICAN LEGION WITH CAL AND GREEN AGAINST FOREIGN-BORN WORKERS

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Aug. 10.—The "National American Commission" of the American Legion today adopted a resolution urging enactment of legislation for deportation of all aliens convicted of a felony. Calvin Coolidge and William Green are also attacking the foreign-born workers.

WORKERS OF MOSCOW IN HOLIDAY GREETING TO LABOR DELEGATIONS OF GERMAN AND SWEDISH TOILERS

(By International Press Correspondence.)

MOSCOW, July 22, (By Mail).—Today the whole working class, officials and students demonstrated in honor of the German and Swedish workers delegation. Thousands of workers assembled on the Red Square bearing banners and flags inscribed with slogans in German, Swedish and Russian.

A common session of the German and Swedish workers' delegations took place in the open air before the Lenin Mausoleum. The enthusiastic greetings of the masses when the delegates appeared seemed to have no end.

After a time, however, the chairman of the Moscow trade union council, Michellov, succeeded in opening the session. Rykov, who was received with enthusiasm by the masses, made a speech to the delegation in which amongst other things he said:

"I welcome you to Moscow, not in my capacity as chairman of the council of the peoples' commissars, but as a participant in the revolutionary struggle of the working class, and as a member of the Communist Party. We know how to value the fact that both delegations are of workers from the shops. We want the workers' delegations to grasp the fact that we have created the first workers' and peasants' republic in the world.

Shows Labor Creative Strength.

"May our first success be to show to our foreign comrades the creative strength of the working class. We do not wish to conceal from the foreign workers that still all sorts of deficiencies exist in our country, that very many things have not yet been completed, that mistakes were committed in the past, etc.

"But we declare with an energy, that after the October revolution, a country has grown up in which the working class is the only creator of social, political and economic life. Let the representatives of the European working class think of the inhuman difficulties which stood and still stand in the way of social reconstruction.

"In eight long years of heroic struggle, the working class has won the fight of the unlimited triumph of labor. I want to see the working masses of western Europe and of the Soviet republics come together to advance the cause of the international unity of the proletariat and to insure the possibility of peaceful work. International working class unity will ensure peace for the working class in the present and victory in the future. (Great applause.)

N. Bucharin, editor of Pravda, official organ of the Russian Communist Party, greeted the delegations in the name of the Central Committee of the Russian Communist Party and declared that the Russian working class thanked the European proletariat for support and assistance in the years of the most difficult struggle, and that the Russian working class was certain that it could rely upon the fraternal help and support of its foreign brothers also in the future.

"The delegations counted many social-democratic members amongst them, the Communists, despite the fact that they had continually fought against the social-democrats, had always understood how to differentiate

TYPOS MEET IN CONVENTION AT KALAMAZOO, MICH.

Every State in Union Is Represented

(Special to The Daily Worker)

KALAMAZOO, Mich., Aug. 10.—Fifteen hundred delegates and vistors to the seventieth annual convention of the International Typographical Union opened their formal session here this morning with nine addresses on the program.

The printers represented every state in the union and every province in Canada.

The gavel was presented this morning to President James M. Lynch, of Syracuse, N. Y., by Russell Henning, president of the Kalamazoo union.

Announcement that it will oppose any change in the union's present pension laws was made by the New York delegation following its arrival. The delegation is opposed to a proposal which would require unemployed members to contribute toward the pension fund.

POLISH HANGMEN SEEKS HEAD OF LABOR'S LEADER

White Terror Again Threatens Lantsutsky

(Special to The Daily Worker)

WARSAW, Poland, Aug. 9.—Once again the undaunted son of the Polish proletariat, Stanislas Lantsutsky, is dragged before the courts. Polish class justice demands its victim. It refused to be satisfied with the defeat at Przemysl. Lantsutsky was acquitted by the jury. Now he is to appear before the district courts of Warsaw and Lodz, where only the creatures of the white terror will stand in judgment.

This doughty revolutionary is to be tried on three charges at once. Others will follow. In all the charges mention is made of the speeches which he held in Warsaw and Lodz. Even proletarian members of parliament in Poland sometimes enjoy the liberty of addressing the masses. Woe to them, however, if they utilize this liberty as fighters for the masses. They should not mention the sufferings of the people nor the revolutionary aims of the workers' movement. Such matters are dangerous to public order and security. It is quite another matter if nationalist agents openly call for Jewish pogroms.

Socialist Traitor Repulsed.

Lantsutsky in his speech spoke of the united front of the proletariat, of Communism, and of the solidarity of the Polish workers and peasants with Soviet Russia. Now Polish class justice defends the "honor" and security of its bourgeois state. Furthermore, it defends the social traitors in the ranks of the Polish socialist party.

"The crowd assembled," thus runs the indictment in the latest Lantsutsky trial, "was so excited by Lantsutsky's speech that when the leader of the Polish socialist party local group, the teacher Kuskowski, wished to address them in order to refute the attacks made on his party, there was terrible noise and booting and cries of 'Traitor! Down with him!' so that he was unable to speak."

This is a terrible crime in the eyes of the bourgeoisie. Just imagine a lackey of capital in socialist clothing wishes to address the workers. The workers, however, find that they do not want to listen to the social traitor after Lantsutsky.

Attack on Workers' Leader.

HABEAS CORPUS SAVES ZAGORSKY FROM PRISON AT HANDS OF POLAND

EL PASO, Texas, Aug. 10.—A writ of habeas corpus saved John Zagorsky from being deported to Poland with a party that left here on July 26th. Zagorsky's attorney, Edw. L. Tittman, produced proofs of his being a Russian citizen and showed that deportation to Poland would mean prison for the defendant.

Tittman was retained by International Labor Defense to defend him when it was learned that the authorities intended to deport Zagorsky to Poland. The writ that stayed immediate deportation was issued with the provision that Zagorsky's keep in the county jail will be paid. International Labor Defense undertook the obligation and is now attempting to get him released on bail.

BUSY SEASON TO FORCE GARMENT BOSS TO KNEES

Amalgamated Strikers to Get Victory Soon

The Amalgamated Clothing Workers' strikers continued mass picketing at the plant of the International Tailoring and J. L. Taylor companies yesterday, the beginning of the seventh week of their strike. With the start of the busiest season of the year only three weeks away, and the employers continuing their newspaper advertisements for strikebreakers, the garment workers feel confident of victory.

Strike benefits were paid yesterday, twelve dollars to those with dependents and eight dollars to others.

Rock Island Unions Help.

The labor unions of Rock Island, where the International has made a bluff of removing their plant, have come to the support of the Amalgamated, and have repudiated the organised scabbery of the United Garment Workers, the American Federation of Labor Union which is attempting to supply the International with scabs.

If the International tries to begin production there this week the Amalgamated will immediately take steps to prevent strikebreaking activities in Rock Island, it is announced.

New York Strike in Good Shape.

At the strike meeting yesterday, Sidney Hillman, president of the Amalgamated, Morris Weinstein of New York and Minnie Santoro of Baltimore were among the speakers.

The speakers brot out that the strike situation in New York is progressing just as well as in Chicago. The company has pasted signs all over their New York building stating, "One Thousand Dollars Reward for the Arrest of Anyone Intimidating Our Employes."

But these signs aid the strikers, as they show jobless workers that there is a strike on and give them their cue to stay away.

Letter Gives Bosses Away.

A letter sent by the International to its New York customers proves that the employers are hard pressed. The letter tells the customers that the International seleced the month of July, the slack season, as the period to "go to the mat with the Amalgamated," thinking that by the middle of August the union would be beaten and the "open shop" installed.

Now however, the International faces its busiest season with no production whatever, and the workers as determined as when the strike started.

Kluxers Threaten Indiana Negro.

SOUTH BEND, Ind., Aug. 10.—A mob visited the home of a Negro, 1008 Dewey Ave., and ordered him to move out. The Negro refused. A "fiery cross," ten feet high, was then burned opposite his home.

Workers of Moscow in Holiday Greeting to Labor Visitors between the social democratic leaders and the social democratic workers.

"The Communists adopted the attitude of comrades to the social-democratic workers, as workers who were on the wrong track. It was possible for the social-democratic workers to make mistakes, but they would never keep the truth which they had here seen about the Soviet republics from their brothers at home."

Workers Greet Visitors.

Thereupon working men and women from various Moscow shops and factories held speeches of greeting.

In the name of the German workers' delegation, Freiberger greeted the Moscow proletariat and declared amongst other things:

"Before we commenced our journey, the story spread that the Communists would only show us those things which were favorable to them. I declare that that statement is a lie. Our Russian friends have shown us everything that we wanted to see and everything that was of interest to the German working class.

"We have seen some several things which we would have liked to have seen in better circumstances, but we must say emphatically, that we have been shown not only the positive successes but also the deficiencies and also the terrible inheritance from the czarist economy and from the long years of the war.

Russians in the Lead.

"We have all been convinced that in very many respects the Russian working class is in the lead, and that here a socialist reconstruction is taking place.

The chairman of the Swedish delegation, Kilbum, spoke in the same spirit, and greeted the Moscow working class on behalf of their comrades in Sweden. He declared that the whole Swedish delegation was prepared to fight with all means for the cause of the international unity of the proletariat.

The demonstrators defiled before the mausoleum and exchanged greetings with the delegations until late in the evening.

Also Visit Catholic Church.

Today the German workers' delegation visited several factories and shops, the Moscow Soviet and various municipal undertakings. The delegates were particularly interested in the arrangements for feeding the workers.

A group of catholic workers visited a catholic church where they had discussions with the priests upon the situation of the catholic church in Russia. This was done in connection with the reports in the bouregois press upon the "persecution" of the church in Soviet Russia.

Women Witness Hanging.

EXCELSIOR SPRINGS, Mo., Aug. 10.—The lynching of the Negro, Walter Mitchell, by a mob here, was witnessed by a large crowd which included many women and children. Mitchell was hanged to a tree along the Wabash river.

THE PRISONERS IN VENEZUELA; KILLED BY 'JOY'

Fascist Crushes Unions But Honors Pershing

(Special to The Daily Worker)

WASHINGTON, Aug. 10.—General Vicente Gomez, dictator of Venezuela, who has ruled that country for the past 18 years and has persistently denied that the liberties of the citizens have been curtailed, has issued a decree of amnesty for most of his political prisoners. More than two hundred of his victims, broken in body and spirit, have come forth from the Venezuelan Bastille—Castel San Carlos, on Lake Maracaibo.

An account of this liberation of prisoners which has reached Washington sets forth that some of the men whose chains were chiseled off have died of "high emotion" when brought out of their cells into the daylight.

It was Gomez who recently entertained General Pershing, and presented to him the sword which was formerly owned by one of the national "heroes" of Venezuela.

"Dies of Joy."

The amnesty decree covered not only the prisoners who had not died or gone mad in capitivity, but it also announced that political exiles might now return from Colombia and other countries to their homes. Among the prisoners reported as having "died of joy" upon release was General Augustin Fossi. He was one of a large number who had spent more than seven years in the fortress because he was suspected of wanting to restore "constitutional government."

Gomez felt safe in releasing these men, according to the report received in Washington, because he recently forced the national congress to amend the constitution so as to empower him to appoint the governors of all the states. He then named his own adherents to the governorships, thereby securing universal military control of the country.

Stamps Out Union.

One of the cardinal points of Gomez' policy is refusal to permit the formation of labor organizations of any kind. Men suspected of seeking to form labor unions are promptly jailed or otherwise disposed of. Yet in his address to his hand-picked governors the dictator advised them to keep alfways in mind the "protection of the workers." In view of the fact that Gomez has established what is in fact a monarchy of the absolute type, this suggestion was construed as a bit of royal humor.

purpose of the act that counts and not the act itself. Much scorn used to be heaped on the Jesuits for their philosophy of the "end justifies the means." Every capitalist will admit he does not like war for war's sake, yet he will testify that it was necessary to slaughter 12,000,000 men to defeat Germany in the late war.

NO revolutionist likes the shedding of blood, yet he will readily agree that the working class must be freed from slavery even at the cost of thousands and even hundreds of thousands of lives, preferably the lives of capitalists, but unavoidably also lives of workers. This is regrettable but what are you going to do about it?

THERE is no law against speaking on the streets in Chicago, yet Communists are arrested, thrown into jail, held on bonds and invariably released by the courts, because they have not violated any law. Yet the arrests continue and freedom of speech is made a laughing stock of. Business men instruct the police to arrest the speakers. They have no right to do this, but they do it. They are the ruling class. If an employer got up on the street corner and advocated the open shop, the police would not arrest him, but if the workers interfered with him, every policeman in the city would stand ready to protect him in his rights.

THERE will be no freedom of speech as long as class rule exists. The workers fight for the right of free speech, not because they believe they will get that right until they are strong enough to take it, but because it makes good propaganda. It shows the producing classes that free speech or any other constitutional provision designed to protect the weak from the strong, means nothing as long as capitalism exists. The workers being in the majority and being the only useful class in society, must take over the running of society and abolish exploitation before free speech or any other freedom in the real sense can exist.

"JUSTICE was done," declared Ray Cummins, Clay county prosecutor in the state of Missouri, when a Negro charged with assaulting a white girl was taken out of the hands of the county sheriff and lynched. "I would have preferred that the Negro be hanged legally," continues Cummins. No doubt the aratistic gentleman would have preferred a legal hanging. It would have given him more prestige for one thing. The only objection Cummins had to the lynching was that "the method was crude." This is another example of American freedom to which the attention of Herr Menchen is directed.

THE spiritual department of the British empire has fallen on evil days. The Chinese are now boycotting the imperial pulpit pounders. The Communists are the cause of all this, the British say. One hundred seventy-nine servants left the British legation in Peking. This is h'awful. Here is great danger of a fertile field for the army of the lord, being rendered unfit for cultivation by the diabolical Communists. Is it any wonder J. Bull should have such a hearty dislike for the Soviet government?

COOLIDGE BACKS MORGAN PLAN TO CONTROL ITALY

Brings Pressure to Bear Thru War Debt

ROME, Aug. 10.—Barone Giacomo de Martino, Italian ambassador to the United States, is returning to Rome to report to the foreign office on the progress of the debt negotiations in Washington. Official announcement of this was made today.

The foreign office officials hinted they have advance information that the ambassador was bringing word that Secretary of State Kellogg, Secretary of the Treasury Mellon and Secretary of Commerce Hoover were favorable to a project for increasing the participation of American capital in Italian enterprises." J. P. Morgan & Co. have already made large investments in Italy, and it is reported will use the debts to secure a tighter hold on Italy's commerce.

Simultaneously with announcement that the ambassador to the United States was returning, Sig. Volpi, the new finance minister, called a meeting of the inter-ministerial committee on finance for this afternoon.

This committee will begin at once the preparation of data to be used when negotiations over the funding of the debt to the United States are resumed in Washington Sept. 15.

Drive Grows Against the Effort of Fascism to Get United States Foothold

By J. LOUIS ENGDAHL.

TODAY, bad news is put on the cables reaching to the international headquarters of fascism under the Mussolini thumb at Rome, Italy. The Grand Lodge of the Sons of Italy of New York State, by vote of 266 to 1, decided to sever all relations with the Supreme Lodge, the national organization, charging that the Supreme Lodge has attempted to make the organization a subsidiary of fascism.

The one lone vote was cast by a spy planted in the convention, held in New York City, by a insignificant bolting group that was meeting in Schenectady. The spy confessed himself an avowed fascist. The Schenectady group also confesses its allegiance to fascism, sending a telegram to the New York City gathering demanding that it accept the fascist program. This it refused to do by unanimous vote.

• • • •

This development is a body blow at fascism in the United States. It should be a great incentive for all workers to renew their struggle against fascism in all its forms.

The Sons of Italy is not a working class organization. It is a fraternal order, consisting of large bourgeois elements. The fact that large numbers of Italian-speaking officials of trade unions hold membership in it, does not improve its working class character. But this organization in New York State has taken a determined stand against fascist penetration. It has even split with the national organization on this issue, calling on other state bodies to go with it. That should indicate to all workers, especially to Italian workers, the dangers and the possibilities of the struggle with fascism on this side of the Atlantic.

This split within the Sons of Italy is one of the reasons that is causing the international high priest of fascism, the Italian deputy, Bastianini, to hasten to the United States in an effort to halt the growing desertions.

Bastianini will not give up without a fight. It is directly charged that Giovanni di Silvestro, Supreme Master of the Sons of Italy, has formed an alliance with the Italian fascist government, pledging the support of the Sons of Italy to the bloody dictator, Benito Mussolini. The fascist elements in the United States will do everything possible to make good this pledge. Only the determined resistance of the working class can be depended on to combat successfully this effort to build the fascist power in the United States.

• • • •

There are great numbers of Italian workers in the big industries, in the steel mills, the coal mines, the textile and clothing industries and the building trades. It is among these workers that the big buttress against fascism must be built. This terror tries to maintain itself in power, not only by destroying and outlawing the militant trade unions, but by forming its own unions wherever it can. It will try this same tactic in the United States. It is, therefore, doubly necessary for the organized workers to be on their guard now.

• • • •

Workers will organize for the reception to be given the fascist deputy, Bastianini. They will prepare great mass meetings of protest against his coming. They will picket the places where he appears, everywhere proclaiming his errand to this country. They will make it very clear to all the world that they are ready to fight fascism in all its forms, and crush it completely.

DOLSEN, DOBKIN, ROBERTS, COWDERY ON COMMUNIST TOUR FROM COAST

(Special to The Daily Worker)

SACRAMENTO, Cal., August 10.—Another unusual Communist tour was begun from this city today.

Following the footsteps of "Mother" Bloor, who is now speaking in Ohio cities on her tour for the DAILY WORKER, begun in this city on June 1, James H. Dolson, former Communist district organizer for California, I. Dobkin, Roberts and P. B. Cowdery, the last a California district DAILY WORKER agent, are all "tin-canning" their way to Chicago in a novel tour for the DAILY WORKER.

Meetings will be held in all the important cities by this versatile quartet. James H. Dolsen, who is a nationally known speaker, will talk at all cities on "The Crisis in China and American Labor." Thruout California this lecture of his has attracted great attention. Roberts will also take the platform.

I. Dobkin is a singer of note, and at all meetings on the road his songs will be a feature.

P. B. Cowdery, whose activities on the coast have stamped him as one of the outstanding propagandists in this country, will direct the sales and distribution of the DAILY WORKER and the Workers' Monthly at all meetings and wherever a worker can be found.

Readers of the DAILY WORKER can look for meetings to be held by this unusual Communist quartet on the following dates:

Salt Lake City, August 12; Ogden, 13; Rock Springs, 14; Cheyenne, 15; Denver, 16; Colby, Kan., 17; Kansas City, Mo., 18; Pittsburg, Kan., 19; St. Louis, 20.

Polish Hangmen Again Seek the Life of Stanislav Lantsutsky

Communist trial like the hundreds that are now going on in Poland. In this instance it is a question of decapitating the Communist faction in the Polish Sejm. This faction prior to the end of 1924 consisted of six members of parliament, of whom four are Ukrainian peasants, recently added to the Communist ranks and without political experience.

Two old revolutionaries, Lantsutsky and Krolikowski, were the leaders of the faction. Both of these have been removed from the Sejm. Krolikowski's place is still empty because the Sejm sabotagès the appointment of his substitute from the Communist electoral list. Should Lantsutsky be condemned and thereby lose his mandate, then his place may remain empty for months and even years.

The bourgeoisie wants to silence the representation of the revolutionary proletariat. It wants to snatch away from the workers and peasants their last legal possibility of action.

Once the international working class was able to frustrate these criminal plans of the Polish bourgeoisie by means of powerful manifestations. It was the pressure brot to bear by the international masses that forced the judge in Przemysl to withdraw the indictment against Lantsutsky; the international proletariat saved Lantsutsky.

Workers Must Protest.

This time the danger in which Lantsutsky is placed is immensely greater. The whole strength of the workers of all countries will be necessary to snatch him from out of the hands of Polish hangman justice. The Polish proletariat again sends you, workers of the whole world, an appeal. This is not merely a question of one comrade, for in Lantsutsky's person the entire movement of the workers in Poland is threatened and the revolutionary vanguard of the peasants just as the struggle for the liberation of oppressed national minorities are in danger.

Lantsutsky's trial is a blow aimed at the revolutionary movement, the defeat of the Polish bourgeoisie in this process will signify a revolutionary victory. The workers of the world are in a position to help the Polish proletariat.

Workers! Peasants! Protest against Polish blood justice! Demand the immediate liberation of Lantsutsky! Raise your voices on behalf of the struggle for the proletarian cause in Poland!

BOSSES' GREED TOOK 30,000 OF WORKERS' EYES

Fifteen Thousand Are Blinded in Shops

By ART SHIELDS.
(Federated Press.)

NEW YORK, Aug. 10—Everyone has seen a blind worker but few realize that 15,000 persons in the United States have lost their sight by the inhumanly wasteful methods of American industry. The report on Eye Hazards in Industrial Occupation, published by the National Committee for the Prevention of Blindness, gives the figures—a total of 15,000 blinded from industrial causes altogether, and an annual crop of 200,000 major or minor injuries to the eyes of workers.

Eye hazards are the most serious of all non-fatal industrial accident hazards, declares the report, and it makes the point, again and again the course of its 232 pages, that most of the men blinded in the factories would still be seeing if specified precautions had been taken by the employers.

Companies are to Blame.

An example of the toll industry takes from the workers is afforded by the statistics of Pennsylvania Railroad accidents, with 36 employes' eyes lost in one year and 2,000 more or less serious eye accidents. In the state of Pennsylvania, in all industries, in the year 1920, 691 eyes were lost, with 244 of these in coal mining and 220 in metal and metal products, largely steel making.

Flying particles from so-called "emery" wheels or grinding wheels, cause about one-third of all industrial eye accidents. Thre is no excause for this. Employers should provide protective shields and dust exhausts for the wheels and individual, well-fitting gogles for the men. Chipping cast iron remains the most dangerous individual eye hazard—without protection—but an endless variety of eye injuries and diseases come from splashing molten metals, the growing use of poisonous chemicals in industry and bad lighting.

Fifty-two chemicals are especially dangerous to the eyes, with lead poisoning and its atrophy of the optic nerve affecting the workers in more than a hundred occupations; wood alcohol, ammonia, tar, turpentine and the acids being contenders for the dishonor.

Engineering reorganization, sometimes rebuilding of a plant, is necessary, frequently, to lessen eye hazards. This is true in badly lit plants where window space is at a minimum and it is true in the case of dangerous, old pattern machines. Employers have to be prodded to make these reforms. The report cites the case of one company whose safety engineer laid out a program that would save the eyes of the men but looked costly. So the management said nothing doing, till two more eyes were lost.

Workmen's compensation laws, forcing the boss to pay out good dollars, have done much in bringing safer conditions. In the nation at large the payments for eye injuries amount to $23,000,000 and in Pennsylvania, from 1916 to 1924, the sum of $6,201,763 was paid out, or more than the compensation costs for loss of arms, legs, feet and miscellaneous permanent injuries.

KLAN INVADES CAPITAL, FIERY CROSS BURNED

Coolidge Permits K.K.K. to Stir Race Prejudice

(Special to The Daily Worker)

WASHINGTON, Aug. 10.—Glowing with satisfaction over the success of their first "national konvention," the ku klux klan now plan to make it an annual event, and tentatively have selected New York as the spot for the 1926 gathering of the hosts, it was reported here today. Most of the 100,000 klan visitors left the capital over the week-end.

Last night the Virginia hills across the Potomac were aglow with the light shed by a gigantic fiery cross, which marked the end of the konklave.

Represents the Left Wing of the Labor Movement. Its Purpose is to Strengthen the Labor Unions by Amalgamation of Existing Unions, Organization of the Unorganized, and by Replacing Reactionary and Class Collaboration Policies with a Unified Program for the Transformation of the Unions Into Organs of Revolutionary Class Struggle for the Overthrowal of Capitalism and the Establishment of a Workers' and Farmers' Government.

RED INTERNATIONAL OF LABOR UNIONS REVIEWS 5 YEARS' LIFE; CALLS FOR UNITY IN STRUGGLE

MOSCOW, July 18—(By Mail)—The Executive Bureau of the Red International of Labor Unions publishes the following appeal entitled "Five Years of the R. I. L. U.":

"In July 1920, the second congress of the Communist International took place in Moscow and on this occasion the representatives of the red trade unions and the revolutionary minorities in Italy, Jugoslavia, Bulgaria, Spain and France met with the Soviet unions to discuss the organization of all revolutionary elements of the international trade union movement.

"The International Trade Union Federation formed after the war at Amsterdam, was attempting to sell the workers to the League of Nations and to reconcile them with the capitalist system. The Soviet trade unions were blocked by the reformists and all efforts were made to suppress the victorious proletarian revolution in Russia.

"At its formation the Amsterdam International consisted of approximately 25 millions of workers. In the course of its six years of activity it has lost about 10 millions of workers, so that today it has only some 15 million members.

"The Versailles peace treaty, the general offensive of the employers against the working class in all parts of the world, and finally the Dawes plan, have made the conditions of the toilers ever worse.

"The Amsterdam International, however, made no efforts to mobilize the whole forces of the international trade union movement for the struggle against the attacks of the bourgeoisie. On the contrary, it considered it its task to disrupt the international trade union movement.

"Parallel with the attacks of the imperialist states upon the republic of the Russian workers and peasants, the attacks of the Amsterdam Trade Union International against the revolutionary trade unions in all countries were carried on.

"The R. I. L. U. has always struggled for the unity of the international trade union movement and has regarded it as its most important task to mobilize the forces of the trade union organized masses for the struggle against international capitalism. Already at its official inaugural congress in 1921 this aim was the chief point in the discussions.

"The second congress of the R. I. L. U. occupied itself in the first place with the organization of the revolutionary forces in the international trade union movement, whilst the third congress last year concentrated chiefly upon the reestablishment of trade union unity.

"When the Amsterdam International Federattion of Trade Unions was formed, only small groups of workers in the various countries were dissatisfied with the reformist policy of the Amsterdam leaders. In the course of time, however, strong groups of revolutionary trade unions have formed themselves in all countries, and today almost one-third of the members of the International Federation of Trade Unions are in the opposition.

"A strong left wing has just been formed in the Amsterdam Trade Union International. The present chairman of the I. F. T. U., the leader of the English trade unions, Alfred Purcell, is a friend of the Russian unions. He assists the aim of the Anglo-Russian unity committee, is in favor of the affiliation of the Russian unions to the I. R. T. U. and supports the idea of the organization of all unions in one united International.

"Since its existence the Amsterdam International has been a European International, whilst the R. I. L. U., apart from the Soviet Union, counted the trade union committees of China and Java, a few countries in South America and North Africa, the Balkan countries, France and Checho-Slovakia and strong revolutionary minoritites in all important industrial countries of the world amongst its members and supporters.

"The roots of the R. I. L. U. reach back to the period before the war when small troops of revolutionary trade unionists existed in Russia, Germany, France, Spain, Italy and in a few other countries. During the world war not only the political working class movement was reborn at the conferences of Zimmerwald and Kienthal, but also the revolutionary trade union movement.

"In the five years of its official existence, the R. I. L. U. has achieved a great amount of revolutionary work and it has experienced very much. Very much work has been done, but still more remains to be done.

"We must concentrate all our forces upon the strengthening of the revolutionary trade union movement and upon the struggle for the establishment of the unity of the trade union movement as the preparation for the social revolution.

"Down with international imperialism and its reformist helpers!

"Long live the fraternal alliance of the revolutionary workers of the West and the suppressed peoples of the East!

"Long live the Red International of Labor Unions!

"Long live the unity of the international trade union movement!

Carmen's Bright Idea All to the Good, Only Union Must Keep Fund

WASHINGTON, Aug. 10—Decision by the general executive board of the Amalgamated Assn. of Street and Electric Railway Employes, to demand in all wage contracts henceforth that the employing company provide death and accident insurance and old age disability benefits, without cost, has been made public by the executive council of the American Federation of Labor with its tacit endorsement. If the union would control all funds, this would meet the only remaining left wing objection.

The streetcar men have been studying "welfare" schemes for the past year, and have determined that the inclusion of the ordinary insurance and retirement benefits should be accepted in all future contracts as a right of the employes. In this way they will remove the temptation of streetcar workers to trade their union affiliation for promises of a company pension.

MINER ASKS, "IS IT TIME FOR ACTION?"

Farrington Treachery Demands Miners Act

By A. W. YOUNG.

O'FALLON, Ill., Aug. 10—O'Fallon is only one of the many places that the workers are underfed, underclothed, and deprived of the right to work for an honest living. And why? Because we, the rank and file, have no leadership at the head of the U. M. W. of A.

The operators are proud of our present official family. Here in O'Fallon the operators and the business men have organized a committee, or rather, a labor bureau.

Organized Blacklist.

This bureau is made up of business men. Their function is to recommend to the coal operators who to hire and who to fire. They are well acquainted with those who have the guts to stand up and fight for their rights. And who are those fellows? The Communists and progressive miners, of course.

We have good reason to believe that there are others behind this committee besides the coal operators and business men. Of course the official family is in business. They are doing a better business than the operators. There is no danger of them going bankrupt, not until the rank and file wakes up.

Conspiracy With Operators.

The operators couldn't put Freeman Thompson, John Watt, Tom Parry, and Duncan McDonald out of the organization, so Farrington had to do the job. It is not a hard matter to know who the real enemies of the workers are.

Last winter, when the unemployed miners appealed to Frank Farrington and John L. Lewis for financial aid to keep their little children from starving and freezing to death, they sent word back that they only had enough money in the treasury to run the organization. And at the same time Frank Farrington drew from the miners' treasury approximately $7,000 in a six months' period!

And out of this same treasury hundreds of dollars were paid out for death claims when there were no deaths or death claims to be paid.

At the same time as the looting of the miners' treasury was going on, the rank and file miners in O'Fallon were compelled to go out at night and steal coal to keep their children from freezing to death.

But does this concern Farrington? Not at all. What does he care about a few thousand children starving or freezing to death so long as he and his sluggers have free access to the miners' treasury?

We'll Say It's Time!

Fellow workers, is it not time for action? Let's bury the dead and give the living a chance. Did it ever occur to you that when the operators begin to squeal because the Communists take a leading part in the organization and expose the looting of the miners' treasury, and fight for better wages, shorter hours, and better conditions for the working people, that our state and national officials also begin to squeal about the Communists?

And when it happens that these militant fighters are in office, it is not long before Frank Farrington and John L. Lewis not only put them out of office, but also clear out of the organization.

Mule drivers like Farrington and his tools make good slave drivers for the operators.

LABOR SPY'S REPORT EXPOSED; FINK IS PLEASED BY A. F. OF L. FAKERS' ATTACK ON COMMUNISTS

From sources it cannot disclose, the DAILY WORKER has come into possession of a secret report made by a detective assigned to spy upon labor and radical organizations.

The DAILY WORKER wishes to call attention to this report, not merely because it shows that such nefarious work is being carried on—that is taken for granted by all classconscious workers, but attention is directed to the character of the matters reported, and the attitude of this trained rat of capitalist espionage, to the matters reported.

Spy Knows His Friends.

Altho the report is written very objectively, still one can see clearly where the sympathies of this labor spy lie in the struggle between the labor union bureaucracy and the left wing, particularly the Communist port of the left wing.

It should be pointed out that the campaign in the A. F. of L. "and other unions" to expel the Communists is reported as the first item of importance. The labor fakers who are carrying on this campaign very evidently see eye to eye with this unspeakable rat, and the Communists may well be proud of their enemies, just as the labor fakers may well be ashamed of their friends.

Fink Pleased at Bill Green and Sigman.

Note how this fink speaks of "an increasing strength of stand on the part of the A. F. of L. and other unions that the labor movement must rid itself of Communist influence." The fact that in spite of the worthy efforts of the labor fakers to accomplish this end, the Communists' defense has been strong enuf to cause a deadlock, furnishes material for the doleful comment that "there is nothing to make an interesting report."

Surely, if the labor union bureaucracy, from Bill Green and Bill Johnston to the most obscure labor faker wish to show that they want to cheer up this labor spy, they must redouble their campaign against the Communists in the unions and overcome this "uninteresting" deadlock.

A Spy for British Imperialism.

It would be interesting to know just what sinister forces are behind this capitalist tool's espionage upon the National India Association and those who work for the freedom of the Irish people. Capitalism is continually trying to convince organized labor that it should have nothing to do with the labor unions of other countries.

But what logic remains in the argument against international trade union unity, let alone an alliance between the American proletariat and the movements for national liberation now fighting against imperialist oppression, when we see that here in America, American imperialism is so interested in safeguarding British imperialism that, regardless of the strongest conflicting interests in China and elsewhere, it is paying secret agents to spy upon the internal foes of British imperialism.

Labor Spies Hate Labor Defense.

The third matter reported by this labor spy is likewise a subject in which every worker has an interest—and an interest opposed to that of capitalism and its secret informer.

The International Labor Defense has been attacked most viciously by an element in the labor movement. While this element is small in numbers, yet it will from now on be regarded by honest workers as in alliance with the detectives sent among labor to spy upon it.

Against Negro Labor Congress.

The fourth and last matter reported is the American Negro Labor Congress. Evidently the labor hating, union disrupting and Communist baiting capitalists of America are very much opposed to the American Negro Labor Congress and to the organisation in the labor unions of Negro workers. This is a certificate to all honest workers, that the unionisation of Negro workers is one of the primary necessities of the labor movement.

It should be noted in summary that the Communists, and the Communists alone, are mentioned adversely and continuously as being "worth watching." Where are those organizations which pretend or pretended to lead the fight against capitalism—but either carry on their "fights" verbally or, in the case of the socialists, have gone over and become allies of capitalism?

Where are these socialists, the I. W. W., the S. L. P. and the self-inflated P. P. Only the Communists are active enuf to draw the fire of American capitalism.

Here Comes the Fink's Report.

The report, which we give below, is upon activities in New York City. It says:

"SPECIAL," FRIDAY, JULY 31, 1925.
"GENERAL RADICAL.

"There is very little new or interesting this week. The fight between the labor unions on the Communist question continues with an increasing strength of stand on the part of the A. F. of L. and other unions that the labor movement must rid itself of Communist influence. There is, however, even in this situation, a sort of deadlock, and there is nothing to make an interesting report.

"The National India Association is giving another of their banquets Sunday evening, at which one of the speakers is to be also the guest of honor, and that is Mary McSweeney, the Irish woman, sister, I believe, of one of the Irish leaders.

"A pamphlet containing manifesto, resolutions and constitution has been issued by the International Labor Defense, which is Communistic in sympathies and make-up, according to information I have on it.

"I believed I have mentioned to you the holding recently of a certain conference of labor leaders on the question of admitting Negroes to the labor unions more freely than is at present being done. This week apeared a new paper called the Negro Champion, which is being published as the official organ of the American Negro Labor Congress. This paper discloses the Communist tendencies of the mentioned organization. It is edited by Lovett Fort-Whiteman, who was in Soviet Russia for some time. I shall try in the next couple of weeks to get you more information on the organization."

'B. & O. BILL', ONCE THE WORST THING TIED ON JOHNSTON; READ THIS AND THINK UP A NEW NAME

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., August 10.—Wm. H. Johnston, international president of the International Association of Machinists, in the fight of the reactionaries against the progressives is now beginning to assume the leadership upon a national scale.

"B. & O. Bill" finds, as the outstanding leader for class-collaboration, that it is necessary he also assume leadership against the Communists and Progressives because they are gradually discrediting him and his traitorous policy before the rank and file.

In order to hide his own corruption and to divert attention from his stealing of the election from the Anderson group, Johnston is trying to solidify the reactionary forces to carry on a united drive against everything that smacks of progress and to label everyone who opposes the machine as Communists.

We Get Them All When They Need It.

A few days ago the DAILY WORKER published a story by Jack Johnstone exposing the pseudo progressives, Fitzpatrick and Nockels, where B. & O. Bill Johnston enlisted the services of Ed Nockels in his fight against McMahon, a supporter of the Anderson group and a political opponent of Johnston.

The following letter sent to a member of the Metal Polishers' Union, the name of whom, for obvious reasons, we withhold, shows that Johnston is broadening his activities and now aspires to be the chief stool pigeon against the progressives.

Letter Written by "B. & O." Bill Johnston.

"Dear Brother: I feel it my duty to write to you to convey information which I have received regarding the activities of one of your officers. I am sending you this as a personal matter, in order that you may make your own investigation, if you deem it of sufficient importance to do so.

"I have been reliably informed that Mr. Heaphy, whom I understand is a vice-president of your organization, is working in close cooperation with the Communists or Workers Party outfit, as is also, Charles M. O'Brien, who I believe, has been employed by your organization as an organizer.

"Our organization has definitely gone on record, declaring the Communists or Workers Party, and the Trade Union Educational League antagonistic and dual to the bona fide organisations we are giving notice to our membership that they may choose between holding membership in the International Association of Machinists or in these aforementioned organizations.

"I hope that you will not feel that I am interfering in your affairs, but as indicatted I felt it my duty to send you this information for such use as you care to make of it. I think you can easily secure sufficient evidence to substantiate the statements contained in this letter.

"You will find enclosed a newspaper clipping which announces Mr. O'Brien is to be a speaker of the Proletarian Party at open air meetings. If I am correctly informed, the Proletarian Party is an offshoot of the Communist Party, or the Workers Party under another name.

"With best wishes, I remain, fraternally yours,

"(Signed) Wm. H. Johnstone,
"International President."

Johnston evidently is organizing an espionage system within the trade union movement, he says in his letter: "I have been reliably informed that Mr. Heaphy, whom I understand is a vice-president of your organization is working in close co-operation with the Communists or Workers Party outfit, as is also, Charles M. O'Brien, who I believe has been employed by your organization as an organizer." Who "informed" our B. & O. friend?

We do not know Mr. Heaphy except as a vice-president of the Metal Polishers' Union, but from the fact that Johnston seems to be after his scalp, we take it for granted that Heapy is a fly in the ointment and is opposed to Bill's program at some point that hurts.

"Informer" Had Wires Crossed.

As for Charles M. O'Brien, Johnston's "informer" was evidently eavesdropping at the wrong key-hole. Our old friend Charles M. does not believe in such practical work as organizing Metal Polishers into organizations that struggle against the employers. If it were a study class to theorize about the theory of the class struggle, but not to put the theory into practice, then Charles might accept the job as organizer.

Johnston is the recognized leader in this country of class collaboration. He more than any one man, side tracked the labor-party sentiment into the LaFollette middle class reformist camp. Now he is assuming the leadership nationally against the Communists, the T. U. E. L., and progressives of all shades. In doing so he thinks that he can save himself and his administration by hiding their corrutpion behind a "red scare" barrage. He is kidding himself.

Look Out, You O'Briens.

We understand that the Irishman who bears the honored name of O'Brien in the Metal Polishers' Union is Martin H. O'Brien and not Charles M., as "B. & O. Bill," the Nick Carter of the scenario entitled—"Expel the Reds!"—has been "reliably informed," who knows but by some spy of the bosses in the ranks of organized labor.

Evidently any union man in the A. F. of L. who carries the moniker of O'Brien, had best look to his interests, as otherwise B. & O. Bill Johnston of the Machinists' Union is apt to have him expelled from the union as a "Communist" and a "red," which is, in turn, evidence enough for the capitalist government to jail or deport him.

NINE THOUSAND TRACTORS SENT TO SOVIET UNION

Amtorg Sends Two Ship Loads Within Week

(Special to The Daily Worker)

NEW YORK, Aug. 10—Purchases on a large scale of tractors and other agricultural machinery for Soviet Russia have been effected by the Amtorg Trading corporation within recent weeks following increased demands coming in as a result of the good crop conditaions in the Soviet Union.

The first shipment of the new purchases was sent on the steamer Stakesby which sailed from New York on Aug. 7, with a cargo of 1494 tractors and 1500 plows and parts destined for the port of Novorossisk on the Black Sea.

Additional 2,300 tractors with plows and parts will make up the cargo of S. S. Beckenham, leaving New York on August 12 for the ports of Odessa and Novorossisk.

The value of the two shipments is placed at about $2,200,000. Other shipments are to be made in the near future.

These two cargoes will bring up the number of tractors shipped to Soviet Russia by the Amtorg Trading corporation since last August to 9,000.

CLEVELAND WORKERS PARTY ISSUES STATEMENT OPPOSING AMENDMENT TO ELECTION LAWS, URGES LABOR PARTY

CLEVELAND, Ohio, August 10.—The Workers (Communist) Party of Cleveland has issued a statement opposing the proposed amendment to the city charter to abolish proportional representation, which will be voted on August 11. The Workers Party at the same time opposes the non-partisan method of election, and urges the workers to fight for a labor party.

The statement says:

Support P. R.!! Defeat the city charter amendment on August 1:

To the trades unionists and other workers of Cleveland: The Workers' Party calls upon you to support your working class interests on Aug. 11. Go to the polls in full force and vote AGAINST the proprosed amendment to kill proportional representation.

But at the same time that this vicious, anti-labor amendment is being defeated, it ought to be kept clearly in mind that the present P. R. system is not fully in accordance with the interests of labor.

P. R. at present provides for a non-partisan ballot on which no party names appear. The Workers' Party stands for what at present is most in the interest of labor, that is, a system of proportional representation using the partisan ballot with party names on it.

The non-partisan ballot is a smoke-screen used by both liberal and reactionary capitalist politicians to confuse the workers and make it difficult for them to vote according to their class interests.

But the proposed amendment also calls for the non-partisan ballot and since it is a choice between two non-partisan systems, the one which provides for proportional representation is the one for labor to support.

The policy of neutrality followed by the Cleveland Federation of Labor in its refusal to take a stand on the question, must be thoroly condemned, not only as being a concession to capitalist politicians, but as being wrong in principle. Every political issue is of importance to labor in one way or another, at the very least it strengthens the political power of labor every time the workers consciously attempt to unitedly support their class interests in the elections.

Labor must realize that no system of elections can be utilized in labor's interests fully, without much better political organization than at present. There ought to be a labor party composed of the unions and political and other organizations of workers willing to unite on the principle of independent working class political action regardless of other differences.

Keeping in mind that labor must work for a labor party, and for a system of proportional representation embodying the partisan ballot, the workers of Cleveland must nevertheless take a definite stand on the proposed amendment and vote it down decisively as being absolutely not a change in the interest of labor but the reverse.

If the working class of Cleveland acts in accordance with its class interests, there will be no question as to the defeat of the amendment on Tuesday.

Cleveland Workers! Go to the polls, Aug. 11. "Defeat the Amendment!"

SYNOPSIS.—The British trade union leaders' report on Soviet Russia, which is running serially in the DAILY WORKER, Saturday took up the subject of foreign trade in the Soviet Union. Transportation, industry and agriculture have already been described in the official report. The union leaders concluded that foreign trade and agriculture is steadily improving, and told how the finances of the Union have been placed on a stable basis. The New Economic Policy in relation to agriculture was explained. The industries are increasing production, the report stated. Recent instalments of the report dealt in detail with the relation of the Union with foreign countries. The regulation of trade, financing, foreign bank credits, statistics of foreign trade, status of foreigners, were some of the subjects dealt with. The instalment concludes that foreign trade is workable, and that harm is being done Britain by the absence of full diplomatic relations.

• • • •

The first idea of the revolutionaries, and one to which the Revolution has subsequently to some extent returned, was to establish a unified system of "People's Courts," based on "direct democratic election" (Article 1). But it was recognized that such courts were incapable of conducting the class war and accordingly they were very soon supplemented by Revolutionary tribunals with the special function of combating counter-revolution, contraband, etc., composed of a President and six assessors nominated by the Provincial Councils (Article 8). Thus there was created a double system of courts; and as class sabotage, conspiracies, counter-revolution, and "white" campaigns developed, the People's Courts were altogether put into the background by the proletarian Revolutionary Tribunals. The 32 Revolutionary Tribunals, for example, as early as 1918, got 56 per cent. of the criminal cases. What was more significant of war conditions was the policy expressed in a decree of November 21st, 1918, which proposed to replace the "democratic" local (Mestny) People's Courts by a revival of the District (Okrujny) Courts of the Tsarist class regime, to which a new class character was given by appointing members through the local Councils. This made a third element in what was to have been a "unified" judicature. But this, the most unsatisfactory position reached in the course of the Revolution, lasted only a few months. A decree of January 15th, 1919, based on resolutions of the I. and II. Congress of Councils, abolished the District Courts and restored the authority of the People's Courts, subjecting their independence, however, to the supervision of a Council of People's Courts to be composed "principally of Communists"; while in other respects also the independence, irremovability and partiality of the members of the Court were seriously impaired. For example, the principle of "direct democratic election" was suspended in favor of indirect nomination through the local Councils. Perhaps the best feature of the system at this period was its decentralization. For the only Central Court of Cassation was the above-mentioned Council, and there was no general right of appeal at all from the Provincial Courts of Second Instance. But this, again, resulted in local authorities occasionally using the local Courts as instruments of class warfare in a way the Central Government would have prevented had it had the judicial machinery for doing so.

Revolutionary Developments

Meantime, during the first period of counter-revolutionary campaigns—Koltchak, Yudenich, Denikin—the Revolutionary Tribunals continued their political function, reinforced and even replaced to a large extent by the notorious Extraordinary Commission or "Tcheka." Both the Tribunals and Tcheka had at this time powers of summary execution. Their activities dealt with shortly in a later section are responsible for the false impression abroad of the Soviet judicial system. But no sooner had active counter-revolutionary action ended, as it was then assumed permanently, than the power of capital punishment was taken away, both from the Tcheka and the Tribunals, by a decree of January 17th, 1920. The interval did not, however, last long, and the last and worst counter-revolutionary crisis was reached in the combined invasion of the Ukraine by the Poles and Wrangel. This caused the restoration of full powers of punishment to the Revolutionary Tribunals, though not to the Tcheka, which only got powers of interment up to five years. Besides the Tcheka there were other special competences working with the Revolutionary Tribunals, such as the Special Divisions (Osobenny Otdyel), the Military Tribunals, and the Railway Tribunals. Most of the criminal jurisdiction was indeed taken over on one ground or another (state of siege, etc.) by these special tribunals during this period. Thus, the Railway Tribunals (under decree of November 20th, 1919, and March 18th, 1920) took all offenses or their like, connected with or committed on the railways. The Tribunals of the Tcheka, invested under decree of October 21st, 1919, with powers of the summary procedure, took the most important offenses againsnt public order. Moreover, capital sentences by local tribunals could be confirmed by the Central Tribunal or Tcheka. Further, in the course of 1921, the Revolutionary Tribunals extended their operations far beyond the criminal code into enforcing the campaigns of War Communism for the requisition of fuel and foodstuffs.

During this period the People's Courts only retained jurisdiction over cases of little importance and purely local interest. It became obvious that under continued war pressure justice and the judicature had specialized into forms very different from the original intention of the leaders of the Revolution.

Restoration to Peace Conditions

The first attempt to restore the judicature to a proper form and functions was a decree of June 21st, 1921, establishing a Supreme Court in the Central Executive Committee, and restricting the powers of the Revolutionary and Special Tribunals. Similar Supreme Courts were subsequently set up in the autonomous Republics. Progress in this direction could only be slow, for, though the campaigns on the internal and external fronts were now over, conspiracy was still active. Nevertheless, the Revolutionary Tribunals were reorganized and their activities restricted. At the same time the People's Courts were given a more national and less local character by associating the Council of People's Courts in the nomination of their members.

Then came the New Economic Policy with its restoration of private property and the renunciation of War Communism. This, before long, involved a complete reconstruction of the revolutionary judicature and jurisprudence. For jurisprudence again became concerned with rights of persons and property in all its modern developments. While the function of protecting the Communist—or perhaps more correctly, the Socialist—foundations of the new State against the rising flood of private enterprise had to be transferred from the Red Guard, the Red Army, and the Tcheka, to the Law Courts. The last line of defense of Socialism still remained a recourse to armed force; but the first line now became the new Codes as enforced through the People's Courts. This, therefore, involved an abolition of all Revolutionary Tribunals and other forms of judicial coercion, the elaboration of a complete new system of jurisprudence and the re-establishment of a unified judicature.

The latter task was only carried through against the obstinate opposition of many Communists who considered the maintenance of the revolutionary judiciary as indispensable for the safeguarding of the Revolution. After a short but sharp struggle, however, a complete judicial reform was promulgated (decree of October 31st, 1922), and put in force throughout the Russian Federation on January 1st, 1923. The Union had then not yet been finally ratified and acceptance of this new system is not obligatory on Republics entering the Union, though it is on Republics holding under the Federation (R. S. F. S. R.).

The Judiciary

The new judiciary consists of People's Courts of Justice, composed of a permanent judge, sitting either alone or with two "People's Assessors"—Provincial Courts of Second Instance—and a Supreme Court of the Russian Federation, sub-divided into various Courts of special jurisdiction. There are also, as in other countries, Military Tribunals for the armed forces. Further, Labor Courts, which may be the local People's Court in special session for labor cases, and Commissions for deciding differences between State enterprises. The Revolutionary Tribunals, the Special Divisions, and the Tcheka are abolished.

The People's Courts

Each district (ouyezd) or town has a People's Court. The judges must be citizens of good character, who have participated in local government, and "who have had two years' responsible political work in some political organization or three years' practical work in one of the judicial departments." They are selected by the Provincial Executive Committee on the proposal of the Provincial Judge or the Commissariat of Justice for a renewable term of one year subject to suspension by the Commissariat. Criminal cases of importance the judge tries with two assessors. These assessors seem very similar in general function and manner of selection to our jury. The panel must contain 50 per cent. of workers, and there are arrangements for special assessors in cases of importance.

Provincial Courts

The Provincial Courts have the usual jurisdiction of Second Instance, and their President and assessors are appointed on a similar system as in the National Courts, but higher qualifications are required. They have taken over in First Instance the class of cases previously tried in the Revolutionary Tribunals in so far as such are offenses under existing law. The President also exercises a supervision over all the judges in the Province. The Court is divided into criminal and civil departments, each being sub-divided into Courts of Appeal and of First Instance, the first having three professional judges, the latter a judge and two assessors.

Supreme Court

The Supreme Court has the supervision of all inferior courts, final jurisdiction in appeal, and also in first instance for the most important matters. The Supreme Court has a standing Committee (presidium), a plenary assembly, and juriconsults for appeals, also marine and military experts.

Working of the People's Courts

The working of these Courts was studied by the Delegation, some of whom spent two afternoons listening to cases.

The first thing that struck an observer was that the atmosphere aimed at was different. Instead of the impressive staging and trappings of a Western Law Court, all calculated to impress the dignity of the law, there was an almost aggressive simplicity and absence of solemnity or ceremonial. For example, the Moscow People's Courts are installed in an ordinary apartment house, the court-room being merely the largest room of the flat. The public, the prisoners, their guard, and their counsel, all sit anywhere on the benches. At a red-covered table sits the judge, with an assessor on either side and a girl short-hand-writer at the end of the table. The red turbans of the women judges are the only note of a ceremonial costume. There are no police or ushers. Two young soldiers of the Red Army in charge of prisoners sit on the benches among the public.

The judge calls out the names of prisoners or parties in a case, and they come forward, stand before the table and talk to him. Prisoners sit on a bench but stand up to speak. The whole court rise to their feet while judgment is read. The judges, who are all quite young men, never press an examination in the French manner, and cross-examine very fairly but effectively. One in ten of them are women, and generally one of the two assessors.

The case does not seem to be for the most part the trial of a legal issue, and the Codes are not very often referred to; but seems to be rather directed to arriving at an honest and humane appreciation of the circumstances of each case. Thus considerations are taken into account which would be excluded in most Law Courts. But this in criminal cases seems generally to tell in favor of the prisoner; and both in criminal and civil cases, though the decisions often seemed of little legal value, they undoubtedly served the security of person and property with a minimum of individual suffering. Moreover, the prisoner or the parties, being quite at their ease, in their anxiety to do the best for themselves, as often as not saved the court much trouble in arriving at the real truth. In important criminal cases, when a public prosecutor appears, the prisoner is provided with counsel. Counsel can be employed in any case, but seem rarely used, and indeed of little use.

As to the impartiality of these courts, there is a general agreement that they "weight the balance" in favor of the worker as against the well-to-do; and this is defended on the ground that it corresponds to the weighting of the other scale elsewhere. As to their incorruptibility, information is on the whole remarkably satisfactory. During the Delegation's stay in Russia there was a criminal prosecution of the courts in one provincial capital on charges of corruption, involving six judges and a number of counsel; and it seems likely that any serious lapses in this respect would not long escape detection.

The Superior Courts are as simple in their procedure as the lower, though rather more spaciously housed. And the general impression carried away from them all is that of a judicature in its youth conducted by youth, that will learn its work in time to deal with the civil cases of great legal complexity that the new social system will shortly develop. As to criminal cases, it is noticeable that they have somewhat changed their character under the new social system. The crimes common in Western Courts—drunkenness, brutalities against the person, breaches of order, etc., are conspicuous by their absence; their place being taken by what we should consider only derelictions of social duties.

Public Order and Security

Personal security and public order in the principal cities of the Union seemed to the Delegation far more secure than in the capitals of other continental countries. The Delegation in their travels, even when not officially conducted, neglected the most ordinary precautions as to their property, and the only occasion on which anything was stolen was in Trans Caucasia. Whereas, on leaving the country, one of them staying in a neighboring capital was robbed three times in four days.

The Police

Little attention has been paid abroad to the interesting judicature and jurisprudence of the U. S. S. R. owing to the sensational and generally unsubstantiated stories circulated as to the "Tcheka" and the organized repression of counter-revolution under War Communism that ended in 1921. The activities of the Tcheka are fully reported in a publication (Sovietskaya Justitsia) brought to England by the Delegation of 1920. The Tcheka need, therefore, only be referred to here as an organization such as all States, whether revolutionary or reactionary, must establish when the Government authority is menaced by civil or foreign war. The only difference being that reaction, such as Tsarism, comes to depend on its "Okhrana" (secret police) and its Cossacks (mounted constabulary) more and more; whereas revolution, as Russia has shown, can demobilize these forces the very moment the need for them is over.

The police administration (G. P. U.) is often referred to abroad as though it were just the Tcheka under another name. This is not so. The Tcheka was not only a secret police, it was a regime as all-present and all powerful as the old Tsarist Okhrana; and it had, moreover, up to the last years of its existence a separate jurisdiction, including the power of capital punishment. It retained a certain criminal jurisdiction up to its abolition in 1922. There is now no "Tcheka," nor anything of that nature except in Georgia. And the G. P. U. has no power to proceed or even to prosecute. It merely prepares the case like any other police force. Its duties are police duties, though the actual patrolling and point duties of a police force are still largely left to the military—at least in Moscow. Provincial towns, like Kharkov, have a smart mounted police and constabulary.

The G. P. U. is now nothing more than an organization like our own detective service. Its headquarters on one of the principal squares of Moscow might be any Government office—as unlike the Bastille of our own Scotland Yard as it is unlike the old Tcheka, which was a dirty labyrinth of dilapidated houses with private prisons hidden away in its remoter recesses, and generally a most sinister atmosphere. The G. P. U. still has political responsibilities — counter-revolutionary conspiracies are still discovered and may entail capital punishment after trial in the Criminal Courts. But the main function of the G. P. U. is now the ordinary police preservation of public order and of preventing contraband.

The Codes

The most interesting and original of the Codes is the Labor Code. The present Code of November 6th, 1922, replaced that of 1918. The advent of the New Economic Policy made indispensable a Code that would secure the laborer the results of the Revolution so far as new conditions allowed. These results, such as eight-hour day, minimum wage, employers' liability, insurance, etc., are much the same as obtain elsewhere. (See Labor.)

The Land Code of October 30th, 1922, has the same origin in the New Economic Policy. It is based on the principle that the land ownership is vested in the State, and its main function is to define the rights that the State may confer in land.

The Criminal Code of November, 1922, has little of special interest. Capital punishment is confined to convictions for conspiracy of a serious character.

HARTFORD, CONN., WORKERS DEMAND HANDS OFF CHINA

Meeting Successful Over Obstacles

By DAVID LIFSHITZ.

HARTFORD, Conn., Aug. 10. — In spite of the fact that the local paper, The Hartford Times, refused to print the ad advertising the "Hands off China", "Stand by Soviet Russia" meeting and in spite of the police who arrested those who were distributing leaflets to the workers at the shops, an open air meeting arranged by the Kuomintang (Chinese National Party) the Workers Party and the Young Workers League was held.

A crowd of about 300 workers listened attentively while three speakers, two from the Kuomintang and one from the Workers Party addressed them.

Workers Party Sounds Keynote.

Wm. Simons, organizer of District 15 spoke for the Workers Party. He exposed the friendly pretentions of the U. S. and pointed out that the only friend who is helping and will help to free the Chinese people from the exploitation of the capitalist are the workers and peasants of Soviet Russia.

He also pointed out that the Communist Party of China which works hand in hand with National Revolutionary Party will not give up the fight until, not only is China released from the grip of the imperialists but also a government of workers and farmers (a Soviet government) is established.

Chinese Speakers Applaud Communists

Sanpson Lee and the Chinese speaker from New York, dwelt on the outrages of the imperialistic countries against the Chinese people, and protested against the actions of England, Japan, France and U. S. to oppose the Chinese people.

They emphasized that the only nation which is friendly to China is Soviet Russia and that the only party that will lead them to victory is the Communist Party.

The following resolutions were unanimously adopted by the crowd:

Resolution Adopted.

"Whereas, the imperialistic countries of the world, England, Japan, America and France have forced the people of China into economic and political subjection.

"Whereas, the Chinese workers are trying to improve their conditions and are demonstrating against the exploiter.

"Whereas, the Chinese students are supporting the workers in their struggle.

"Whereas, all classes of China are demanding the liberation of their country and the right to rule themselves.

"Whereas, Chinese strickers and students are shot down in the streets by the armed forces of the foreign imperialists.

"We, workers of Hartford, Connecticut, demand:

"The withdrawal of all foreign troops and battleships.

"The cancellation of all unequal treaties.

"The abolishment of all extra territorial rights.

"The granting of all demands of the striking Chinese workers.

"The punishment of the foreign police responsible for the massacre of defenseless Chinese workers and students.

"Pensions for the dependents of the murdered ones.

"The dissolution of the mixed courts.

"And whereas, the imperialist attack is aimed not only at the Chinese workers but also at the Russian Soviet government which sympatizes with the Chinese in their struggle.

"We pledge to stand by Soviet Russia."

IRON WORKERS MOURN THEIR DEAD COMRADES

But Capitalist Politicians Get Honors

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., August 10.—Four hundred iron workers laid down their tools for the day as an expression of solidarity and grief to the lives of two fellow workers killed on the great Delaware River Bridge.

Theodore Jolson, aged 26, of Billings, Montana, and Albert Miedema, age 23, of Troy, N. Y., were instantly killed when a huge girder struck them and they fell 85 feet.

The men were employed in the raising gang on the Camden side of the bridge.

A total of nine workers' lives have been sacrificed in the building of this huge steel structure, the greatest of its kind in the world.

The DAILY WORKER correspondent found some difficulty in securing the information until he met some of the workers who remembered him from their recent strike for an increase in wages which they won after short demonstration of solidarity.

When the great Delaware River bridge is finally completed in July, 1926, the names of the capitalist politicians of Philadelphia and Camden will be installed on the steel girders of the bridge in huge bronze plates and speeches and orations will be made to their honor and glory, but only the iron workers, who are now riveting their lives and blood into the steel beams and girders will remember the names of Miedema and Jolson and the seven other iron workers who gave their lives that the great structure may be completed.

FARRINGTON HAD SCHEME TO CUT WAGES AT JOHNSTON CITY MINES BUT PROGRESSIVE SPOILED IT

By ALEX REID

(Secretary of the Progressive Miners' Committee.)

ARTICLE XII.

The notorious attempt to betray the miners of Johnston City, Ill., will be long remembered by the coal digging slaves of that community. The DAILY WORKER carried a complete exposure of the case about a month ago, so I will here mention only the outstanding points.

Farrington had a conference with the coal operators of Johnston City, about the month of May, 1925, and immediately afterwards suggested to the miners of Johnston City that they accept a reduction of twelve cents per ton. Frank Farrington went to Johnston City and made a long speech to the men urging the men to accept the reduction, as he said it was the only way the miners in that community would be able to get any work.

He Didn't—Neither Did They Care

At that meeting Frank saw his treacherous move was not being well taken by the wary coal miners, so Frank got mad and said to the disgusted miners "I know you don't like me, but I don't give a god damn." He was right. The men did not like him, it was plain to see, neither did they like his treacherous scheme, and denounced both.

A cut in the miserable, starvation pittance of a wage that the Johnston City men are getting now would reduce them to slaves of the poorest type, but this condition of slavery did not concern Farrington. What does the miners' interest amount to when the coal operators desire reduction in coal diggers wages? "We must co-operate with the boss," said Farrington at the last district convention.

The progressive miners of Johnston City ably supported and led by Freeman Thompson and John J. Watt, fought this nefarious scheme of the traitor Farrington and sent it into eternal oblivion, where the same progressive miners will soon send its sponsor.

When Watt and Thompson heard of this attempted treason, they hurried from Springfield to Johnston City and deliberated with the miners, and to them is due the credit of its defeat. Farrington is well aware of this fact and hence his bitter hatred of the progressive miners.

Even John L. Lewis, was also moved to make an objection to the proposed treachery, on pressure being brought to bear by the progressive miners of Johnston City. The following telegrams were sent and are self-explanatory:

"Indianapolis, Ind., May 12 1925.

"To Secretary I. U. 3192, Johnston City, Ill.

"Acknowledging your telegram and in connection thereof which I herein after quote copy of telegram which I have today sent Frank Farrington of District 12 U. M. W. of A.

From Lewis to Farrington

"I have telegrams from two local unions in Johnston City asking me to be present at a meeting there Thursday night which you are presumed to address and implying their opposition to a proposed local union agreement which would permit the company to drill and shoot the coal under a reduced tonnage rate. I have also wire from the officers of Sub-District Ten stating same facts and making inquiries whether or not such proposed local agreement would not be in violation of existing agreement. I am not sufficiently advised of the facts to warrant the expression of a definite opinion without taking up the matter with you.

"'If the facts are substantiated as stated by the local union and the sub-district officials I would suggest that before you take any action making such agreement the matter be made the subject of a conference between yourself and the International officers. I feel assured that under present conditions any modifications of the existing tonnage rate thru local contract would be widely advertised throughout the industry and create grave misunderstanding.'

"You will note in the foregoing telegram I have suggested to Frank Farrington the advisability of a conference with the International officers before any action it taken on the suggested agreement."

(Signed) John L. Lewis.

Two days after this telegram was sent by Lewis Watt, and Thompson sent the following wire to Farrington:

(Copy of wire.)

"Springfield, Ill., May 14, 1925.

Frank Farrington, Illinois Miners Building, Springfield, Illinois.

"We have been advised that our efforts in Johnston City have prevented you from puting into effect a wage reduction in Illinois. No wonder you want us put out of office and miners' union when you are prevented from putting over the coal operators' program."

Signed,
Freeman Thompson
John Watt.

After this exposure Farrington became furious. His collaboration with the bosses being laid bare, he set out to politically exterminate the progressive miners and started on Thompson, Watt, and Perry first.

Into this unholy work his whole machine, consisting of republicans, K. K. K. thugs, booze hoisters, thieves and embezzlers were brought. Thruout the state the progressive miners elected to office have been illegally removed and the fakers are in frenzy, as we will see in tomorrow's DAILY WORKER.

UNEMPLOYMENT ON INCREASE IN MASS. INDUSTRY

Shoe, Textile Trades Lay Off Thousands

BOSTON, Aug. 10—A drop of 2.9 per cent in the number of workers employed in manufacturing establishments in Massachusetts between May and June is reported by the state department of labor. The total amount paid in wages decreased 4.2 per cent involving a decline of 1.2 per cent in average weekly earnings. Average weekly wages amounted to $23.42.

The number of employes declined in 15 out of the 20 major industrial groups covered by the report, the heaviest layoffs including 13¼ per cent in the boot and shoe industry, 4 per cent in cotton manufacture, 7 per cent in dyeing and finishing of textiles and 3 per cent in hosiery and knit goods.

40 Per Cent on Part Time.

Of the 220,911 workers covered by the June report 128,773 or 58.3 per cent were employed in plants running full time. This means that over 40 per cent of the factory workers in the state were working part time. This is a slight improvement over May when nearly 43 per cent of the workers in the state were on part time.

Shoe Industry Hard Hit.

The number of workers on part time exceeded the number on full time in practically all branches of the textile industry and in the manufacture of boots and shoes. Over 60 per cent of the boot and shoe workers were on part time while the percentages on part time in various branches of textiles were: cotton, 51 per cent; finishing, 53 per cent; silk, 59 per cent and woolen, 62 per cent.

Boots and Woolens Decline.

The department's index shows the number on factory payrolls as 87 per cent of the average number employed in 1922. A year ago it was 85 per cent of the 1922 level. The important industries registering a decline compared with last year are the boot and shoe industry and the manufacturers of woolen and worsted goods.

BUILDERS AT WORK

IT'S THE WORK THAT COUNTS

IT MAKES YOU A BETTER COMMUNIST.

Going "to the masses" for as little as a sub to the DAILY WORKER has a great deal of importance. It isn't because of the subscription you may secure—which, of course, is a sure way to build the Communist movement.

But it is also what going "to the masses" will do to you. If you have never done it, try getting a sub sometime—from your shop mate, in your trade union or from any worker you know.

If the worker you approach has thought a great deal about his problems, you'll have no trouble in getting a subscription. But if this worker is not yet class consciuos, you will soon find out how clear a Communist you yourself are.

You will be forced to explain—to patiently tell this worker why he belongs in our ranks, to carefully and clearly expound Communist principles and Communist practice. You will have to answer his arguments—often so confused that answering them is no simple matter.

And in doing this you will be making a better Communist of yourself. You will learn the methods of approach, the details of the interests and the problems of the worker and you will be forced to clarify your own ideas—when you go "to the masses." And when you do all this, you are making of yourself the highest type of Communist agitator and organizer—a most valuable asset to the Communist movement.

The importance of this kind of basic activity of our movement—as simple as getting a sub to the DAILY WORKER—has often been stressed by our party. The Communist International has clearly pointed out that this must be the chief means by which we are to build the Communist movement in this country. And the leaders of our party and the world Communist have repeatedly stressed the importance of this work.

The day when a greater part of the American Communist movement learns this fact and puts it into practice—the DAILY WORKER will become one of the world's great Communist newspapers and the American movement will show a corresponding growth.

If we put our shoulder to the wheel now—this day will not be far off.

Again Urges Mine Dusting.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 10.—(FP)—Dusting of coal mines—applying of inert rock dust to the walls and floors in such quantity that dust explosions will be prevented or smothered—is once more urged upon American mine operators by the United States bureau of mines, after a survey of the 979 deaths of miners in the past three years due to explosions of coal dust. A bulletin has been prepared by the bureau, showing where the life-saving rock dust may be obtained in various mining regions.

The K. K. K. in Washington

Several thousand robed members of the ku klux klan marched thru Washington last Saturday. It was one of the greatest collections of morons that ever strode thru the capitol. But morons have votes and the main object of the exhibition was to impress the politicians with the usefulness of the voting cattle who are enrolled in the bed sheet order.

The imperial wizards, klaliphs, goblnis and bootleggers who run the K. K. K. feel their political prestige slipping from them. Morons may not have any objection to be directed by religious lunatics, but they do not like to stand in constant danger of murder and sodomy. Their minds may be somewhat easier by now, since most of the prominent leaders of the hooded order have already tasted the bitterness of prison life for giving reign to their perversity, sexual and otherwise. But as the old Irish patriotic hymn boasted: "There are others yet remaining, good battle still to do."

The klan suffered several defeats during the past year, moral and immoral, and not the least of those was the departure of the most perfect type of kluxer, William Jennings Bryan. But Bryan's contribution to fundamental ignorance at his last Chatauqua in Dayton was a left handed one, and the interest that the Scopes trial injected into the subject of biology, will lose many ten dollar bills in initiation fees for the K. K. K.

The klan had another object in parading thru Washington. It was intended to offset the Holy Name Society parade of the catholic church which took place several months ago. The sting of that exhibition of catholic power was rankling in the bosom of the kluxers. Their counter blast was rather feeble.

Perhaps an organization like the K. K. K. that openly brags of its ignorance could not exist in any other country in the world. Despite the fact that it has been convicted of every crime in the calendar, it still lives tho it is fast losing the strength of a few years ago. It is mainly anti-catholic, but usually lines up with the capitalists against labor. Its high leaders are bidding against the catholic church for the support of big business, but the vatican's lieutenants are better educated than the sheet knights and stand closer to the ruling class.

The question might be asked: Why was an organization with such a record of violence and murder given permission to march thru the streets of the nation's capital? The answer is obvious: Because the K. K. K.'s violence is not directed against capitalism, but may be useful to it later on.

Bethlehem Steal

Three prominent vice-presidents of the Bethlehem Steel Corporation were dropped from the pay roll rather than put the company to the necessity of cutting the wages of ten thousand workers. Do you get that? Three alleged employes were taken off the payroll in order ot save enuf money to enable the corporation to keep ten thousand workers on, at the present scale.

The newspaper story does not tell us how many thousands of dollars these gentlemen who were laid off receive each year. But it must be a goodly sum. A reduction of one dollar a week in the wages of ten thousand workers would amount to over half a million dollars a year.

The reasons given for the resignations of the three vice-presidents are not plausible. One hundred thousand dollar a year corporation heads would not even dream of resigning in order to prevent the lowering of the living standards of the employes under their jurisdiction. They would not even resign to save the company from going into bankruptcy. There must be some other cause for the resignations or dismissals.

It is quite likely that Bethlehem Steel is in financial trouble. It is the second largest steel company in the world. United States Steel comes first. Perhaps the genial Judge Gary is amusing himself in his spare time by squeezing his friend Charlie Schwab a little, just as Standard Oil, whiles away monotonous moments by fixing up hot griddles for Harry Sinclair and Ed. Doheny and making them dance to Standard's music.

Bethlehem Steel gobbled up a few lesser companies during the past few years. Perhaps it is now Bethlehem's turn to get swallowed. The process is inevitable anyhow, whether it takes place now or later on. It is just as inevitable as the amalgamation of the existing craft unions into industrial unions. Unfortunately the official leaders of the American Federation of Labor for obvious reasons are opposed to consolidation, while the most farsighted of the capitalists take a leading part in unifying the industries to the greater profit of the owners.

Socialists make good wage slaves, says Iscar "Hummerdinger," in an invitation to capitalists to patronize Wisconsin labor. Corporations make good profits in Wisconsin, says Oscar, which proves that socialists are not what they were cracked up to be. Quite true, they are only cracked.

The alien property custodian's office is about to be "quizzed." Unlike his policy during the Teapot Dome scandal, Coolidge is said to be taking the initiative this time. The G. O. P. has learned that he who raises the cry of "stop thief!" is liable to get away with the swag.

William Green finds time to denounce the Communists for helping to organize the Negroes, but he has no time to comment on the lynching of Negroes by his ku klux friends.

Another archbishop is on trial in Russia for treason to the workers' and peasants' government. He may find consolation in reading about Daniel in the lion's den.

The Achievements of the Parity Commission

By JAMES P. CANNON.

THE Parity Commission commenced its work at a moment when the party was facing a most serious crisis. The majority and minority groups had crystallized themselves into the most rigid formation thruout the party. The positive aspects of the factional fight had exhausted themselves and disintegration was setting in. Party activity was paralyzed. The authority of party leadership was becoming undermined and was being replaced by factional leadership. In this favorable soil the right wing danger was growing, and the struggle against it was being subordinated to the struggle between the majority and minority. The situation in Cleveland was warning the party like an alarm bell of the danger of a split.

IN this desperate crisis the Parity Commission was constituted and commenced its sessions. The party members, wearied of the factional fight and fearful of its possible consequences, turned their attention toward the Parity Commission. Six years of party experience had taught the most responsible comrades in the party to fear splits and to guard the unity of the party at all costs. They looked with hope to the Parity Commission to find a solution which would turn the party back from the danger of a split, consolidate the Communist forces in the fight against Loreism and put the party on the road to unity.

The most urgent tasks of the Parity Commission were to save the party from the danger of a split, to unite all Communist elements in the fight against Loreism, to lay the foundation for the liquidation of factionalism, and to prepare the party to direct its energy, which is now being consumed by factionalism, into constructive work in all fields.

HOW did the Parity Commission deal with these tasks and to what extent did it accomplish them? The best way to answer this question is to review its proceedings and their results.

It was to be expected, in view of the general situation in the party, that a somewhat factional atmosphere should characterize thet first sessions. This was accentuated by the fact that disputes over organizational and factional questions were taken up for consideration first. These conflicts brot many sharp clashes which made mutual agreement impossible. It was impossible for the two groups which had been engaged in the struggle for such a long period to see organizational and factional question from the same standpoint. The factional situation made a solution of these problems very difficult.

HOWEVER, consciousness of the seriousness in the party and of the grave responsibility resting upon us finally made concessions possible. Unanimity on the disputed factional and organizational questions was finally reached by means of compromises and concessions when mutual agreement was lacking. We believe this was the best course to follow under the circumstances. Factional interests were injured by some of these decisions, but the advantage to the party of a settlement of all disputes with the authority of unanimous decisions outweighed these considerations. The stabilizing effect on the party of the organizational decisions of the commission is proof of the correctness of this view.

WHILE the settlement of the organizational questions marked a certain progress in the work of the Parity Commission, the crucial test came when the political resolutions were to be considered. Serious differences on these resolutions would have made unanimity impossible and would have cancelled much of the practical value of the other decisions. Since political platforms are the only basis on which factional groupings can stand for any length of time, the consideration of the political resolutions of the two groups in the Central Executive Committee had to determine the question whether the foundation could be laid for the liquidation of the factional fight between the majority and minority and their unification on a common platform in the fight against Loreism. The political resolutions, which were all unanimously adopted, are the answer to this question.

THE discussion over the political resolutions was conducted in an atmosphere considerably moderated. Each group brot forward its own resolutions on all the questions. A study of the resolutions showed differences only in construction and phrasing, but no serious differences in policy. Therefore it became possible in each case, either by taking one resolution as the basis and amending it, or by combining the two resolutions, to reach unanimous agreement. Serious controversy did not arise over a single point of principle or tactics. It became obvious that the two groups in the Central Executive Committee, which have been fighting over political questions with more or less intensity for the past two years, would be able to go to the convention with a common platform.

AFTER the long factional fight, which had virtually developed to the point of two parties within the party, and, consequently, to the danger of a split, the two groups, with the assistance of the Comintern, were finally able to adopt a common political platform dealing with all party questions, external and internal. This common platform is not the product of compromise, but of agreement on all fundamental points. In the face of this political agreement, the unification of the two groups become possible and necessary. Anyone who would now attempt to continue or to aggravate the factional fight would take upon himself a grave responsibility indeed.

THE unanimous resolutions of the Parity Commission have laid the foundations for unity but they have not liquidated the struggle between the two groups. It would be utopian to expect that the groupings could be dissolved on the eve of the party convention or that a pre-convention struggle could be entirely eliminated, since the question of leadership is not yet decided. Besides, the complete liquidation of the factional fight is beyond the power of the Parity Commission. That can be accomplished only by the party members of both groups, especially the leading members, cooperating in good faith with the Parity Commission and striving to put its resolutions into life.

THE Parity Commisston has enabled the two groups to take the first real step toward unity. They must take the next step themselves by basing themselves on its resolutions and by consciously striving for unity. The way to do this is to put the main energy into the fight against Loreism; to subordinate factional interests to party interests; to emphasize the fundamental points of agreement more than the minor points of disagreement; to lay more stress on plans for future work than on recriminations over past disputes.

THE party must concentrate its energies upon the big tasks confronting it. Loreism must be fought against and liquidated politically and organizationally. The party must be reorganized on a shop and street nuclei basis, its apparatus must be centralized and federations merged into the party. The party must extend its political horizon, broaden its base of activities and plunge into constructive work. The theoretical level of the party must be raised by systematic Leninist education.

These tasks can be accomplished if the resolutions of the Parity Commission are sincerely accepted and carried out and the Communist forces become unified. Enormous achievements are possible for the party when it unites its ranks and throws its energy into constructive work. The Parity Commission has laid the foundation for this unity. Now we must build upon it.

"For a Labor Party"

By C. E. Ruthenberg

FOLLOWING the lines of the decision of the Communist International the thesis on the "Present Situation and the General Tasks of the Party," submitted to the party convention by the Parity Commission, emphasises the campaign for a labor party as one of the main tasks of our party. In view of the fact that for a period of eight months our party was on record as opposed to conducting such a campaign, and for a period of two months—November and December of last year—the C. E. C. of the party waged a campaign to convince the membership that the labor party campaign was a wrong policy, it is essential that there be a restatement of the fundamental basis of the labor party policy. It is essential that we undo the harm that was done in convincing part of our membership that the labor party policy was wrong, and that we again mobilize our full party for an energetic campaign in support of the formation of a labor party.

Development of the American Workers

THE outstanding fact that we must deal with in formulating our Communist policy in this country is that the American workers have not yet become sufficiently conscious of themselves as a class to create a political party of their own, and to enter into a class struggle for political power against their class enemy. The workers of this country are still supporting the republican and democratic parties, that is, the parties of their class enemy. In practically every European country, on the contrary, the workers have, some decades ago, developed political parties of their own thru which they carry on a political struggle againstt their exploiters. The social-democratic parties of the continental countries, the labor party of England, represent stages of development of the workers in these countries for conscious class struggle which the American workers have not yet reached. While these parties were not, and are not, revolutionary class parties, the creation of these parties represented a definite stride forward on the part of the working class of these countries. The immediate problem for our party is to give the American workers that push forward which will send them into the political arena as the opponents of the parties representing the class rule of the capitalists.

American capitalism stands unshaken; it is more powerful than ever in its history. It is reaching out over the entire world in its imperialist development and harnessing millions of workers outside of the United States to its chariot.

It has succeeded in making the leadership of the trade unions its strongest defender, thru the bribes which it gives to the unpper strata of the working class. We cannot think, even, of the overturn of this powerful capitalist order when the working class has not yet developed sufficiently to strike the first weak blows at the most powerful support of this capitalist order—the capitalist government.

The labor party represents the first marshalling of the workers for struggle against the political rule of the capitalists, and even tho the program of a labor party was purely reformist, the fact that half million workers were mobilized to fight against the capitalist political rule for such a program, would mark a definite step in advance for the American working class. The experiences of the fight itself would be the greatest factor in developing ever more conscious class struggle and ultimately the revolutionary struggle for power. The slogan for a labor party gains such importance and meaning just because it is the lever thru which the American workers can be started on their march against capitalism.

The Communist Party and the Development of Class Consciousness.

THE development of class consciousness of the masses of workers is inseparably connected with the development and building of a mass Communist Party. If the mass of workers are still so unconscious of their class interests that they will not even support the formation of a labor party, but continue to support the republican and democratic parties of their class conscious enemies it is inconceivable that they would support the Communist Party. We cannot build a mass Communist Party in the United States without at the same time pulling forward the masses of workers. On the contrary, the reverse is the process of development: a mass Communist Party con only be developed as a result of development of the class consciousness of the whole working mass. It is in the process of developing the class consciousness of the working masses that we will create a mass Communist Party.

It was because of this fact that the efforts to place the building of the Workers Party into a mass Communist Party in opposition to the work of creating a labor party which represents the development of class consciousness of the American workers, which manifested itself in the party discussion last November and december, were so ridiculous to anyone who could grasp the basic problem of our party in the United States.

Why the Labor Party Formed.

The question may well be asked, accepting the basic premise that our present problem is the development of the class consciousness of the working masses, why must the method of achieving this end take the form of a campaign for the formation of a labor party? What is there peculiar to a labor party that makes it especially suitable to achieve the end we are aiming at?

The labor party as it has developed historically is based upon existing organizations of the workers. It developed thru a combination of these organizations for a political struggle in the interests of the workers. It comes into existence as a delegated body with representatives from existing organizations of the workers, coming together to fight their common struggles.

These characteristics of the labor party make it exactly such a medium as is needed to meet the present state of development of the working class in the United States. The development of class consciousness is indicated in the workers' struggles taking on more of the form of general struggles of the workers, and of becoming political struggles. The labor party fulfills these specifications—it combines the existing workers' organizations (trade unions, co-operatives, fraternal organizations, etc.) which are organized in the interest of special groups of workers for a general struggle in the interests of the workers as a class on the political field.

Because the labor party contains these characteristics which meet exactly the needs of the present situation—that our party made the labor party campaign its major campaign in the past and must in the future make it the central campaign of the party cementing it up will all immediate struggles of the workers and making the actual formation of a labor party develop from these struggles.

The Fight Against the Anti-Labor Party Tendency.

IT was because the labor party slogan and the formation of a labor party has this basic importance for the Communist movement in the United States that it was necessary for those who understood this to resist with all their power the abandonment of the labor party slogan and the campaign for the formation of a labor party. It was the greatest error of the C. E. C. majority that they did not see and would not consider these fundamental reasons for our party policy. In the party discussion the presentation of the basic argument for the labor party were scoffed at as statements of self-evident facts, but those who thus scoffed were incapable of drawing the logical deduction from the self-evident facts.

In remobilizing its forces for the labor party campaign the party must educate its whole membership to a real understanding of the labor party policy so that in the future no group in the party will be swept away by temporary and superficial phenomena. It must develop not only a leadership in the party, but a party membership which can see more than surface conditions and which bases its policies on a Marxist-Leninist analysis. Such a leadership will save us in the future from such costly errors as were made the party dropping the slogan and the campaign for a labor party in October of last year. During the period from October to May our party lost a valuable opportunity to place itself at the head of the movement for a labor party. It adopted the sectarian policy of telling the workers to stay away from the C. P. P. A. conference which stood for the formation of a labor party. Had we gone to the February conference and fought there we would have regained all that we lost after the June 17 conference.

This one example indicates how costly the lack of fundamental understanding of the labor party policy has been to our party, and the necessity of an educational campaign in the party which will prevent such an error in the future.

TO the Editor:—Some of your readers may be interested in knowing that the DAILY WORKER is making its appearance before the foot lights on Broadway. I nearly rolled off my comfortable seat the other night when I saw Joe, "the Wobbly," in the play "They Knew What They Wanted" pull out of his pocket a copy of the only live labor paper in the English language. He flashed it before the audience without blinking an eyelid and commenced reading, even the pious padre got an earful.

I could hardly believe my eyes at first and craned my neck to make doubly sure that the reading matter wasn't some piece of trash for stage purposes. They certainly "Knew What They Wanted" when they starred the DAILY WORKER.—Fraternally, Speck.

Statement of the Central Executive Committee on the Italian Section

THE situation in the Italian Federation has been considered by the Parity Commission. The Parity Commission has studied the submitted material and has also received a report of Comrade Sormenti. On the basis of the above, the Parity Commission reached the following conclusion:

1. That the most important questions that are connected with the Italian Federation have no relation to the factional struggle within the party, and

2. The Parity Commission decided to refer these questions to the Central Executive Committee.

No other decisions were made by the Parity Commission. The above decisions were adopted upon the motions of the chairman of the Parity Commission. This definitely disproves all the rumors that began circulating among the Italian comrades after the sessions of the Parity Commission. These are some of the false rumors:

1. That during the hearings the chairman of the Parity Commission proposed to censure the representatives of the majority for their alleged alliance with Lore.

2. That the chairman of the Parity Commission declared during the hearings that the proceedings of the majority in the Italian Bureau were violations of the principles of Communism.

3. That the representatives of the minority proposed to reinstate Comrades Candela, Presi and others.

4. That the minority representatives demanded the repudiation of the Philadelphia convention and the expulsion of Sormenti.

All of the above rumors are false.

To consider the Italian question the C. E. C. formed a committee consisting of Comrades Green, Lovestone and Bittelman.

The committee came to the following conclusions:

1. There exists within the Italian Federation unhealthy tendencies which are directed against the unity of the party and which attempt to draw the Italian Federation on the road to splitting away from the party. These tendencies found expression first of all in the opposition manifested by the Italian comrades to the decision of the Central Executive Committee to move Il Lavoratore to New York. There may be a legitimate difference of opinion as to the location of the Il Lavoratore but it was impermissable on this issue to carry on a political campaign against the C. E. C. and the party.

2. These anti-party tendencies within the Italian Federation were more sharply expressed in the appeal of Comrade Sormenti in January, 1925, to the Italian Federation to leave the party and to form a "better" Communist Party. Comrade Sormenti did great service in organizing the Italian Federation, but this did not give him the right to put the Federation against the party. Such appeals to splits are being condemned in all Communist parties. A similar attack made by the Superior Branch of the Finnish Federation was recently condemned by the Central Executive Committee and by the Bureau of the Finnish Federation. Comrade Sormenti was following a dangerous road. If he had not stopped in time and recognized his mistakes he would have been in danger of losing completely his influence in the Italian Federation and broken away from the party.

3. An atempt to organize a split in the Italian Federation after the Philadelphia convention was made by Giacomo and Baldizari and several others when they sent an appeal to the Italian branches in March 1925 to form a new federation outside of the party. This is another example of the dangerous forms that anti-party tendencies assumed when they are permitted to develop unchecked.

4. The anti-party tendencies within the Italian Federation manifested themselves during the winter fo 1924-25 also in the attempt in the circulars sent out by Comrade Candela in the name of the majority of the old bureau to discredit the Central Executive Committee and leading comrades of the party in the Italian Federation.

5. There is no doubt that the Italian Federation will be able to emerge from its present difficult situation and that after the party convention which will remedy the factional struggle, sharpening the struggle within the Italian Federation, the Italian Federation will find the necessary forces for harmonious work in the reorganization of the party on the basis of shop nuclei. This will be possible only on condition that both groups (majority and minority) will unite their forces in determined struggle against the anti-party tendencies within the Italian Federation.

The C. E. C. endorsed the decision of the special sub-committee.

CHICAGO MACHINISTS FIGHT JOHNSTON

AS WE SEE IT

By T. J. O'FLAHERTY

THE New York Times finds solace in the "jeering comments" on the class struggle written in the Milwaukee Leader by Oscar Ameringer, the leading clown of the socialist party; Oscar, who is on many payrolls, was in the comedy game before Will Rogers, but he has not succeeded in establishing a style. He apes Rogers unsuccessfully, which means that he succeeds in being a bigger ape than Will. Rogers started out well, but he suffered a relapse when he started to boost the stocks of Pershing, Coolidge, Ford, William Jennings Bryan and others, for the same reasons, no doubt, that Ameringer sings the praises of Frank Farrington.

AMERINGER confuses the class struggle exemplified in the perpetual war between the miners and the mine owners, with the farce that is being staged in Atlantic City, where labor leaders and operators are having a good time viewing the bathing beauties and other natural scenery. The Times says: "The Milwaukee Leader indulges in some jeering comments that, coming from a socialist organ, may or may not have a strange sound, according to the point of view. Anyhow it is amusing."

YES, it is amusing for the New York Times and the unprincipled jester who is guilty of making the trials and tribulations of the poor miners the butt of a buffoon's joke, but it does not sound so funny to the ears of the poor miners who go down into the bowls of the earth daily at the risk of their lives. The Times may think such sentiments strange in the Milwaukee Leader. They are not. The socialists have long ago bid farewell to the class struggle and all that it implies. Their only struggle is now to live down the bad reputation that socialism, in the days of its virility, had earned for itself.

THE yellow labor faker, Green, warns the black workers of the United States to beware of the "red menace." He charges the reds with propagating race hatred. This comes with poor grace from the president of an organization, which allows some of its affiliated bodies to breed race hatred by refusing admission to black workers. And even many organizations that don't discriminate formally, do it practically on the job. The Communists are not trying to incite the Negroes to hate the white workers. They are teaching them that their enemies are the capitalists, black and white and the labor fakers of one color: which is yellow, in a political sense.

ONLY last week a Negro was taken out of the hands of the sheriff in a town in Missouri, carried by a howling mob to a tree and strung up. He was charged with attacking a white girl. There is no more proof that the lynched Negro attacked that girl, than there is that she was assaulted by the imperial wizard of the k. k. k. Scores of times Negroes have been murdered for a similar crime, only to have it afterwards proved that somebody else was guilty or that the indignant lady was protesting too much and without any reason except worse than neglect.

THE lynching of Negroes in the United States is a national scandal. This violence is committed by cowardly mobs who would not dare indulge in their avatistic tendencies but for the unorganized state of the colored people. Green has nothing to say about the lynching of Negroes. It would not be surprising if he secretly favored it. That sanctimonius church deacon type to which Green belongs is capable of any atrocity. We venture to predict that Green will have as much trouble weaning the Negroes away from the Communists as he has in driving the Communists out of the unions.

THE Negroes are learning one lesson and learning it fast. It is this: No subject people or subject class

AMALGAMATION IS ANSWER OF PRESSMEN TO 'STRIKEBREAKER' BERRY AND THE CUNEO BOSSES

MEMBERS of Local Unions, Nos. 3 and 4, of the International Printing Pressmen's and Assistants' Union have tied up one of the largest printing plants in the United States, the Cuneo Printing company of Chicago.

They tied it up because the big printing moguls, swollen with profits and thirsty for more, thought they were strong enough to introduce the open shop under the fig leaf of the kind of trade unionism that is sanctioned by the notorious strikeberaker, "Major" George L. Berry, international president of the union. No doubt the Cuneo company had an understanding with Berry before they decided to introduce their profit-saving scheme ot the expense of the workers.

• • • •

WHAT the Cuneo plant wanted to do was to reduce the crews on the presses from four to three men each. The men refused. The local unions backed them up. "Strikebreaker" Berry ordered the men to take the open shop terms of the bosses and be good slaves. They refused. He ordered the local unions, numbers 3 and 4, to force their members to accept the Cuneo conditinos. He was unsuccessful. The men walked out. Then Berry, the scab herder, went around recruiting strikebreakers—union strikebreakers. He got a few international men to go into the Cuneo plant, to take the jobs of the militant trade unionists who would not bend the knee to the printing magnates or to their scabby labor agent Berry. The strike against the Cuneo plant is a success. The plant is tied up as tight as Calvin Coolidge's lips during the Teapot Dome scandal.

• • • •

BUT Locals 3 and 4 are not contend with fighting this strike in the old-fashioned way, each union for itself and the "devil take the hindmost." Always among the leaders in progressive trade unionism, they are taking advantage of this crisis to strengthen themselves in this fight and in others yet to come. LOCALS 3 AND 4, THE PRESSMEN'S LOCAL AND THE FRANKLIN LOCAL, ARE PLANNING TO AMALGAMATE.

This is a fitting and effective reply to Berryism and to the printing plutes. The printers have seen the united front of labor force the proud government of imperial Britain to its knees, when five million organized workers pooled their strength in behalf of the miners. What labor accomplished in England, it can accomplish in America.

This is the way to fight Berryism. The "major" is only one of the many strikebreakers who, like old men of the sea, weigh down heavily on the shoulders of the workers they pretend to serve. Perhaps he is the most despicable strikebreaker. But the difference is only one of degree not of principle. Berry is among the favored ones in the high circles of the American Federation of abor. His scabbery is sanctioned by the executive council of the A. F. of L. It is sanctioned by Green and the capitalist tools who are busy denouncing progressives, radicals and Communists instead of stgiving to get more wages for the members of organized labor.

• • • •

BERRY holds his power in the pressmen's union by force and fraud. No printer has to be told this. He knows it. This is known in Chicago best of all. It is known by the men whose treasuries have been plundered by the faker who now owns several industrial enterprises in the state of Tennessee.

In taking steps to join their forces for the common struggle against the employing class, Locals 3 and 4 of the International Printing Pressmen's and Assistant's Union, have acted wisely. It is a splendid way to prepare for the everyday fight for a better living. It is a good way to prepare for the greater struggles that lay in the lap of the future. It is a good way to get rid of Berryism and it cannot fail to spur forward the movement for amalgamation and greater solidarity and power among all classes of organized labor in the United States.

• • • •

UNDER THE SIGN OF "AMALGAMATION" THE PRESSMEN WILL WIN, BECAUSE AMALGAMATION COMBINED WITH MILITANCY MEANS POWER. AND POWER BRINGS VICTORY.

PRESSMEN PLAN TO AMALGAMATE STRIKING UNIONS

No Work Being Done at Cuneo Plant

Definite steps were taken yesterday by representatives of Local Union No. 3 and Local Union No. 4 of the Printing Pressmen's and Assistants' Union of North America to amalgamate the two unions, both of which are engaged in the strike against the Cuneo Printing Company.

Committees from Local No. 3 and Local No. 4, the Franklin Union of the press feeders, met and discussed means of closer affiliation between the two unions.

Unions Will Stick Together.

"The two unions will stick together," said one of the pressmen, voicing the sentiment of all the strikers. The pressmen walked out a week ago when the Cuneo company tried to reduce the crew of two helpers and two pressmen by taking off one pressman.

Strikebreaker George L. Berry, president of the International Union, immediately played his usual role of aiding the employers, and ordered the strikers back to work at the Cuneo company's terms. Berry has sent International pressmen to the Cuneo plant from out of town, not telling them that trouble was on at the plant. As soon as the out-of-town pressmen find out that there is a strike on they quit.

Berry has discredited himself with the entire membership in this situation, and he has fully exposed his true colors this time as a strike breaker, and class collaborator.

No Work Being Done.

There is no work being done in the Cuneo plants at 22nd and Grove and Arthington and Spaulding streets. The mailers have been laid off and work in the bindery rooms has been stopped.

The pressmen and feeders are picketing the plant, and have explained the situation to the out-of-town printers sent in by Berry.

The orders sent by Berry to Local No. 3 prove beyond a doubt that while Berry draws a fat salary from the per capita tax of the union members he is aiding the Cuneo company. Some months ago the executive board of Local No. 3 made a tentative agreement with the Cuneo company, subject to the ratification of the union, calling for certain concessions as a trial proposition. This tentative agreement was rejected by the union at a special meeting held on July 6 and the rejection reaffirmed at the regular meeting July 11.

Bosses Appeal to Berry.

When the Cuneo company was notified of the action they, significantly enuf, appealed to President Berry, who, following his usual policy of siding with the employers against the pressmen, declared the tentative agreement legal and ordered the men to go to work under it.

When the Cuneo company, acting on Berry's instructions, tried to enforce the tentative agreement, the men walked out. The International board then attempted to fill the plant with strike-breaking Berry pressmen. Those who were honest, brot from out of town, refused to scab.

Vice President Marks received all his information from the Cuneo company, and did not ask one question of the pressmen's union.

RECORD OF GEORGE BERRY, STRIKEBREAKER, STARTS TOMORROW IN 'THE DAILY'

The history of the "strikebreaker" George L. Berry, International president of the Printing Pressmen's and Assistants' Union will be told in the DAILY WORKER, beginnng tomorrow. Space permits only the high spots of this scabherder's career to be published. In view of the strike now taking place at the Cuneo Printing Company's plant, the DAILY WORKER articles should be of unusual interest to Chicago union pressmen and feeders.

BOSTON I. L. G. W. VOTE TO DENOUNCE NEW YORK JOINT BOARD POLICIES

NEW YORK CITY, Aug. 11.—Word is reeceived at the headquarters of the Joint Committee of Action, that Locals 39 and 56 of Boston had passed an almost unanimous vote denouncing the action of the New York Joint Board and the Inetrnational in expelling the Executive Boards of Locals 2, 9 and 22.

Vice-president Seidman of the International attended both Local meetings held on Monday and Tuesday nights, and spoke to the members for over and hour about the question of these locals. After his speech Local 39, the Finishers passed a unanimous vote against the International; and Local 56, the Operators, gave only 5 votes in response to Seidmann's pleas.

This vote of the locals followed the Boston mass meeting of union members on July 30 where representatives of the Joint Committee of Action, Louis Hyman, Rose Wortis and Joseph Boruchowitz, told the story of the suspension, trial and expulsion of the local officials.

By LOVETT FORT WHITEMAN.
Organizer, American Negro Labor Congress.

The statement of Mr. William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, condemning the American Negro Labor Congress, is a startling and eloquent proof of one of the biggest reasons why it is necessary to hold the American Negro Labor Congress.

This attitude on the part of trade union leaders who think it is not necessary for the Negro workers to oppose the terrible persecution under which they suffer, shows exactly why it is necessary for Negro workers to come together to demand their full and equal rights in the trade unions.

If it is to be in spite of the opposition of the president of the A. F. of L.—as it is perfectly clear it will be—then it is necessary for the Negro workers to gird up their loins and fight all the harder—and to fight Mr. Green on his own ground in the trade unions.

Only a person who has no interest in the Negro industrial workers can say that they do not suffer under special persecution and discrimination, in the industries where they work, and in the industries where they are not permitted to work, as well as in the trade unions where they belong on an equal basis with their white brothers but where they are either excluded or discriminated against in the majority of cases. Yet in all of his smug denunciation of this supreme effort of the Negro workers to overcome their difficulties, Mr. Green does not offer the slightest suggestion of any other remedy for our troubles, nor does he even make the slightest admission of the fact that we have any "social, political and economic discrimination" to overcome.

It is enlightening to quote another trade union official, high in another branch of organized labor, who is officially reported as follows:

"Regarding conditions in the south, I am glad to be able to report that during the past two years remarkable strides have been made toward solving the Negro problem. . . . Suffice it to say that we have succeeded in making great strides forward in bringing this question to a successful conclusion. On some railroads it has been agreed that there will be no more Negroes hired, which means ultimately the entire elimination from

THREE THOUSAND MORE TEXTILE SLAVES GET WAGE CUT OF 10 PERCENT

HOLYOKE, Mass., Aug. 11—The 3,200 employes of Farr Alpaca Co. have received notice that wages are cut 10 per cent and working days increased from three to four.

STRONGEST DISTRICT IN I. A. M. RECOMMENDS JOHNSTON'S RECALL; PRAISING COMMUNIST MEMBERS

The fighting spirit of the members of the International Association of Machinists against the present Johnston administration manifested itself at the meeting last night of the Machinists' District Council of District No. 8, when almost unanimously a motion was adopted to recommend to the locals that they endorse the recall of all the officers who stole themselves into office in the last Grand Lodge election.

Has No Time for Fair Deal.

"B. & O. Bill" Johnston, replying to the request that J. F. Anderson be tried according to the constitution, says that he "has no time" to go to St. Louis to prefer charges against Anderson.

Brother Anderson in a speech to the District Council, pointed out that a member who scabs on his fellow workers can not be expelled before he has had a chance to appear before a trial committee of the local to which he belongs.

Treated Worse Than Scab.

But in this case it was a question of exposing the big election steal, the charge of which the Grand Lodge has not to date and cannot disprove—this was the reason for the suspension of Anderson.

Anderson stated that Davison, Johnston and their general executive board was afraid of the recall and a new election, to avoid which they engineered his suspension, to put him out of the way.

Nickerson—Imbecile Grand Duke.

Nickerson, one of the grand dukes of the Johnston machine spoke but said nothing that could disprove the stealing of the election. His speech proved, however, the complete bankruptcy of the administration.

The District Council and the Chicago membership, which constitute the strongesht unit of the I. A. of M., are determined to carry on this struggle until the present self-appointed administration has been ousted from office.

The famous "Red Raid" document of the Chicago Federation of Labor was given into the maw of the waste basket by a motion to table, which carried unanimously.

Praise Communists in Union Report.

The grand duke of the International, Nickerson, had to listen to a report of the organization committee, wherein it was pointed out that due to the royal service of the Communists, the local is carrying on a great organization campaign and many new members have joined the organization since this campaign began.

It seems that the nation-wide "Red Raids" announced to the wondering world thru the A. F. of L. news service, has not materialized according to expectations, and according to unofficial statement, the matter is referred to he local unions.

Members Turn Against Johnston.

The rank and file of the I. A. of M. is awakening to the necessity of combatting all the policies of Johnston, including his policy of exterminating Communists. Members are no longer fooled by Davison's promise to emancipate them from wage slavery with a banking scheme.

The members of the I. A. of M. are now aware that only by organizing the unorganized upon the basis of struggle against the bosses in the metal industry, can the organization be able to grow and become a great factor in the American labor movement.

Suspended by "B. & O. Bill"

J. F. Andreson, opponent of Wm. H. Johnston in the union election, suspended from the International Association of Machinists for charging that Johnston stole election.

HINDENBURG'S POLICE CLUB COMMUNISTS

Throw 5 from Reichstag; S. D's with Hindy

(Special to The Daily Worker)

BERLIN, Germany, Aug. 11.—President Von Hindenburg has begun his expected policy of violence against the Communists, causing five of their deputies to be forcibly ejected from the reichstag chamber, and throwing a strong police guard around the reichstag building.

Police are now posted within the chamber, and are guarding the building and the approach thru the streets used by Hindenburg in his drives to and from the building.

Hindenburg held a celebration in the palace in Wilhelmstrasse, to observe the sixth anniversary of the Weimar constitution, which Hindenburg regards as a scrap of paper.

The Communists were not invited to this royal banquet, but the social democratic leaders were honored guests.

BRIAND MEETS CHAMBERLAIN ON SECURITY PACT

French Minister Calls on British King

LONDON, Aug. 11.—M. Briand, French foreign minister, here to lay before the British government the French reply to the latest German note on the security pact, as well as a tentaive draft embodying the French idea of what that pact ought to be, had his first conference with Foreign Minister Chamberlain today.

Today will see the formalities in connection with M. Briand's visit out of the way, leaving his future time free for the serious work which must be done to bring the English and French ideas relative to Germany into accord. Before his visit to Chamberlain in Downing street M. Briand went to Buckingham palace, where he was received by King George.

U. S. Agents Shown as Aids of Dope Sellers in Chicago

Col. Will Gray Beach, chief of the narcotic division of the internal revenue department for the Chicago district, and three of his agents are under arrest today as the central figures in the most sensational series of raids ever made by the United States government against the dope sellers and addicts.

Arrest of Beach and his associates, high federal officers say, brings to light facts which indicate that Beach, who for years was regarded as one of the most efficient anti-narcotic battlers in the nation, actually has participated in a gigantic distribution of habit-forming drugs, making it possibl" for a syndicate of Chicago men to gather millions of dollars by supplying the wants of the drug addicts of the country.

SYRIAN REVOLT FORCES TROOPS FROM MOROCCO

French Bankers Ground Between Two Uprisings

(Special to The Daily Worker)

PARIS, France, August 11.—The French government has been forced to withdraw troops from the Morocco front and rush them to Syria, due to the serious revolt against French imperialism in the Druse country.

Two battalions of the Foreign Legion have already left Morocco for Beirut and a number of tanks, aviation, infantry and machine gun units have been dispatched from Marseilles.

The entire French empire seems to be crumbling, and the bankers, already severely defeated in North Africa by the Riffians who are defending the independence of Morocco, are now faced with the Syrian revolt.

England Fears Revolt.

The Syrians now have control of the state of Drug, and they are constanlty being re-enforced by large numbers of natives.

General Sarrail, the military dictator of Syria, reports that there are less than five thousand having been sent to fight the Moroccans.

The citadel of Suedia is besieged by the Druse, and the garrison cannot hold out much longer. The French have already been severely defeated in several battles.

That England fears the oppressed peoples of her colonial empire will take action similar is shown by Painleve's statement that the attitude of the British is adjacent territory toward the French has been "not only perfectly correct but particular friendly."

Mrs. Scott Plans to Resume Her Tales of "Capital Night Life"

ALPENA, Mich., Aug. 11.—Mrs. Frank D. Scott was ready today to resume her tales of "Capital Night Life," a narrative which was prefaced seven months ago before hearing in the divorce suit of her husband, Representative Scott, was interrupted. Both sides stood on clear decks, prepared for a fight to the finish in the circuit court of Judge Frank Emerick.

The case was halted to permit Mrs. Scott time to gather depositions to support her charges and also to refute those of Scott.

Prohibition Sweeps Mexico.

MEXICO CITY, Aug. 11.—Economic conditions are forcing Mexico to prohibition. One by one the celebrated old cantinas are closing their doors, never to be opened again. One may travel for hundreds of miles thru the smaller Indian villages without being able to get anything stronger than the native drink, pulque. This has about the same alcoholic content as beer.

Negro Leader Scores Green's Attack

locomotive service of all Negroes, and this applies to some very large roads in the southeast." (Applause.) —Speech of D. B. Robertson, president of Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Enginemen, at its thirtieth convention at Detroit, Mich, June 1, 1925.

Mr. Green speaks of our alleged tendency to arouse "race hatred" among Negro workers against white workers, but not a word does he speak against the real race hatred which the capitalists and their servants are arousing against us and which is one side of the terrible burden we have to bear. There is no race hatred in Negroes against whites. There is no race prejudice in American Negroes against whites, but only a resentment of race prejudice. The coming American Negro Labor Congress is especially directed to finding means of removing race hatred from the ranks of the working people, where it is utilized by employers for the demoralization and defeat of the labor unions. What we have to overcome in the Negro worker is not "race hatred," but a prejudice against the organized labor movement, which prejudice is the sad result of the brutal cynicism and enmity which we find among such trade union officials as Mr. Green shows himself to be.

It is a cynical joke for Mr. Green to taunt the organizers of the Negro Labor Congress as "men who are not members of trade unions." In the first place, this is not true, as a large proportion of us are members of trade unions. In the second place, exactly the center of our grievances is the fact that the Negro workers are refused the right of admittance to many trade unions, and our biggest immediate fight is to win admission to trade unions on an equal basis with white workers and to bring the masses of Negro workers into the unions.

The fact that the president of the American Federation of Labor in denouncing our plan does not (so far as the quoted denunciation shows) offer one word of encouragement for us to enter the unions, altho he knows that hundreds of thousands of Negroes are employed in the large industries without organization, and that the fate of the American labor movement as well as the fate of the Negro workers depends upon our being organized, does not give promise of the sincere fulfilment of the recently announced plan of Mr. Green's office to grant a better deal to Negro workers.

As for the statement of Mr. Green that the Communists are backing the American Negro Labor Congress—while he, Mr. Green, refuses to back it—such a statement only puts Mr. Green in a very unfavorable light in comparison to the Communists. In launching an effort which means life and death to the masses of colored toilers, we appeal to all of the labor movement to help us, regardless of what section or what political views they may hold. If the Communists come forward and say, "Yes, we are ready to support this effort of the downtrodden Negro worker," as we are glad to say they have done, then we heartily thank the Communists; and we can only wish that the entire labor movement would do the same. Our appeal is to every portion of the labor movement, however, and we are receiving a splendid response from all of the progressive elements in it. If Mr. Green boasts that "the organized labor movement is expelling Communists as rapidly as they are found out" —such statements will tend only to arouse sympathy among Negroes for the expelled workers, for we Negroes know only too well what it means to be excluded from the unions.

As to Mr. Green's warning that the Communists favor "overturning the government of the United States," we can only say that the American Negro laborer has already been the cause of one civil war in the United States with the overthrow of one government (of the southern states), with results which cannot be regretted. The American Negro Labor Congress has not advocated revolution or the Soviet form of government. Thus far, however, the severest of changes in the government under which we lived in this country (1861-1865) have not operated to the disadvantage of Negro labor, nor has any revolution anywhere ever been to the disadvantage of labor.

Altho the Negro Labor Congress has not taken any position on such questions, nevertheless Mr. Green probably forgets that he is speaking to a class which is in an unendurable position and which is seeking a way out. When the most persecuted and exploited of all working people shall at last win their freedom, we can only call such a change "radical." The thinking Negro cannot be repelled by the word "radical."

And when Mr. Green expresses his solicitude for "existing institutions," he probably forgets that some of the most fixed of "existing institutions" are lynching, jimcrowism, disfranchisement and exploitation of our laboring people; and that it is exactly to get rid of these "institutions" that all sincere Negroes are desirous.

In publishing this open answer to Mr. Green, we wish to say again that we solicit the support of all of organized labor, and we believe that we will ultimately get it. The sole object of the coming congress is the solidarity of all of the workers, regardless of race, color or nationality, for the freedom and welfare of all who toil. Our principal immediate aim is to add power, strength and numbers to the organized trade unions by bringing all of Negro labor into them.

Saar Basin Miners Win Wage Struggle

SAARBRUCKEN, Germany, Aug. 10.—Work in the Saar mines, where 70,000 workers struck last week over the question of wages, was resumed today on a normal scale. Railways affected by the strike have returned to their regular schedules. The miners' demands were granted by the government of the League of Nations control.

Window Washers Seek New Members.

Window washers organized in Local 34, Building Service Employes International Union, are after a new contract to begin Sept. 1 and after a larger union membership. Only 10 per cent of the 2,000 window washers in Chicago are in the union, says Business Agent Stephen Zaharchuk.

SIGMANITES IN DRIVE AGAINST CHICAGO I. L. G. W.

Stall Election and Terrorize Locals

The Chicago end of the Sigman machine has again begun a disorganization campaign. This was shown at the Joint Board meeting of the I. L. G. W. last Friday, where the machine forced action to get a decision that all those who will sell or buy the defense stamps for the Joint Action Committee of Locals 2, 9 and 22, will be fined.

Sigman's Kind of Free Speech.

When delegates took the floor to oppose it, they were immediately threatened that charges will be preferred against those who would speak or vote against the motion.

Local meetings are terrorized and adjourned in disorder, while the members are deprived of the right to proceed with the election or to put candidates on the ballot who are objected to by the machine.

Machine Attacks Members Thru Children.

At Local 5 last week there came up the question of approving the decision of the Joint Board that the parents of children who distribute circulars against the Sigman I. L. G. W. machine. A motion was made to reject the recommendation, and altho the members were threatened as usual, the vote showed an overwhelming majority for the motion to reject.

But the manager of the local became infuriated and called for another vote, appointing a Sigman machine tool as teller, who—quite naturally reversed the matter by counting as he was told. However, the Progressives counted the vote as 55 for the motion and 35 opposed.

Sigmanites Break Up Meeting.

The members then began to demand explanations why elections are not held, and a few of the members started to tell the reasons why they should be put on the ballot and an election be held, but the machine followers began to raise so much noise that the meeting was adjourned in disorder.

Shoe Workers Need a "Protective" Union Against This Policy

HAVERHILL, Mass., Aug. 11.—Mass meetings of members of the Shoe Workers Protective Union are being held to discuss the pact between Haverhill shoe manufacturers and the union, preliminary to deciding whether or not the working agreement shall be continued.

Considerable dissatisfaction has been noted among the workers on the operation of this peace arrangment which established a shoe board of employers and workers and employed an "impartial" chairman whose decisions were binding on both sides. Unless 90 days' notice is given by either party the pact continues automatically for three years after January 1, 1926.

Neither side is completely satisfied but it is probable that a new and similar pact will be negotiated, including possibly the same protections of employers against strikes and stoppages and workers against lockouts.

Three Billion Bushel Corn Crop.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 11.—The United States will have a corn crop this year of 2,950,000,000 bushels, the crop reporting board of the department of agriculture predicted today, basing its estimate on a condition of 79.8 per cent of normal on Aug. 1. Last year's crop amounted to 2,437,000,000 bushels. The number of acres planted to corn is 106,621,000, and a yield of 27.7 bushels an acre is estimated.

Worker Worries That Women Enter Industry in the Soviet Union

By J. LOUIS ENGDAHL.

TODAY, a Philadelphia worker writes in to ask why it is that women work in the factories of the Soviet Republics. He is especially concerned about the mothers with children to take care of.

First of all, the letter received from this worker indicates that he gauges conditions in the industries of the Soviet Union from the viewpoint of the worker in capitalist industry.

To this he adds the belief, tersely expressed in the usual formula that "woman's place is in the home." Here is his question in his own words:

"Haven't they enough men over there to do the work so that women can stay at home where they belong."

• • • •

In all capitalist countries toil is a continuous torture, so considered by workers, who everlastingly strive to escape from it, as from a prison. This is because of the long workday, the arduous conditions, the low wages, that make of life a bitter struggle for existence; always with the knowledge that a profiteering class is ever getting its toll of plunder.

The male worker too often thinks that by keeping "woman in the home" he is shielding her from this brutalizing toil. What he is really doing is condemning her to domestic drudgery against which she revolts as best she can.

• • • •

In the Soviet Union the workers, men and women, have an entirely different viewpoint toward their tasks. Their revolution was victorious. They turned back the world capitalist attack launched against them. They faced hunger and cold without flinching. They are now going thru a period of reconstruction. Already the standard of living is rapidly rising, surpassing the pre-war standard under czarism. Work in the Soviet Union is not a continuous torture with no escape as under capitalism. Labor in the Workers' Republic, is a joy, born of the knowledge that every inch of progress made redounds immediately to the benefit of the whole working class struggling to establish a better life in the Communist Society.

• • • •

The new womanhood of Soviet Russia would be the first to resent the claim that her place is "in the home." She insists on playing her role in the life of the new nation.

With domestic drudgery lifted from her shoulders thru rapidly developing communal methods of living, Russia's womanhood strives for new aspirations, equal with those of Russian manhood. Nurseries are not the product of philanthropy, as is the case in this capitalist land. Nurseries in the Workers' Republics become institutions for the scientific care of growing children; just as the schools, instead of being brain factories to develop by wholesale cogs for the capitalist industrial machine, are real educational institutions for broadening the minds and developing human beings eager and able to think for themselves.

• • • •

Capitalism breaks up the home and forces women and children into industry, where it degrades and crushes them.

Under Soviet Rule, "The Home," freed of its capitalist burden upon an agonizing family, realizes its mission for the first time in history. The family relationship takes on a new meaning, that will gradually become apparent to those like the worker in Philadelphia, who does not yet sense that a new social order is building thruout the Soviet Republics.

MOTHER BLOOR SPEAKS TO LARGE GATHERING AT COLUMBUS, OHIO

(Special to The Daily Worker)

COLUMBUS, O., August 11.—Ella Reeve ("Mother") Bloor held a rousing demonstration here last night speaking from the steps of the State House.

Speaking on the American labor movement, the 62-year-old veteran Communist fighter, who is now on a cross-country hitch-hiking tour for the DAILY WORKER, denounced the reactionary officialdom of American labor and outlined the Communist policies which alone can lead to success.

Over five hundred people cheered the speaker repeatedly in her keen and vigorous speech. While she was in the midst of her talk, a group of the Salvation Army moved alongside with a full brass band and a preacher who, seeing the nature of the crowd, made a competitive appeal that he was also "labor's representative."

The meeting of the "bible-bangers" came to a sad end when a member of the Locomotive Engineers who had been listening to Mother Bloor, made a determined request of the Salvation Army preacher to "shut-up" or he would force him to do so. The crowd joined in loud approval of the worker's demand and Mother Bloor continued with no competition for another two hours.

Tonight a "Hands Off China" demonstration will be held in the same place with Mother Bloor again as the main speaker.

From here, continuing her bike thru Ohio, Mother Bloor will reach and speak at the following cities during the week:

Wednesday, Aug. 12, Mansfield; Thursday, Aug. 13, Akron; Friday, Aug. 14, Warren; Saturday, Aug. 15, Cleveland.

UNITED FRONT MEET PLANNED FOR NEW YORK

NEW YORK, Aug. 11.—The efforts of labor organizations particularly the Red International of Labor Unions and the Communist International to form a united front is being crowned with success.

In England, Germany and Russia mass conferences are being held to rush immediate aid to the striking workers of Shanghai.

In Zurich, Switzerland, on July 5, at a conference attended by 1,000 trade unionists addressed by Edo Fimmen in behalf of the International Workers' Aid, a resolution was adopted expressing sympathy for the struggling proletariat of China. On July 6 at Basil a similar resolution was adopted by 1,500 trade unionists.

New York City will continue the campaign begun with the mass meetings in Union Square and will hold a united front conference on August 28 at Stuyvesant Casino, 142 Second Avenue, near 9th Street, New York City, at 8 p. m.

All labor organizations and Workers Party branches are expected to elect two delegates each to the conference.

SCAB GARMENT FIRM REJECTED BY ROCK ISLAND

International Move Is Failure; Arrests Here

ROCK ISLAND, Ill., Aug. 11.—The unions of the Tri-Cities, Moline, Rock Island and Davenport, are backing the Amalgamated Clothing Workers in their strike against the J. L. Taylor and International Tailoring companies, and have exposed the fact that these firms have come to Rock Island to attempt to break the New York and Chicago strikes.

The Amalgamated has opened offices in room 204, Industrial Home Building, thus calling the bluff of the garment bosses, who said they could hire enough non-union labor here to begin production in the bankrupt plant of the Boone Woolen Mills company, which the Ineernational has leased for six months.

No Clothing Produced.

The employers of the Tri-Cities do not invite union concerns to come here. They are trying to get in scab firms, in order to reduce wages and establish the "open shop".

The Daniel Boone Woolen mills company came here to escape the organized clothing markets but after a period of stock-jobbing, fake accounting and questionable financial practices, the firm crashed.

The International was invited in as a worthy successor to this firm. Help was advertised for in the papers, and not a word was mentioned about the New York and Chicago strikes. Now, however, the Amalgamated members have widely spread the news of the strikes, and the fugitive garment bosses are unable to secure help. No clothing is being manufactured, and no cothing will be manufactured.

Organizers Brought In.

The workers here are determined that their town will not be given a national reputation as a harbor for runaway labor-hating corporations.

The Amalgamated announces that a staff of organizers will be brought in, and the tactics of the corporation given the fullest publicity. "They will find the Amalgamated as ready to defend itself on 13th street, in Rock Island as on Jackson Boulevard, in Chicago," said one union organizer.

"The Amalgamated Clothing Workers will carry the fight for union wages wherever the clothing industry goes, and especially wherver a firm tries to hide from the organization," said another union official.

More Pickets Arrested.

Three striking employes of the International Tailoring company, James Hovoko, Joe Diciolo and Charles Intrieri, were arrested while walking the picket line yesterday.

Agents of the company approached one of the members of the Amalgamated who is on strike, and attempted to bribe him to give information concerning the activities of the union. This union member was told if he would induce some of the strikers to come back to work he would be paid a large sum of money. The striker of course, spurned the offer.

Selecting Judge to Sit in Joint Trial of Indiana Kluxers

NOBLESVILLE, Ind., Aug. 11.—The task of selecting a judge to sit in the joint trial of David C. Stephenson, Earl Klinck and Earl Gentry, alleged slayers of Madge Oberholtzer, was renewed here today.

Judge Fred E. Hines of Hamilton circuit court was disqualified from presiding over the trial when defense counsel late yesterday led a motion for a change of judge.

This motion followed on the heels of a previous motion granted by Judge Hines asking for a joint trial of the trio.

Three Indiana jurists must be chosen for tentative duty. The state will eliminate one, the defense another, and the third automatically will become the judge to preside at the trial.

Receivers Seek Freight Cars.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 11—Receivers of the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul railroad today applied to the interstate commerce commission for authority to issue and sell $9,270,000 of equipment trust certificates, which are to be used in the purchase of 6,500 freight cars of various types at an estimated cost of $12,376,715. It is proposed to sell the certificates to Kuhn, Loeb & Co. and the National City Bank of New York, at 97 per cent of par.

McCray has served 15 months and under the law will not be eligible for parole for two years. A pardon, however, may be granted by the president at any time.

WASHINGTON STATE FEDERATION CONVENTION A PICTURE OF ALL THINGS THAT IT SHOULD NOT BE

ABERDEEN, Wash., August 11.—The 24th annual convention of the Washington State Federation of Labor has been in session here. The session began with speeches of welcome by three prominent citizens of Aberdeen, the mayor, the president of the chamber of commerce, and the commander of the American Legion post.

Then the president of the Washington State Federation of Labor, Wm. Short, took the chair. Save for the refusal to seat Martin Flyzik of the miners' union, and Phil Pearl of the Seattle barbers' union—both of the extreme right wing, the keynote of the convention was "harmony."

There was no trouble with left wing delegates, for none were present. Bill Short and his supporters were in complete control.

A Want List.

State legislative action recommended by the convention is as follows:

For child labor amendment, for right to picket, to place culinary workers under state compensation act, to regulate light and ventilation of kitchens, forbidding basement kitchens, to forbid one-man crews on street cars over 25 feet long, to compel merchants selling prison-made goods to plainly mark them prison-made, for a state old age pension, for a state vocational education act (to train apprentices for factory work in the public schools), to regulate uses of poison, dusts, gases, sprayed paint, and other things harmful to workers using them, to have a state hospital for industrial diseases, to prohibit anyone under 18 from operating motor trucks (present law limits only on trucks of 4 tons or over.)

Also to forbid pool rooms, drug stores, etc. from serving meals, allowing only restaurants to do so, and to fight the forest owners tax-dodging scheme of creating game preserves.

Any of these measures might get five favorable votes in the leislature, but probably not one of them could get ten. Certain federal legislation was also advocated, including higher pensions for ex-soldiers and ex-postal employes.

Ha! A Red Demand!

One Communist demand was endorsed—the withdrawal of American military and naval forces from China.

Six Per Cent Referendum.

President Short's salary, now $250, is to be increased to $325 a month, subject to referendum. (As with referendum of election of officers—it will pass.) Only a six per cent vote was cast for election. Most locals never see or hear of ballots. That is their fault.

Last year Short declined this increase saying the State Federation could not afford it. The current year's financial report is not yet published, but the previous year Shortt's salary was $3,000, his expenses, including auto upkeep, were $2,651. Total expenses for that year were $11,820. About $12,000 expenses—$7,500 of this or about 70 per cent being Short's salary and expenses. It is somewhat doubtful if he is worth that much to the workers, somewhat doubtful.

We'll Say Its Doubtful.

The past year's accomplishments are as follows: No strikes, absolute defeat politically, an increase in membership of 1122, making the total 21,386; increased wages for a very few local union. Only one serious strike was threatened, that of 1,600 Seattle teamsters who asked better conditions and $1.00 a day increase. The Satte Federation aided in settling it by arbitration—and the men got 50c a day raise, nothing else.

The Short machine is very proud of the no strike record, and so are all the business men's organizations.

To those who remember the militant spirit of six years ago, this official report comes as a shock. What has happened? The answer is that after eight years' hard work, the Short machine with a policy of class collaboration is in full control.

A Successful Failure.

And the W. S. F. of L. has now 21,000 members, only two thousand less than when Short took the presidency. It climbed to 55,000 at one time, but that was due to the wartime shipyard boom. 16,000 of these were in one Seattle local, now disbanded because the shipyards have gone. Many more left as other yards at Tacoma and Vancouver closed. 1,500 were lost when the miners' strike failed in 1923.

And the Seattle strike did not meet with approval from the State Federation, still less from Short. But then, they dared not interfere.

Central Councils "Subdued."

Today, after a long campaign of treachery and underhanded tactics, including the threat to revoke their charters, which Gompers made, the Seattle and Tacoma Central Labor Councils are subdued.

Short Killed Labor Party Movement.

The Farmer Labor Party, which was building up a class conscious political party, and which in 1920 polled a third of the total vote, has been wiped out.

It was a long hard fight but in the end it won, and Short tied the labor movement up with a little known politician who ran a poor fourth in the republican primaries.

Short howls about the trecahery of the victor's supporters. But his policy of always picking out the weakest candidate, and saying he must be elected, or the reactionary will win seems peculiar.

Short's tactics made Hartley's election possible. Is Short just naturally so stupid he could not see this?

A Good Record Gone Wrong.

The Seattle Union Record, once the most militant labor daily in America, has passed into private control, and complete harmlessness. Under Short's pressure it had degenerated steadily into a weak and spineless rag. But today, labor has still one really class conscious daily, the DAILY WORKER.

Even Cuts Down the Word.

The Record has placed the word union of its title in steadily smaller type, and long ago dropped its slogan of "published for principle and not for profit."

Its place is taken by Short's weekly, the Washington State Labor News, a paper without a spark of militancy or of class consciousness; the personal organ of pie-cards, hard boiled guys, who can see nothing except petty craft unions.

Lumber Neglected by Both Fakers and Wobblies.

Lumber, the leading industry of the state, remains almost unorganized. Perhaps the gang is not anxious to organize it, for that can only be done by an industrial union, such as the I. W. W. advocates but do not build. There is no room for craft unionism or class collaboration in the lumber industry.

Look Out for Pickpockets!

President Short and Governor Hartley celebrated convention week by hitting at each other in public speeches on all possible occasions. Short can not understand a fight for principles, only one over personalities, to judge by his record. He and Sartley squabble. Years ago, at circuses clowns battered each other with slapsticks, while pickpockets worked thru the crowds, and the shell game ran openly. They no longer do such things—at circuses.

HUTCHESON GANG RAIDS ELECTION WITH GANGSTERS

Philadelphia Carpenters Fighting Back

PHILADELPHIA, Pa.—The recent election in Local 1073, of the Carpenters' Union was an example of the new Hutcheson tactics of fighting the left wing in the Carpenters' Union. An organized gang of gunmen took charge of the elections, forced the progressives out of the hall and counted them out.

A week later, Wm. Allen, member of the executive board from District No. 2, came to install the newely "elected officers." He congratulated the new officers for defeating the bad Communists and promised them every aid in case the progressive elements again try to get control of the local. Allen pointed out that he had been informed by Hutcheson that there was a bunch of bad Communists in Local 1073 and that Hutcheson's eagle eye is closely watching every development in Local 1073 and if it becomes necessary the charter will be revoked.

The Disrupters' Formal Oath.

The newly "elected" officers assured the great man that no "disloyalty" will be tolerated and the first time the Communists assert themselves they will be put out with the strong loyal hands of the supporters of the Hutcheson administration.

The membership of Local 1073 is and has been progressive, numerous threats against the local and its previous left leadership were made, but the membership stood solidly behind their progressive leadership.

Reactionary Raid by Gangsters.

At the last election, held in the latter part of June, the small reactionary group was organized and encouraged by the district officialdom to make a raid upon the elections. The constitution was violated left and right. The secretary of the local, who was running on the progressive slate, and who—according to the constitution, must act as the clerk of election, was bodily put out of the hall when the elections began.

This was the first step of the new saviors of Local 1073. Next, the progressive watchers were surrounded and threatened with shooting, stabbing and beatings until finally, to avoid bloodshed, they had to leave the hall and the election three hours before closing time. The further elections and ballot counting was left in the hands of the reactionaries, who announced a glorious victory for the Hutcheson administration.

Members Denied Right to Vote Choice.

During the elections, while the progressive watchers were still in the hall, the reactionaries tore a number of ballots out of the hands of the members who dared to vote for the progressive candidates. What took place after the progressives were forced out of the hall any member of the Carpenters' Union can easily guess.

The official blessing and sanction of the election by Wm. Allen gives the clue to the entire election steal.

The reactionary group in Local 1073 is quite insignificant, and would not have the courage to browbeat the membership and steal the election in this manner without official encouragement and promise of protection when the membership would assert its rights.

This Fight is Only Started.

The progressive membership of Local 1073 was surprised by an organized raid on their elections and are temporarily defeated, but those who know the stuff of which the progressive carpenters are made of, know that the reaction to these tactics will only result in a greater and more militant effort on the part of the progressives.

The situation in Local 1073 is a new tactic of the Hutcheson machine, but it is only the first phase of the fight. The matter is not closed yet, the membership is now rallying together and Hutcheson will soon get another and quite different story from Local 1037.

The Daily "Backwards" as Usual.

Needless to say, the new administration in Local 1073 has the full support of the Jewish Daily Forward, which spreads daily lies about the Communists and progressives and piles many wreathes of honor and glory on the new administration to hide their corruption and incompetency.

THREAD WORKERS KEEP UP STRIKE IN CONN., NOW OUT 21 WEEKS

WILLIAMANTIC, Conn., Aug. 11.—Thread workers of the American Thread Co. mill voted to continue their strike against wage cuts which they have already carried on for 21 weeks. Many workers who have not voluntarily left company houses have been evicted. Company Agent Curtis claims that 1,200 strikebreakers are now employed in the mill. Strikers assert that less than 100 are at work.

WHEREIN PETRUS JESUS UTTERLY REFUTES PETRUS JESUS' THEORY

By HARRISON GEORGE

The following are samples of the sort of logic that is being inflicted these days upon the readers of the I. W. W. publications. It is bad enough when two writers conflict with each other in their teachings, because "ideas do not fall from heaven" and the only place the workers get them is from others by reading, lectures, conversations and experience, and naturally expect to get the right teachings from a workers magazine.

But when one writer disagrees with himself. . . . . ! We offer the following from the pages of the Industrial Pioneer, written by a modest gentleman under the anonymity of his union card number, but in fact by our old friend Petrus Jesus Welinder, for a fleeting few months the I. W. W.'s highest official:

By P. J. WELINDER.

"The main task confronting us is to prove to the workers the failure of all leadership."

By P. J. WELINDER.

"What is needed in the East are a couple of hundred of the old type intelligent and courageous job delegates."

After which it is quite easy to believe the ancient yarn about the fellow who lifted himself over a fence by his boot straps.

ASKS REDUCTION OF EXORBITANT FEES AND DUES

Must Make Possible for Men to Join

By HELM VOLL

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Aug. 11.—Now while an organization campaign is to be inaugurated under the direction of the new secretary-treasurer of the Los Angeles District Council of Carpenters, Blair, there is the old wrangling popping up again about the size of the initiation fees and dues.

If low initiation fees and dues have helped little in organizing Los Angeles, the high kind have been worse than useless. We have tried both and it is certain the former is the one which create the least friction or opposition among prospective members. Everybody knows this to be true. So if we want to do something really constructive they will go lower and not higher.

Answer Universal Objection.

As long as we refuse to raise them we are minus one universal objection on the part of those we request to join. The reason for members dropping out and the refusal of outsiders to join, is not, never was, and will be, because the cost is small. A baby in its cradle knows that. The reasons are to be sought elsewhere.

A man is callous, indeed, who does not sympathize with the unorganized workers' unwillingness and often inability, thru no fault of his own, to pay exorbitant fees and dues. We also must consider the barriers raised against this practice by the continuous agitation of independent and often dual unions for a number of years past. Large numbers of eligible members of our craft have been influenced by this propaganda in a way which make them opponents.

Out of Date.

High initiation fees and dues may have had merit in the past under more premitive conditions. In 1925 it is out of date, just as much as Hutcheson is. It is not necessary for a man to be very old to know from his own personal experience that the building industry with its myriads of labor saving, skill-reducing inventions is entriely different from anything ever dreamed of when our organization was founded. Not in the past, but in the development going on before our very eyes is to be found the answer to many of the problems confronting us today.

I am willing to admit that if the officials succeed in raising the fees and dues high enough, they will thereby have done what Hutcheson so far has failed to accomplish thru his expulsion policy, namely, the destruction of the union.

Explaining Mystery of Earless Eel

NEW YORK CITY, Aug. 11.—That there is no fish like a poor fish may be seen in the remarkable statement made to the capitalist press by Joseph Fish, who marches around in a circle with the imposing title of "Secretary-Treasurer of the New York Joint Board of the International Ladies' Garment Workers' Union."

Concerning the demand made for the resignation of Morris Sigman, president of the I. L. G. W., by 4,000 shop chairmen and committeemen at the great overflow meetings at Cooper Union and Manhattan Lyceum, Fish emits the following drops of wisdom:

"We don't listen to the other side. Sigman does not consider the suggestions and demands made by the left wing." After saying which he lapsed into silence, without explaining how long a union can be run on this sort of policy.

BARBERS' UNION FAKERS DEPRIVE GIGANTI OF JOB

Progressive Leader Is Denied Right to Work

That the reactionary officials of Local 548, Journeymen Barbers, intend to starve into submission or drive into scab shops the expelled progressives, is proved by the following recent incident:

F. A. (Yellow) Ackerman, a business agent, walked into the barber shop operated by G. Berg at 3250 Belmont avenue last Saturday morning and threatened the boss with a strike unless he immediately fired Joseph Giganti, one of the seven progressives recently expelled by the action of the labor fakers in control.

Yellow Ackerman had been tipped off by a stool pigeon and made his appearance Saturday morning, just before the day's work had been started. The boss, intimidated, paid off Giganti without questioning the legality of this procedure.

The yellow business agent did not have the courage to engage in argument with the expelled barber, nor did he show any inclination of doing the "pulling out" from the shop himself. When Giganti challenged his deed, he said that he did not wish to argue.

"Damn right, you don't want to argue," replied Giganti, "you haven't anything to say."

All barbers should take note of the actions of their reactionary officials, and demand the reinstatement of the progressives, who have for years fought consistently in their interests, while the officials have had to be prodded into action.

LONGSHOREMEN SUFFER; LEADERS IGNORE THEM

(From a Worker Correspondent.)

NEW YORK, Aug. 11.—Conditions among longshoremen are horrible. Men are hungry for organization, yet the International Longshoremen's Union is not lifting a finger towards organizing them. And unless these workers are soon organized conditions will become absolutely unbearable.

Right now about four hundred men are employed on the Erie Railroad docks unloading fruit. From 7 p. m. thru the night the workers toil away under constant prodding and speeding up of the hard-boiled overseers. For twelve to thirteen hours they slave away with a brief interval for lunch. The pay is fifty cents per hour for twelve hours' work. If a man can stand the pace he receives time and a half for overtime.

NEW JERSEY "ART" FACTORY PAYS $16.00 A WEEK, TO SLAVES

By JAMES SZEPESY.

(Worker Correspondent.)

PERTH AMBOY, N. J., Aug. 11.—There is a branch of the Embed Art corporation in Perth Amboy, located at 72 Fayette street, employing fifteen workers.

This factory makes shaving brushes, ash trays, cigarette cases, crosses, etc., out of bakelite. The hours of work are eight and one-half with one half day on Saturday. Wages are thirty-five cents an hour or $16.50 a week. There are a few young workers who have been employed here for several years who only get about $22.00 a week.

I have been working here for about three or four months, but have had many discussions with the workers. I also was warned many times by the boss for my activities.

MINERS STRIKE AGAINST FRANK FARRINGTON RULE

Back Joe Loda, Honest Checkweighman

SPRINFIELD, Ill., Aug. 11.—Eight hundred coal miners employed at Peabody Coal Company Mine No. 6, Springfield, Ill., are still on strike following the refusal of the operator to permit Joe Loda, the local union check-weighman, who has been unanimously elected by the local union, to weigh coal on the company's tipple.

Frank Farrington, the tool of the operators, has again shown his hand of betrayal and class-collaboration policy, by telling the miners that if they did not go back to work and accept the new conditions which the Peabody lords are trying to impose upon the miners he would revoke their union charter.

Cheated Miners On Weights.

The miners went out on strike after Joe Loda, a well known fighter for progressive issues and check-weighman of his local union caught the company weighman putting his hands on the scales and thereby short weighing the coal of miners by several hundred pounds on every car. Joe Loda told him to stop that kind of practice. Then after catching him at the same game again, Loda used direct action by delivering several blows to the jaw of the company weighman.

The company weighman notified the superintendent, and the superintendent tells Joe Loda to get off the tipple and never come back. Loda called the mine committee and they called the miners out on strike.

Farrington's Promise.

After that, the mine committee called on Farrington and presented their case, telling him how Loda caught the company weighman short weighing the miners coal and the result. Farrington told the miners' committee to get the men back to work and he would see that Joe Loda would stay on the tipple as long as the miners are satisfied with him.

That was on a Saturday. On Monday the miners went back to work and Loda went on the tipple to weigh the miners' coal, and the superintendent brought the sheriff out to the mine, and takes Loda off the tipple and throws him into jail.

The mine committee again calls the men out of the mine and walk out on a strike again. The miners decided then that they would fight for justice and stay on strike and to fight this battle to the finish.

Unusual Speed.

In the meantime this case is taken up by the courts of the Sub-District and Board Member, both handing down a "disagreement case". Then the Joint Executive Board is quickly called on Sunday afternoon and a decision sancationing the removal of Joe Loda, as check weighman is rendered.

To go thru these three courts of the miners' organization it usually takes from seven months to a year, but in this case it took a few hours to do the work. That was because the Peabody Coal Co. demanded immediate action, and when Peabody Coal Co. wants action the Farrington's machine sets itself to work.

Officials In League With Company Steal.

Joker Young, board member of this district and Farrington henchman, who presented the evidence on which Joe Loda was convicted, is the same bird that told several miners in a white mule joint that he was out to get Joe Loda out of the miners' organization because Joe Loda was the cause of his local union casting a very heavy vote against the Farrington machine in the last election.

On Monday, after the miners walked out on strike and the decision of joint board was rendered the mine committee goes back to Farrington to see if he would keep his word, which he made last Saturday when he told the committee that he would stand back of the men and see to it that Joe Loda would stay on the tipple as long as the men wanted him.

"Mr. Looking-Both-Ways".

But Farrington again rights-about-face and said, "You men didn't tell me the truth last Saturday, because yesterday Dan Clark, the coal company commissioner, told me a different story and the big boss of the Peabody Coal Co., at Chicago called me up over the long distance telephone and told me about this man Loda, also if you insist upon having this man for your check-weighman he would close the mine down indefinitely. So the best thing you men can do is to elect a new check-weighman and go back to work."

800 Miners Stand by Loda.

One of the mine committee then said, "So the coal company's commissioner's story is true, while the union miners' story is false, in other words you rather believe the story of an outsider than of a rank and filer."

"Well, Farrington, the miners of Peabody Mine No. 6, have already gone on record that they will stick with Joe Loda and want him and no one else to weigh their coal and also that they will fight this fight to a finish and that a circular petition has already been sent thru the district calling upon Peobody mines and others to lend their support to help us get justice that we are fighting for."

PHILADELPHIA CLOAK AND DRESS MAKERS IN DEFI TO SIGMAN GANG

PHILADELPHIA, Pa.—The following is the answer of Philadelphia Garment Workers to Sigman and Company:

RESOLUTION

"After hearing the reports of Rose Wortis and Brother L. Hyman, about the attaks of the International,

"We, Cloak and Dress Makers of Philadelphia, gathered in Mass Meeting on Tuesday July 28th at the Public Hall, 7th and Morris Street, voice our strongest protest against these methods. The tactics of breaking into the offices of Local 9 at night with the aid of gangsters, is not befitting union leaders. We condemn such tactics and demand that Locals 2, 9 and 22 be immediately reinstated. We demand that Sigman, Perlstein and Feinberg, who were the cause of this internecine struggle in our International, immediately resign.

"These leaders of the machine have introduced a system of terrorism everywhere. We, Philadelphia members of the International still remember their disruptive work in Philadelphia.

"We pledge our whole hearted support, financial and moral, to the Joint Action Committee of the three locals in their struggle to destroy the corrupt machine. We the Philadelphia members of the International are with you till your efforts are crowned with success."

CARPENTERS OF MICHIGAN MEET HUTCH GAS PIPE

Opposers Asphyxiated in Convention

(Special to The Daily Worker)

BAY CITY, Mich., Aug. 11. — The Michigan state convention of carpenters, which just ended its sessions here, is a good barometer of the general condition of the brotherhood and of the measure of control which the official family maintains over these lesser gatherings.

Tho Hutcheson was not there personally, he was represented by a brother-in-law, F. C. Plambeck, and one of the family circle of parasites, William Alger, whom he appointed a general organizer after less than two months' membership in Yellow Sharrock's local (1805 of Detroit). Alger feels duly grateful for this little favor and he arrived early on the job and was spreading the poison against the two local unions which the czar had expelled in Detroit, long before the convention convened.

Detroit Expulsions the Issue.

As the greatest issue concerning carpenters in Michigan is the division and discord in Detroit which has resulted from Hutcheson's expulsion policy, the task of the poison gas brigade was to head off any consideration of the problem.

William Reynolds, who was sent to represent Local 2140 of Detroit, one of the expelled (?) locals, sat thru the usual "Labor, don't get radical" speeches of local politicians and fakers and was beginning to wonder what was holding up the steam roller, when in the second session a letter from John Potts, who acts as that kind of a receptacle for Hutcheson's mental excrement in Detroit, was read, stating that Local Unions 1191 and 2140 were expelled and that no delegates representing them should be seated.

Then the works started and Reynolds was soon on the outside looking in. A formal written request by Local 2140 that their representative be given the floor to make a statement was ruled out of order by Chairman Secord, tho the only delegate from Detroit supported it vigorously.

A Poor Mood to Get Into.

The delegates realized that any attempt to get consideration of vital problems would be put down. They seemed in no mood to fight, so the meeting developed itno a talkfest with the officials doing most of the talking, and the paid parasites smiling and back-slapping in that "oh, so friendly" manner peculiar to those whose bread is the fruit of others' sweat.

However, the delegates are acquainted with the plight of the 600 carpenters who have been deprived of their rights by the whim of a czar, and as they report to their locals the vital problem in Detroit as they have learned it by the printed and spoken word will be the chief burden of their story, even tho Hutcheson's machine prevented a regular discussion and his vipers spewed their poison gas.

Fall River Textile Workers to Ask Old Scale Before Cuts

FALL RIVER, Mass., Aug. 11—Restoration of the 1920 wage scale in Fall River cotton and woolen textile mills will be sought by the United Textile Workers' Union in accordance with the International's decision to seek wage increases where possible. The 1920 scale is about 20 per cent higher than the present rate of pay.

FARRINGTON AN ELECTION THIEF WITH WHOLE KIT OF BURGLAR'S TOOLS, SAYS REID IN EXPOSE

By ALEX REID.

(Secretary of the Progressive Miners Committee.)

ARTICLE XIII.

In their desperate attempt to cover up their actions, the Farrington traitors are stealing elections, disfranchising miners, and disrupting the Miners' Union. The last election of the district officers, of District Twelve, and the subdistrict elections also, are still the subject of bitter controversy in the Miners' Union. All over District Twelve the vote was manipulated in the interest of the Farrington machine.

Work in the Dark.

In Zeigler, Illinois at one local union, John Hindmarch received about 100 per cent of the vote cast in a local casting about 1,000 votes. The Farrington-ku-klux faction manipulated the ballot in such a way that it became illegal, thereby saving Frank from almost total defeat in that local union. In Buckner the ballot was stolen, in the middle of the night, and in other locals the full membership was voted, where the mines were shut down for three years and most of the men had left town, and working elsewhere.

The officers officiating at a local union near Benton during the election were not members of that local union. They were working at another mine and had their cards withdrawn out of that local union for some time prior to the election, and even in spite of a telegram from Lewis that men could not officiate at elections unless they were members of that local concerned, the ballots were counted in this local for the machine (for Farrington.)

In West Frankfort.

In West Frankfort the Farrington machine came near wrecking the Miners' Union completely. Frank Johnston was duly elected financial secretary of Sub-district Nine but was counted out by the sub-district thieves. Johnston was elected by a large majority but in order to have the tool (Cobb) a Fairlngton republican henchman put over, Johnston was beat out in every local where the gang had a chance.

A local union in Zeigler gave Johnston a large majority, and this vote, instead of being sent in to the sub-district by registered mail was sent special delivery, and because of this technicality the ballot was thrown out, and this same ballot defeated Johnston.

Some places the vote was held up for a few days too long, and on account of that technicality the ballot was thrown out also. The traitors stopped at nothing to destroy the Progressive Miners' vote, to put the Farrington fakers in office.

No Doubt Left.

In face of this rottenness can anyone doubt the necessity of a district investigation and house cleaning? Consider the fact that every Progressive Miner elected in Springfield was beat out of his office. The Christopher cases were just as rotten as the Springfield ones.

Too Busy to Call Convention.

Down in Harrisburg all the Farrington machine were defeated, but illegally put themselves back in office. The men in that sub-district got up a petition signed with the constitutional amount of signatures, for a special conventino, presented it to the sub-district officers, but the sub-district officers still refused to call the convention, and when asked to explain why, they brazenly told the miners they had lost the petition and therefore could not call the convention.

An appeal was then taken to another crumb of the Farrington machine by name Wright. The same Wright that helped to work Freeman Thompson out of his office in Springfield. He also refused to call the convention on the same grounds (because of the loss of the petition.)

Miners, Do Something.

Brother miners how much longer are you going to stand for this corruption in our union? Is it any wonder that Freeman Thompson, Watt and Parry are fighting this bunch of yellow cowards and traitors? Rally to the support of the progressive miners and bring back our fighting organization to its former fighting position, as a militant weapon of the rank and file of the U. M. W. A.

SYNOPSIS.—The British trade union leaders' report on Soviet Russia, which is running serially in the DAILY WORKER, Saturday took up the subject of foreign trade in the Soviet Union. Transportation, industry and agriculture have already been described in the official report. The union leaders concluded that foreign trade and agriculture is steadily improving, and told how the finances of the Union have been placed on a stable basis. The New Economic Policy in relation to agriculture was explained. The industries are increasing production, the report stated. Recent instalments of the report dealt in detail with the relation of the Union with foreign countries. The regulation of trade, financing, foreign bank credits, statistics of foreign trade, status of foreigners, were some of the subjects dealt with. The instalment concludes that foreign trade is workable, and that harm is being done Britain by the absence of full diplomatic relations.

* * * *

The Civil Code of November 6th, 1922, contains much that is very interesting in respect to the regulation of property rights on a new basis of State Socialism.

The Code of Civil Status is also of interest, and a summary of its provisions concerning family life is given as an appendix.

There are also Codes of Civil and Criminal procedure and on special subjects.

These Codes, while not without deficiencies, and even defects due to hasty preparation, provide a firm ground for building up a new structure of jurisprudence. The critical examination to which they have been of late subjected by German and other continental jurists has not shaken them in any serious point.

The Code of Civil Status

The code as to personal status, and on marriage, family, and guardianship rights is the only code which dates back to the Revolution. It originated in 1918, and was not essentially affected by the new order which introduced re-orientation of the New Economic Policy in 1921.

Section I. deals with personal status.

Marriage

Section II. concerns marriage. Only civil marriage is recognized, if registered in a Bureau for Records of Personal Status. A religious marriage has no civil validity. Marriages performed according to religious rites before December 20th, 1917, remain valid. Marriage must be a public ceremony, and may be performed by the Registrar of Records of Personal Status or before a Notary Public. Publication of the banns is not required, and the marriage is valid as soon as entered in the Register. Any man of 18 may marry and any woman of 16. Polygamy is forbidden. Obstacles to marriage are mental deficiency, blood relationship in direct ascent or descent, brothers or sisters, or half-brothers and half-sisters. A marriage can be nullified between minors, if they are still minors when the marriage is denounced or if no children have been born and the wife is not pregnant. Marriage is invalidated by mental deficiency at the time of marriage, a previous valid marriage, or want of consent of either party due either to ignorance or to compulsion. Religious marriages are invalid if contrary to the marriage laws in force at the time.

Divorce

A divorce can be obtained by mutual consent from the Courts or from the competent marriage registrar. A divorce whether of a pre-revolutionary marriage or of a new civil marriage, may not be granted merely on the application of one party if opposed by the other, but the application need not be based on a charge of any kind. A judgment of divorce can be appealed and becomes valid only at the conclusion of the legal proceedings.

Married Women's Rights

A wife's property is absolutely independent of marriage. Marriage settlements which affect the property rights of the wife are invalid. The parties to a marriage take a married name. The married name may be either the name of the man or of the woman, or the combined name of both. Marriage has no effect on the citizenship of either party. The wife is not obliged to follow her husband to another place of residence. The principal effect of marriage, as far as property rights are concerned, is the responsibility of maintenance. This responsibility is mutual. It presumes that the one needing the support is incapable of working and that he or she does not possess any means of livelihood, and that the one obliged to support is in a condition to furnish maintenance. Minors (under 18 years of age), men over 55, and women over 50, are under no obligation of maintenance as earners. The obligation of maintenance must be continued after divorce. Arrangements by the parties as to continuance of the maintenance after divorce can be modified by the Court.

Rights of Children

Section III. deals with family law. Married and unmarried mothers have the same rights of maintenance. The unmarried mother can, three months before confinement, apply for an affiliation order. If the alleged father does not enter defense within two weeks after notification by the Registrar he is assumed to have accepted paternity. If he denies paternity, the matter goes before the People's Court for inquiry. If the inquiry establishes paternity he is obliged to support the mother during pregnancy and confinement and maintain the child. A defense that others might have been the father, if proved, results in their being also obliged to contribute. The child born out of wedlock takes the name of the father, or the mother, or combines that of both, as the parents may agree. Failing agreement, the Court decides. Children born in wedlock take the married name of the parents. If the parents are divorced they agree what name the children shall bear, and, failing agreement, the Court decides. If one parent is a foreigner and the other Russian, their children have such nationality as their parents agree. Failing agreement, the children are considered Russians, but on attaining their majority they may choose the citizenship of the other parent. The religion of children under 14 years of age is determined in writing by the parents. If the parents cannot agree the child is considered as having no religion. Upon attaining the age of 14 the child chooses his own religion. Parental responsibilities are exercised jointly by the parents and the Court settles disputes. The Court may deprive the parents of their parental rights if they do not serve the interests of the child. Parental responsibilies include care for the child's bodily health and mental preparation for a useful life. Parents are required to meet those responsibilities. They are legally responsible for the children before the Courts and otherwise. Parents must provide for their children living with them and have a claim against those who have provided for the children without the right to do so. As far as property rights are concerned, the children are absolutely independent of the parents. The parents have absolutely no right to use the property of the children. Parents must provide for their children in proportion to their own resources, but each parent is obliged to pay at least half the minimum of existence determined for the child, so far as he is able to do so. On the other hand, parents when incapacitated and indigent may claim maintenance from their children. These obligations of parents and children continue after the dissolution of the marriage. Sisters and brothers and half-sisters and half-brothers can also respectively claim maintenance. An agreement by which one party renounces maintenance is invalid. It is forbidden to adopt children, but a decree is being prepared again allowing it.

Wardship

Minors not under parental care and mental deficients are State wards. Other persons, especially spendthrifts and persons who, in the opinion of the Public Trustee, require guardianship may be put under ward. The guardianship may be exercised either directly by the Public Trustee or by special guardians appointed by him. The guardian represents the ward and has the care of the person of the ward. Any adult not in a condition to look after his own affairs may put himself under guardianship.

General Conclusions

The conclusion reached by the Delegation in the matter of law and order is that public order is now on a footing well above that in most Continental countries; that justice is equitably enforced in the new courts, and under new Codes that constitute a judicial system still in its youth, but adequate for its present purpose; and that there is nothing to prevent the early development of a body of law and of lawyers capable of bringing the principles of the Revolution into further accordance with the established precepts of European civil and commercial law.

The judicature is necessarily the latest organ to function fully in a new State, and the new judicature of the Union, still in its infancy, will play a most important, perhaps the most important part in the further development of the Soviet system.

PART II

THE SOCIAL SYSTEM

CHAPTER VIII

Social and Religious Conditions

The Soviet Social System and its Penetration

Before entering upon a review of the social side of Soviet life it is necessary to realize the main objects of the system, to remember that in many cases it is still in its experimental stages, and that no conclusions as to its stability or value can be obtained from those who steadfastly refuse to accept what it offers.

It would be misleading to state that the system has permeated the whole country, or that it has not been modified in certain districts to meet the requirements of the various nationalities which are to be found in the Russian Empire. It is, however, a gross misstatement to say that it is only found to be in operation in the large centers and a few miles from the railway track. It is undoubtedly being supported by the whole of the industrial workers, by many of the peasants and by those of the former middle class who have joined the movement either from conviction or through force of circumstances.

Critics who maintain that its working and results have had very little effect on the country as a whole, and do not penetrate beyond the few Communists who have accepted it, should realize the following facts:—

The total population of Russsia, including all the Autonomous and Federated Republics, was estimated in 1923 at 133 millions, of which 70 millions were women. The inhabitants of the urban and industrial areas numbered 21 millions of whom five and a half millions, or 25 per cent., are members of the Trade Unions and directly involved in the system.

Women, however, only constitute 28 per cent. of the Trade Union membership; but most of the women and all the children under the age of 17 must be added to the figure of five and a half millions as being equally affected. Thus it will easily be seen that the whole of the industrial population has come within the system which controls the lives of the majority of the balance. The 80 millions of peasants are affected to a much lesser degree, while the indigene and native tribes are scarcely affected at all. It should also be remembered that the present system came into operation only three years ago when it replaced War Communism, which was a very different form of social construction.

As regards the large mass of peasantry, now that Budget economy has forced the reduction of the large expenditure and elaborate equipment of propaganda trains and perambulating lectures with which War Communism hoped to educate the peasants, more practical methods are being followed. It is now generally recognized in Communist circles that the peasantry can best be educated by giving them a larger representation in the Government and District Councils, and by teaching them to govern themselves locally. The Communist attitude to the peasant is a curious combination of contempt and consideration.

Sovietism as practised at present appears to be a compromise between Communism and State Socialism, with strong tendencies towards the latter. It is the result of practical experiment among large communities, and the success of the movement is undoubtedly due to the courage of its leaders in acknowledging mistakes when by practical demonstration their theories have proved to be impracticable.

The fundamental principle of the system is the formation of a State and society which shall give the greatest possible benefits to the majority of the workers (by which is meant both hand workers and brain workers), and equal opportunities to all men and women.

Without entering into a detailed survey of the means to be employed for the construction of this State it will be sufficient to mention the main features.

Work vs. Wealth

The keystone or main feature of the new structure is the creation of a power of personal worth by the destruction of the power of private wealth.

In order to effect this, the reacquisition of power by individ- and acquisition of wealth and the amassing of money by private persons is rendered, not only unnecessary, but unlikely, although not in principle impossible.

(a) The Worker

This is accomplished in the following manner. In the first place, all real property, industry and capital wealth are vested in the State by nationalization, the State being composed of men who have obtained their position by other means than the influence of wealth.

Secondly, a worker is granted a minimum wage according to the category in which his duties or professsion place him. This minimum wage is really only intended to cover the actual necessities for which he has to pay cash. The rest of his requirements in life, social recreation, travelling, yearly holiday, medical and insurance benefits, education and upbringing of his family, housing, etc., accrue to him in the form of benefits supplied by the State.

These benefits increase in value as the worker rises, by his own efforts, from a lower to a higher category. A member of the Government, even a Cabinet Minister, for instance, receives only £20 per month. His benefits, however, are free and include a house, motor-car, servants, and entertainment, etc. At present the worker has to pay a nominal fee for most of his benefits; this fee is graduated on a sliding scale according to his category and income. Eventually as the State becomes wealthier all these benefits will become free.

The next measure to prevent accumulation of personal wealth is heavy taxation over a certain maximum income and the reversion of all property to the State at death. A man may leave to his heirs not more than £1,000 (under the system he has no dependents).

Exactly the same principle applies to man and woman. A woman to be counted as a worker must either work or show that she is necessary to her house and family.

(b) The Peasant

With regard to the peasant or land worker, his land and house represent the workers' wage. In view, however, of the fact that this form of wage is not constant, but varies in accordance with his own efforts and his general facilities for cultivation, his status is somewhat different. His benefits are primarily concerned with the facilities for cultivation and the disposal of his produce. By centralization, organization, and the acquisition of more up-to-date machinery and appliances he is able to increase his profit, and his standard of living. The greatest benefit of all, however, will be realized when the huge electrification schemes, mentioned in another part of this report, have materialized. This will give him practically free power. His social benefits consist of education, medical attendance, clubs and recreation.

(c) The Non-Worker

Any person between the ages of 17 and 55, having no physical or mental defects, who is not classed as a worker, has absolutely no political nor social status at all. He has no vote and receives no benefits. He must pay the maximum tariff everywhere. His education and medical attendance must be obtained from private sources. He will have to pay the maximum house rent, and is liable at any time to receive a month's notice to make room for a worker. He must pay high prices for a meal outside his home, and his theatre ticket will cost him ten times that of a worker. He will have no recognized club; recreation and sport will be difficult and expensive.

The lot of some of these people, who cannot, or will not, fit in with the new system is often very lamentable, and at present they doubtless number many thousands. But in Soviet Russia everyone must work to live.

FIRE WORKER, ASK COURT AID TO SMASH UNION

Movie Owner Knows What Courts Are For

By K.

(Worker Correspondent.)

PAWTUCKET, R. I., Aug. 11.—E. M. Loew and Philip Berler, owners of the Music Hall, Pawtucket, have no illusions as to what the courts are for in a capitalist republic. They recently fired an operator, Thomas Hayden, and when the union objected to this smashing of the agreement, the owners promptly went before Judge McLoughlin for an injunction to restrain any and all unions from interfering with any and all theaters operated by the circuit.

Since this is one of the theater chains that are now rapidly being combined into a nation-wide trust, the situation affects not only Pawtucket, but New Bedford, Lynn, Lowell, Fitchburg, and Boston, where the company has holdings. Accordingly the injunction is sought against "L. N. Shattack and the other persons comprising the American Federation of Musicians, Local Unions Nos. 193, 83, 9, 126, and 214; and the International Stage Employes and Motion Picture Machine Operators of the United States and Canada, Locals 182, 546, 245, 73, 86, 131, and 134." Evidence is to be taken before a master, and since the union would not agree to the bosses' nominee, the court will appoint—which produces the same result.

Two notable facts stick out from this news item. The first is that the struggle between master and man in the theater field has grown beyond the confines of a single theater, or even a single city. Against the nation-wide combine of capital as represented in the chain theaters directly affiliated with film producing and banking interests, there is pitted the nation-wide or even international organization of the workers. A struggle over the working conditions of a single worker may thus in a single day bring on a clash of major proportion and widest extent.

The second is that the bosses immediately and often effectively paralyze the strength of organized labor by resort to court action. The ever-ready capitalist court promptly forbids picketing, boycotting, strike benefits, organization work and publicity—forbids every means whereby the union can function. The strikers soon must learn that the Communists are right in their condemnation of court and legislature as servants of the employers, of the ruling class, and that the workers must, thru conquest of state power, turn the tables against those who now exploit them. The more the everyday struggle of the workers becomes intensified the bettter will be its lessons in class solidarity. The more the clashes become intensified, the more ruthless will be the masters' recourse to the help of political state power, and the more speedy will grow the workers' recognition of the true nature of the struggle he fights, and the remedy—Communist organization, struggle, and victory.

Wm. Morgan Butler, Big Capitalist and Fink Boss, Needs Aid

SWAMPSCOTT, Mass., Aug. 11.—President Coolidge's political advisor and bosom friend, Wm. Morgan Butler, is needing his help in the election due next year.

Butler has several things to recommend him to the workers—for punishment. He cut wages of employes in his cotton mills last fall. He has speeded up the woolen mill slaves to the point of frenzy—when he gave them work, then let them whistle for a job much of the time.

In addition Butler and his son, Morgan Butler, president of the National Association of Cotton Manufacturers are known as enemies of labor unions, the old duffer having become famous for hiring finks to control the textile unions in New Bedford.

However, David Walsh, his democrat opponent is little better.

Reasons for Foreign Imperialism in China Shown by Labor Wage

NEW YORK, Aug. 11.—Men working in the Nanking Turkish towel factories make only $4 a month while women in the same factories get only about $1 a month for their labor. The shops are mostly family affairs, the largest having only 20 weaving machines, a New York textile trade paper states.

Boys and girls go to work as apprentices without pay the first year, with a few cents a month during the second year and a littte more the third. Board and lodging is given. Full fledged workers pay about 10 cents a day for food.

Policy of the Comintern Will Be the Policy of the Party

By ALEXANDER BITTELMAN.

OBJECTIVELY our party is moving ahead toward the unification of its two major groups. The coming party convention will undoubtedly do away with factionalism, at least, in its organized and most objectionable forms. But this did not and could not prevent the pre-convention struggle.

The political and ideological basis for unity between the majority and the minority is already here. It was created by the decision of the Comintern on the American question. This basis for unity was later extended and strengthened by the decisions of the Parity Commission. The Parity Commission adopted nearly a dozen resolutions dealing with every phase of the future activities of the party, and all of these resolutions were adopted unanimously. What does this fact mean? It means two things.

FIRST: As far as the party is concerned and as far as the Comintern is concerned, the old political differences between the majority and the minority do not exist any longer. These differences, which were very real and important during the last 3½ years have lost their actuality since the decision of the Comintern on the American question. The future labor party policy of the party will be (must be) governed neither by the old thesis of the majority nor by the old thesis of the minority but by the new thesis of the Communist International.

SECOND: Both groups, majority and minority, place substantially the same interpretation on the decision of the Comintern as far as our future work is concerned, but they disagree as to the meaning of the decision with regard to our past differences.

Why Can't We Forget Our Past Differences?

ORDINARILY the question of past differences should not enter at all in the relations between two Communist groups who in the present both subscribe to the policies of the Comintern. But somehow this does not happen. For some reason or other these past differences are forcing their way thru and are becoming the "big thing" in the discussion. Why? There are three main reasons for it.

One is the coming party convention. Had there been no convention, the decision of the Comintern would have finally settled the matter. All the real Communists in the party (which means its overwhelming majority) would have proceeded to carry this decision into existence without any discussion at all as to who was right and who was wrong. But there is a convention coming, with a pre-convention discussion period. Hence, the whole thing is thrown open and naturally also the question of past differences.

Two is the election of a new Central Executive Committee. This means the selection of the party's leadership, undoubtedly a great and serious matter for the party to decide upon. This is bound to precipitate a struggle, under all conditions, particularly when the momentum generated in the past struggle over real differences between the majority and the minority has had no time to spend itself, and when two organized groups stand against each other in the party.

Comrade Zinoviev must have known what was coming when he proposed that the composition of the Central Committee of our party be initiated in Moscow. He proposed that the present majority retain a majority in the future Central Executive Committee and that the present minority be assured representation according to its strength, not less than one-third. But that proposal was later withdrawn as inexpedient. Hence, the selection of leadership was left to the party with very natural result of an intensive internal struggle.

There is the ideological readjustment on the part of both groups to the decision of the Comintern on the American question. Both groups have to revise materially their former views if they want to be in complete accord with the policy of the Comintern. In fact such a revision is taking place, such a process of readjustment is going on. The present discussion of past differences, the talk of who was right and who was wrong, is only a somewhat distorted reflection of this process of ideological readjustment on the part of both groups to the decision of the Comintern on the American question.

Let us readjust ourselves to the Comintern decision.

FIRST, let me state that the Comintern decision is not a document to quibble about. It is clear and unequivocal and permits of very little interpretation. It says what it means and it means exactly what it says.

When Comrade Kuusinen introduced the report of the American Commission to the Plenum of the Enlarged Executive of the Comintern, he formulated the issues in the American party in the following way:

"The question upon which the conflict arose in the American party was whether the party should fight in the immediate future for a Labor Party or not."

The point that needs emphasis here (emphasis and not interpretation) is the expression in the above statement of Comrade Kuusinen which says: "in the immediate future." Why must this be emphasized? Not because it adds to or changes anything in the Comintern decision, but because it disposes once and for all of the myth that the majority was opposed to the fight for a Labor Party in principle.

According to Comrade Kuusinen the question was, shall we or shall we not fight for a Labor Party in the immediate future? The majority said: No. The minority said: Yes. On this point the minority was right. Not on the question of principle, because the question of the labor party in principle was never involved. Anyone who tries to misrepresent the past discussion as a discussion on the labor party in principle is failing in his duty to adjust himself correctly to the decsion of the Comintern on the American question.

What was the basic feature of the political analysis given by the majority following the last presidential elections? It was this: That the La Follette movement had captured or swallowed the labor party movement and that the backward working masses are accepting the petty bourgeoisie La Follette movement as their own movement, as the new party that they wanted to see created.

This statement was a correct expression of the real situation. On this point the decision of the Comintern says:

"Prior to the last presidential elections, however, the petty bourgeois liberal opposition movement led by La Follette came to the foreground and irresistibly captured the mass sentiment of the semi-conscious, anti-capitalistically inclined workers and farmers."

And further on we find the same point elaborated even more. Says the decision of the Comintern;

"The semi-conscious laboring masses, however, saw in La Follette a standard bearer against big business and followed him blindly, for the farmer-labor movement still lacked political independence to a certain degree. The majority of the workers in this movement desired the formation of a labor party, but they did not yet demand an independent proletarian class policy; they rather preferred to accept the guardianship of an opposition party of the petty bourgeois."

This is precisely the political analysis given by the majority and it was upon this correct political analysis that the majority based its opposition to the fight for a labor party in the immediate future. This opposition was wrong. Why? Because we failed to see the inevitable coming of a fresh movement toward a labor party in the immediate future, because we were too skeptical about the ability of the labor party movement to recover soon from the disintegrating influence of the La Follette movement, and because we lacked confidence in the vitality of the labor party slogan under these conditions to promote a labor party movement.

Passing Differences and Fundamental Differences.

THE decision of the Comintern sets the party right on the question of fighting for a labor party in the immediate future. But that is not all. The Comintern decision sets the party right on many other points which are much more basic and fundamental for our future labor party policy.

For instance:

How soon shall we begin to resort to organizational measures in our labor party policy? Says the Comintern:

"It would be a mistake for us to begin too prematurely with the organizational measures for the formation of a labor party. This could only give the La Follette crowd a trump card in their fight against the labor party movement and aid them to reconsolidate their ranks. We, however, should drive an ever deeper wedge into the La Follette movement."

How shall we fight for a labor party? Merely by the use of the slogan? No!

"This is not to be done abstractly, for it would not succeed in this manner, but in immediate connection with the most urgent everyday demands of the workers."

When are the conditions ripe for the formation of a labor party?

"The conditions for the successful formation are not ripe as long as there is not a firm mass basis of trade union support. The majority of the central committe was absolutely right in emphasizing this point."

Is Communist leadership in the labor party an absolute prerequisite for its formation? No!

"The Communists need not demand nor even expect that the labor party will immediately be a revolutionary, radical party of workers, in which the Communists will have to take the lead. In this respect the slogan has been put somewhat too narrowly by the minority of the C. E. C. . . . It is very possible that in America at first there will be for a time at the head of the labor party similar reformist labor traitors to those in England, or even worse."

Shall we form labor parties consisting only of the Workers Party and its sympathizers? No!

"If the Workers Party were merely to be combined with the organizations sympathizing with it, no labor party could be formed from this combination."

Shall we split off the left wing from the broad labor party movement to transform it into a mass Communist Party? Says the Comintern:

"After the formation of the labor party, what the executive emphasized a year ago should be kept in mind, that it is not advisable to endeavor to split off a left wing from the L. P. as soon as possible in order to transform this split-off section into a mass Communist Party. We must rather endeavor to win increasing masses in the labor party for the revolutionary point of view and to let this left wing grow within the labor party and at the same time to take the most advanced and revolutionary elements into the Workers Party. This policy is to be observed both prior to the formation of the labor party and subsequently."

Shall we minimize the role of the Workers Party?

"The role of the Workers Party as the Communist Party of the country should neither be obscured nor minimized."

THE Comintern decision demands that our party adjust and further develop its labor party tactics on the basis of the present situation in the United States. This is already being done. The Central Executive Committee has already formulated a labor party program which is adjusted to meet the present situation. On several important occasions (of which I shall speak in detail in my subsequent articles) the Central Executive Committee began to apply this reformulated policy. Its successful continuation will depend in a large measure upon the unification of the Communist forces in the party and the complete liquidation of Loreism. This will be the big job of the coming party convention.

WORKERS PARTY AND KUOMINTANG HOLD A JOINT MASS MEETING

HARTFORD, Conn., Aug. 11—A successful joint meeting was held here by the Workers Party and the Kuomintang Party on Trumbull near Pearl Sts. Four hundred workers endorsed a resolution protesting against the imperialist campaign in China, and calling for support of Soviet Russia.

The speakers were L. Lee, representing the Kuomintang Party, and Wm. Simons, District Organizer of the Workers Party, Connecticut District.

Comrade Simons and local Hartford comradse paid a visit to the local headquarters of the Kuomintang Party, and were impressed by the files of ten Chinese newspapers, pictures of Sun Yat Sen, the Kuomintang leader, and of several Chinese revolutionary martyrs, who fell in the struggle against their oppressors.

The meeting served to establish closer relations between the Workers Party, Local Hartford and the Chinese workers of Hartford, 70 of whom are organized in the Kuomintang Party.

BUILDERS AT WORK

The Daily Worker Is a Labor Paper.

THERE'S AN "ARGUMENT" ON EVERY PAGE.

From one Builder after another we receive letters telling us how they get the subs they send in—and whom they get the subs from. And all of them show what a great number of good arguments there are for the DAILY WORKER.

One gets a sub from a plumber, another from a bricklayer, another from a machinist—and all say something like this Builder who asks that his name not be used:

• • • •

The DAILY WORKER:

These subs I am sending I got from two different workers with only one argument.

I showed the machinist all the news about his trade and also about the situation in his union (the DAILY WORKER had a number of items in that issue) and from then on the job was easy.

Then on the same day, and in the same issue—I showed a clothing worker the big stories the DAILY WORKER was running on the situation in his trade in both New York and Chicago. That worker would have followed me to give me his sub. .

I am sure that if we had more people to show the workers that the DAILY WORKER is a paper that carries news of interest ONLY to workers—and in every trade—we would not need special offers, special prices, premiums and all sorts of subscription bait.

There's a good argument for the DAILY WORKER on every page.

Yours for more Builders to give these arguments,

....

• • • •

This loyal builder who has steadily contributed his efforts with splendid results is the type the movement needs more of.

With a fairly large size army of Builders, no "bargain" metods to build the DAILY WORKER would be necessary—as this builder well suggests. Without question—there is an argument (and a good one!) for the DAILY WORKER on every page.

NEGROES HAVE RIGHT TO LAND PETTIGREW SAYS

Praises Soviet Union, Condemns Wall Street

SIOUS FALLS, South Dakota, Aug. 11.—Former Senator R. F. Pettigrew, addressing a meeting to celebrate the 60th anniversary of the freedom of the American Negroes, said that the Negroes should have ben given the land on which they worked when freed. The Negroes were justified in leaving the south, Pettigrew said.

America is a backward and barbarous nation, Pettigrew continued. 56 per cent of the land in the middle west is owned by "parasitical landlords", and that most of the wealth of the United States is in the hands of a few persons. Pettigrew denounced the domination of Wall Street.

He praised Lenin, and declared that the workers and farmers of America should support the Soviet Union. He urged confiscation of land, railroads and banks by the workers.

ever gained any concessions, not to speak of freedom, from their masters in the recorded history of the human race except by fighting. They can see the once despised Riffians now exalted to the position of almost equals by the proud militarists of France and Spain. They can see the Chinese, long trodden on by every capitalist peddler that came along, rising to the height of their dignity and showing the cocky invader the color of their steel. It is working.

THE Communists tell the Negroes that their freedom depends on their own organized might. It is unfortunate that many white workers should be prejudiced against the Negroes. This prejudice, like all other brands of race and color prejudice is the fruit of ignorance. The radical white workers know that all world labor, black and white and of all shades in between, are brothers and that they have only one enemy: the exploiter. The radicals want unity of all workers. Labor fakers like Green want disunity so that he and his kind can be in a better position to sell them for cash.

THE distress in Ireland is not due to crop failure but to unemployment according to the most recent dispatches. There are over 60,000 unemployed within the juriadiction of the Northern government and 100,000 in the area governed by the Free State. This shows an appalling percentage of unemployment. Granting that one out of every four of the four million population of Ireland, north and south, is a worker in some calling, the figures mean that one out of every six is without work. The Irish workers are learning that capitalism and not British rule only is their enemy.

U. S. SOLDIERS ARE READING DAILY WORKER

Interested in Crouch and Trumbull Case

By L. P. RANDALL.

LOS ANGELES, Calif., Aug. 11—The other day, while selling DAILY WORKERS at the slave market, a recruiting officer was there looking for young men willing to "travel and see the world." A civilian, who was in conversation with the soldier at the time, asked me to give the paper to the man in U. S. uniform. The writer was pleased to do so, and he found out that the "boy in gray" knew a lot about the Crouch-Trumbull case.

"Where did you get your information from concerning the conviction of Crouch and Trumbull?" this Uncle Sam servant was asked.—"From the DAILY WORKER," was the answer.

Now this soldier can be seen reading our daily in public while waiting for the next boy hungry enuf to join the army or navy—as the case may be.

The "Commoner's" Will

If the meek and lowly Nazarene whose mother rode into Bethlehem on an ass—according to religious mythology—prior to being delivered of him, ever meets the shade of William Jennings Bryan in Valhalla or on the golden stairs of the christian heaven, the two should be able to carry on an entertaining conversation on the evolution of christian ethics during the 2,000 years that spanned the earthly careers of both prominent historic figures.

Jesus of Nazareth was as poor as the proverbial church mouse and not only did he hold his own poverty in high esteem, but his propaganda had a most demoralizing effect on the minds of those who had set out to amass worldly goods. Jesus of Nazareth held it inconsistent with christianity for a follower of that creed to accumulate wealth. He stated emphatically that it is harder for a rich man to get into heaven than for a camel to get thru a needle's eye.

In those days a man who could purchase half a dozen camels or a dozen wives would be considered a man of wealth. Today such a man would not be eligible to join the Fish Fan's club on the ground of disgusting poverty. If the owner of half a dozen camels, could not get into heaven without experiencing almost insurmountable difficulties, how in the name of evolution could a man who possessed the enormous fortune of $860,000.00 get there?

This sum is the value of the wealth that William Jennings Bryan left behind him. Since Constantine the Great murdered all his relatives in the name of god, it is doubtful if there lived a man who so widely advertised his piety as William Jennings Bryan. He was a good christian and he did not care how many knew about it. The fact that christianity paid, made it ever so much easier to be a battler for the lord. If his god demanded that he wear sackcloth instead of B. V. D.'s and powder his body with ashes instead of talcum, it is doubtful whether Bryan would make such lusty war on knowledge, the foe of religion, during the latter part of his life.

Bryan's fortune is only a little short of a million. We would like to see him try to squeeze thru the eye of a needle. Surrounded by his money bags, he would exceed in girth quite a considerable camel. We are of the opinion that so successful a publicity man as Bryan will continue to get on the front page from the other side of the dark ocean. No doubt he will send us messages a la Northcliffe. What we would like to know is, whether possession of a million dollars is considered a bar to membership in the heavenly kept Bryan outside the gates for a couple of million years, until his descendants succeed in exchanging it for liquor or poker chips, it could be said that the "Commoner" was being crucified on his own cross of gold.

The Anglo-French Conflict

For centuries the ruling classes of England and France were almost constantly at war with each other. Up until the time of the formation of the entente cordiale, which was a security pact against Germany, of the same character as the one England is now trying to frame against Russia, the two great European powers eyed each other suspiciously across the channel. Their agents were at logger heads in every part of the world where the rival bagmen of the two imperialisms stepped on each other's corns.

During the world war which wrecked Germany as a world power, much sentimental gushing was indulged in by the hack writers of England and France. Lasting friendship between the two nations was cemented by the blood poured out by both on the same battlefields against the same enemy! This is what the hack writers wrote and the statesmen said.

What is the situation today? Seven years after the armistice we find the French and British ruling classes at sword's points. The interests of both robber groups conflict. Only the weakness of both powers and the fear of revolution prevent a war between them.

In Morocco, it is generally believed that Britain is aiding the Riffians in their struggle against French imperialism. Not because Britain wants to see the Riffians free, but because she wants to see French power in Africa weakened.

In Syria it is openly stated by French correspondents that British intrigue has incited the natives to revolt. In return the British blame the French for John Bull's troubles in Egypt, India and the Near East. Both are undoubtedly correct. French correspondents attribute the British intrigue in French colonies and mandatories to an effort on the part of London to stop the French government from "flirting with the Soviet government." A few days ago the newspapers carried a story which indicates that substantial agreement has been reached between the Soviet Union and France on the very important question of the debt. It is also hinted that the two governments are near an agreement on matters pertaining to the security pact which Britain has set her heart on.

Britain has apparently succeeded in making a servile tool out of her former rival Germany. It is not likely that she will be able to reconcile her interests with those of France. The whole business proves the impossibility of the capitalists accommodating their differences peacefully. Nationally and internationally the conflicts within the capitalist system, tend to destroy it. It will take the organized might of the working class to give it the farewell historical kick and to reconstruct society on a basis, in harmony with the needs of the producing classes and with industrial evolution.

If it is true that an amateur radio operator from Fremont, Nebraska, heard Novgord, Russia, a new danger for the American capitalist class looms. How to keep Bolshevism out of the air is the next important duty. Evolution, whether industrial of organic is surely the work of the devil.

CITY MANAGER OF SAN DIEGO APPLIES THRIFT

Scavengers' Wage Cut Lightens Taxes

By FRAPESIA.

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 10.—F. A. Rhodes, city manager of San Diego, announces that economy is to be practiced very closely in the municipal work of that city. He has resolved to start a new thrift movement. By reducing his own salary of $5,000 a year? No, indeed! He can not afford that. What he proposes to do is to cut the wages of the scavengers.

The city of San Diego employs 190 negroes at $4.50 a day to handle garbage. Rhodes considers the pay to be extravagant. He has decided to cut it to $4.00. In justification he says: "Why should I not save the taxpayers this money?"

Cheapest of the Cheap.

San Francisco some time ago lost to San Diego the palm for having the stingiest taxpayers in the United States. Rhodes is determined that the "Port of Lost Opportunity" will keep that palm. Even if it is not tangible, it is of significant value.

The savings to be effected by cutting the wages of the scavengers will amount to $28,000 per year (on a basis of 300 workdays). As there are 14,000 taxpayers concerned, the appreciable sum of $2.00 net a year average, is to be saved to each and every one of the contributors to the municipal exchequer.

This is substantial thrift on the part of Rhodes. He is accomplishing it on his little $5,000 a year. The $28,500 not only covers his salary but gives the taxpayers a clear profit of $23,500, or nearly four times as much as he is paid. That ought to show that he is worthy of his hire. It indicates that he deserves employment as a city manager. That is his main purpose.

Negroes Inured to Poverty.

As to the scavangers, they should not complain. Rhodes might be offended if they did. Then they would probably fare worse. The city manager undoubtedly came out of a college with a B. to C. (Born to Command) degree, fitting him to be an executive. If the Negroes manifest discontent, he may show them that he could cut their pay $1.00 a day as easily as 50 cents.

By assuming an E. N. M. (Expect No Mercy) look, Rhodes would quickly overawe the scanvengers and then chivalrously hand over the $150 taken from each of them to the taxpayers. The beneficiaries, grateful to their Robin Hood, would enjoy the savings effected and mark up the value of their property $285,000, based on the $28,500 economy. Banks would loan so much more on the appropriation. Rhodes would be given the credit for the general improvement.

As to the scavangers, they would soon accustom themselves to the deprivation of $150 a year apiece. Knowing poverty well, they could adjust themselves to the increased want.

Ignorance Desired.

Nearly all the negroes have families to support. The 50 cents a day provides many necessaries and comforts, shoes, clothes, food, etc. That little sum goes far to amplify education of the children.

But, recruited from the most ignorant element in the Southern states and selected as unconscious of industrial injustice, the scavengers are easily denied right to better living conditions and education. It takes years to train them to know what their labor entitles them to.

White San Diego taxpayers flout the idea of education for their Negro wage slaves. They argue that by keeping down the wages the Negroes will be kept ignorant, and that is desirable. The whites of the California coast are hopelessly lazy and must have slaves. They seek Chinese, Japanese, Filipinos, Mexicans and Negroes and the last mentioned are favored by them because they can be kept ignorant longest.

Setting Blacks Against Whites.

City Manager Rhodes "knows his stuff" (California English). For the consumption of the impressionable Negroes, he suggests that, if they do not accept the reduction of wages, their places can be easily filled by white men. His suggestion is truthful. The average wages of white men in San Diego is much less than the pay of the scavengers. It is very probable that white men could be hired to take the places of the Negroes at as low as $15 a week. The blacks know this. They are terrified by the white peril. To them it is a menace of starvation.

So, it is most likely that they will continue to render indispensible service in their undesirable calling at lower wages. Nevertheless, they could and should be organized for future action.

A. F. of L. Indifference.

The A. F. of L. of San Diego is a real labor aristocracy, not interested in the plight of the Negroes. It would jeer at any intimation that it should intervene. A step in behalf of scavengers might result in besmirching its immaculate relations with the Spreckels banks, newspapers, public utilities, etc.

Next Steps and Prospects In Garment Workers' Fight

By P. YUDICH.

TODAY (Thursday, Aug. 6.) will be eight weeks since the present battle in the International Ladies Garment Workers' Union started. On June 11 the machine of the Joint Board suspended the executive boards and managers of Locals 2, 9 and 22. War was declared and the pogrom started.

It is usually accepted that such a kind of war as the present one cannot be dragged out. In general, mass revolts must quickly come to and end in victory or defeat. There is no difference if it is a mass revolt in a union or in other spheres of social life.

Struggle Broadens.

But this struggle which is now being led by the cloak and dressmakers has overcome this general rule. It is eight weeks time, and the struggle is intensifying and broadening itself. The self-defense of the masses which Sigman's pogrom has provoked has been transformed into a powerful struggle against the pogrom leaders. The tasks of the revolting masses in this struggle have almost become a daily routine. Day in and day out it is the same, only with more fire and more audacity.

Apparently this fact itself is an indication which shows that the present resistance of the cloak and dressmakers is such a phenomenon which must bring about an altogether new situation.

Prepaid for Decisive Finish.

It appears that the tens of thousands of members of the International view their present struggle as a decisive one. It appears that the cloak and dressmakers have decided once and for all to liberate themselves from their misleaders. The Joint Action Committee which leads the struggle has taken into its hands every possible weapon and is prepared not to drop these weapons until the struggle is brought to the desired conclusion.

Does the Sigman machine feel this? Yes. Sigman and his gang have long since understood this. And therefore they have become desperate of late. Even Yanovsky in his "Justice", who but last week pinched himself in the cheek and made believe that he was overjoyed at the result of the fake referendum—even he came out this week with a howl of consternation.

"It is hard to remain quiet and keep still," he says, "seeing how this wild craziness (meaning the revolt of the membership) drags in more and more people. You think perhaps we can save some yet, perhaps a word of warning in time may shake many to a consciousness of the wild impossible things that they are doing."

What Do You Mean "Wild"?

You understand that what is "wild" and "impossible" to Yanovsky, is that great phenomenon that more and more members have mustered themselves in the struggle to liberate themselves from the hooliganism of Sigman. But it is interesting to see that even Yanovsky has now started to cry openly instead of pinching his own cheeks.

"It is possible," he says, "that it is now too late to warn, if it is true, as we hear, that this hysteria has now become a general epidemic in the union."

Sigman himself has surely become more desperate. He was forced to "fix" the resignations of two of his closest colleagues, Perlstein and Feinberg. He was forced to take over himself the administration of the New York Joint Board, to take over the leadership of the pogrom on all fronts.

What then are the prospects? And on what does Sigman build his hopes?

Prospects.

Sigman builds his hopes still in two directions: On the one hand, for a united front with the Breslau group; and on the other, for the unification of his machine with the bosses, from whom he expects to receive greater help, especially when the beginning of the season in the trade will be felt, which means at the time when there will be bundles in the shops.

Sigman began to hope for the active support of the Breslau group as soon as he made peace with the idea that Perlstein and Feinberg should resign. We have already made clear in a previous article this fact that the resignation of the two pogrom-heroes was given more as a concession to the Breslau group than as a concession to the membership.

The Sigman clique was forced to that concession, and they were certainly forced more thru the powerful struggle of the membership than thru the pressure of the internal machine opponents; but in agreeing upon the resignation Sigman had in mind to receive a certain price.

A Deal With Breslau.

This consisted in the "delivery of the goods" by the Breslau group in the pogrom against the membership. Maybe there was no formal agreement, but the understanding is that the leaders of Locals 10, 35 and 48, should actively throw themselves into the struggle, they should deliver money and sluggers to the limit of their ability. At least that is the expectation of the Sigman group.

The assistance of the bosses in the season-time Sigman expects, because then they hope to be able to fight the workers with the bundles in the shops. They know that the cloakmakers are hungry. Therefore they hope that when the bundles come they will be able to force the workers, with the assistance of the bosses, to pay dues and taxes with which the machine expects to pay its debts.

Use Starvation As Weapon.

They hope that with the help of the bundles they will force the workers to throw themselves altogether under the heel of the pogrom-heroes and that the revolt should thus be suppressed.

With these hopes in mind the Sigman machine attempted an offensive. Sigman has again started a bombardment of denunciation in the capitalist press. He has renewed his threats in his old manner. He has again begun to swing his club on all sides. He is preparing, as he says, right now to give a "fight".

Is it possible, this unificaton of Sigman with the Breslau group?

Not Possible.

We permit ourselves to say that it is not possible, a complete true unification. Not because both sides do not agree in principles. No. If Breslau and Sigman have any principles they are surely one and the same.

There is no true unity possible between them because of other reasons. First, the struggle between them has gone so far that the personal bitterness engendered cannot be rooted out. Second, it appears that Sigman is such a person with whom nobody can work harmoniously and nobody ever will.

Anarchist by Nature.

Sigman's egoism has no limit. He is a true individualist, who cannot work in a collective manner. He does not recognize any other opinion but his own, no other persons understanding, and no collective will. He has a name as a "strong man", with a "strong character."

There are some who figure that as something to his credit, but in truth this is his biggest fault. In truth he is not a strong man but only a foolish and obstinate one. His character is not strong only wild.

If Breslau, Dubinsky and Ninfo, would be dependent upon Sigman's good-nature, as are for instance Helpern, Wander and other fallen leaves who "stick" to Sigman, they would then perhaps unwillingly have to unitedly act according to the orders of the chief. But in that case their help for Sigman would have the same value as, for instance, that of Lekhovitz or Seidman. They are not, however, so dependent upon Sigman. They are still on the payroll of their locals and not of the general office.

But if no complete unity is possible, it is possible for the Breslau group to close a united front with Sigman to give him more assistance in the pogrom which he carries on. It is possible that generally they should not love themselves as heretofore, but that in the offensive against the revolting membership they should begin a united front activity, more actively than heretofore.

Unity With Bosses Already.

And just as in the first front, it is also possible for the Sigman clique to receive additional support on the second one. That means to receive the assistance of the bosses. On this front unity is already long prepared. There is no doubt that in the season the bosses will be loyal to Sigman and his lieutenants.

But now there is another question. Can this assistance on both fronts have a determining effect?

Depends on Membership.

This question can be answered, no. Sigman cannot receive any great help. Not from the Breslau group and not from the bosses. Regardless of the united strength, all of these unifications are very weak as against an aroused membership, and cannot bring Sigman any substantial help. If the cloak and dressmakers themselves will not weaken in their struggle, then Sigman's last hopes will also dissolve.

We must not forget the following:

That even if the Breslau group lines up in the struggle with "full force," their assistance can only have effect on the following conditions: First, that the unity should not be mechanical but real; and second, that the leaders of the groups should have not a partial following of their locals but a complete one.

Breslau Cannot Deliver.

Those two conditions, however, are impossible of accomplishment. No real unity, for instance, is possible between Breslau and Sigman. And it is also sure that as much power as the Breslau group may have, all of that power cannot be delivered thru the group.

The struggle against the pogrom leaders has until now also drawn in quite a part of the membership of the "loyal" locals. In the pressers' as well as the cutters' locals, the membership has ceased to keep quiet as heretofore. They have lifted their heads and are speaking, protesting and demanding. There are hundreds of organized cutters and pressers who are daily in the first lines of the masses in the struggle against the machine. They are the vanguard of the fighters.

Trouble Ahead for Breslau.

Under such conditions it will not be easy for Breslau and his colleagues to deliver from their locals all that they might wish to. And there cannot be a doubt that if they will make the attempt to throw the whole power of their locals into the struggle on the side of the pogrom leaders, that will provoke a shaking-up in those locals themselves. The chiefs of the Breslau group then will need to seek assistance from others rather than be able to give assistance to other politicians.

And just so can the assistance of the bosses in the season not have greater value than they give now to the Sigman machine. In the first place they cannot scare the cloakmaker with the bundle any more. The treacherous maneuvers of the Sigman machine have brought the trade to such bad conditions for the workers that the cloakmakers feel already that with silence they will not gain any bundles.

Bundles Poor Argument.

And when he does receive bundles he cannot make a living at it. The suppressed voices of the workers are raising higher and higher. The present revolt against the machine has also come as an expression of protest against the begging conditions to which the cloakmakers were misled. The present revolt is an outcry against the wounds which have been inflicted upon the workers.

The cry is against the bundles which are made in slack times in all kinds of scab and cooperation shops, and it comes because of the better conditions in the union shops being abolished so that they cannot even earn the most necessary things for their livelihood.

This revolt is a cry of pain against those who have forced the workers to suffer in silence, against those who have made this brutal pogrom simply because the more conscious of the workers have dared to raise this cry and not choke in silence.

Secondly, we can say the following:

Bosses Will Suffer.

If the bosses in the season will attempt to hurt the workers with the bundles they will without a doubt pay dearly for it. A strike against the boss, against machine terror, is a much stronger weapon then, then a strike in slack time. The workers will not be short of pickets as long as the struggle lasts, even in the busy season. And the bosses will certainly not get any joy out of these pickets at that time.

It seems that the figure "to hurt the cloakmakers with bundles" will have to be discounted. Sigman will apparently very soon find out the mistake in his figures.

Members Are Set On Victory.

The saving of the Sigman clique can only come if the cloak and dressmakers should themselves weaken their struggle. But this is impossible to imagine. The struggle of the cloak and dressmakers is not an accident; it is a revolt from long years of suffering, a revolt against union usurpers who dragged the workers into all kind of mire.

Such a revolt cannot, from itself, be given up. And this struggle if continued as it will and must be, will surely bring defeat to the pogrom leaders, and the conditions of the workers will then be improved.

Must Take the Offensive.

In order to bring to an end the present struggle, the cloak and dressmakers must have in mind but one thing; they must see that the struggle should not be one of defense only, but much more on the lines of attack. They must lead the attack, and not the Sigman machine. All the attacks of the machine must be repulsed before they are yet made. Maintaining the struggle on such lines the victory will come all the sooner.

Night Vigil

(Inspired by the glorious fight of the militants of Local 22 against the Sigman machine.)

They are coming—going,
Groups of two, and three and more.
Lips murmur, nostrils quiver—
We'll fight on; our stronghold; we'll win.

The vigil breaks the quiet of the night
With undertones of hate and determination
To fight and conquer.

Here and there, the total darkness
Is penetrated by a face—
Pale and warm . . . Noble fighters . . .
Eyes weary, yet bright
In the hope of conquest.

For many nights, many days—
Sleep has not been theirs.
The watch must be continued.
They feel it in their bones, their very souls.

All they possess . . .
Thru countless years of sacrifice—struggle. . . .

One begins to hum,
"Arise ye prisoners of starvation,"
And many voices
Weakened thru lack of sleep
Pick up the air of challenge,
"'Tis the final conflict. . . ."

COOLIDGE GIVES INDORSEMENT TO WAR ON RIFFIANS

War Department Makes Excuses for French

WASHINGTON, D. C., Aug. 10.—A statement issued by the office of the chief of ordnance department of war, disagreeing with a news article claiming that the modern warfare as conducted by the French against the Riffians has failed, tends to confirm the fact that the imperialist government of the United States has lined up with French imperialism in the conquest of Morocco.

The war department statement defends the French method of attack on the Riffians, and makes excuses for the reverses sufferd by the French, ending with the intimation that as soon as the French begin their attack they will be able to make up their losses.

Flag of Wall Street on Front.

Many quarters here attach significance to the statement of Laurent-Eynac, French undersecretary for aviation, speaking at a reception to American aviators who had enlisted in the French army to fight the Riffians, that "The fact that the star spangled banner will fly over the plains of Morocco and the mountains of the Riff, will surpass in importance the number of the American volunteers."

The statement of the war department, expressing approval of the French attack on the Riffians, who are fighting for independence from the oppression of French bankers, follow in part Excuses for French Failure.

"There can be no doubt that one of the delicate questions is that of the crossing and recessing of international boundaries involved in a French campaign against Riffian tribes. Likewise the French commander must at all times consider the question of the popularity of his campaign at home. How often must he ask himself: 'Will my activities receive the moral support of the French Government and the French people, and will I receive essential support in the substantial form of troops, arms, ammunition and supplies to prosecute my campaign?'

"Compare the situation of the French commander with that of General Pershing during his service as commander of the Punitive Expedition in Mexico. Possibly there are points of similarity.

"Consider the personnel of the opposing forces, especially their training. The Riffian soldier is more highly developed at act on his individual initiative, to live and fight in the open by himself and with the arms, ammunition and equipment carried on his person or supplied from an extremely mobile supply system. The French soldier of today cannot be very different from the French soldier of the world war. He is distinctly a team man. His individuality and initiative are limited.

"The factor of morale is always important in any form of military or civil endeavor. On the one hand we have the French soldier away from home, or a colonial engaged in operations against a neighbor, while the Riffian is at home or just across the border, supported by the tradition of centuries. The terrain, climate are strange to a large percentage of the French command, while the Riffian is on a battlefield of his own choosing.

U. S. Hopes French Win.

"It is a well-known principle of war that only an offensive campaign wins. This does not mean that all offensive campaigns do win. The French today are strictly defensive in their tactics. Whether or not the French take the offensive will depend probably more upon the political factor than any other factor affecting the present situation. If the offensive is taken and the campaign goes forward, is it not reasonable to assume that the French command will utilize the weapons and means best suited to bring about a decisive action? We may expect to see mobility used to overcome mobility and each of the modern weapons utilized in its proper role.

"Above all, keep the Riffian situation in proper perspective. Consider all factors before drawing conclusions, and bear in mind that the army, and especially the ordnance, of a modern nation of first magnitude, must be ready to meet all possible contingencies, and must not allow considerations peculiar to an isolated case to exert an undue influence on its organization, its ordnance of its tactical employment."

Cost of Bridge in Workers' Lives.

CAMDEN, N. J., Aug. 10.—(FP)—Two more workers' lives have been added to the cost of the great suspension bridge across the Delaware river, connecting Philadelphia and Camden. Nine workers have been killed on the job to date. These last two were on a girder being placed in position on the approach to the bridge when the girder slipped and dropped with them 65 feet onto a flat car.

The Search Starts.

With an excellent description of the lone bandit who obtained between $10,000 and $15,000 in a daring loop theater robbery, police and detective bureau squads today began an intensive search for the man.

MINERS CLASH WITH BETRAYERS

Pr men's Head Exposed As Labor Traitor

AS W IT

By T. J. FLAHERTY

SOMEBODY is always taking the joy out of life for the poor ministers of the gospel. When they are not eloping with their female choristers or starring in a plot to ease a male campetitior out of the way, they are chasing the devil around the lot, who sometimes appears in the guise of John Barleycorn and at other times as the personification of immorality. It now comes to our ears that "Fatty" Arbuckle did not go straight.

ARBUCKLE, you may remember, was once a noted movie actor who evoked loud guffaws from movie fans by the facility with which he took into himself long strings of frankfurters, pieces of pie and other products of the culinary art. But boose and gay women brot "Fatty" some unenviable notoriety and by the time his lawyers got thru with him he was a fit object for charity. Society women whose moral lapses were still more or less of a secret went to bat with "Fatty," acting on the theory that an offensive was the best camouflage, and no more did the audiences laugh at the fat man making a jackass of himself for a consideration.

"FATTY" was at his wits' end, in so far as he had any. How to earn his living without having to return to his former occupation of cleaning cuspidors was the question. He thot of religion. He remembered scores of criminals in tight places who got back to respectability and legalized graft thru the expedient of suddenly discovering that the lord invaded their bosoms. "Fatty" borrowed a container of glycerine and turned on the moisture. When the tears were

How Union Head Sells the Membership

This is the first of a series of articles which will appear in the DAILY WORKER, exposing the record of one of the blackest and most treacherous capitalist tools at the head of a union affiliated with the American Federation of Labor. That is saying a good deal, but after you read the articles, you will agree that we are not overstating the case.

The strike of union pressmen and feeders, members of Locals 3 and 4 of the International Pressmen's and Assistant's Union, against the Cuneo Printing company of Chicago, has again brot the attention of organized

The Russian delegation to the Anglo-Russian Trade Union Unity Conference held in London recently. From left to right: W. Michailov, M. Tomski, chairman of the delegation; O. Chernyshev, I. Lepse, G. Melnichanski, secretary. As it was already reported in the DAILY WORKER, the conference in London came to an unanimous conclusion on the necessity to fight for the world trade union unity. Resolutions were passed to this effect, and a joint appeal issued to the trade unions the world over. To promote this cause a magazine, The World Trade Union Unity, is being published in London.

Committee of 1,000 to Fight Sigman Treachery

NEW YORK CITY, Aug. 12.—All the claims of the manufacturers that they are not taking sides in the controversy within the I. L. G. W. U. are shattered by a letter made public today by the Joint Committee of Action of Locals 2, 9 and 22.

This letter published elswhere in this issue is confidential to members of the Association of Dress Manufacurers from their general manager Hyman Press, and it shows how the Association has arranged to cooperate with the Joint Board in fighting the three locals in the shops, and in discriminating against those workers who refuse to be ruled by the Joint Board Machine.

Making a Company Union

The letter also shows the way in which the Joint Board, to gain its ends, is willing to hand over to the bosses the rights of the shop chairmen to examine Union cards which virtually giving the Union itself into the control of the employers.

POPE BREAKS WITH FASCISTS WHEN HIS PRIESTS ARE SLUGGED

(Special to The Daily Worker)

LONDON, Aug. 12.—Cardinal Gasparri, in an article taken as representing the pope's views, gave the Italian government to understand, according to the Times, that if the government intends to replace moral strength with violence it can no longer count on the approval of the "holy see."

The pope did not object to violence against workers, but when catholic priests were attacked he became excited.

POLICE RAID THE AMALGAMATED HEADQUARTERS

Put Frame-up Charge Against Union

"Mike" Grady, touted ace of Chicago's toughest squad of detectives, headed police armed with sawed-off shotguns in a raid on the headquarters of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers,' at 409 South Halsted St., late yesterday afternoon.

Five wagon loads of workers were taken in the raid. All officials of the union who were in the headquarters at the time were taken by the police. The police refused to say who had been placed under arrest and who was merely being taken to be questioned.

Workers who were in the union offices at the time of the raid say that an assistant manager of the International Tailoring Company was with

FARRINGTONITES FORCE FIGHT AT ZEIGLER, ILLINOIS

Battle in Union Hall; One Miner Dying

(Special to The Daily Worker)

ZEIGLER, Ill., Aug. 12.—Three labor union officials and one member of the Zeigler local of the United Mine Workers are lying in hospitals today in neighboring towns, and twenty miners are injured as a result of a clash in the miners' union hall last night.

The member of the local, a common miner but an active and courageous fighter for the interests of the union, Mike Zarich, the most seriously wounded of all participants, is fighting for his life in a Herrin hospital after being shot thru the abdomen.

E. C. Cobz, vice-president, and Lon Fox, president of Sub-District 9 of District 12, the Illinois district, are convalescing from less serious wounds at West Frankfort, while H. Hindman, president of the West Frankfort Trades and Labor Assembly, is also recovering in that city.

Oppose Enemies of Union.

The Zeigler mines, both owned by the Zoller Mining Company, and the largest producing pits in the world, remain closed while determined groups of miners gather about the streets obviously prepared to oppose the enemies of their union.

Between Unionists and Traitors.

The trouble arose over the conflict between the Farrington machine and the militant progressive membership, who have fought the machine consistently for a long time.

Last year Henry Corbishly, president of the local and a leader of the progressives, was removed from office by the Farrington machine, but was supported upon special election and restored to office.

Farington Agents Autocratic.

The Farrington machine has not ceased to try to remove Corbishly, who stood in their way to turning over the miners to the company. The present difficulty offered them the excuse. It arose over the removal of a check weighman, and altho Corbishly tried to compose the matter and had the miners back to work pending a final settlement of their grievances, Fox and Cobb, acting for Farrington's machine, came here and removed Corbishly and other local officers.

The meeting last night turned into a battle when the miners, indignant over the removal of their progressive officers and knowing they would be robbed of an honest check weighman, clashed with the Farrington agents, who have always been supported by the ku klux klan.

Klan Had Guns—Left Winger Shot.

The klan came to the meeting armed and the fact that Zarich, the militant fighter for the union against the Farrington machine is supposedly dying with a bullet thru the abdomen while three known kluxers, Ellis Hargis, Bert and Oscar Farthing, brothers, are under arrest for carrying con-

The Truth About Zeigler

The following statement was issued today by the Central Executive Committee of the Workers (Communist) Party, concerning the conflict which arose in the Zeigler, Illinois, Local of the U. M. W. of A., where members of the local were wounded and some are dying as a result of a clash between the membership and the sub-district officials:

• • • •

THE treachery and class collaborationist policy of Frank Farrington, president of Illinois District 12 of the United Mine Workers of America by reason of corruption of union elections, has finally resulted in bloodshed at Zeigler, Illinois, where the miners from the pits, driven to desperation by the sub-district agents of the Farrington machine, went out on an outlaw strike.

From the meager reports received at this hour, and the previous situation in the Zeigler local and the sub-district, it can be said that had not Lon Fox, president, and E. C. Cobz, vice-president of the sub-district, acted as the agents of the coal companies at Farrington's behest, instead of the representatives of the miners whose interests they are supposed to safeguard, this situation would never have arisen.

THE history of this particular case is as follows:

One of the Zoller mines at Zeigler was working with one check weighman, who found he could not take care of all the coal that was coming over the scales.

He asked and received from the local union an assistant, who was accepted by the company and worked for six weeks. But the company, like all coal mine owners, wished to cheat the miners on weights, and after six weeks of unquestioned work—fired the assistant off the scales.

The first check weighman, finding it impossible to check all cars coming up, first protested and then, his protest ignored, quit, leaving the miners without a check weighman on the scales.

THE miners, finding out there was no union check weighman to watch out against false weights, ceased work and came out of the mine. The local president of the union, Henry Corbishly, called a mass meeting that evening, and advised the men to return to work with one check weighman, pending a final decision between the company and the union, according to the district agreement. This happened last week.

But meanwhile the company had wired the sub-district officials, aiders of the Farrington machine who stole their office last December with false ballots and manipulation, stating that a strike had been called at the mine and asking support in ending it.

The sub-district officials, thirsting for an excuse to attack President Corbishly of the Zeigler local, known as a courageous and progressive leader of the miners against the Farrington machine, hurried to Zeigler and deposed Corbishly from office in the local.

THE miners bitterly resented this autocratic action of the sub-district officials who were clearly seizing upon an excuse to remove Corbishly as an obstacle to Farrington's policy of betraying the miners' interests to the mine owners.

At the meeting Tuesday night the outraged miners protested against the autocratic action of the sub-district officials in illegally removing Corbishly from office and the conflict arose during which there was a violent clash as told in the news columns of the DAILY WORKER.

THIS incident in the struggle of the rank and file of the miners' union to prevent the Farrington machine from turning the organization for which strike after strike has been fought, and men have suffered and died to build up as a protection against the mine owners—over to the companies as a company union in fact not in name, should rally the miners in every distrtict and every local in the nation to a militant campaign to protcet their union from disruption and destruction by the Lewis-Farrington machine, a campaign provided for in the program of the Progressive Miners' Committee, and to drive from office the corrupt and criminal class collaborationist Lewis-Farrington machine who stops not even at bloodshed to aid the mine owners and retain their usurped position in the U. M. W. of A.

Labor Must Fight Its Own Political Battles

Statement of the Central Executive Committee of the Workers Party in Reply to the Executive Council of the American Federation of Labor.

THE Executive Council of the American Federation of Labor, in its recent meeting, declared its intention to return from its last year's political excursion into the camp of La Follettelsm, back into the old haunts of punishing "enemies" and rewarding "friends."

The leading bureaucracy of the American Federation of Labor, mostly dominated by democratic politicians, consider the moment opportune for this retreat.

Firstly, they believe that the death of outstanding leaders of the La Follette movement, of La Follette, Ladd, and Stone, weakened sufficiently the ideological influence of that movement over the working masses to get a consent of these masses for the retreat.

Secondly, they see that the gradual but decisive disintegration of the democratic party in the south proceeds in the direction of a crystallization of a labor party, with mass support of tenant and poor farmers. In this the democratic bureaucrats of the A. F. of L. see a dangerous tendency which they wish to check if possible.

Thirdly, they are preparing to lead the hosts of organized labor in America back into the camps of the old parties, for the coming municipal elections in New York, Cleveland, and other important cities, and for the congressional elections next year.

The trend of the toiling masses of America away from the folds of the old parties, the democrats and republicans, became so strong and irresistible during the last few years that the agents of the old parties in the leadership of the A. F. of L. feared for their political influence. So they decided to make a concession to the tendency of the rank and file. They could do that so much easier as this concession not only tended to keep them in a position of influence and leadership, but it also prevented a greater danger for them and their capitalist friends, that of the development of a political mass organization of the workers, A LABOR PARTY.

The La Follette movement, in its distinctly pro capitalist character, temporarily supplied a safe harbor to protect the pro capitalist bureaucracy of the A. F. of L. from the threatening storm of LABOR IN POLITICS, FROM A LABOR PARTY. La Follette, the political representative of small capitalists, independent manufacturers and well-to-do farmers, represented sufficient antagonism to the rule of Wall Street representing big capital that his political catch-phrases could serve as a bait for the exploited masses.

But even at that, the La Follette movement is considered too radical and too dangerous by the reactionary bureaucracy of the American Federation of Labor, and rightfully so. The interests of the pettty bourgeoisie represented by the La Follette movement are sufficiently antagonistic to the rule of Wall Street to force this social group temporarily into a friendly attitude toward the workers. The pettty bourgeoisie cannot hope to free itself from the economic oppression by big capital without the aid of the proletariat. Its temporary friendliness toward labor is the price it is willing to pay for labor's support. Thus, the La Follette movement really has more to offer to the workers than the old parties. It is for this reason that adherence of the American workers to the La Follette movement, in spite of the latter's pro-capitalist character, really represents a step in advance for the American proletariat.

The La Follette movement is a clear manifestation of the disintegration of the political rule of capitalism, and is, in itself, an important factor in this disintegration.

Aside from all these important considerations, the La Follette movement represents progress because it leads the workers at least one step away from the old rut of adherence to the old capitalist parties. The all-important phenomena in connection with the La Follette movement was that it represented largely the first and decisive step of large masses of workers away from the old parties.

Experience will soon enuf teach the workers that the petty bourgeoisie may try to use them politically but can never lead them. The inner antagonism of two social groups in one party, petty bourgeoisie and proletariat, will quickly find its concrete expression in different political aims and will drive the workers to the next step away from the capitalist parties—from the La Follette movement to independent political action, to a labor party. Development will not stand still even there, but it will proceed from independent political action to revolutionary political action, from a labor party to adherence of the proletarian masses to Communist leadership.

The pro-capitalist bureaucracy of the A. F. of L. realizes this and therefore takes the first opportunity to urge the step back again. But the workers of America cannot follow the executive council of the A. F. of L. in this step. Too important are the issues and too many things are at stake. Not one of the battles of labor could in the immediate past nor can at present proceed without the interference of the government. Militia "protects property" and shoots striking workers; judges "protect property" and forbid strikes, picketing or boycotts; police "protect property" and club the workers on the picket line. Wherever the workers get into a scrap with their bosses for better wages, shorter hours or other improved working conditions, the political power of the state is sure to step in in the form of a judge, the police, the militia or a government commission in order to help the bosses against the workers.

The Workers (Communist) Party calls the attention of organized labor to this situation. There is no other way out for the workers than either submit to ignoble defeat or to fight back in the field of politics. There is no escape but the organization and the marshaling of the political forces of labor in the same labor to the strikebreaking role played by George L. Berry, ever since he became president of the union.

How Union Head Sells the Membership

Before I proceed to lay bare the career of this notorious labor faker, a few words about the Cuneo strike are necessary.

A few months ago the executive board of the Pressmen's Union No. 3 made a tentative agreement with the Cuneo company relative to the elimination of one man on the rotary presses, as a trial proposition. This agreement was subject to ratification by the union. A special meeting of the local voted down this proposition and reaffirmed their action at a subsequent regular meeting. The Cuneo company appealed to George L. Berry, president of the international union, claiming that the tentative agreement was legal without the raification of the union, and Berry, following his usual policy agreed with the company and ordered the local officers to put the agreement into effect.

The Nature of the Scheme.

The Cuneo company, acting on Berry's instructions, put the so-called economy scheme into effect. This was the scheme:

It was tentatively agreed that whatever profits was realised out of the economy following the introduction of the new scheme that it would be divided equally between the company, the pressmen and the feeders. It should be noted first of all that this new system knocked out one man from each press right off the reel. He was among the unemployed army. Economy meant nothing to him. His place was in the bread line unless he could find some other job. The company did not worry about that.

But there was a fly in the economy ointment—for the workers. A certain standard of production had to be maintained before the profits out of the economy scheme could be divided and the experts of the Cuneo Printing company saw to it that the standard was sufficiently high so that no extra change should get into the pockets of the pressmen or feeders. It all went into the Cuneo treasury.

The Men Rebelled.

Naturally the men rebelled and struck the shop. Berry immediately proceeded to send in scabs just as he did in New York more than once. One of his vice-presidents, a fellow by the name of Shuford Marx, went to the Cuneo Printing company, promised them that the international and the "board of directores" (that's how they pronounce it) were behind the company, and that they would bring the striking pressmen and feeders to terms.

This is what is taking place now in the plant: Berry's cronies are running the plant, one of them a New York East Side character, by the name of Seymour Singer, being superintendent, and another fellow named Sam Fox, night foreman. Berry tools in other printing concerns are sending in help to break the strike.

What Is Berry's Graft?

The question may be asked: Where does Berry come in on the economy to be derived from the introduction of the new system in the pressrooms? This is a legitimate question, as labor fakers never do something for nothing, not even for the bosses. In fact, the only reason they serve the bosses rather than the workers is because the bosses have more money and it can be gotten by doing very little more strenuous work than holding down a chair in a soft drink parlor or tipping the chorus girls at a cabaret.

Before getting down to brass tacks with the "Majah" a few words about his leading tools are in order. And what a collection they are!

First on the order of merit comes Seymour Singer, foreman of the presses in the Cuneo plant and suspected inside man for his boss in Local No. 3. Besides trying to reduce the pressmen on the presses from two to one, Singer also keeps the boss informed on what transpires inside the local union.

The Gangsters' Pal.

Who is this Seymour Singer? What is his record? Singer is charged by the pressmen with many derilections. Shortly after he came to Chicago at Berry's invitation he started a "suit club." He sent his bullies around to the members of the union, advising them to join the club if they wanted to hold their jobs. The "members" were told at first that they could get a suit for $15 each but when they went after the suit, they found all the $15 suits sold and only $70 ones available. The company which made the suits generously offered to give the suckers two suits for $70 provided they got twelve more members to join.

The suits were manufactured by the Cadillac Clothing company which employed scab cutters. Singer's son-in-law and daughter were employed by by the Cadillac Clothing company.

This confidence game went up in smoke and Singer than turned to peddling lots in Michigan.

Singer was once charged with counterfeiting and barely escaped jail. He was the associate and pal of the New York East Side gangsters: "Bald" Jack Rose, "Gyp the Blood," "Lefty Lewis," "Kid Twist," "Jew Rosenheim" and "Stuss Singer." Four of those were executed for the murder of Rosenthal the gambling magnate, the same crime for which Lieutenant of police Becker went to the chair for in Sing Sing. Singer is accused by union men of using those gangsters to slug enemies of the "Majah" in New York when he goes in on one of his strikebreaking sprees. This is one of the gentlemen now employed by Berry and the Cuneo company to break the strike.

The Cunning Fox.

Another worthy is Sam Fox. Like his four-footed namesake, Sam has lots of cunning, tho he does not use it in the service of the working class. Fox is now night foreman in the Cuneo plant.

Fox is said to be a former stool-pigeon for a police chief in Minneapolis. He was charged with having misappropriated $14,000 in a Minneapolis strike. He never refuted the charge. Besides being a professional strikebreaker for "Majah" Berry, Fox has other accomplishments and other interests. He is interested in the spiritual welfare of the youth. He has diplomas from the methodist and presbyterian churches as a lecturer on religious topics. His favorite topic is: "Bringing Religion to the Boy." No doubt the kind of religion Sam Fox would teach the boy is the kind that would make a good loyal scab out of him.

Other stable boys of the Berry paddock are Billy McHugh, who expected to step into Berry's shoes when the "Majah" became president of the United States on the jackass or democratic ticket. That the "Majah" actually expected to land in the White House shows that he is a bigger jackass than the symbol of his party.

Another one of Berry's lackeys, Shurford Marks, explained that he did not want the job as the union "was too much like Mexico; too many revolutions."

Vice President Brophy is rewarded for delivering the necessary number of votes to put Berry over at a convention, by being given a little barony around Milwaukee where unionized pressmen are as scarce as hen's teeth. Brophy commutes between Racine and Milwaukee and has nothing in the world to worry about, except that the pressmen might succeed in getting rid of Berry.

With this rubbish cleared out of the way, I will start tomorrow with the "Majah," briefly relating his crimes against trade unionism, his collaboration with the boss, his plundering of the old age pension fund and the assessment alleged to be for the benefit of returned soldiers. His conspiracy to lift the charters of locals 3 and 4 and his attempt to play the feeders off against the other will make things interesting reading.

As Chicago and New York are the strongholds of the union and both sections are unanimously against Berry, the question may be asked: How does Berry hold his office? That and other questions will be answered in following articles, which will appear daily in the DAILY WORKER.

WORKERS PARTY SHOWS LABOR MUST FIGHT ITS OWN POLITICAL BATTLES

way as the workers marshal and organize their economic forces in the unions.

The condition of the masses of workers in the coal mining industry are untenable. Fight alone can improve them. A strike is impending. The government is preparing even now for such a strike. And it is preparing to enter this strike on the side of the mine operators against the miners. These conditions demand imperatively of the workers to organize and fight politically, thru a party of labor and for labor exclusively.

In this emergency the executive council of the A. F. of L. declares that organized labor must go back to its "tried" policies of punishing enemies and rewarding "friends." But the great tragedy of the political principlelessness of our American Federation of Labor is that it leads the workers to pay the reward before the "friend" proved himself true, and that the enemy is "punished" after he had inflicted the injury. Even the executive council of the A. F. of L. declares that all too frequently has labor learned that pledges in party platforms do not mean anything. Yes, all too frequently has labor learned that—and yet now it is told again by the executive council of the A. F. of L. to rely on these pledges and to elect "friends." Labor has relied on such promises in electing its "friend" Ammon of Colorado as governor. Ammon repaid for this reward by the massacres of the striking miners and their families in Ludlow. Labor has relied on its "friends" for gettting relief from the injunction evil. The Clayton act was hailed by the leaders of the A. F. of L. as a result of labor's policy of punishment and reward. But the Clayton act was found to be viciously against labor. Labor elected "friends" to get the Clayton act—but now it is just as ardently attempting to elect "friends" to free it from the bondage of this act.

The Workers (Communist) Party asks the executive council of the A. F. of L.: Why are not the capitalists bothered with these problems? Is it not because the capitalists have parties of their own? Are the republican and the democratic parties not their parties? Yes, these parties and their representatives do what capital tells them to do. Capital does not need to reward friends and punish enemies, because CAPITAL IS IN POLITICS ITSELF AND DOES ITS OWN POLITICAL WORK.

Labor will not succeed in solving its manifold problems until it follows that example, until it discards "friends" and "enemies" and goes into politics itself thru a party of its own, a labor party, composed of labor and representing nothing but the interest of labor.

The Workers (Communist) Party declares that in the face of this evident necessity, dictated by labor's interest, it is a betrayal of labor when the executive council of the A. F. of L. attempts to lead the working masses of the United States back into the folds of the old capitalist parties. Labor has tried this method. It has made it the helpless victim of unscrupulous capitalist politicians, who were invariably its "friends" when they needed labor's votes, and who were just as invariably its enemies when labor needed their help. From these experiences the workers must conclude that their only hope is in a party of their own, a labor party. To the organization of this party labor must pledge its support. Labor must fight its own battles. Nobody fights these battles for it.

Therefore organized labor must answer the action of the executive council of the A. F. of L. with the slogan:

"For a Labor Party!"

Let labor fight for its interests on the political field thru a party of its own, a labor party, just as it fights economically thru organizations of its own, the unions.

SEEK RELEASE OF KLUXERS BY FRIENDLY JUDGE

Alleged Killers Move Case to New Court

NOBLESVILLE, Ind., Aug. 12.—With the special session of the Hamilton circuit court adjourned until the regular October term, it was considered probable today that efforts would be made to have the state supreme court release D. C. Stephenson, Earl Klink and Earl Gentry from jail on bail.

They are charged jointly with the murder of Madge Oberholzer, 28, of Indianapolis, last April, following an alleged attack on her by Stephenson.

When Judge W. M. Sparks of Rushville was selected to preside over the trial following the successful move of the defense in disqualifying Judge Hines, the court made it clear that the trial could not be held before October.

Having already spent four months in jail, the defendants were understood to favor a renewal of efforts before the supreme court to obtain their release on bail.

NEW YORK, Aug. 12.—Further evidence that the courts here are at the service of the employers was given when Justice Churchill granted the International Tailoring Company an extension of their temporary injunction restraining their striking employes from picketing.

Churchill charged "misconduct" on the part of the strikers, and thruout the hearing showed his bias in favor of the garment company.

CUNEO BINDERY CLOSES, PICKETS HALT ALL WORK

The bindery workers at the Cuneo Printing Company, where the pressmen and feeders are on strike demanding a union agreement, were laid off yesterday because there was no work for them to do, and there was no production in the two plants, the mailers having already been laid off.

A committee from Printing Pressmen's Locals No. 3 and No. 4 (Franklin Union), representing the strikers, conferred with officials of the Cuneo company and representatives of George L. Berry, president of the International Union, the latter presenting the demands of the printing company, but no agreement was reached.

The strikers' committee demanded a union agreement such as governs other union shops, but Berry's representatives and the Cuneo company held out for a reduction of the press crews from three to four men. It was reported that Berry was represented by Vice Presidents Marks and William McHugh.

Berry Continues Scabbery.

Berry's Chicago tools, foremen at other printing companies, sent in a few scabs yesterday, without the knowledge of the employers. J. Hallstrom, one of Berry's fellow boosters for the "open shop," sent in scabs from the Manz Engraving Company, where he is foreman. Paddy O'Rourke, another Berry tool, foreman of the American Colortype Company, also aided the Cuneo company by sending in scabs.

However, the pressmen do not like to do this dirty work for Berry and the Cuneo company, and the honest ones quit when they learned there was a strike on.

Members of Locals Nos. 3 and 4 are continuing their picketing, and a number of police, plain clothes men and hired sluggers are guarding the plants for the company.

Amalgamation Is Nearer.

The committees appointed by each local union to effect amalgamation of the two unions have met and drawn up a tentative program. A meeting will be held soon for the purpose of ratifying this program.

The strike was called when the Cuneo company, with the approval of Strikebreaker Berry, tried to introduce the short crews. The company, which is the largest in the country, planned to install the open shop in its two plants at Arthington and Spaulding and 22nd and Grove streets. If they had succeeded, they planned to inaugurate an "open shop" drive in the other shops where a union agreement now prevails. Berry, as usual, sided with the open-shoppers and ordered the strikers to accept the non-union conditions, but they defied him and walked out.

Police in Frame-up Raid Against the Amalgamated Office

the raiding party and that he pointed out various persons active in the strike at the International plant to the police. Among those arrested were Business Agents De Nova and Defelece of Local Union No. 279, and Cooper of Local No. 39.

The squads drove up to the headquarters of the union with gongs sounding and piled out of the autos as if they were raiding a heavily armed booze joint. After they had made their entrance one man was assigned to watch over the girl, who attends the telephone switchboard and watched her take all incoming calls. Others of the squads went into all the other offices of the union and began searching the files and desks.

Union Officials Scoff at Charges.

Grady announced to newspaper men that he was conducting the raids on information that the Amalgamated was responsible for two so-called bombings in suburban tailor shops earlier in the day.

Officials of the union who were in the offices at the time of the raid scoffed at the charges that they were in any way connected with the bombings and characterized the raid as an effort to "frame-up" the union.

Scores of Workers at Office.

When the squads had taken possession of the union offices they refused to permit any one to either leave or come into the premises. With their wicked looking sawed-off shotguns they held everybody at bay.

There were scores of workers in the offices of the union, many of them looking for work at the employment office. They were held till the police were ready to let them go. They were all questioned. The questions were accompanied by threats and much profanity.

The raid was conducted under a warrant sworn out earlier in the day in the Maxwell street police court.

That Grady has a reputation for handling prisoners in a "hard boiled" fashion and does not scruple to use the toughest kind of "third degree" leads many persons to believe that a false confession might have been forced from the men.

Capitalist Press Opens Attack on Delegations of Workers Visiting Russia

By J. LOUIS ENGDAHL.

TODAY, the yellow press, silent as an Egyptian sphinx about the visits of the many labor delegations of other countries to Soviet Russia, breaks forth with its usual flow of venom. It could hold back its poison no longer.

The Chicago Tribune, with its Donald Day in the notorious center for the spreading of falsehoods about the Workers' Republics, Riga, Latvia, heads the procession. It is the Tribune that boasts it has no correspondent in Soviet Russia, it can get far better news, it claims, from the outside. Its attack on the German, French, British, Belgian, Swedish and Norwegian delegations, under the scurrilous heading, "Reds Vodkaize Visitors, Then Show off Nation; Use Hoodwinked Guests as Propagandists", is a typical product of The Tribune's struggle for "better news". It is the kind of attack on the delegations visiting Soviet Russia that the DAILY WORKER had already predicted and refuted in advance.

• • • •

The British report, "Russia Today", stands as a pillar of unassailable truth, in the midst of grovelling press hirelings the world over. It is unanswerable, and the American press has been strangely silent about it. Every attack that the Tribune makes is answered effectively in this report now being published serially in the DAILY WORKER.

Take, for instance, the flat statement made by the Tribune's Riga liar that "The Bolsheviks never think of building buildings". The British report has many illustrations showing the new types of workers' homes that are being erected in "garden cities" on the outskirts of the large cities, in place of the slums that existed under czarism, and that are to be found in every large city everywhere under capitalism. Soviet rule is solving the building problem, especially the housing of workers, whereas every large capitalist city admits that its housing conditions are continually getting worse.

The Tribune's Riga liar declares that, "Today the number of children going to schools is less than one-tenth the number that were going to school in czarist times", whereas the British delegation backs up with facts its declaration that, school-attendance is even now "A CONSIDERABLE IMPROVEMENT ON CZARIST DAYS", which, of course is not at all satisfactory, one of the big struggles now being to put an end to illiteracy in all classes by 1927.

The Tribune attacks the morality of Russia's children. It is shown that any condition that existed grew out of czarism and the world capitalist war, that plunged Russia into chaos, and the abnormal conditions that existed during the period of the civil wars and the wars of intervention. The British report shows that immorality among children has been arrested effectively thru education and the Young Pioneer Movement.

• • • •

The Tribune also complains about the number of telephones in Moscow. To be sure there are not as many telephones in use in Red Moscow as there are in Chicago. But neither are there bootlegging trusts, nor dope syndicates to make extensive use of telephones as it is done for instance in Chicago, New York, and other good blessed cities of the United States. It was not in the wildest dreams under czarism that the worker's home in the city, or the peasant's hut out on the land, should be equipped with this modern necessity. But that condition is rapidly changing also.

• • • •

All the lies of the capitalist press cannot keep the truth from becoming known about actual conditions under Soviet rule. The new barrage of falsehoods laid down by the kept organs of the "open shoppers", should only stimulate America's workers to circulate wider than ever the truth as it is found in "Russia Today", now being published in book form and serially by labor's own newspaper—the DAILY WORKER.

CLOTH STRIKERS TO GO ON HUGE PICNIC SUNDAY

Amalgamated Observes 8th Week of Walkout

Members of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers Union will celebrate the eighth week of their strike against the J. L. Taylor and International Tailoring companies with a picnic next Sunday. Chartered cars will take the pickets to the forest preserves, District No. 4, at Caldwell, and the entire day's entertainment will be free to the strikers and their families.

A break in favor of the strikers is predicted, as all of the company's foremen, who left immediately upon the calling of the strike, have suddenly returned to town. President Reiss of the International is also in Chicago.

Advertise for Scabs in Vain.

The International continued to advertise for strike breakers under the protection of the scab-herding United Garment Workers Union, affiliated with the American Federation of Labor, which from the start has tried to help the employers break the strike. In spite of this advertisement, no work is being turned out and there are only a few professional sluggers inside the shop.

Word comes from Rock Island that the International, which has taken a short lease on the bankrupt Daniel Boone Woolen Mills Company, has been unable to start production. The workers in Rock Island now know of the strike, and will not scab on the Chicago employes.

Take Chartered Cars.

The strikers are to assemble early Sunday morning at Hod Carriers' hall, 814 West Harrison street, where the daily strike meetings are being held, and will then take the chartered Milwaukee avenue cars to the end of the line.

Tickets are to be distributed entitling the strikers and their relatives to refreshments, transportation, lunch and entertainment for the day, free of charge. The strikers will be brot back to Hod Carriers' hall in the evening.

Farringtonites Force Fight at Zeigler, Ill., Union Meeting

cealed weapons and inciting a riot, is proof that the klan-Farrington combination is responsible for the bloodshed.

Fox and Cobb had previously had the whole membership up in arms against them by stealing the election in their sub-district.

Did Not Call Strike—Corbishly.

Corbishly and other local union officers deny all press reports that they had called the miners out on a "wild cat" strike, declaring that the men came out on their own accord. The fact that the whole policy of Farrington, Fox, Cobb and the klan had been one of disruption of the union and betrayal of the company, is charged as the basic cause of the bloodshed.

GERMAN WORKERS VISIT MOSCOW SHOPS AND UNIONS; WILL WORK FOR ADMISSION OF RUSS UNIONS

(By International Press Correspondence)

MOSCOW, July 21—(By Mail.)—Today the German workers' delegation visited in groups 14 Moscow shops and institutions, and examined the conditions of work in them. They were present at the session of the Moscow trade union council where they received exact information upon the conditions of wages and of the trade union work.

The delegation divided itself according to occupation and then visited the various corresponding trade union headquarters and the shops.

At the central committee of the Metal Workers' Union, where 22 German delegates went, the delegate Beck declared that in place of the Anglo-Russian unity committee, an Anglo-Russo-German unity committee should be formed.

At the central committie of the municipal workers' union, the German delegate Graal requested to see the copies of the correspondence of the union with the international of municipal workers dealing with the entry of the Russian union into the international. Graal declared that he wished to demand the acceptance of the Russian union into the international at the coming international conference.

Amongst other shops and factories, the perfume factory "Svoboda," the aeroplane factory "Dux," the chocolate factory "Krasnyi Octiabre," the tramway works, a felt factory, etc., were visited. The delegates who were received in enthusiastic mass meetings of the workers and the technical staffs, investigated in each place in long discussions with the workers their mode of life, etc.

On their side the Russian workers asked about the conditions of the German workers. The delegates visited the colony of the workers which is being built in connection with the factory "Bogatyr," hospitals, schools and children's homes. The delegation will remain in Moscow till July 25.

There Is Work to Be Done.

To the DAILY WORKER: Until Communism is ushered in and becomes dominant all over the world, nothing can be expected in the form of betterment.

Let us all unite in organization work, subscriptions to Communist publications, books, pamphlets, magazines and get workers to read O'Flaherty and Engdahl's editorials, and turn on the electric light in their worry driven domes.

This change cannot come overnight, but steady educational and organizational work will bring us an agreeable surprise in the not distant future. Notice the example that is being set by the despised "Chinese." The U. S. S. R. and the Communist International is accomplishing the miracle that is worth while.

If I can be of any service in defense of comrades, or any kind of work that will get results, let me know.—Frank Anderson, Chicago.

MOLDERS' UNION HAS BIG LOSS IN MEMBERSHIP

Refused Amalgamation a Few Years Ago

By A. W. HARVITT.

During the war period the Iron Molders and Coremakers' Union had a membership of 200,000 and was considered one of the strongest unions in the country. In 1920 they commenced to lose their membership. They lost many during and after the strike in Detroit, and have been going steadily downhill till at present time they have only about 25,000 members left thruout the United States and Canada.

Lack of Leadership.

The reason this condition prevails is because of the lack of militant leadership, and lack of confidence in the leaders they now have.

The largest shops in Canada and the U. S. are cmopletely demoralized by the open shop.

There are still some militants in this union, so that if they would start to organize their forces, they could save the situation and bring the union back. They would have to force out the fakers who have been the cause of their ruin, and do the same as the rank and file of other unions who have taken a militant stand.

Years ago the I. A. of M. approached the leadership for amalgamation. At that time these leaders told these brothers to go and get a reputation before they could talk to them.

Now it would appear that the Molders need a reputation. There are still some militants in the Molders and Coremakers that are hoping for the time when they can put their shoulder to the wheel and show some of the fighting spirit that a real union man should have.

SWEDISH WORKERS IN RUSSIA GIVE PLEDGE OF UNION UNITY

MOSCOW, July 21.—(By Mail.)—Today the Swedish workers' delegation arrived in Moscow and was greeted at the station with the same enthusiasm by thousands of Moscow workers as the German delegation had received.

Upon their departure from Leningrad, the Swedish delegation addressed a unanimously adopted letter of greetings to the Leningrad working class, in which amongst other things was said that the Swedish delegation was convinced that the information which the Swedish and the international working class had received upon the real nature of the situation in Soviet Russia would lead to a strengthening of the united front.

The delegation on its side promised to do everything possible to spread the idea of international working class unity and the truth about the Soviet Union amongst the widest masses of the Swedish working class.

TEN WORKMEN HURT, 40 IN PRISON AS RESULT OF STRIKE IN MEXICO

MEXICO CITY, Aug. 12. — Ten workmen were in the hospital today and forty were in prisón as the result of fighting between strikers and non-union workmen in a glass factory here.

BELGIAN DEBT AGAIN SUBJECT OF COMMISSION

First Parley Made No Headway, U. S. Balky

(Special to The Daily Worker)

WASHINGTON, Aug. 12.—Their first proposition rejected by the American debt commissioners, the Belgian envoys met again with the Americans at the treasury today to resume discussion of Belgium's capacity to pay the $481,000,000 borrowed from 1917 to 1919.

Neither the Americans nor the Belgian commissioners would reveal the details of Belgium's initial proposal, but it is understood that it involved a differentiation between war and postwar debts.

The Belgians said that money advanced while hostilities were in progress went for "a common cause" of defeating Germany, and as such should be considered in the light of munitions and other war material.

Greek Government Sells Public Lands Uses Money for War

LONDON, Aug. 12.—The Greek government has authorized the sale of public lands as a means of raising funds to build a fleet of airplanes, according to an Exchange Telegraph dispatch from Athens.

KRIM DEMANDS INDEPENDENCE FOR RIFFIANS

Refuses Fake "Peace," Syrians Face British

PARIS, Aug. 12.—Abd-el-Krim has replied to the "peace terms" of the Spanish and French governments that he will not discuss an armistice until the independence of the Riff republic is acknowledged.

An official French statement stated the war office has received a telegram to this effect from Primo de Rivera, Spanish dictator. Krim's emissary conweyed this information to Rivera.

The "peace" terms had provided that the Riff country should be under a Spanish protectorate.

British Attack Syrians.

BEIRUT, Syria, Aug. 12.—The British authorities at Palestine have dispatched a machine gun contingent to the northern border of Transjordania which is now attacking the Syrians who are in revolt. The British are attempting to drive the Druse, who are fighting French imperialism for independence of Syria, back into the French mandated territory.

A Second Morocco.

British airplanes are patrolling the border between the French and British mandated areas.

The French are exceedingly weak, as most of their troops were withdrawn to fight the Moroccans. The British are playing a part similar in some respects to that played by the Spanish in Morocco. They are attempting to insure their own colonial possessions by attacking the revolting Syrians, but also eye the French bankers jealously.

BREAD TRUST GETS MILLIONS IN PROFITS WHILE WHEAT GROWERS AND BAKERY WORKERS GET NOTHING

By LELAND OLDS

(Federated Press Staff Correspondent)

The growers of the wheat and the actual bakers of the loaves of bread which issue from factories in motor truck fleets get a very small part of the price, a U. S. department of labor study of distribution of money spent by the consumers shows. The farmer's receipts from an ordinary pound loaf amount to about 1½c while bakery labor gets less than 1¾c.

Combined their return is just about 3¼c or less than 1-3 of the 10c, paid by the consumer. The combined margin of the bakery trust and the retailer amounts to nearly 36 per cent.

Huge Fortunes To Trust.

The following table derived from government figures shows the approximate division of the consumer's money in the case of a pound loaf sold in Chicago:

Cost of bread	Cents	Per cent
To farmers for wheat	1.53	15.73
To grain elevator	.07	.75
To railroads	.31	3.14
To milling company	.62	6.45
For other materials	2.00	20.62
To bakery labor	1.71	17.63
Baking company's slice	2.26	23.31
Retailer's slice	1.20	12.37
Total	9.70	100.00

Huge fortunes comparable to those connected with the steel and railroad combinations have been built on profits realized from persuading people to give up home baking. Practically all of the big modern baking plants have been built out of profits rather than thru investment by the millionaire owners.

This is reflected in the fact that an original investment of $37 in General Baking Co. stock in 1920 is today worth $960. Ward Baking Co. common stock, originally given away as a bonus to preferred stockholders, is now worth $325 for each original share.

Millions in Profits.

One group of financiers associated with Lawson, Lyon & Co. is estimated by the Wall Street Journal to have made at least $20,000,000 out of stocks now included in Continental Baking Corp., the super-trust of the bread industry.

How profits put into automatic machinery have eliminated labor appears in the substitution of traveling ovens with an output of 7,000 loaves an hour for the old stationary ovens which produce 360 loaves an hour. In some modern plants, says the Wall Street Journal, a whole floor of ovens turning out thousands of loaves hourly, wrapped and packed in boxes, requires the services of only half a dozen men who oil the machines.

Army Depot Burns.

NORFOLK, Va., Aug. 12.—After an all ngiht battle with flames at the Pig Point ordnance depot, in which a hundred soldiers, firemen from Portsmouth, and the Norfolk fire boat Vulcan participated, the fire was under control and danger of the main ammunition depot, containing hundreds of tons of explosives, blowing up had passed. The depot is half a mile from the scene of the fire.

CHINESE BOYCOTT RILES BRITISH MINISTER; CHINESE REPRINT AN EDITORIAL FROM DAILY WORKER

SHANGHAI, China, Aug. 10.—The boycott against the British and Japanese is having telling effect upon the trade of these two nations, and—as usual—Britain is raising the Christian god as a barricade to protect business. The British legation in Peking is sending out loud wails to the capitalist press agencies that the "lowly and righteous missionaries" are being persecuted.

This is true only in so far as the missionaries of England are taking active sides with the imperialist butchers of the Chinese strikers. Canadian sky pilots of the Episcopalian church, including Bishop White, had to leave Kaifeng, as they could get no food or service of any kind from Chinese, who refused to deal with them, work for them or allow them to have any sort of supplies controlled by Chinese.

No Wonder He Is Sore.

In Peking, the British minister has reason for indignation by reason of his large retinue of servants, 179 in all, striking and setting up a picket line at the British legation, permitting his British majesty's person and family to do the drudgery of the legation and its household, or live in dirt. The British minister declares that this is irrefutable proof that the Soviet government is behind the boycott.

The Students' Union has issued a pamphlet in English, which gives in convincing detail proof of the fact, hiterto hidden by American imperialistic deception, that America is in conspiracy with England and Japan to crush the national liberation movement under the pretense of "opposing Bolshevism."

Exposes American Lies.

The pamphlet traces the history of the Anglo-Japanese alliance and shows how Japan used the agreement to cloak aggressions on the continent of Asia, mentioning the twenty-one demands of 1915 and the steal of Shantung province and vast interests in Manchuria. It says the American interests were inconsequential when the agremeent was first signed, but now the American interests are great, necessitating a combination with Japan and Great Britain for mutual protection.

Charge Britain Guides U. S.

The pamphlet asserts that the American foreign policy is dominated from Downing street on all things pertaining to eastern affairs. It says that capitalism is frightened by the Chinese and Soviet rapprochment and that the American money bosses are now enslaving China under the pretense of eliminating Bolshevism and Communism.

It adds that America, while playing the role of benefactor, upholding democracy and ostentatiously proclaiming its friendship for China, is working hand in glove with the Japanese and British imperialists.

Daily Worker Editorial Used in China.

This pamphlet is the second large publication in English for wide distribution, the first being a leaflet quoting the DAILY WORKER editorial of June 26, and using its title—"Get Out of China."

The leaflet pointed out that the Communists in America, as in other countries, were the only depnedable friends of the Chinese naitonal liberation movement and quoted the DAILY WORKER'S editorial which, in part, said:

What the Daily Worker Said.

"The American working class must do two things at the same time: They must demand the publication of the results of the machinations of Secretary of State Kellogg while he was ambassador to Britain, and they must also demand and enforce the withdrawal of all American forces from Chinese waters and Chinese soil.

"These demands must be made to stop the murder of Chinese workers. They must be made also because four nations, even in the face of the need for a united front against the advance of the revolution in the colonial and semi-colonial countries, cannot operate in a field so rich as China, without a world war arising out of imperialist rivalries."

SYRIANS WIN ANOTHER BATTLE WITH FRENCH, WIPE OUT 166 SOLDIERS

PARIS, Aug 12.—The rebel Druses tribe in Syria killed 166 soldiers of a French column in a surprise attack, Premier Painleve stated in his attempted explanation of the French reverses. Only sixty Frenchmen escaped.

BRIAND TO SEE CHAMBERLAIN ON FALLING EMPIRE

Syrian and Riff Wars Worry French Bankers

LONDON, Aug. 10.—With the international situation clouded with several threats of trouble, Foreign Minister Aristide Briand of France arrives in London tonight for conferences tomorrow and Wednesday with Austen Chamberlain, British secretary for foreign affairs.

Their talks supposedly will deal only with the French reply to the latest German note on the security pact, but it was understood today that Briand and Chamberlain would exchange informal views on other of the threatening situations confronting their countries and other nations of Europe.

These may include the French and Spanish campaign against the Riffs in Morocco, the revolt in Syria, Britain's possible friction with Turkey over the Mosul mandate, strained relations between Germany and Poland over the Danzig dispute, failure of French and German commercial negotiations, and relations with the Soviet Union.

ANTHRACITE STRIKE HAS STALE MATE

Operators Playing to Force Arbitration

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Aug. 12.—Pending the expected Lewis reply to the "conciliatory" letter of Samuel D. Warrinér of the anthracite operators, the hard coal strike situation is in the doldrums with both sides wanting the other side to make the next move.

The operators, thru Warriner's letter, are pressing for no cessation of work and offering arbitration as a substitute for direct settlement. The miners have had their fill of arbitration, and it is hardly expected that even John L. Lewis will dare to concede an agreement to arbitrate differences in his letter to be sent Warriner—probably today.

May Reopen Conference

If the letter of Lewis is humble enuf, however, the operators are likely to accept a proposal to resume the disrupted conference, and rely on stalling along until the strike is upon them, then again trying to force arbitration—while selling out the surplus stock of coal on hand at top prices.

The operators have taken the position of flat opposition to the modest 10 per cent wage raise asked. But they have somehow a touching faith in arbitration.

Daily Insistence of No "Interference."

Coolidge is still keeping his "hands off" in such a way that he has them "on." Which is to say that while declaring every day that he has no intention of "interferring," his opposition to a strike, "reminders" that oil and gas and coke facilities make anthracite out of date and a postscript on all these arguments of the operators, to the effect that if necessary he will "interfere" after all.

Government intervention is not expected before a strike is called. And Governor Pinchot, a fake liberal of Pennsylvania, is still silent as to what he will do if a strike of 158,000 miners breaks loose in his domain.

Will Lewis Surrender Again?

Two years ago he called both sides to Harrisburg and hornswaggled the miners into accepting his arbitration award of a 10 per cent raise. Pinchot has thot ever since that the miners should have been grateful for his having given them this insufficient dole, and he seems miffed now, because the coal miners did not vote for his favorite bone dry bill.

The operators are confident that Coolidge will force the miners into arbitration when the strike is once begun, and the employers are sitting pretty waiting for Lewis again to say—"We cannot fight against the government."

Socialists Are Back of the German Fascist Plots Against Soviet Union

monarchist government of Hindenburg is trying to enter the allied anti-Soviet block and line up the country against the Soviet Union.

The hearing of the witnesses for the prosecution, Drotschmann, Kandor, Schadrina and Kuprianov took place. Drotschmann reported how the accused came to the Comintern with the greatest insolence, presented themselves as Communists, and requested support. Kindermann alone had a party book The falsifications in the book and the unproletarian behavior of the accused attracted immediate attention. The accused were given quarters in the Emigrant Home where they immediately attempted to sound Communists living there. Wolscht collected signatures of fugitive Communists allegedly for his autograph album. (Laughter.)

The witness Kandor reported how the accused had made the most obvious enquiries about the homes of leading comrades such as Zinoviev, Stalin, Trotsky and Bucharin. The accused laid particular stress upon the possibility of entry into the Kremlin The prosecutor produced two cards for a lecture by Bucharin found amongst the things of Wolscht upon his arrest. Wolscht denied this.

The witness Schadrina, occupied in the Central Bureau of the Russian students, reported upon the arrival of the accused in Moscow. The witness (a woman) and the next witness Kuprianov, had been very friendly to the accused under the belief that they were German communists. Kuprianov recounted the demands of the accused to the Narcompross (Commissariat of Education).

They had demanded free tickets for the railway and the tramway and also for the theatres, free winter clothing and board and lodging, and apart from all that, money. Kuprianov declared: "In the whole course of my experience, I have never seen such an attitude from communists and I therefore became immediately suspicious" This suspicion had increased as the accused demanded with insistence to speak to Lunacharsky personally. The prosecutor asked Kinderman whether as one who had represented himself to be a communist, he was not ashamed to have attempted to exploit the Narompross in such a manner Kindermann declared that he had not done it.

Act Against Rose and Fink

The prosecutor declared that the court would dispense with the evidence of the witness Legationsrat Hilger as, first of all, sufficient evidence had been obtained to clear up the various questions before the court, and secondly, the conditions put by Hilger for his examination were such that the court could not accept them.

Wolscht used the opportunity to make a statement in a pathetic tone upon his nationalist feelings. This was obviously uncomfortable for the representative of the German Embassy.

The prosecutor declared with regard to the witnesses Rose and Fink, that the proceedings had clearly proved that the two had taken part in the preparations for the Kinderman expedition. As neither of the two witnesses are ex-territorial, there was no reason not to commence a process against them. As however, the two witnesses had come to Russia at the wish of the German Foreign Office, the prosecutor requested that: 1. Rose and Fink be freed from all their duties as witnesses and all limitations upon their intercourse with Hilger be abolished; 2. that the court should address itself to the Soviet Government for the purpose of discovering if any hindrance exists to proceedings against the two, Rose and Fink. The court declared that it would take a decision upon the proposals of the prosecutor.

Socialist Party Responsible

The hearing of the expert invited by the court, Comrade Heinz Neumann, then took place. Neumann is the representative of the Communist Party of Germany in the Executive of the Commintern. In a report of one hour he analyzed the essence of German Fascism. The Social Democratic Party of Germany is responsible for the paternity of the Organization Consul. The S. D. P. formed in 1918 through Noske the first free corps. The S. D. P. bears the historical responsibility for the possibility of such attempts. All the factors in the German counter-revolution are present in the process: Berlin police presidium, students scab organizations, Baltikumer (whites from the Baltic states), Organization Consul.

The expert described in detail the counter-revolution: the role of the German students in the Berlin University and its students in 1919. The social democracy and the first stage of the development of the fascist associations is political. Proofs for this are: the Free Corps of Noske, the Wiking Organization, the Baltikumer, the appeal of Haenisch to the students for the struggle against Bolshevism.

Socialists In Anti-Soviet Front

The expert produces from the Statutes of the Organization Consul the proof that the methods of the Kinderman Expedition, both in technique and political aims, are the methods of the Organization Consul. The expert analyzed the ideology of the declassed strata from which the Organization Consul recruits its members. It is no accident that the attempts were undertaken just at this time. The German counter-revolution is attempting its entry into the anti-Bolshevist united front. Comrade Neuman read quotations from the latest book of Kautsky upon the armed insurrection against the Soviet Union, and upon the cooperation with the reactionaries against Bolshevism.

He quoted the revelations of Rosa Luxemburg made at the initial congress of the Spartakus Bund upon the activity of Winnig and Noske for the iron division of the Baltikumer, and upon the first social democratic intervention against Soviet Russia.

The court decided upon the translation of the report of Neumann into Russian and the provision of the court, the prosecutor and the accused with copies of it.

Before the close of the examination the prosecutor read without comment three documents which are characteristic of Kindermann:

1. The will of Kindermann made in Durlach in September, 1924 before his departure for Russia, in which he leaves all his scientific property as the complete property of his family and requests that in case nothing shall be heard from him within six months, enquiries are to be made at the Russian Embassy upon the place of his grave;

2. A declaration of Kindermann upon his attitude to the Soviet Union in which he praises himself as almost a Messiah of the Russian and German understanding and in which, despite the attempts to give it a communist color, the nationalist characteristics and forms of expression are very clear;

3. A letter of Kindermann from prison to the students home in Berlin, Friedrich Strasse, in which he declares that his nationalist German spirit gives him strength. Hereupon the prosecutor declared that upon the basis of the statement made during the examination, Kinderman had always concealed the fact that he was a Jew, both in Germany and in Russia.

Kindermann replied that he had not concealed this fact, but that on many occasions he had not mentioned it (laughter). This was to preserve good relations between him and his nationalist friends such as the student Heinicke and also towards his traveling companion, Von Ditmar. The expert Heinz Neumann asked the accused Kindermann if it would have been possible for him to have obtained recommendations from the fanatical anti-semite Professor Eduard Meyer if the latter had known that he, Kindermann' was a Jew, and that in the same case he would have been able to maintain connections with Kai Donner, the father of Finnish fascism? The same applied to the Hakenkreuzler students home and to the ex-Prime Minister Michaelis.

Ditmar then declared that he had never been an anti-semite and that further Kindermann had always denied the fact that he was a Jew, otherwise he would not have been able to mix with such people as the Bishop of Bergen or Frau Bauer. The embarrassed Kindermann declared that all the persons mentioned with whom he was in contact only in scientific or economic matters, had not party or religious prejudices, they, however, actually did not know, with the exception of Frau Bauer, that he was a Jew

RELEASE OF MRS. WIEDEMAN AND 2 CHILDREN, JAILED AT BORDER BY U. S., SECURED BY LABOR DEFENSE

Mrs. Matilda Wiedeman, a radical of Lettish birth, and her two children arrived in Chicago after being released on $1,000.00 bail from the county jail at Warren, Minn. They were arrested on a charge of illegal entry while coming from Canada to visit relatives here. The mother and the children fell sick as the result of their confinement. John H. Hieno a Duluth attorney representing the International Labor Defense effected their release on bail.

Mrs. Wiedeman, who came to the United States in 1907 and lived here for nine years before moving to Canada where she owns a home, told her story to International Labor Defense. She said her daughter Selma was born in Philadelphia and is eleven years of age.

When the arrest was made at Pembina, No. Dakota, Mrs. Wiedman was informed that only she and her boy, Waldemar, were under arrest. Waldemar was born in Canada. But Selma was born here and therefore could not be proceeded against for coming into the country of her birth. Selma was free to do as she pleased. The little family was first confined in a jail at Pembina. Selma had to be with her mother. Later they were removed to the jail in Warren and Mrs. Wiedeman had to pay Selma's train fare. While they were confined in Warren she was forced to be with her mother. The authorities demand seventy-five cents a day for Selma's keep.

Paying for Jobs With More Than They Drew

By MIRIAM ALLEN DE FORD.

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 12.—The California State Labor Commission is opening a campaign against labor defrauders who offer jobs on payment of cash bonds from workers, and then default on the so-called jobs. One man advertised for workers in a gravel plant, requiring a $100 cash bond. He had a scoop on a cable stretched across a river, and after securing a number of men, with $100 each, he disappeared and left the workers with the scoop as their sole reward. Another man has been appointing "office managers" for a non-existent timber products company, requiring bonds from $500 to $5,000 each, and then moving on. Both of these men are now under arrest, and other cases are being investigated.

"GAS MASKS, HERE COME MINE GUARDS!" NOW STRIKERS' CRY

FARMINGTON, W. Va., August 12.—Struck by tear gas bombs thrown into a crowd of union men and their wives who were doing picketing at No. 9 mine of the Jamison Coal & Coke Company here, Mrs. Julie Scrinto is lying ill under doctor's care.

There were 35 pickets who were reported as gassed by the tear gas bombs, thrown by armed mine guards. The local doctor atteding Mrs. Scrinto, who is dependent upon the company for good will which means anything in West Virginia, has tried to deny that she is ill from the tear gas. "Not necessarily," was his observation.

Storms Strike California.

BRAWLEY, Calif., Aug. 12.—Three counties of southern California were checking their losses today following lightning and hail storms of terrific velocity which culminated in a tornado that virtually leveled the little settlement of Rockwood, five miles from here, where five persons were injured by flying timbers.

Warren, O., Organizes Negro Congress Branch

WARREN, Aug. 12.—At the Hippodrome Hall in Warren a most successful meeting was held for the purpose of setting forth the program and aims of the American Negro Labor Congress. The interest shown in this meeting the colored population proved that the Negro is not apathetic to his position in society.

Comrade Wallace T. Metcalf of Youngstown, Ohio, acted as chairman. Comrade William White of Gjrard, Ohio, spoke concerning the industrial and social position of the Negro in American life. Comrade Roy Mahoney, E. Liverpool, Ohio, spoke on the A. N. L. C. and outlined its program and platform.

Over 100 Negroes were present in the audience. A branch of the congress was organized and a committee of action formed. More than fifty gave their signatures and pledges to uphold the National Organization.

SYNOPSIS.—The British trade union leaders' report on Soviet Russia, which is running serially in the DAILY WORKER, Saturday took up the subject of foreign trade in the Soviet Union. Transportation, industry and agriculture have already been described in the official report. The union leaders concluded that foreign trade and agriculture is steadily improving, and told how the finances of the Union have been placed on a stable basis. The New Economic Policy in relation to agriculture was explained. The industries are increasing production, the report stated. Recent instalments of the report dealt in detail with the relation of the Union with foreign countries. The regulation of trade, financing, foreign bank credits, statistics of foreign trade, status of foreigners, were some of the subjects dealt with. The instalment concludes that foreign trade is workable, and that harm is being done Britain by the absence of full diplomatic relations.

(d) The "Nepman"

Under the New Economic Policy the private trader or Nepman, as he is called, has come into existence. He also comes under the heading of the man who receives no benefits, for in the eyes of the Soviet State he is not classed as a worker. So long as he is making money and can pay the top price he is able to receive ordinary comforts. He can join a private club, if such exists, and he is perfectly free to do what he likes with his money during his lifetime. His position is, however, very precarious. It is difficult to see how he can form the nucleus of any durable class in the new system. Taxation and the cost of living are too heavy to allow of his savings becoming any provision for the perpetuation of his family or firm.

At first he became a serious competitor to the Government and Co-operative stores. He studied the psychology of his customers and diplayed his wares in a manner not considered necessary in the State-controlled stores. In fact, he served his customer better and thus encouraged him to spend his money. Now, however, the co-operatives are changing their methods. The art of salesmanship and advertisement are being carefully studied. The customer no longer finds it necessary to make up his mind on the doorstep of a co-operative what he actually intends to buy in order that he may have it dug out of a drawer or case and take it away. He may now enter with the indefinite hope that he will be persuaded to buy something.

In this manner the Nepman has served his purpose, but it is doubtful whether he has consolidated his position, since the co-operatives are now beginning to compete among themselves.

Tsarist and Sovietist Society

These economic factors have naturally wrought great changes in the social structure and method of living. It must, however, be borne in mind that the social side of Russian life before the Revolution was based on somewhat different standards to our own. The Russian aristocracy and the large landowners were a nation apart. They were a comparatively small class, mostly educated abroad and brought up on European standards. They now no longer exist as a community in Russia. Roughly speaking, the rest of the nation was divided into three classes. Firstly, the middle or bourgeois class, which consisted of merchants, Government officials, officers in line regiments, managers, clerks, and professional men; secondly, the industrial workers, mostly drawn from the peasant class and, thirdly, the peasants themselves. The second of these, the workers, is the basis of Soviet society the other two are more or less built into it.

Within these three distinct classes there was very little subdivision. The middle class mixed freely among itself and lived well according to European standards. It thought more, however, of club and restaurant life than of what is known as British home comforts. The feature of the home was the reception rooms for the entertainment of guests. Bedrooms, private rooms, and bath-rooms were often badly equipped. The servants invariably slept in the kitchen. The hospitality of this class was unbounded, and no return was ever expected from those who could not afford it.

The position of the working class generally was far below that found in any other European country. Much, however, depended upon the firm or undertaking. In some of the large electrical works and heavy industries the workers had already reached a comparatively high level of comfort in 1914.

The standard of living of the peasants was probably the lowest of any class in Europe. Their cleanliness and morality were certainly below the standard of a Hindu coolie.

From this it will readily be gathered that many of the social developments appearing in Russia today are the effect of natural evolution under a revolutionary system which is prepared to ignore any tradition which interferes with the public good.

The social benefits in education, art, sport, and recreation which the nation as a whole is enjoying under the new system are self-evident. In order to obtain these it is no longer a question of money or position; it is now merely a matter of choice and inclination.

Position of Women

The greatest change, however, in the social structure has been brought about by the new status of woman. Relatively speaking Russian women always were in many respects more independent than the women of other countries. That is probably why they have made so good a showing both in their own and other countries during the Revolution and among those who emigrated or were exiled.

In Soviet Russia they have now been made by law entirely independent of man. A summary of the Family Law annexed to the preceding chapter shows that the leading part taken by Russian women has now been given legal recognition. What is right for a man is right for a woman and vice-versa. Her responsibilities are equal with his, so also is her freedom. Marriage is a contract by which both parties are equally bound or free by mutual consent at all times. An illicit or unregistered marriage is rendered unnecessary by the facilities given to divorce, which can be obtained at once by mutual consent. The father is, however, responsible for the children until they are 17 years old to the amount of one-third of his income. A man who has had children by three separate women would thereby be in a somewhat precarious position.

This code, it is claimed, is based on common sense and human nature. An unhappy marriage, it is stated, creates the very worst atmosphere for the upbringing of children and, it is contrary to the dictates of nature for a man and woman to live together as husband and wife, when all affection has ceased on either side; such unions are considered immoral, and should be dissolved at once.

Family Life

This new outlook on the social and family side of a nation's life bound up as it is with the whole economic system is undoubtedly tending to destroy what is known in this country as family life. There will be small possibility of laying the foundations of a great and famous family. The units will scatter and often forget from whence they came. But this new conception does not necessarily mean any increase in immorality, profligacy, and license. The responsibilities placed on the man by law are an adequate safeguard against such results. As a consequence, there is probably less immorality in the sense of irregular sexual relationships than formerly. Whether the new code is likely to prove a national evil or not must be left to individual judgment and to future results.

Sexual Immorality

From the British point of view Russia was never a particularly moral country. The new regulations and laws are based on the theory that sexual morals are greatly matters of personal conduct which must be left to private conscience and can only be dealt with by education and environment, not by legislation. Legislation is therefore, in the first place confined to protecting the innocent from the wrongs and evils which arise from sexual immorality Secondly, it is concerned with suppressing the commercial exploitation of immorality. Thus prostitution has for the first time in Russian history been made illegal. But the measures taken to stamp it out are mostly levelled against the man. Any payment to a woman for this purpose by a man with whom she is not regularly living is a criminal offense on the part of the man.

The former Government-controlled licensed houses, where girls were exposed for hire at a recognized fee, have been closed. In Tsarist days these houses were a recognized Government institution; the opening ceremony was undertaken by a police officer and the premises blessed by Russian Orthodox priests. Private and illegal establishments can probably be still found in the large towns, and the Delegation saw many women serving terms of imprisonment for keeping such immoral houses. Such procuring for profit is most severely dealt with by the law.

Immorality among Children

Much has been written on this topic in certain sections of the Press. It undoubtedly exists as it existed before the Revolution. In conversation with school teachers the Delegation learned that the worst point was reached during the period of the Civil War, when life was abnormal in every respect, and the atmosphere of excitement and passion was at its height. At that time it was impossible to cope with it owing to lack of teachers and supervision. Education, and especially the Young Pioneer (Boy Scout and Girl Guide) movement have done much to arrest it.

Religion

The Delegation had opportunities of attending religious services in the churches and mosques of the towns they visited and of holding conversations with priests of various shades of opinion.

The Russian Orthodox Church, which was formerly a strong arm of the Tsarist Government, has, as a result of the Revolution, been disestablished and disendowed. That is to say, all its property has been nationalized. The congregations now pay rent to the State for their buildings, and the clergy are supported entirely by voluntary contributions. Churches with an interesting history and architectural splendor are considered national monuments and are kept up by the State. St. Isaac's in Leningrad and St. Vasili at Moscow are now undergoing extensive repairs.

There would appear to be little alteration in the Church Service. There is no change in the beautiful unaccompanied singing of the Gregorian chants by magnificent choirs, and in the gorgeous vestments of the priests. The attendance is certainly not so large as formerly; perhaps because it is becoming doubtful whether going to church is still the most profitable occupation for a worker's Sunday.

The Holy Shrines at all the main street corners of the large cities are still open and well patronized. Priests in the dress of their calling are still seen about the streets. Most of them, however, appear to have had their hair cut, and hair, long to the top of the shoulder, is seldom seen.

There appears to have been no actual persecution of the clergy as such, but those who have thought fit to take political action against the State have met with exactly the same treatment as any other political agitator who infringes the State regulations. The hoarding and hiding of former church treasures and funds is dealt with according to the penal code, which protects the State against persons who infringe the laws of nationalization.

A very strong propaganda in the Press, the schools, colleges, and Trade Union clubs is, however, carried on against religion generally, and especially as practiced by the old Orthodox Church. The kissing of crosses and ikons is prohibited by the Ministry of Health as being accountable for the spreading of infectious diseases, especially consumption and syphilis. The practice, however, still survives; though long queues of infected children waiting to receive the sacrament from the same chalice are no longer seen. The remains of certain saints whose bodies were supposed to be preserved intact, and whose forehead was exposed through an aperture in the lid of the coffin to be kissed by thousands of pilgrims, have been exposed to public view as dust and bones, while the supposed forehead was shown to be but a puckered piece of leather fastened to the coffin lid.

At one time propaganda against religion took the extremely offensive form of mock ceremonies outside the churches, accompanied by ribaldry and grotesque effigies of priests and church images. This had no official authorization, and has been put a stop to.

The Lenin Cult

The Russians are essentially an emotional people, and easily appealed to collectively. Their leaders are, and always have been, great masters in crowd psychology. This method of handling the people was most efficiently practiced by the old Tsarist priesthood. Many critics of the effects of crowd psychology, as practiced by the Soviet leaders, state that Karl Marx and Lenin have now taken the place of God and the Tsar. In its broadest sense this is probably true among a certain section of the people. The worship of the memory of Lenin is certainly a cult. Hats are always removed by visitors to the "Lenin Corners"—little rooms set apart in the factories and clubs and dedicated to the memory of Lenin. The body of Lenin himself is embalmed, and lies fully dressed under a glass case in the Mausoleum against the Kremlin wall in Moscow. A red flag with a red light thrown upon it flies night and day over the building. Two sentries, rigidly motionless, with fixed bayonets, guard the body day and night, while sentries patrol the building outside. At specified times the Mausoleum is open to the public. A flight of steps, carpeted in red, have to be descended to reach the chamber, whose walls are draped in red and black. Not a sound is heard, or a word spoken as the batches of a hundred people at a time file around the embalmed body of the late leader of the Revolution. It is stated that during the great Revolution festival at Moscow peasants who had arrived from the country had to be told not to cross themselves as they passed his picture.

The Living Church

As a natural result of this deep-rooted desire of the Russian for religious observance of a more orthodox kind the Living Church has lately come into being. It is quite possible that this may ultimately take the place of the old Orthodox Church, and that when the memory of Lenin has taken its place in history the great Russian revolutionary reformer will himself be canonized.

The Living Church claims that Russian Communism is the practical expression of Christian Communism, and the correct interpretation of the New Testament. It justifies the attitude of the Soviet Government in denouncing the old orthdox faith and the abuses practiced by its supporters. The kissing of ikons and holy images is forbidden to its followers, and sin is not condoned by the payment of a fee or the utterance of a prayer. The new Church and other Nonconformist denominations are perfectly free to carry on any form of propaganda in their own cause, provided they do not use it for political purposes, and accept the new laws of the State. Their activity against the anti-religious propaganda of the workers' clubs and schools is very considerable. Most of their congregations are, however, composed not only of those who feel the want of a real reformed religion, but also of those who want to stand well with the authorities.

Liquor Control and Drunkenness

The sale of alcoholic drinks, such as light wine and beer, is not forbidden. The manufacture and sale of vodka over 20 per cent. in strength is, however, prohibited. There are no stand-up bars either in the towns or in any of the clubs, and strong drink is usually only served with a meal or consumed at home. Very severe fines and loss of privilege are imposed in the workers' clubs for drunkenness. Occasionally a man is seen on the street who has had more than is good for him; but to those who knew Russia before the Revolution there is certainly very much less drunkenness in the streets and public places than formerly. Illicit distilling and dealing is a criminal offense.

New Social Customs

The ceremonial language of social intercourse has changed very much, and among the workers there is a marked absence of bad language. Popular expressions formerly so much used in almost every class of society seem to have disappeared entirely.

A woman Communist would be offended should a man open a door for her, or even step aside to give her priority. The old Russian custom practiced by the upper and middle classes of bowing over, or kissing, a woman's hand in salutation, has disappeared. The custom of men raising their hats to each other, formerly practiced by all classes, is falling into disuse. Men, however, still continue to kiss each other on occasions. There is a strong campaign against constant hand-shaking.

A curious indication of a tendency to form fresh class distinctions is the new method of address. A member of the party, an associate in work, an employe, a servant, or a peasant, is always addressed as "Comrade," a stranger is addressed as "Citizen," while the patronymic (John the son of John, or Charles the son of Tom, as the case may be) is reserved for members of the family and near friends. The custom of wearing badges denoting the post of the wearer is of great convenience, and a good substitute for the wearing of orders.

Growing Percent of Wealthy Did So

By LELAND OLDS.
(Federated Press.)

Development of a closed hereditary wealthy caste in the United States is revealed in a comparative statistical study of American millionaires and multimillionaires by Pitirim Sorokin of the University of Minnesota. Sorokin's study, which covers 228 rich men who are now dead and 248 still living is published in the Journal of Social Forces by the University of North Carolina.

"The wealthy class of the United States," he says, "is becoming less and less open, more and more closed into a castelike group. This conclusion is supported by the percentage of hereditary transmission of occupation from father to son. While in the deceased group only about 49 per cent of the rich men had the same or a similar occupation to that of their fathers, among the living group this percentage is about 7. Furthermore we shall see that the percentage of those who started their moneymaking career as wealthy men is also much higher in the living than in the deceased group.

Wealthy Families Are Closed Shop.

Sorokin found that the percentage of rich men who had merchants, manufacturers, bankers, financiers or business men for fathers rose from 52.2 per cent of the arlier generation to 75 per cent of those still living. On the other hand he found that the percentage descended from farmers decreased from 24.6 to 7.3 per cent in a generation, that the percentage descended from physicians, teachers and ministers decreased from 8.8 per cent to 4.4 per cent and the percentage whose fathers were workers from 7 per cent to 1.6 per cent.

His figures showing the proportion of American millionaires who started poor, middle class and rich in the two generations are:

Proportion of Millionaires starting Life	Per Cent Deceased Group	Per Cent Living Group
Poor	38.8	19.6
Middle class	31.5	27.7
Rich	29.7	52.7

"The percentage of those who started their careers poor," he says, "is twice as high in the deceased group as in the living group. The percentage of those who started their careers rich is also almost twice as high in the living as in the deceased group. In the light of these figures we must recognize as only partially true the statements of many wealthy men that 'there is always room at the top.'" The space for poor men at the top, he thinks, is becoming narrower.

Sorokin also finds that those born rich have an opportunity to arrive at the top earlier than the rest. His figures showing when those born poor or middle class attain wealth and when those born rich become responsible managers of big enterprises reveal that 75 per cent of the millionaires born poor became rich no tearlier than 41 or above while 77 per cent of those born rich become captains of industry and finance between the ages of 20 and 40 years.

Defense Conference for Sacco-Vanzetti Active in Mass. City

SPRINGFIELD, Mass., Aug. 12.—Sometime ago a Sacco-Vanzetti defense conference of Springfield, was organized comprsied of several different organizations including the Workers Party branches of this city.

The May Day meeting, the collecon of which went for the Labor Defense Council and Sacco-Vanzetti Defense Committee, brot in $36.00.

On the fourth of July we held a picnic for the Sacco-Vanzetti Defense. The surplus of which amounted to $312.42, which is the largest sum of money ever collected at a local picnic, or any other single gathering of radicals.

The right wing of this city, with the exception of the Italian Branch of the S. P., did not support us. In spite of the fact that they were invited to cooperate with us to help the two martyrs of the class war—Sacco and Vanzetti.

The local conference hopes to bring some rays of hope into the hearts of Sacco and Vanzetti and other martyrs of the class war.

Father Badly Hurt Trying to Save His Children from Auto

DETROIT, Aug. 12.—Peter Hallick is at the receiving hospital today fighting for life after he cut an artery in his wrist in an attempt to go to the rescue of his children, two of whom were killed when an automobile ran them down, and a third may live. The children were left motherless ten days ago when Hallicks' wife died.

The father rushed to the door to go to the rescue of his children. The door would not budge. Frantic, he raised his fist, crashed thru the boards and cut an artery. He was taken to the hospital with his injured child, both fighting for life.

Communists Required to Attend

By B. MILLER

Industrial Organizer

NEW YORK CITY, Aug. 12.—Meetings of the industrial fractions are not being properly attended. Organizers must see to it that members attend their fraction meetings regularly. Organizers are personally responsible for the attendance of party members at fraction meetings. The following meetings are especially important.

Shoe Workers

The shoe workers are waging a militant struggle for the amalgamation of the unions in the industry. Great progress in this direction has been made by the shoe workers, but much remains to be done until success is obtained. It is absolutely essential that all shoe workers attend their fraction meeting on Monday, August 17 at 8 p. m. at 108 East 14th St.

Metal Workers

There will be an important meeting of all members of the metal section of the T. U. E. L. including the following trades: Machinists, sheetmetal workers, tinsmiths, blacksmiths, coppersmiths, metal polishers, chandeliermakers, structural and architectural iron and bronze workers, jewelry workers, moulders, patternmakers and auto-workers, including painters, wood-workers, trimmers and machine hands. This meeting will be held on Wednesday, August 12, at 8 p. m., at 108 East 14th Street.

Laundry Workers

The laundry workers are undertaking a drive to organize the trade in which they are terribly exploited. An important meeting of all comrades in this industry will be held on Sunday, August 25, at 2 p. m. at 108 E. 14th street. This includes: wetwash workers, inside help, manglers, wringers, washers, sorters, markers, drivers, etc.

Carpenters

The carpenters are making a fight for the recognition of officers elected by the rank and file and for improvements in conditions in the industry. A big general meeting will be announced shortly. Comrades should not fail to attend local meetings at this time as it is most important.

Big Time for All at Seashore Concert and Ball on Saturday Nite

NEW YORK, Aug. 12.—A seashore concert and ball is being given by the Bath Beach Branch of the Workers Party on Saturday evening, Aug. 15th, at Bay Plaza hotel, Crosby avenue and Bay 22nd street.

A beautiful concert has been arranged. Among other numbers it includes singers from the Russian opera, several selections by Mr. Gingold, violinist, and the Workers' mandolin orchestra.

U. M. W. A. PAPER, "THE ILLINOIS MINER" CENSORED BY FARRINGTON MACHINE; MEMBERS DENIED SPACE

By ALEX REID

(Secretary of the Progressive Miners' Committee.)

ARTICLE XIV.

The following communications and letters will show the super-human effort that was made by Tumulty and Thompson, Watt and Parry in their attempt to have the cases constitutionally disposed of, but to no avail.

Nothing proves more clearly than the correspondence that Farrington and his chosen vampires were out to wreck the progressive mines, at any cost, and the constitution was not permitted to stand in the way of this work.

The miners' paper was likewise closed to the expelled. They are forced to pay for its upkeep, but they were not allowed to use its columns to bring their case before the rank and file.

Farrington no doubt watches that end of it, but it is noticed that Farrington used the front page to misinterpret the appeal that was sent out by Tumulty in behalf of the rank and file miners who were demanding that Thompson and Watt tour the state and expose the rottenness of the machine.

"Springfield, Ill., June 27th, 1924.

"Mr. Editor, Illinois Miner.

"Dear Sir, While in conversation with you the morning that you addressed the miners at Staunton, you informed me that 'all letters of a constructive nature would be printed in the Illinois Miner.'

"Therefore, having in mind the many evils existing in our union, and with a hope that these evils may be banished from our midst, I am submitting for the information of the rank and file the following two rulings and some figures relative to the last election of officers in the miners' union.

"I submit these facts and figures with a sincere hope that it will save our union from being dragged down into the mire which must inevitably befall our organization if such as these continue to prevail.

"At the last election of officers of District No. 12. I saw secretaries of local unions putting the district ballots into a grip and taking them away from the polling places before they were counted.

"On Dec. 15th, 1922, I wrote the following telegram to President Lewis, and the answer follows:

(Copy)

'Springfield, Ill., Dec. 15th, 1922.

'Mr. J. L. Lewis, president U. M. W. of A., Indianapolis, Indiana.

'Under article eleven, section eleven, international constitution, rule whether local recording secretary is privileged to take ballots from polling places before being counted and return same to be counted the next day. Wire reply immediately.

'(Signed) JOE TUMILTY.'

'Indianapolis, Ind., Dec. 15th, 1922.

'Joe Tumulty,

'Your message received, ballots must be counted at regular voting place by legally elected tellers and under no circumstances would the recording secretary or any one else be privileged to take ballots from regular voting place before being counted.'

'(Signed), JOHN L. LEWIS.'

"On Jan. 11, 1923, I wrote President Farington asking him the following question, and the answer follows.

(Copy)

'Springfield, Ill., Jan. 11th, 1923.

'Mr. Frank Farrington,

'President District No. 12,

'U. M. W. of A.,

'Mine Workers' Bldg.,

'Springfield, Ill.

'Dear Sir, and Brother:—Will you rule if it is legal for the secretary of a local union or any of the tellers to take the ballots cast in the district election to their homes before they are counted and bring them back the next day and count them?..

'(Signed), JOE TUMILTY.

'Jan. 15th, 1923.

'Mr. Joe Tumilty,

'Springfield, Ill.

'Dear Sir and Brother: This is to acknowledge receipt of your letter of Jan. 11th, in which you asked me the following question: "Will you rule if it is legal for the secretary of a local union, or any of the tellers to take the ballots cast in the district election to their homes before they are counted and bring them back next day and count them?" 'Answering the same I refer you to the foot note of section 15, article 11, district constitution, which reads as follows:

'"The ballots from the time the votes are cast shall be in the personal custody of the local tellers or kept securely locked up by them until the complete vote is tabulated and counted."

'Considering this section of our law, it is my opinion that the local tellers can take the ballots away from the polling places to such a place as they may mutually agree to take them for tabulation, or if the tellers authorize the secretary of the local union to act as custodian of the ballots until such time as the tellers could assemble to tabulate them, I am of the opinion that the tellers would have the authority to authorize the local secretary to take care of them.

'There is nothing in our law that makes it necessary, for the tellers to count the votes at the polling place and I so rule.

'(Signed) FRANK FARRINGTON, President.'

"It is passing strange that President Farrington would make such a ruling when there is nothing in our district constitution that gives the secretary or any of the tellers such privileges.

"Let me ask, 'how can the ballots be in the hands of the local tellers, or kept securely locked up by them until the complete vote is tabulated and counted. If President Farington allows the secretary of a local union to take them to his home and keep them all night to himself?'

"To those of you who were in the Peoria convention and can recall how I pleaded with the president for the right to ask a question of the committee on constitution when resolution No. 110 relative to Sec. 15, of article 11, or our district constitution was up for consideration, you will be able to understand by now just why President Farrington, did not allow me to ask my question.

"He will say that he did not stop Tumilty from asking a question of the chairman of the committee, he will say that the delegates by a vote said that I could not ask the question, but do not forget that the delegates did not know what I wanted to ask, and I did not ask the delegates for the right to ask a question.

"The chairman of the committee on constitution wanted to answer my question, and the president of the conveniton was the one who would not let the question be asked, and President Farirngton, down in his heart, knows why.

"Now as to the figures relative to the election I would like some of you members to get a copy of the returns of the last election of district officers, and it is my opinion this is what you will find—there were over 4,000 more votes cast for president than there were for any other district officer, you will find around 300 more in one local union alone, and that local union was No. 992 of Zeigler, Ill.

"You will recall that delegate Corbishley told you of how he was taken away from the polling place early in the morning by a bogus subpoena and kept away all day, and when he asked, 'Why am I being held here, he was told 'Oh, you are on the wrong side.'

"You will also find that President Farrington craried only four local unions out of eighteen in Springfield, and these four are the only ones where the ballots were taken away from the polling places before they were counted.

"I have been a local teller in and around the mines of Springfield, Ill., for the last twelve years and I have the first ballot to see yet where a man marked his ballot for one of the presidents and did not vote for any other candidate on the district ballot, but it will be found, according to the returns of the district tellers' report, that one out of every 17 members that voted marked his ballot for one of the presidents only.

"I have heard President Farrington say to the miners, 'please your damned selves who you vote for, I am going to be your next president anyhow.'

"I heard a board member of this district say, 'I am going to be the board member of this district just as long as I want to.'

"Look up L. U. No. 317, No. 999, No. 2385, No. 2403; all in board member district No. 5, in Springfield, Ill. these locals took their ballot away from the polling places before they were counted. This kind of work has been going on in Springfield for years I am told, and this in my opinion is what gives these officers so much confidence just before election time.

"So in closing I hope that before the next election of officers takes place that the rank and file of District No. 12 will tell President Farrington in plain language that no one will be allowed to take the ballots away from the polling places until they are counted and tabulated. There is an ulterior motive in such acts as these, and for the best interest of our union I hope that the district executive board at its next meeting will go on record against this kind of a practice, and that all local tellers be notified accordingly.

"Yours truly, TUMILTY."

BUILDERS AT WORK

Did You Ever Get a Sub?

Tell Us About It!

One from another, in comparing experiences, we discover new "wrinkles", new methods of doing necessary propaganda work.

Many Builders, enthusiastic about their accomplishments, have written in about them and their letters have proven help and inspiration to others.

But perhaps you also have secured subs for the DAILY WORKER—for the Workers Monthly—or you have sold books or pamphlets to other workers. Just how did you succeed in getting results in this most necessary work of our party?

Write it up and send it in to the DAILY WORKER for this column. Make it short and snappy and tell us in your own words, just what good methods and what bad methods you have found in this work.

Let other workers learn from your experience, just what to do and what to avoid; tell others whether you used sample copies; the credit system; did you go to your shop-mates or to your union—tell others so they can also learn.

In this way we can help others to help themselves and in this way you can help to build an army of real Builders to make a greater Communist press in this country.

Decide tonight and be sure to TELL US ABOUT IT!

DETROIT WORKERS HAVE WEATHER MAN FIXED TO SMILE ON PICNIC SUN

DETROIT, Mich., Aug. 12.—The Workers' Party of Detroit is holding its grand international picnic for the benefit of Il Lavoratore and the DAILY WORKER in Campbell's Grove Park, Sunday, Aug. 16.

The workers of Detroit are invited to attend the picnic, enjoy themselves, and at the same time support the only daily paper in the English language that fights the battles of the working class in this country, and also assist the only Italian paper in America that leads the Italian workers in their struggle for their class interests and against international fascism.

The program committee has devised many new and novel stunts for the entertainment of the picnickers. Dancing, games, eats, refreshments, peppy music by good orchestra, a lot of fun and a good time for everybody. Also good speakers.

Campbell's Grove is an ideal picnic grounds. The dance pavilion furnishes an irresistible temptation to the nimble-toed to do their stuff, and special arrangements have been made with the weather man to loosen his bag of balmy breezes. It is but two blocks from the end of the Mack Ave. car line and there is adequate space for parking cars.

Cotton Firms Combine.

BOSTON, August 12.—(FP)—Amoskeag Manufacturing Co. of Manchester, N. H., and Parkhill Manufacturing Co. of Fitchburg are uniting in one operating company. Amoskeag claims to be the largest cotton goods manufacturing concern in the world and employs 17,000 workers in its mills, including worsted and woolen branches. Parkhill employs 1,700 in cotton goods production and dyeing.

MEXICAN FAKER TO PERFORM IN LOS ANGELES ZOO

Morones Expected to Clinch Darwin Theory

By HELEN VOLL.

LOS ANGELES, August 12.—The Central Labor Council has presented Horn with a resolution and a copy of Gompers' Seventy Years of Life and Labor, as a remembrance, for having served for four and one-half years "in a most fair, impartial and satisfactory manner, and during that time labored earnestly for the upbuilding of the council and maintenance of its good reputation in the community". "Deep regret" is expressed because of his retirement, "and he is assured of the best wishes of the delegates to this body for his future welfare and success in whatever field of endeavor and usefulness his lot may be cast". (Citizen, July 31.)

He is expected to continue attending meetings regularly as delegate to the council from Beer Drivers Local 227 of which he is a member.

A letter has been received from President Calles of Mexico in which he says in effect that Luis N. Morones has been instructed to address the picnic to be celebrated at Seelig Soo on Labor Day, September 7th.

What will the Mexican workers think when they see the difference in treatment accorded this Mexican jumping bean—no—"Mexican Gompers", and compare it with that which they themselves receive at the hands of "organized labor". The committee is also trying to get the son of Hiram Johnson to relieve himself, in Seelig Soo, of whatever hot air he may have in storage. Would it be out of place to suggest to the committee—Horn—whoever it is, that they communicate with Judge Raulston of Monkey Trial fame. He too, would surely enjoy being exhibited in Seelig Soo.

COAL MINES OF OHIO PAY BIG FOR WAGE CUT

Sheriff, Bloodhounds, Trace Tipple Fires

POMEROY, Ohio, August 12.—Two coal mine tipples were destroyed by fire early Saturday morning, making four so destroyed since the mine owners of this region violated the Jacksonville agreement and cut wages to the 1917 scale.

The fire Saturday was first reported from Rutland, where the tipple of the Blackstone company was in flames. A few minutes later the Rutland Tipple Power House, a heavily stocked store, a loaded car and other property was reported afire at a point four miles from the first fire. An estimate of the damage is $150,000.

The Rutland tipple crossed the county road and it is claimed that the supporting timbers were saturated with inflammable liquids. At the Blackstone tipple it is alleged a "torch" was found, on which Sheriff Rice is trying the sherlock stunt of looking for finger prints, tho the use of gloves may prevent this source affording a clew.

Sheriff Rice is hot after the alleged incendaries with bloodhounds and other dogs. The bloodhounds are accompanied by special deputy sheriffs to "scour the hills."

RUSSIA TODAY

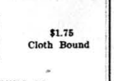
The first publication in England of this most complete report of the British Trade Union Delegation to Soviet Russia, caused a great stir in the world trade union movement.

From all parts of the world came high praise for this historical document, from those workers in and out of the organized labor movement earnestly working for world trade union unity.

By all enemies of labor, capitalists and their henchmen, the bitterest criticism was levelled.

This report made by the Official Delegation of British Labor (including charts and maps) is an impartial study of every phase of life under the first world's workers' government. Politics, Finance, Army, Religion, Education, Trade Unions, Wages—these and other subjects are analyzed by the Delegation who have travelled unhindered and free to investigate in all sections of Soviet Russia.

It is a complete, impartial and dignified document of one of the world's leading bodies of Labor.



WM. F. DUNNE

Editor of the Daily Worker says:

The British Trade Union Delegation to Soviet Russia in a unanimous report has told the story of the Russian Revolution in language that trade unionists can understand.

It is a great story, told in matter-of-fact language, the story of millions of workers and peasants marching towards Communism over all obstacles; it is history hot with the breath of the struggle in the style of a convention report . . .

Revolutionary Russian and stubborn, slow-moving Briton call to the American worker from the pages of the British delegation's report.

Foiled Again!

Desperate Desmond, a melodramatic comic strip character found much favor several years ago, chased the heroine daily to the delight of lovers of the sensational and daily reached the last strip only to see his prey slipping from his grasp. "Foiled again" he would say, as he gnashed his teeth with rage.

The Illinois chambers and associations of commerce are in the Desperate Desmond frame of mind over their failure to shut the prison gates on several local trade unionists, including Theodore Vind, former president of the South Chicago Trades Council.

The trade unionists were indicted in 1919 during labor troubles in South Chicago on a frame-up conspiracy charge. Failing in the first effort ot convict them, the prosecution continued until it succeeded in securing a conviction.

Of course, the reason why the capitalists pursued those representatives of labor, is their activity during labor disputes. Vind was particularly obnoxious owing to his work in the steel strike. Due to the efforts made by the local unions in Chicago and vicinity in behalf of Vind and his associates, the governor felt that it was the part of political wisdom to pardon them. Only two of them spent any time in prison. The governor's office had to admit that the trades unionists were framed by the chamber of commerce.

Now the notorious open shopper, Glenn of the Illinois manufacturers' Association, the same gentleman who led the hue and cry against the Herrin miners, is out protesting against the pardon of Vind and his comrades. If the working class were properly organised, Vind would never have been indicted or convicted on such a framed-up charge and there would be no need for representatives of labor to go hat in hand to a capitalist governor asking for favors, which the workers are strong enough to take in their own right.

Scabbing on the Pressmen

George L. Berry, international president of the Pressmen's and Assistants' Union, is now doing to the members of his own union what Tom Rickert of the United Garment Workers is doing to the striking members of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers. There is, however, a trifling difference. "Majah" Berry is hiring union scabs to break a strike that is participated in by members of two locals affiliated with and paying per capita tax to the union of which he is president. Rickert is hiring union scabs to break a strike on a rival union. If a choice can be made between the two labor crooks, the breaks must be given to Rickert.

Just as soon as Tom Rickert's agents showed their scabby faces in Chicago the DAILY WORKER turned the spotlight on them, and brought down upon their heads the condemnation of the Chicago labor movement. Thru the initiative of locals of the machinists' union, and the lead given by the DAILY WORKER, the Chicago Federation of Labor officials were forced to take action, thus earning the censure of the president of the American Federation of Labor, the angel guardian of official scabbery.

It was a splendid thing for the Chicago trade union movement to place the stamp of its official censure on union strikebreaking. Even tho no action developed out of the censure, it was something anyhow. Similar action should be taken in the case of Berry's scabbery. Here are men on strike to prevent another big printing company from establishing open shop conditions under the union label. Berry wants the same kind of unionism in the printing industry that Rickert wants in the clothing industry. As the Amalgamated Workers are fighting for genuine unionism in the clothing industry, so Locals 3 and 4 of the Pressmen's and Assistants' Union are fighting in the printing industry.

The delegates to the next meeting of the Chicago Federation of Labor should go on record against Berry's strikebreaking tactics. Local unions should take up the matter.

This is a vital matter. The interests of one union man are the concern of all. If Berry succeeds in breaking the strike at Cuneo's big plant, he will have dealt a bad blow to the unions in the printing trades and will give aid and comfort to the growing open shop movement in Chicago.

Today the DAILY WORKER begins a series of articles exposing the career of "Majah" George L. Berry. Not only will the spotlight be turned on the "Majah" but his tools will also come in for their share of the limelight. The object of this expose is to show the rank and file that they cannot have a real organization until they organize to drive Berry and his corrupt gangsters out of office.

What They Learned from the War

The billions of dollars spent by the House of Morgan during the war, or more correctly, spent by the government for the House of Morgan, were not entirely misspent, if the scab-coal operators of West Virginia know anything about it.

Members of the Miners' Union and their wives were doing picket duty at a mine of the Jamison Coal and Coke company, in Farmington, West Va., when they were charged by armed mine guards who used tear gas bombs. As a result of this attack the wife of one of the strikers is lying ill under doctor's orders.

This is what the miners are getting in return for their loyalty in turning out coal to enable the army to study the latest wrinkles in gas during the war. Then the enemy was the German; today it is the American worker who seeks enuf bread and butter for himself and his family. "We can't fight the government" shouted John L. Lewis, when he crawled into his hole before an injunction in 1919. Well, whether Lewis fights the government or not, the government will fight the miners. The government of the United States is the tool of the capitalist class.

The miners of West Virginia are learning this fact. They are getting an object lesson in tear gas democracy.

William Green finds that the caliber of the men recommended for the judiciary is deteriorating. Terrible William! Our capitalist system is liable to go to hell unless you keep your eye on it.

If William Green paid more attention to the organization of the workers so that they would be strong enough to form their own government, he would not have to worry about capitalist judges.

Our Party and The Negro Masses

By WILLIAM F. DUNNE.

THE theses of the Second Congress of the Communist International on the National and Colonial Question, drawn by Comrade Lenin and constituting one of his greatest contributions to the theory and practice of the proletarian revolution, say:

> The constant violations of the equality of nations and the infringements on the rights of national minorities practiced in all the capitalist states in spite of the democratic constitutions, must be denounced in all propaganda and agitational activity of the Communist International, within, as well as outside parliament. It is likewise necessary, first, to explain constantly that only the Soviet regime is able to give the nations real equality, by uniting the proletariat and all the masses of workers in the struggle against the bouregoisie; second, to support the revolutionary movement among the subject nations (for example, Ireland, American Negroes, etc.), and in the colonies.

THE resolution of the Parity Commission on the question of our party among the American Negro masses gives a practical expression to the theses of the Second Congress and the contributions to the role of Communist parties among colonial peoples and national and racial minorities made by the Fifth Congress in the light of the rich experiences gained since the Second Congress.

The concluding paragraph of the resolution of the Parity Commission reads:

> The aim of our party in our work among the Negro masses is to create a powerful proletarian movement which will fight and lead the struggle of the Negro race against exploitation and oppression in every form and which will be a militant part of the revolutionary movement of the whole American working class, to strengthen the American revolutionary movement by bringing into it the 11,500,000 Negro workers and farmers in the United States to broaden the struggles of the American Negro workers and farmers, connect them with the struggles of the national minorities and colonial peoples of all the world and thereby further the cause of the world revolution and the dictatorship of the proletariat.

BUT between the general tasks as outlined in the theses of the second congress and the goal towards which we drive described in the conclusion of the Parity Commission decision, there is a long series of immediate problems and tasks with which the Parity resolution deals. For that reason it is necessary that all party members read carefully the resolution and understand it, not as an academic expression of our attitude towards the Negro masses but as a program which must be followed and given life in our daily work.

The Parity Commission resolution points out the leading role of the Negro industrial worker and the important part he plays in the liberation of both his race and the whole working class. Speaking of the one-third of the Negroes who live in cities and towns, the resolution says:

> Practically without exception these are held by law and custom within the bounds of a labor caste, segregated, habitually terrorized, and exploited to a greater degree than any other section of the proletariat.
> Nevertheless, unlike the Negro rural population, a large portion of this group, especially in northern centers, has won the right to exercise the franchise. A number of them have come into the labor unions and consequently have been drawn directly into the general struggles of the American working class. From the Negro industrial workers the leadership of the American Negro mass movement must come.

THIS categorical statement of the Parity Commission resolution should dispel effectively any tendency to make the Negro rural population the main center of our activity. The Negro farmers, like the white farmers, have a mighty part to play in the proletarian revolution but the hegemony of the national liberation movements which precede it must always be vested in the working class vanguard.

The importance of the trade unions as centers for the struggle against discrimination within their own ranks and as weapons in the battle for full social, political and economic equality is emphatically stated in the parity commission resolution. The tasks of our party inside the unions in organizing the Negro and left wing white trade unionists for struggle against racial hatred and the resulting enmity and restrictions as well as our task in stimulating organization among unorganized Negro workers to force entrance to the unions on an equal basis are fully stated. No comrade who reads this portion of the resolution can have any excuse for minimizing the importance of breaking down all barriers to Negroes in the trade unions as a major task and of the tremendous part the unions can play as joint organizations for the struggles of black and white workers.

AS in all other important problems of our party differences of opinion have arisen and discussion has raged over the relative importance of social and economic demands of the Negro masses as the oases for Communist agitation, propaganda and organization. In the heat of the discussion some comrades have lost sight of the fact that the two cannot be separated but inevitably combine into and make up the political demands around which center the liberation struggles of the American Negroes.

The resolution of the Parity Commission makes this quite clear when, in speaking of and listing the "social demands" of the Negroes it says:

> In the course of the struggle for such demands we will demonstrate thru experience that these aspirations can be realized only as a result of a successful class struggle against capitalism and with the establishment of the rule of the working class in the Soviet form.

IN other words, the social demand slogans serve to direct the attention of the Negro masses to the concrete facts of the inferior social status forced upon them by American capitalism and to direct their attention to the class nature of society as the cause of this oppression.

It is obvious that social demands vary in importance for the work of our party in proportion to the success of the Negro masses in different sections of the country in securing relief from the more flagrant forms of oppression and persecution. It is plain, for instance, that in certain cities of the north the slogan of "abolition of all racial discrimination in the unions" has more agitational value than that of "equal educational opportunity" for the reason that Negro children are not discriminated against in the schools there as they are in the south.

It is necessary that our slogans are not realized simply as random shots but that they are adjusted to the various concrete situations that exist.

THE work of our party in the American Negro Labor Congress, the objectives for which we strive and the working class character of the congress as an important factor in determining our attitude towards it are clearly set forth in the Parity resolution.

The importance of the congress is that it will be the first gathering of Negro proletarians held in this country that has been organized as an expression of the class consciousness of the Negro masses and giving voice to something more than a mere desire to secure an alleviation of the more outstanding evils within the framework of American capitalism. The task of our party is to give the utmost aid to this militant group, to support it actively, to strive to give it a real mass character and make it the leader of the Negro toilers as against the spineless and treacherous leadership which the Negro intellectual and middle class elements now exercise.

THE correct attitude of our party towards the Garvey movement with its hopeless program of migration to Africa is stated by the resolution in its section dealing with the American Negro Labor Congress:

> In connection with the linking of the struggle of the American Negroes with those of their African comrades, the congress should point out the error of holding up Africa as a Negro Mecca. It must be made clear that the connection between the African and American Negro liberation movement is in the common struggle against world imperialism and that such schemes as migration, etc., are simply chimeras which serve only to confuse and conceal the real issues.
> The congress should stand with Soviet Russia as the nation where a workers' and farmers' government has solved successfully all racial and national problems.

The Garvey organization (The Universal Negro Improvement Association) is characterized further as follows:

> The exploitation of the Negro masses by demagogic leaders of this organization, who copy the arts of the Jewish Zionist movement, soliciting funds from white capitalists on the ground that they will teach the Negro toilers to submit to "white supremacy" (i. e., capitalist supremacy) in this country, while officially denying but in fact cultivating the dream of mass migration to Africa, is one of the cruelest aspects of betrayal to which the black worker is subjected.

This should serve to correct the tendency heretofore manifested by some leading comrades to look upon Garvey as a "natural" leader of the American Negro masses and thereby unconsciously aid his work of confusion and betrayal.

THE section of the resolution dealing with the labor party and the Negro masses takes this question out of the realm of abstract propaganda and links it up with the daily lives of this oppressed group. Our labor party agitation among the Negroes must be used to bring them into the bread struggles of the whole working class.

The need for a firm Communist nucleus as the primary necessity for our work among the Negro masses cannot be over-emphasized. The fact that because of historical conditions large sections of the Negro industrial and agricultural workers are more backward than even the white workers in similar districts makes it vitally necessary that our Communist Negro fractions be among the best trained, disciplined and most resolute of our comrades. Because of this, and in spite of the great need for large numbers of Negro Communists, we must not, in building our fractions, sacrifice quality for the sake of quantity. From among the Negro trade unionists, the unorganized industrial workers and from such organizations at the American Negro Labor Congress, we must draw into our ranks the most conscious and militant of the Negro workers, building Communist leadership as a result of our mass activity.

THERE is no longer an reason for difference of opinion over the tasks of our party among the Negro masses. We know that we must concentrate our efforts in the industrial centers and there develop mass organizations and leadership that can and will fight the battles of the Negro workers in city and country. We know that we must make our party the recognized defender and leader of the Negro masses and that this can only come by sincere and untiring application of our whole party to the tasks as stated by the Parity resolution.

Our work in this field will require much patience and persistence and we will do well to remember the words of Lenin:

> The age long enslavement of. . . weak nations by the imperialist powers, has given rise to a feeling of rancor among masses of the enslaved. . . as well as a feeling of distrust towards the proletariat of those nations. These sentiments can be completely rooted out only by the abolition of imperialism in the advanced countries. . . Thus it will take a long time for these national prejudices to disappear. This imposes upon the class conscious proletariat of all countries the duty of exercising special caution and care with regard to these. . . sentiments still surviving in. . . the nationalities which have been subjected to lasting enslavement, and also of making necessary concessions in order more speedily to remove this distrust and prejudice. The victory over capitalism cannot be fully achieved unless the proletariat and the toiling masses of all nations of the world rally of their own accord in a harmonious and close union.

CAL PLANS HUGE WAR AIR FLEET, BIG BIZ ACTS

Push Commercial Route for Combat Craft

SWAMPSCOTT, Mass., August 12.—President Coodilge released the announcement that he favors the use of the naval dirigible Los Angeles by a private corporation for commercial aviation. Coolidge is interested in building commercial aviation so as to have a large air force available in the next war, it is known. Coolidge said the other naval dirigible, the Shenandoah, might be leased to a private concern.

John Hays Hammond, Jr., Herbert Satterlee of New York, and Fred S. Hardesty were the representatives of air craft companies who conferred with Coolidge with regard to securing the aircraft. Coolidge intimated he will give consent for the navy to man the crews on the proposed airlines from New York to Chicago, Omaha and St. Louis.

Admitting that the Coolidge government is speeding war plans, Herbert Hoover, secretary of commerce, said: "The government is anxious that lighter than air service should be developed commercially. This would give the government great advantage if aviation were highly developed for purposes of national defense. All commercial ships and aviators would be at the service of the government in war time.

"The government has already decided to carry out the provisions of the Versailles treaty under which it acquired the Los Angeles, and lease the ship for commercial purposes."

The identity of the government with big business is thus more and more openly admitted.

BUT it's the old story of the sick devil turning saint and remaining in that condition until he gets well, when he suddenly transforms himself into a devil again. Who would be miserable when happiness can be had for the taking? "Fatty" has fallen. The International Reform Federation has now an unrepentant sinner on its hands. How they can tackle this mountain of sin is a big problem. We will let them do the best they can, meanwhile hoping that "Fatty" returns to the screen and devours a carload of preachers for our entertainment.

ARTHUR BRISBANE is not so cocky about his airplanes since the Riffians don't seem to be fleeing to the Sahara desert as a result of the efforts of French flyers to annihilate them. As a matter of fact, those unregenerate Riff sharpshooters defy all the best predictions of the airplane boosters and succeed in picking off French pilots as they fly overhead. The usual atrocity stories show that the campaign in Morocco is a real one. The Moors are now burning the stomachs out of the French prisoners. This is manufactured rubbish, yet we find an alleged liberal like Arthur Brisbane professing to believe it. Good luck to the Moors, anyhow, and sharp may they shoot!

IT is reported that Coolidge has ordered an investigation into the office of the alien property custodian. These grafters had charge of the property that was taken from German residents here during the war. Many of those custodians got wealthy thru their sterling efforts to win the war. Graft is running high in the United States. Strange that the ennobling virtues of capitalism runs thus to seed. If such things happened in Soviet Russia, it would prove that Communism and crookedness were synonymous terms.

WHEN an official of the Soviet government betrays his trust to the workers and peasants who placed him in office he is dealt with harshly. But here in the United States, graft is understood to go with the capitalist system, and the person found out is simply said to be out of luck. Former Governor McCray of Indiana, a prominent republican party leader, is in Atlanta for getting away with millions of dollars thru forgery. He will soon be freed. Had he participated in a strike, no prominent politicians would be found on the steps of the department of justice petitioning for his release.

GRAFT! This government is pickled with it. Major Percy Owen, of Illinois, prohibition director, former commander of the American Legion, is indicted for graft. So are many of his agents. Police officers get pulled in with monotonous regularity for graft. Postal inspectors rob what they are pledged to protect. A federal agent connected with the narcotic division, after bringing about the arrest of several narcotic agents, declares that out of the 250 sleuths engaged by the government in this work 200 are crooked.

THE little fellows usually get it in the neck. Ever since Albert B. Fall got away scot free after turning over the naval oil reserves to two oil magnates, hundreds of petty government officials have been convicted of graft. Most of them went to jail, while Albert still roams the hills as free as the American eagle. Let them graft! Let the capitalists worry about keeping their stables clean. The robbery we are concerned with is that which takes place at the point of production. We are out to abolish wage slavery and the government that exists to preserve that system. When a workers' and farmers' government is established in the United States we will take care that graft is given no quarter.

COMMITTEE OF 1,000 TO FIGHT SIGMAN TREACHERY

To counteract just such treacherous work by the Joint Board, an Organizing Committee of 1,000 was launched Monday night at Manhattan Lyceum where 700 workers gathered to plan the details of organizing work in the shops. Registration for completing this committee continues every day at the headquarters of the Joint Committee of Action.

Czarism in Local 10.

At the meeting of Local 10, the Cutters, held on Monday night, every attempt to express sympathy with the Joint Committee of Action was immediately suppressed by Manager Dubinsky. Dubinsky finally expelled for one year four members of the executive board, Horowitz, Arnold, Cohen and Tunik, who refused to obey his rule of no speeches from the floor.

"Impartial Committee" Decides to Support Left Wing.

An interesting circular has just been issued by an "impartial committee of union members," who up to this time have not taken sides in the fight against Locals 2, 9 and 22. The members signing the leaflet are B. Fried, Moskowiz, Deitchman, Guiterman, Brodsky, B. Kaplan, Charles Levine, H. Feinberg, Z. Horowitz, A. Golomb, I. Deitch and S. Schiller, all cloakmakers who have at some time held office in the union and have been known as conservatives with no sympathy for radicals in the union.

Their statement tells that they feared the present controversy was going to split the union, so they went to see President Sigman about the situation. They told him the three locals undoubtedly had the mass of the workers back of them, and the union officials must recognize this. They asked him to stop taking workers down from their jobs, and to put back the workers they had taken down.

Sigman Determined on Disruption.

They asked him to stop the fake elections for new executive committees for the locals and asked him to call a meeting of chairmen who should elect a committee of 25 to bring peace in this fight. They said they were convinced the workers had just cause for complaint, and they asked President Sigman to stop fighting workers, as tho they were enemies.

At the conference with President Sigman, several of the vice-presidents were present and also Rosoff, acting editor of Vorwaerts. Sigman partly refused all the demands of the impartial committee and told them if they were really friends of the union they would join with the Joint Board in fighting the expelled officers and the members of Locals 2, 9 and 22.

But the committee has decided that it prefers to join with the Joint Commitee of Action in fighting President Sigman and his whole group of corrupt officials who control the union.

ROCHESTER UKRAINIAN BRANCH IN LEAD PRIORI, BUT ITALIANS BANK ON POSTERIORI FOR PICNIC PRIZE

ROCHESTER, N. Y., August 12.—The picnic of the of the City Central Committee of Local Rochester of the Workers (Communist) Party which was originally scheduled for July 4, will be held Sunday, August 16, at Rifle Range. A continuous program of music, dancing, refreshments, sports, and speakers has been arranged by the committee so that a real comradely good time from beginning to end is assured to all.

The committee is offering a special prize to the branch that can rally the greatest number of sympathizers. The Ukrainian branch claims the prize a priori, but the Italian comrades contest that assumption and say the a posteriorio results will disprove the claim.

Just what the other branches believe has not become known yet, but the picnic will best show. A general vote will be held on the question, each number and sympathiser participating.

Tickets bought for the July 4 picnic will be good for this one.

BIG PLOT TO SMASH AMALGAMATED

CHICAGO PARTY CONVENTION IN OVERWHELMING ENDORSEMENT OF CENTRAL EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE

The city convention of the Workers (Communist) Party held Wednesday night registered an emphatic endorsement of the political line followed by the Central Executive Committee during its entire term of office since its election in January last year. Amid enthusiastic applause and after long hours of discussion, in which the representatives of the C. E. C., whose main speaker was Comrade James P. Cannon, dwelt upon the necssity of Bolshevization of the Party and the unity of the majority and minority groups against the right wing tendencies of Loreism, the vote was announced as 69 for the resolution of the C. E. C. Majority to 40 for the resolution of the Minority.

Unanimity.

Following the vote, the election of delegates to the district convention of District 8, on the basis of 34 majority and 17 minority took place. A motion by Nat Green of the majority, seconded by Bob Minor of the minority, that the list of delegates submitted be accepted, was carried by unanimous vote.

There were 110 delegates seated by the credential committee by unanimous report, unanimously approved by the body.

This harmonious signal was the first of many signifying the desire to unify the party on the basis of the decision of the Comintern, and the resolutions and decisions of the Parity Commission.

Unity and Bolshevization the Keynote.

Comrade Cannon, in opening the discussion for the C. E. C., stressed the future rather than the past, pointing out that the Comintern had laid aside the theses of both groups, had declared that both had made mistakes and given the party a program acceptable to both, especially in regard to the question of the labor party, which he declared to be the key to the labor movement.

Not neglecting the accomplishments of the party during the past 18 months, however, Comrade Cannon, limited by the time of 30 minutes allotted to opening speakers of both sides, covered the many activities of the party, the child labor campaign, the presidential election campaign, where the party had for the first time come before the workers of the country with a Communist program in the general elections in a situation rendered extremely difficult both by objective conditions as recognizde by the C. I., and the mistakes of the party inherited from the previous Central Committee.

Constructive Work Under Difficulties.

The party had made a beginning on the great task of raising the theoretical level of the party member and leadership in educational work. It had sustained the great instrument for Communism, the DAILY WORKER, thru many trials and despite the fact that the party was divided and often seriously crippled by the opposition of the hostile internal group, it had defeated the counter-revolutionary attempt of Abramovich to set the American workers against Soviet Russia, had made brave and effective campaigns in the trade unions, such as the coal miners, the carpenters, the needle trades and others.

Citing the needle trades as one field where the right wing tendencies of Loreism had been effectively combatted on the basis of concrete issues, Comrade Cannon set forth the development of Loreism and the C. E. C.'s method of struggle against it, to clarify and Bolshevize the party, so that ultimately not a single honest worker would be left to support the non-Communist leaders of the Loreist tendency, recently raising a danger before the party in the resolution of the Finnish branch in Superior and the letter of Comrade Askeli.

All to Unite Against Right Wing.

This right wing tendency was the

AS WE SEE IT

By T. J. O'FLAHERTY

THERE is a possibility that a general strike will take place in the coal industry. As we pointed out before, this is about the only way that the injury caused by the Jacksonville Pact could be overcome. It is now admitted by John L. Lewis that the government was responsible for that agreement. This was suspected at the time, but it is well that Lewis now admits it. If the miners' union had militant leadership one would feel more confident that the operators were facing a fight. But with Lewis at the helm, there cannot be any confidence among the workers.

WHAT can be thought of a man who admitted in an interview to a capitalist reporter, that the United Mine Workers of America, co-operated with the department of justice in getting evidence against the radicals in the union. This means that Lewis and has understrappers became stool-pigeons against the most militant members in the organization. To Europeans, this would seem impossible. Crooked tho the worst of the labor leaders of Britain may be, they never stooped this low.

REV. Arthur W. Brooks, a New York preacher predicted that the "threatened coal strike will be of short duration." Brooks has a loong list of successful predictions to his credit, it is said, including his prophesy that Coolidge would be elected. This faker declares that the "stars in their courses" are against the miners. Yes, in so far as the sky pilots can manipulate them. However, the day of the sky pilot is coming to an end and before long Brooks and his tribe will have to go to work for a living or starve.

HAD William Jennings Bryan lived a little longer he would be worth several millions of dollars, at the rate his Florida real estate is jumping in value. Within two months before his death the value of his property increased by over three and a half million dollars. Is it surprising that Bryan should become more and more enthusiastic about the lord as his end approached? God was good to Bryan. If all the other fundamentalists got away with it like Bill, the Darwinian theory would have hard sledding.

ANOTHER big industrial merger has taken place in the east, involving securities valued at $175,000,000. This time gas and electricity enterprises have pooled their resources. A New York corporation gobbled up all the properties hitherto in control of the Penn Public system. Amalgamation is taking place on all sides in the industrial world. It is about time the workers took a hint and amalgamated the craft unions into industrial unions.

THE American Legion, taking the leading from William Green has denounced the American Negro Labor Congress. This is another reason why the workers should support it. Only

GEORGE L. BERRY BECOMES MAJOR IN U. S. ARMY

Draws Two Salaries While in Europe

ARTICLE II.

George L. Berry, who now boasts that he is the only labor leader in America who has no conflicts with employers, rode into office on the slogan: "To Hell with the Contracts."

Berry went from the Atlantic to the Pacific coasts, and smashed contracts right and left.

He claimed to be out to establish the 48 hour week but it looks as if he was trying to smash the union instead. He succeeds in losing several large shops in Chicago. It is significant that he never made any effort to win them back.

The president of the International Printing Pressmen and Assitant's Union was a plain ordinary citizen in those days. He was a civilian. There was no handle to his name, not even that of a "strikebreaker" which he earned afterwards. This proves what a man with ambition can do if given time.

It is said that Berry's only claim to being considered a warrior was his "gallant" act in punching old Peter Dobbs, a man of 70 years who inquired for some information at the Berry's Old Men's Home in Tennessee. Berry blackened the old man's eye. It was not for this that he got the title of "Major", which enables him to cut a big figure in the strikebreaking American Legion.

Woodrow Wilson made a "Major" out of Strikebreaker Berry, for gallant service at the front. The following facts will show where Berry faced the foe.

The Noble Warrior

As most of you remember the armistice was declared on November 11, 1918. But on November 15, Berry dictated the followng letter to his stenographer. It is addressed to Trustee William J. Geary. It reads: "I have received a leave of absence from the Board of Directors which

FOX THREATENS TO BLACKLIST ZEIGLER MINERS

Will Use Courts Against Members

WEST FRANKFORT, Ill., Aug. 13.—Still confined to his bed, Lon Fox, president of the West Frankfort Sub-District No. 9, United Mine Workers of America, wounded in the Zeigler mine fight Tuesday night, this afternoon outlined his plan of retaliation.

"The union will conduct a thoro investigation and every man who took part in the disturbance will be charged with inciting riot in civil courts, and on top of that they will be dealt with by the union itself" Fox said angrily.

Wholesale "blacklisting" of dozens of Zeigler miners will be employed by the union officials as a means of fighting militants.

Unionists who have participated in the strike which was unauthorized by the sub-district officialdom and who have been suspended from the organization will not be reinstated, Fox declared.

FURRIERS TO HOLD LOCAL ELECTION

Shachtman, from New York, to Speak

In no union of the American labor movement has such terrorism been practiced against the militant rank and file as in the Furriers' union, especially in New York City. That it has signally failed and the progressives in the New York shops won control of the Joint Board and have begun a fight for cleaning out the unspeakable Kaufman gang from the International istelf, should interest all workers, particularly the furriers outside of New York.

Shachtman Speaks Tonight.

Tonight the Chicago Local of the Furriers is to hold a meeting and the progressive group has sent out to the memberhip the following letter, setting for the program upon which they ask the members to support them locally and nationally. The meeting tonight is to be addressed by D. Shachtman, secretary-treasurer of the New York Joint Board, who is well known to Chicago furriers as their business agent for three years.

Shachtman will bring to the Chicago memberhip the message of the progressive group and explain in detail the conflict between the rank and file and the Joint Board in New York and the slugger regime of Kaufman. The letter to the Chicago members is as follows:

Letter to Chicago Furriers.

"Dear Sisters and Brothers: On Friday, August 14th, our Local Union No. 45 will hold its election for business agent. The situation among the furriers in Chicago, as you know, is very poor. Only a little over 50 per cent of the indutry is organized;—instead of 700 furriers being in our union, ther are a scant 400. Yet nothing is being done to organize the others. Even Hart, Schaffner & Marx, heralded thruout the contry as a union firm, is nonunion to the furriers.

"There are firms who have an agreement with our union and send work to nonunion shops to be done; and, our local makes no protest, let alone try to stop it. What we need is a live, militant organization. This can only be brot about by the election of progressive leaders to office, and by pulling the entire membership into the active work of the union.

Against Terrorism in Union.

"This will be exceedingly difficult if the present method of terrorism that exists in our union is allowed to continue. It is well known that the best and most active members are discriminated against in the shops by the manufacturers and our present business agent, Milstein, does nothing to stop it and there is no protest against this discrimination from the union. Not only that, but active members have been threatened and some of them beaten up, when they made complaints, by those who should take up these complaints.

"You remember about a year ago when Brother Menilla, Brother S. H. Goldberg, and Brother Adler who were beaten up. Just a short time ago in our office, our business agent, Brother Milstein, struck Brother Lipton. Again Brother Lipton was assaulted by Brother Fierstein merely because he nominated Brother Israelson for business agent. Brother Lipton complained to the executive board; and the executive board, after listening to his complaint, told him to leave the meeting.

Must Leave.

"Many other active members of the union have been threatened. Even Brother Skolnik, one of the oldest members of the union was also threatened. This kind of work must cease, and we ask your co-operation in eliminating this terrorism within our organization.

"There has been no opportunity given to the members to state their grievances either in the union meetings or in our press. When Israelson, the opponent of Milstein in the present election, wrote a short article explaining the situation int our union and criticizing the way the organization is being run today, presenting

Fourteen Hundred Teachers Are Jobless in State of Indiana

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Aug. 13—There are 1,400 jobless teachers in Indiana, according to figures available at the office of the state schol superintendent H. N. Sherwood, that afternono.

The increase in the number of teachers seeking jobs this year was attributed largely to the return to the teaching profession of many former tecahers.

MASS MEETINGS EXTEND LABOR DEFENSE SEP. 13

Thousands of Workers Have Joined Branches

Extensive arrangements for Sunday, September 13th are being made in cities thruout the country. That date has been set aside as Labor Defense Day by International Labor Defense. In the afternoon, local conferences will be held at which will be represented trades unions, worker's fraternal and benefit organizations and membership branches of International Labor Defense.

Those conferences will set up permanent local organizations of the I. L. D. The conferences will be followed in the evening by mass meetings demanding the release of America's class-war prisoners and to give impetus to the national movement for Labor Defense begun by the organization of the I. L. D. at a national conference held on June 28th last. Prominent labor speakers will appear at these demonstrations.

Thousands of workers are joining the branches of the International Labor Defense as individual members. New York reports 26 membership branches of I. L. D. already established The Chicago provisional committee has sent invitations to 1,600 workers' organizations to attend its conference.

Bishop William Montgomery Brown has agreed to speak at the mass meeting following the local conference in Cincinnati. Reports from the country at large indicate that the conference and mass meetings in all the important centers of the country will be successful.

PRESSMEN REPLY TO BERRYISM BY AMALGAMATION

A meeting of all the members of Locals Nos. 3 and 4 of the Pressmen and Asistants' Union, which are conducting a strike at the Cuneo printing plants, has been called for Saturday at 2:30 p. m. to ratify a program for closer affiliation of the two local unions.

Committees appointed by each local met and drafted an amalgamation program which will be presented to the members Saturday. The program declares that any attack on one of the locals will be answered by both, and that any contract entered into by one local union must be ratified by the other. The unions have decided to stick together against Berrryism and the "open shop."

The strike is as effective as ever, production being stopped. The scabs sent in by Berry to run the presses have wrecked several machines thru their bungling, and others have been injured. The presses near the window are kept running, the others are closed.

Cotton Workers to Strike.

NEW YORK, Aug. 13.—(FP)—A strike of thousands of Indian cotton mill workers is expected when wage cuts of 11½ per cent become effective as posted for Sept. 11, the assistant trade commissioner at Bombay has cabled.

HOLD AMALGAMATED STRIKER FOR $100,000 BAIL; RAID A PLOT TO BREAK PICKET LINE, 16 HELD

Sixty-three striking members of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers of America stood for a preliminary hearing in the court-room of Judge John H. Lyle yesterday, after spending the night in jail, on trial for daring to demand decent working conditions and wages. Patsey De Rosa, one of the union members picked up in the raid conducted by Mike Grady, chief of the detective bureau squad on the Amalgamated headquarters, 409 S. Halsted St., was held on a charge of "assault with a deadly weapon," and "conspiracy," for $100,000 bail, and sixteen members of the union were held on "conspiracy" charges with bail placed at $5,000 and $3,400 each. All will come up for hearing on August 21. The rest of the sixty-three strikers were discharged.

But the preliminary hearing revealed a very different and real conspiracy—a conspiracy of the detective bureau, the police, and the International Tailoring Company, with the name of the United Garment Workers, affiliated with the American Federation of Labor hovering in the background, to do what the employers have so far failed to do—break up the picket line before the International shops and send the strikers back to work without a union agreement.

International Back of Raid.

Grady, in a speech revealing his squad as the watchdogs and servants of the employers, admitted that he had conducted the raid at the instigation of Ray Reeder, secretary and part owner of the International Tailoring Company, after a visit to the struck plant at 847 West Jackson boulevard. It was Reeder who made the complaint, and then turned the matter over to the willing Grady.

Grady exposed the real purpose of the securing of the search warrant and the arrest of sixty-two of the strikers when he said: "I learned from the owners of the International Tailoring Company that they suspected the Amalgamated of the acid throwing in tailor shops. There is a strike on at the International."

The garment bosses, failing to secure an injunction against peaceful picketing, failing with the help of the A. F. of L. union, the United Garment Workers, to herd scabs enuf to break the strike, failing to move their plant to Rock Island, played a new card and brot in Mike Grady, on the pay roll of the city of Chicago, to do their dirty work and break the strike for them.

Move to Stop Picketing.

"I went to the International Tailoring Company," said this friend of the bosses, "and asked if they had any trouble. They made me acquainted with Reeder, who told me that his employes had been slugged and that the strikers were parading up and down the streets in front of the building."

Then Grady laid the "evidence" secured in the raid on the Amalgamated, which will go down in Chicago labor history as one of the most outrageous attempts of the police to break a strike ever perpetrated. Grady laid two revolvers under the judge's nose, in plain view of the newspaper photographers, and said he had taken them from the offices of the Amalgamated. But William A. Cunnea, attorney for the Amalgamated, showed that these two revolvers were unloaded, and that it is lawful for any concern to keep guns in their office or home. Cunnea also showed that the iron rods, some of them wrapped in newspapers, which Grady also displayed prominently for the benefit of the photographers, were not taken from the persons of the union men but were "found" by Grady, just where Grady did not state.

Captain Stege, whose squad aided Grady in the raid on the union hall, further revealed the attempt of the International to break up the Amalgamated picket line when he made generalizations about "acid throwing," "slugging" and "terrorizing," and said: "This is not conducive to peaceful picketing."

No Violent Picketing.

Cunnea objected to this statement, declaring that the complainants must refrain from "commenting on your impressions of peaceful picketing," that this matter had already been decided in another court, that an injunction had been issued by Judge Pam against

POLICE ATTACK ROUSED STRIKERS FIGHTING SPIRIT

Amalgamated Members Determined to Win

The raid on the offices of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers did not break the spirit of the members of the union who are striking against the International Tailoring Company and the J. L. Taylor Company, it was apparent at the picket line in front of those two plants and at the strike meeting at Hod Carriers' hall.

Instead of trowing fear into the hearts of the members of the union the action of the police solidified the ranks of the strikers.

Pickets Show Spirit.

The solidification was a rank and file movement. The picket line was manned by more pickets than have turned out since the strike began. The strike meeting was very largely attended. The hall was crowded to the doors.

Morris Spitzer, business agent of Pants Makers' Local No. 144, was in charge of the meeting. He told the strikers that this latest move on the part of the bosses could only be met by continued solidarity on the part of the strikers.

Shows Reason for Raid.

Spitzer pointed out to the strikers that one of the officials and a part owner of the International had been with the police when they raided the union offices and had pointed out persons for the police to arrest. "Is there any more proof needed that the raid and the charges placed against the union officials are inspired by the bosses who we have run ragged?" he asked the strikers.

In a statement given to the DAILY WORKER after the meeting Spitzer said: "This move of the police inspired by the bosses will not affect the action of the union toward the strike. If they think that it will frighten the strikers they have learned differently by this time.

Show Keen Determination.

"The strikers realize that this attempt to frame up on the union officers is an attack directly at the life of their organization.

"We Are Still Fighting."

"The ranks of the strikers and the members of the union have been solidified by the raid and the charges placed against the union members and officers. We are still fighting and we will win."

More Brotherhood Banks.

HARTFORD, Conn., Aug. 13.—(FP)—More Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers banks are to be opened in New England, according to William Paul, representative of the New England Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers Securities Corporation. Hartford, New Haven and Bridgeport, Conn., will get these new banks of the brotherhood.

DISTRICT CONVENTION NOTICE

The convention of District No. 8 of the Workers (Communist) Party of America will be held next Sunday, August 16, at the Workers' Lyceum, 2733 Hirsch Blvd.

The convention will open promptly at 10 a. m. Out of town delegates are requested to report directly at the convention hall.

CHICAGO CONVENTION OF WORKERS PARTY UPHOLDS CENTRAL COMMITTEE POLICY

greatest danger to the party, and all genuine Communist elements, whatever their differences upon the past or present tactics, must unite for the safety of the party to combat the right wing as pointed out by the C. I. decision and the Parity Commission and Bolshevize the party in order that it may lead the American workers to the overthrowal of the bourgeoisie.

Ruthenberg Speaks for Minority.

Comrade Ruthenberg, the main speaker for the minority, opened with a disagreement with the statement that the party had accomplished anything of note during the past 18 months. On the contrary, he declared, that the party remained stationary or lost numbers and influence and had failed because the C. E. C. majority had made the mistake of dropping temporarily the slogan for a labor party.

This was the burden of the minority criticism, coupled with an accusation that the majority were allied with the Loreites and only the fight of the minority had been effective against Loreism. Upon both the labor party and upon Loreism, the minority, Ruthenberg declared, had been right and its position sustained by the C. I.

The Resolution.

Following the main speakers, three from each side spoke from the floor elaborating the points of their groups, and Comrades Ruthenberg and Cannon having summed up, the following resolution was adopted as submitted by the majority, by a vote of 69 to 40 as stated above:

1. We endorse fully and wholeheartedly all the decisions of the last plenum of the Comintern and also the decisions of the C. I. on the American question (the labor party and the general policies of the party) and we pledge our energetic support to carry these decisions into effect.

2. We endorse fully the decisions of the Parity Commission. We particularly join the Comintern and the Parity Commission in the demand that the coming party convention shall completely liquidate the factionalism which is now undermining our party and preventing its growth and proper functioning.

Unity.

3. The unification of the Communist forces in our party is an absolute necessity for its future growth. We take cognizance of the fact that the majority has worked consistently for unity in the party making all kinds of concessions to the minority. We are firmly convinced that by supporting the present Central Executive Committee we shall succeed in completely unifying our ranks for a successful struggle against capitalism.

Loreism.

4. We also endorse fully and pledge our most active support to the Comintern and Parity Commission decisions providing for the liquidation of Loreism in our party. We demand that the party be united in an uncompromising struggle against this dangerous right wing tendency. We pledge our fullest support to the whole Comintern program of Bolshevizing our party, including a militant fight against the right wing, the reorganization of the party on the basis of shop nuclei, and the raising of the theoretical level of our membership.

We express our emphatic opposition to the resolution of the Finnish Branch of Superior, Wis., and we endorse fully the statement of the Central Executive Commitee of the party and of the Finnish Bureau dealing with the Superior resolution as a manifestation of dangerous anti-party and Loreistic tendencies. We pledge our full support to the party in carrying on the struggle against these tendencies.

Bolshevization.

5. The Bolshevization theses adopted by the last plenum of the Comintern points out for the American party the following three specific immediate tasks:

a) The abolition of the present federation form of organization and the fusion of all language groups into a really centralized and unified Bolshevik party built on the basis of shop nuclei and international branches.

b) More energetic activities in the trade unions and better organization of Communist fractions in them.

c) Closer atention to the everyday needs and struggles of the workers and an intensive application of the tactics of the united front.

6. We are in complete agreement with the above instructions of the Comintern and will do all in our power to assist the party in the carrying out of these policies.

Mass Labor Party.

7. We fully support the labor party policy as laid down by the Comintern decision on the American question. We pledge ourselves to support an energetic campaign for the formation of a mass labor party based upon solid trade union support.

8. We endorse the activities of the present Central Executive Committee ty. We mention only a few of these and express our confidence in the majority of the C. E. C. to lead the party in accord with the spirit and principles of Leninism.

The C. E. C. Approved.

9. The present majority of the party is organically connected with the mass movements of the working class. The majority has a clear and correct understanding of Communist work in the trade unions, which the Comintern has repeatedly pointed out to be among our most important and vital tasks.

10. During the past eighteen months the party, under the leadership of the C. E. C. succeeded in overcoming many difficulties and critical situations that were confronting the party. We mention only a few of these:

Accomplishments.

a) The party has broken the isolation that resulted out of the last swing of the LaFollette movement, and the consequent setback of the labor party movement. Beginning with the last presidential campaign, when our party took for the first time the parliamentary field on a national scale, the party is continually overcoming its isolation and is driving ahead for wider political struggles.

b) The party is now moving decisively and clearly towards great campaigns in the class struggle generally, in the trade unions and on the parliamentary field.

c) The T. U. E. L. is developing strength and has led many effective fights of the left wing against the bureaucracy in the trade unions as for example, the last election in the U. M. W. A., the fight for the reinstatement of Alex Howat and the other miners, the fight against the Lewis-Farrington machine in Illinois, the support of the Nova Scotia miners, the splendid showings made in the elections of the Machinists and Carpenters' Unions, the present great struggle of 35,000 members of the New York Ladies' Garment Workers' local unions against the reactionary Sigman machine.

d) Despite the bitter factional fight in the party lasting nineteen months, which was aggravated by the impermissable tactics of the minority that at times has threatened the unity of the party, the party under the leadership of the C. E. C. continued to make steady progress.

Communist influence in the unions is growing despite all persecutions by the reactionary bureaucracy. The party press is extended and strengthened. The political maturity of our membership and its Bolshevik quality is continually improving. The party is getting ready for its great reorganization campaign on the basis of shop nuclei and for complete centralization of the party apparatus.

Many Campaigns.

11. During the past eighteen months the party under the leadership of the Central Executive Committee has carried thru several important united front political campaigns. Chief among them are the following:

a) The campaign against the Russian menshevik and the Second International on the occasion of the arrival in the United States of R. Abravomich. In this campaign the party was successful in defeating the immediate designs of the Russian menshevik in America, and also to bring before the American Worker the role of the Communist International and the movement for world trade union unity iniated by the R. I. L. U. and the British trade unions.

b) The campaign against the attempt of the white terror in Poland, to murder the leader of the Polish workers and poor peasants, Comrade Lanzutsky.

(c) The campaign against child labor which secured the active support of many trade unions and contributed greatly towards promoting the movement of the American workers for independent political action.

d) The campaign against wage cuts. This campaign was directed towards promoting a strike movement against wage cuts, to accellerate the movement for amalgamation and to educate the workers to the necessity of political struggle as a class against the capitalists.

The C. I. Decision Final.

12. The decision of the Comintern on the labor party controversy settles the difference of opinion in our party on that very important question. It gives our party a clear policy of work and struggle for a labor party based upon the mass support of the trade unions. The mistake of temporarily abandoning the slogan pointed out by the Comintern has been corrected by the Central Executive Committee which has already outlined a program and laid the basis for a new campaign for a labor party.

What Kind of a Labor Party?

13. We support fully the insistence of the C. I. that no premature organizational steps shall be taken in the Labor Party campaign, that a party formed only by the Workers Party and its close sympathizers in close sympathizers' organizations is not a Labor Party, and that we must guard against the splitting off of the left wing from the Labor Party to transform it into a mass Communist party, but on the contrary, we must let the left wing grow within the broad movement and strive to win the masses for the revolutionary class struggle. We accept fully the position of the majority, approved by the Comintern, that we must fight for a Labor Party based upon the mass support of the trade unions.

14. We express full confidence in the leadership of the present Central Executive Committee. We are firmly convinced that only by giving the leadership of the party to the present majority will the party be able to make the best progress toward becoming a mass Communist Party on the basis of Leninism and under the leadership of the Comintern.

violent picketing, and that the International had arrested no one under that charge.

Attempt to Impose Sweatshop.

"I must explain the background of this case," said Cunnea. "The entire clothing trade of the city of Chicago has signed a union agreement with the Amalgamated, and they have all made money under this agreement. But the International Tailoring Company thot that they saw a way to impose the sweatshop on their workers, and the man who was to have signed the agreement suddenly took sick. He stayed sick for several weeks, while the Amalgamated waited, and finally the company refused to sign a union agreement."

"Then they made an agreement with the United Garment Workers, which has not put a needle to a good garment since 1910."

Police Czar Used Wrecking Crew.

Cunnea then asked that the search warrant be quashed on the grounds that it was unconstitutional. The complaint asking for the warrant, signed by Reeder, Cunnea showed, had alleged that there was dynamite on the Amalgamated premises, which had been shown untrue. Lyle reserved his decision on the quashing of the warrant.

"This police czar went down there with his wrecking crew and he found no thieves, no burglars, but men whose retputations are every bit as good as yours, Mike Grady. Where in these sixty-two union men did you find safeblowers, and you are an expert on safeblowers, Grady?"

Contrary to Law.

Cunnea then went into the history of the strike against the International. "On the streets of New York city certain pickets were killed," he said, "but the International found that injunctions don't make clothes, and it was thot necessary to destroy the Amalgamated. The next step was to bring in this gentleman just back from his vacation—I don't know whether or not a forced vacation. These sixty-two men were held at the detective bureau contrary to law, and Stege and Grady know it."

Judge Shows Prejudice.

Judge Lyle showed his direct prejudice in favor of the International, and Cunnea served notice that he will file a petition for a change of venue. "I will break up this slugging," Lyle said, taking it for granted that the union men were guilty. "I am confident that some of those before me are guilty of slugging, and if I could identify them, I would send them to jail for five years." Referring to De Rosa, the judge again assumed him guilty, saying: "This man was present when the tailor shop at 358 West Madison street was raided." This statement was made in view of the fact that Louise Niccoli, who was the witness against De Rosa, was "not sure" he was the man.

"I believe there are thugs in the union," Lyle said.

Many of the Amalgamated members regard it as significant that the witnesses appearing against the strikers were from tailor shops having an agreement with the United Garment Workers. It is also significant that officials of the A. F. of L. garment union, on the same day as the raid took place, came out with statements denouncing the Amalgamated and the Chicago Federation of Labor, which upheld the Amalgamated strikers in the face of a letter from President William Green of the A. F. of L., who called the Amalgamated a "dual union" and upheld the United Garment scabherders.

The Amalgamated strikers are now looking for a statement from the Chicago Federation on the atrocious raids conducted by the city police, and on the use of the United Garment Workers' name in the capitalist press as supporters of the International activities against the strikers.

Grady Was Suspended.

The character of the frame-up being attempted against the union is shown by the fact that "Mike" Grady, notorious as Chicago's "toughest cop," was placed in charge of the investigation and raid immediately after he had been reinstated on the police force.

Grady had been suspended from the force for his part in a fight of police officers at Colosimo's Inn on 22nd street. Because there were not witnesses willing to appear against him he was reinstated at 11 o'clock Wednesday, and after only two hours' "investigation" of the alleged bombings which the police charge was the cause of the raid, Grady and his squad descended on the union offices.

Grady Mixed in Booze Robbery.

The "Inn" in which Grady and other police had their little fight is a notorious hangout for pimps, panders and prostitutes. Grady was not in the place in the line of duty. He was there "for a little fun."

Recently Grady was indicted along with all the other members of his detective bureau squad for alleged participation in a big booze warehouse robbery. He and his squad were tried and acquitted, altho the other persons tried for the robbery were found guilty.

Grady's defense was that he had protected the robbers of the warehouse, not knowing that they were robbing the warehouse.

Among those held for "conspiracy," the conspiracy being, according to Grady, to damage the International's property, were Isadore Rothbart, Sidney Rissman, Samuel Guyer, Mike De Novi, O. Defelisis, James Cooper, Sol Kramer, Don Kalamen, Brestate Felices, Reuben Block, Frank Habasek, Isaac Miller and Louis Angelo.

Included among those who were discharged by Lyle, after they spent a night in jail, were Alfonso Mondello, Vincent Agarno, Joseph Stola, Isadore Schneider, John Lomino, James Camillo, Martin Caduto, Frank Gurenski, Bernard Ralling, Stanley Rock, Victor Gelsomemoni, Raymond Vanni, Joseph Tarregosa, A. Goldberg, John Mayus, John Filla, Abe Padra, Joe Garrambue, William Reeger, Sam Odelson, Morris Feldman, Jack Weaver, Don Klein, Peter Noroek, Phillip Lazarski, Jerry Pocenty, Andrew Binello, Philip Nochauser, Mike Anzolone, Tony Rosate, Dominic Camera, John Splitt, Sam Zimmer, Morris Schwartz, Harry Kowan, Fred Riso, Ben Miller, John Gravin, Morris Epstein, Joseph Santallo, H. Rambon, John Kucera, Henry Rubin, John Doherty, Frank Sindilar, Joseph Pavik, Louis Odelson, James Murphy, Tony Gallotto.

Rissman, the sixty-third arrested, was thrown into a cell when he tried to bail the other strikers out.

remedies, the article was refused publication in the official bulletin by our executive board.

Unity Needed.

"Now is the time to follow the example of our brothers in New York to clean up our union and to build it upon a strong fighting basis: to solidify our ranks, so that we will be able to meet the employers as a unified whole conscious of our mission as workers.

"Our present business agent has no policy except to do nothing or else yield everything to the boss without a struggle. Everyone knows of the corruption that exists in our union and we believe that the remedy is a sound progressive program and a militant leadership. We are giving our support to Brother Israelson, in the coming election, against Milstein because Brother Israelson stands in the present election upon the following program of action and if elected will try to put it into effect. This, however, can only be done if he has the full support and active aid from the membership.

Israelson's Program.

"1. Abolition of the present policy of terrorism in our union, and the right of freedom of expression within the union.

"2. For a democratic organization in which all members will be drawn into the work of the union.

"3. Exposure of the corruption within the union and the elimination of those who have violated the union principles.

"4. For an honest, responsible and progressive administration, for clean unionism.

"5. To mobilize all active unionists to better the conditions of the furriers and the elimination of all internal strife.

"6. The launching of an immediate campaign to organize the unorganized, to draw all active members in the union into this campaign by the forming of rank and file organizing committees.

"7. No discrimination by the manufacturers against the active unionists in the shops.

"8. Amalgamation of all needle trades unions into one organization.

"9. Organization of shop committees to be completely under rank and file control.

"10. Proper employment system where each member has the same opportunity to get employment.

"11. The revival of the sick and death benefit fund for the protection of our members during illness. (I.e. Dues prior to the election of Brother Milstein were 30c a week. Today we are paying 40c a week dues and we have no sick and death benefit fund.)"

Inspiring Reception in Peking as Red Aviators Arrive from Red Moscow

By J. LOUIS ENGDAHL.

TODAY, the inspiring details arrive of the history-making flight of the Soviet air squadron from Moscow to Peking.

It was Hsu Ch'ien, former minister in the government, a prominent member of the Kuomintang, the revolutionary party of Chinese workers, that extended the greeting for Chinese labor to these intrepid explorers of the air from the Union of Soviet Republics. Significant indeed were the concluding words of his welcome as follows:

> "Today, on behalf of the citizens of Peking, I present heartfelt welcome and express warm wishes that with every day our two countries come closer together.
> "Long live the rapproachment of the two great peoples!
>
> "Long live the gallant aviators of the Soviet Union!"

• • • •

The report says that Hsu Ch'ien's speech was drowned in cheers and applause. No wonder the British diplomats, in far off London, knowing that the Chinese workers are most bitter against the bandit rule of their imperialism, make every effort to stay the Bolshevik tide rising along the capitalist frontier against capitalism in Europe. While the echoes of speeches calling for the liberation of the Chinese peoples were still ringing in the ears of the throngs receiving the Soviet aviators in the Far East, British rulers are reported as offering an anti-Soviet Baltic alliance in support of capitalist rule in Poland if the Polish terrorist will only accept the Duke of York, son of the English king, as their monarch, and convert the republic into a monarchy.

• • • •

There were 250 organizations represented on the reception committee, another indication of the broad sympathy of the Chinese masses, if not actual solidarity with Soviet Rule. It is also interesting to note that those who accompanied the technical staff of the red air squadron were four Communist journalists, representing the great Communist dailies, Izvestia, official organ of the Union of Soviet Republics, the Moscow Pravda and the Leningrad Pravda, official organs of the Russian Communist Party, and the representative of "Rosta", the official Soviet news agency. There was also the comrade of the "Proletkino", the Proletarian Moving Picture Trust of the Soviet Union.

• • • •

The story of the flight adds to its interest when we learn that two of the flying machnies were entirely Russian-made, motors and all. Two others were constructed in the Soviet Union, the motors alone being foreign-made, while only two were foreign machines.

This will not sound especially cheering to the imperialist jingoes who proclaim that Soviet Rule will not be able to develop an air fleet for defense against the air forces of capitalism.

Neither will it be welcome, for instance, to the British statesmen, lusting for the blood of the liberated Russian worker and peasant masses, to learn that the Soviet flag and the Chinese flag, side by side, decorated the airport where the flyers landed. How great the contrast with the recent incident in the Baltic Sea, when British warships passing the Soviet battleships in maneuver, ran up the old czarist flag by way of insult rather than greeting. The czarist flag came down forever in Soviet Russia with the Bolshevik triumph in 1917, but British imperialism thus shows that it still nurses the dead czarism close to its own decaying bosom.

• • • •

Midst the speeches and the cheering the strains of "International" mingled with those of the revolutionary Chinese athem, both played by a band of the Chinese navy ministry, while an address was also made by General Chang Hao, acting chief of the Chinese air department, who greeted the Soviet aviators on behalf of Chinese aviators.

Thus the germs of a Chinese Red Army sprout into life and grow. The hundred years of serfdom of the Chinese nation, in the grip of world imperialism, nears its end.

AS WE SEE IT -:- By T. J. O'Flaherty

a short time ago General Bullard, a southern Negro-hater, insulted every colored man and woman in the United States in his series of provocative articles, which described the alleged cowardice of the Negroes in France, during the war. The Negroes are not proud that they fought for the House of Morgan any more than intelligent white workers are. But Bullard showed what is inside the black hearts of the type that glories in the American Legion.

THE Illinois Manufacturers' association is very worried over the pardoning of Theodore Vind, labor leader and his comrades. This is not surprising. We point out, however, that the manufacturers are not so worried over the pardon of gunmen who come in very handy to them, in their wars on labor unions. Gunmen and thugs make kood strike-breakers and sluggers. When the workers are properly organized industrially and politically, they will not have to worry about the manufacturers' associations and their gunmen.

THE raid of the Chicago police on the headquarters of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers shows that workers who depend on capitalist politicians always get it in the neck. Mayor Dever is responsible for the raid on the offices of the Joint Board. The raid was carried out to help the International Tailoring Company, break the Amalgamated strike. When Dever was running for mayor, the "New Majority", now the "Federation News", official organ of the Chicago Federation of Labor, endorsed him as a friend of labor. He has shown how good a friend of labor he is.

THE Amalgamated Clothing Workers has the reputation of being a militant labor union. It deserved the reputation. It is true that Hillman and others of its leaders have been trying to live down the past. Hillman not so very long ago, repudiated the class struggle and strikes in a speech made to the membership here. But the bosses don't make any fine distinctions. What they don't like first is losing money. Any labor union that hits their pockets is "red" in their eyes. The Amalgamated leaders will learn, if they care to, that the only way they can become respectable in the eyes of the bosses is to follow the example of Tom Rickert and his scabby United German Workers and become a company union. The members of the Amalgamated are not headed in that direction. Not if they know it.

has been made necessary because of the fact that the War Department called me into active service on November 4th. Since that time I have been awaiting orders and getting my affairs into shape. It occurred to me that the ending of the war would automatically close the incident but such is not the case. I have been directed by the War Department to be prepared. I do not know what they will do with me, but I anticipate that I shall be absent for a while at least."

Pressmen laugh at the idea of Berry's board of directors giving Berry leave of absence. This is how the Baord of Directors works: When Berry comes to Chicago he registers at three or four hotels and it is impossible for anybody except those who are on the inside of the clique to get in touch with him. This does not exclude the printing bosses who always seem to know where to find their servant.

Shuford Shuffles to Ulease

When Berry thinks up some new scheme to fleece the membership of the union, he conveys the idea to Shuford Marks, who shuffles to telephone and transmits Berry's bright idea to Billy McHugh. Both those gentlemen are vice-presidents of the international union. This constitutes a meeting of the board of directors. Another vice-president who takes care of the pigs at the Pressmen's Home is not even asked to grunt. Berry handles his board of directors just dle a bodygaurd of eunuchs. They like the Sultan of Turkey would hardraw their pay, say nothing but nod to every order given by their paymaster.

While Berry was in the employ of the United States government as a "major" he received a salary. It was not a "dollar a year" either. Yet when he returned to this country he drew his salary from the treasury of the I. P. P. & A. E. for every minute of the time he was in France, amounting to over $1,500.00. He also drew a salary as Trustee of the Home. Berry and secretary-treasurer Orr of the International are the only trustees drawing salaries.

His Military Career

This is the history of Berry's military career. But the uniform came in handy to him since. Berry was used by Sam Gompers as a liason officer between the reactionary bureaucracy of the A. F. of L. and the American Legion which was founded by money contributed by the Dupont Powder Co. and kindred interests. The aim of the Legion was to block the forward march of the American workers, and particularly to prevent them from coming under the influence of the radicals. The capitalists felt that the tragedy of the war and the great sufferings of the masses would result in a great wave of opposition to the war and those who made the war. It was to prevent this reaction from reaching dangerous proportions, that the Legion was organized. Since then the Legion has taken part in strikebreaking activities, in several parts of the country. This was particularly so during the shopmen's strike of 1922.

Record of Scabbery

Berry's strikebreaking record is not confined to Chicago. He has done even better in New York. The details of his scabbery in New York will be told in later instalments. In order order to show how well Berry stood in with the Gompers machine, and also to show that strikebreaking and corruption are not frowned upon by the bureaucracy of the A. F. of L., it is only necessary to state, that when Berry arrived at the Portland convention of the American Federation of Labor, after breaking the strike of the Web Pressmen in New York, Gompers greeted him and honored him with a call to the platform, because of his brilliant achievement in breaking a strike with lthe help of union scabs and detectives.

It was at this convention that William F. Dunne, then editor of the Butte Bulletin, now of the DAILY WORKER, was expelled for exposing John L. Lewis the Berry of the United Mine Workers, in the columns of his paper.

The "Majah" fresh from his scabbery butted into the red baiting with a statement that the most important business before the convention was the expulsion of Dunne, who was feared by the reactionaries because he was the only man at the convention who could make the fakers quiver with a scorching indictment of their treachery to the workingclass.

Berry Is Wealthy

Berry like many more of the high officials of the American Federation of Labor is a man of means. He is one of the biggest industrial magnates in the State of Tennessee. Those industrial enterprises were established with the money taken from the Old Age Pension Fund and the War Emergency Fund Assesment of a days pay and 25 cents a month. Among those enterprises are: The Clinchfield Mercantile Company, The Clinchfield Hydro-Electric Company, and the Clinchfield Land and Lumber Company. While all those properties are supposed to belong to the union, they are really in the names of Berry, his wife and Orr and his wife. But more about this matter later on.

(Another installment of this series will appear in tomorrow's DAILY WORKER."

"WE know well that there is no absolute freedom in your country, that only the working class enjoys complete freedom; but we know also that freedom for the bourgeoisie would mean suicide for the revolution."—German Social-Democrat, Offenhagen, in speech at Kharkov, Soviet Ukraine, July 27, 1925.

GERMAN VISITORS DIVIDE INTO THREE GROUPS IN UKRAINE AND INSPECT ALL THINGS CLOSELY

(By International Press Correspondence)

MOSCOW, July 28—(By Mail.)—After visiting various factories, shops and institutions, the Ukrainian group of the German workers' delegation journeyed to the Donetz Basin where it divided itself into three sections and visited the salt mines of Artemovsk, the coal mines of Schtscherbinovka and Gorlovka.

Upon leaving Kharkov, Offenhagen declared to press representatives that the hate which had existed in his time between the Ukrainian workers and the German settlers had, he was convinced, given place to a real feeling of class regard towards the Germans.

The simplicity of the Ukrainian government members and their popularity with the people had made a great impression upon him.

The friendly relations existing between the workers in the shops and the administrative personnel was remarkable and unthinkable in present-day Germany.

Despite the difficult war years thru which the Ukraine had passed, it did not lag behind Russia in economic reconstruction.

The Ukrainian group of the delegation addressed a farewell letter to the workers of Kharkov in which it thanked them for their fraternal reception of the delegation and expressed its recognition of the high standard of living of the Ukrainian working class.

The delegation further promised to disperse the campaign of calumny spread against the Soviet Ukraine in Germany and expressed its conviction of the real possibility for the establishment of international working class unity.

The Caucasian group of the delegation is continuing its investigation of the trade union and state organizations in the Caucasus. In Rostov on the Don it visited various factories, etc., a factory for agricultural machinery, a tobacco factory, a leather works, a printing shop, workers sanatoria.

It was present at a session of the trade union council of the Don district and afterwards undertook a sea journey to Taganrog where it visited the wharves and aeroplane factories. In the evening the delegation left for the Caucasian health resorts.

The Ural group of the delegation during its two days' stay in Perm visited many shops and factories according to its choice.

PREMIER ADMITS SEVERE DEFEAT IN SYRIAN WAR

French Losses Were 800, Seueda Endangered

PARIS, Aug. 13.—The seriousness of the rising of the Druse tribes against the French administration in Syria, was reflected when Premier Painleve admitted that the total French losses were 800 tin killed, wounded and missing.

Painelev said the provisions in the garrison at Seueda can hold out only 40 days and that reinforcements are now being sent to the relief of that post.

SUCCESSFUL COLUMBUS MEETING IS HELD DESPITE THE KU KLUX KLAN

(Special to The Daily Worker)

COLUMBUS, O., Aug. 13.—Workers of all races joined in a most successful "Hands off China" meeting held in front of the State House.

Mother Bloor, on a cross-country hitch-hike for the DAILY WORKER, repeated her success of last night, holding the two largest labor demonstrations held in this city in many months.

In the face of the K. K. K. both white and Negro workers joined heartily in open approval of the fight for the freedom of oppressed nationalities and the Negro workers in this country as voiced by Mother Bloor.

Continuous cheering of the speaker by the crowd assembled was indicative of the high spirit aroused. Hundreds of copies of the DAILY WORKER were sold and distributed and twenty-five subs were given to the speaker from workers in the crowd.

Negro workers present, stirred by the local activities of the Negro Labor Congress, cheered the speaker in her approval of this move of the Negroes for organization. Copies of their organ, the Negro Champion, were sold to workers of all races assembled.

Mother Bloor continues her successful Ohio trip by speaking in Akron tonight, moving to Youngstown on Friday, Aug. 14; Warren, Saturday, Aug. 15, and Cleveland on Sunday, Aug. 16.

SLATER, A. F. OF L. SCAB HERDER, ATTACKS LOCAL FEDERATION OF LABOR

The United Garment Workers, affiliated with the American Federation of Labor, is not only devoting its energies to supplying scabs to the International Tailoring company, whose employes are on strike, but has issued statements, thru George C. Slater, Chicago organizer, attacking the Chicago Federation of Labor.

Slater showed a reporter a letter from William Green, president of the A. F. of L., upholding the organized scabbery of United Garment Workers and ordering the Chicago Federation of Labor to keep out of "disputes with dual union," as the Amalgated is characterized.

The statement of Slater was along the same lines as Green's letter. He was angry because the Chicago Federation has thrown its support to the Amalgamated, which he terms as "outlaw" organization.

Slater and Green are thus promoting the "open shop" by peddling the union label to a firm whose employes are on strike and which refuses to accept union conditions. Slater is also continuing to supply scabs to the International Tailoring company.

Forest Fires in Montana.

MISSOULA, Mont., Aug. 13.—Greatly augmented crews are making good headway against most of the forest fires in Montana and northern Idaho and eastern Washington, forestry officials announced at headquarters for the district here today. Many fires are under control, but dense smoke clouds for hundreds of miles to the north prevents accurate observations by the air patrol.

ESPIONAGE LAW VICTIM IN CAL. COMPLETES TERM

Sixty Three More I.W.W. Members Still in Jail

(Special to The Daily Worker)

SAN FRANCISCO, August 13.—The first victim of the California criminal syndicalist law to complete his sentence in Folsom prison at Represa is James MacLaughlin who was released August 9th, reports the California branch of the General Defense Committee. MacLaughlin served four years of a one to fourteen year sentence.

He was arrested in June, 1921 with six other members of the I. W. W. in a police raid on their hall in Oakland. Six of the seven were tried the following October on five counts charging violation of the criminal syndicalist law. They were all found guilty of two counts and sentenced to terms of one to fourteen years each.

The specific charge was circulation of literature. Sixty-three members of the Industrial Workers of the World still remain in California prisons serving sentences under the syndicalist law.

TO FORM UNITED LABOR BODY TO AID CHINESE LIBERATION

NEW YORK CITY, Aug. 13.—The conference to unite the forces of labor behind the struggling workers of China will be held in New York City on August 28 at the Styvesant Casino, 142 Second Ave.

The conference has been postponed from August 3 in order to give many labor organizations an opportunity to act upon the call.

The Workers Party upon whose initiative the conference has been called will send representatives of its branches and expects that labor unions and fraternal organizations will respond to the appeal for aid to the Chinese workers.

CO-OPS INCREASE IN SOVIET UNION; GOVERNMENT BUYS TRACTORS, SETS UP NEW EXPERIMENTAL STATIONS

WOSCOW.—On January 1, 1924, the number of members of the Soviet agricultural co-operatives was estimated at 1,270,000. Up to October 1, 1924, the number increased to 2,056,000 and on May 1, 1925, the number of members was about 3,000,000. The gross receipts of these co-operatives in 1922-23 was estimated at 146,000,000 rubles; in 1923-24 the amount increased to 600,000,000 rubles.

Near the railroad station Bratzevo, a few miles from Moscow, since last year a new experimental station has operated. The aim of this station is to cultivate in U. S. S. R. new cultures valuable for various industrial and chemical purposes; for instance, the rubber three. At the present time the station has under cultivation 1,200 different kinds of trees.

6,000 Agricultural Circles.

In different parts of R. S. F. S. R. are now functioning 6,000 agricultural circles. The number of these organizations is growing rapidly. In most cases the activities of these circles are under the supervision of local agricultural experts.

The department of internal commerce of the Ukranian Soviet Republic has allowed 1,355,000 rubles to the peasants for their corn crop. They expect to give later 2,500,000 rubles, more for the same purpose.

3,000 Tractors For Ukrainia.

The government of the Ukrainian Soviet Republic will purchase this year 3,000 tractors for the Ukrainian peasants. Half of this amount is already imported and delivered. 500 of them have been purchased and will be delivered in the near future. Representatives are sent abroad to buy the balance of 1,000 tractors.

Very Rare Case of Blossoming.

SPIES OF BULGARIAN WHITE TERROR ATTEMPT TO RAILROAD COMMUNISTS TO PRISON, ONE MURDERED IN JAIL

SOFIE, Bulgaria, August 13.—The trial of the Central Executive Committee of the Bulgarian Communist Party is in process in the District Court in Sofia. All the members of the Central Committee of 1923 are included in the indictment. Only four prisoners will appear in the dock. They have been confined for eighteen months since the September rising against the Zankov government. Two others have died. One, Anton Iwanow, is known to have been torturned to death in prison. Three members are abroad but will be tried in their absence.

The charge is attempting to overthrow the existing government. It is recalled that the government launched a nation-wide campaign of raids and imprisonment on all radical elements in Bulgaria on September 12th, 1923, giving as a pretext that the Communist Party issued a call for a rising on September 16th.

GERMANS SAY SOVIETS HAVE REBUILT RUSSIA

Visit Supreme Economic Council at Moscow

MOSCOW (By Mail)—Today a great swimming and rowing fete arranged by the Moscow working youth took place in the Moscow river in honor of the German workers' delegation.

The delegation visited the supreme economic council, the members of which answered the questions of the delegates upon the state of the various branches of the peoples economy in the Soviet Union.

At the close of the discussion the member of the Presidium of the Supreme Economic Council, Mansev pointed out how much the German workers were interested in the quick building up of Soviet industry, for the growing demand for machinery and tools increases the volume of Soviet purchases in Germany and contributes to the betterment of the peoples' economy and the working class in Germany. May the German workers after their return home do their utmost to prevent the destruction of the political and economic relations between Germany and the Soviet Union by the intrigues of various capitalist groups.

In the name of the German delegation, Beck declared that the delegates had been convinced that the Soviet power had not only rebuilt economy after the general economic collapse in consequence of the imperialist and civil wars, but that it had also laid the basis for the construction of a socialist economy. The Russian working class with much worse conditions, had rebuilt its economy better and more quickly than many a rich capitalist land.

on a similar mission, it was stated.

Fink is Well Named.

The hearing of the witness, Fink, corroborated essentially the previous results of the hearing of the accused. Fink describes himself as "left" and declares that he sympathizes with the Communists. He had, however, come to Communism thru his theological studies. (Laughter.) Fink admits all the previously made statements upon the technical preparation of the expedition. He denies, however, its terroristic character. Cross-examination proved, however, that he had taken part in the discussions mentioned by Dittmar.

The accused Dittmar declared that the witness Fink is known to him as an old member of the Organization Consul and that he took an active part both in the preparations for the expedition and in the working out of its terroristic plans.

Referring to the statement of Kindermann that before his arrest in Moscow he had never heard of the Organization Consul, the witness Fink declared that he also held it to be impossible and quite out of the question that any German student could not know of the existence of the O. C. Kindermann therefore is quite alone in his contention among all the accused and the witnesses.

Questioned by the chairman upon his characteristic discussion with Dittmar and Wolscht upon the Berlin Wiedendamm bridge, Fink became extremely uncomfortable. He declared that he could no longer remember the text of the discussion. It was, however, possible that Wolscht had jokingly referred to "three unusual Bolsheviks." Questioned by the chairman upon the letters which he had received from the father of Wolscht, Fink eagerly presented a great number of letters. It was seen, however, that he had "forgotten" exactly that letter in which the father of Wolscht requests him to discover the possible membership of Wolscht to the Organization Consul.

Fascists in Hot Water.

The chairman asked the witness if he had undertaken any steps to carry out the wish of Wolscht's father. The witness Fink declared that he had made inquiries at the university as to whether the corporation "Neomarchia" still existed, as, however this corporation was not mentioned on the black list of the university, he had held its non-existence to be proved, and thereupon he had stopped his inquiries. (Laughter.)
